MANY PEOPLE RUN

away with the idea that it is impossible to get a really good Roller unless one is prepared to pay a big price. To prove that this is utterly wrong, I ask you to inspect my prices, and read the letters given below. I have several times said that the Leipsig Roller, as imported by me, from "Hans Weber," is by far and away the best Roller on the market. To prove this to you, I ask you to have one from me on a week's trial, and an ordinary Roller from elsewhere on similar terms, test them side by side for a week, and if mine is not by far the best bird at a lower price, return it to me and tell your friends that Leipzig Rollers are not as good as represented. I send every one on a week's trial, at my own risk, either on receipt of cash, or CAGE BIRDS deposit system, and refund every penny of cash if fullest satisfaction not given, and your every expectation not realised. For many years I have imported these birds only, and at present time claim to be the largest retailer of Rollers in United Kingdom, and this enormous trade has been built up solely by the sheer merit of my birds, not by extensive advertising. I now have on hand an immense stock of pure Liepzig Rollers, direct from "Hans Weber," all in full song, day and gaslight, with long, hollow and double rolls, sweet, silvery trills, water-bubble runs, soft roulades, piccolo trills, bell, harp, gong, flute, and jug-jug of Nightingale, etc., etc., and are guaranteed absolutely free from chipping or chopping, or any other harsh notes whatever, price 7/-, and 8/- each; special Bandmasters, 10/- each. I also have a grand lot special coutest birds, which excel in the deep bass, hollow, and laughing rolls, etc., price, 12/6 and 15/- each. These contest birds are of the purest blood Germany can boast of, and their song can be likened to a cascade of ever flowing melody. Anyone wanting to improve their strain of Rollers, or a Schoolmaster, or contest singer, should not miss this opportunity, as these birds are worth treble, and when stock is exhausted, offer cannot be repeated. Special Roller cabinet cages, with loose fronts, and folding doors made specially for my Rollers, 2/6 each; ordinary singing box cages, 1/- and 1/6 each. I also hold an enormous stock of loud, free singing Hartz cocks, every one warranted in loud, full, vigorous song, price 5/- each, seven 31/6; Hartz hens, 2/- each, 3/6 couple, 16/- dozen. See following letters, with full name and address, and dates to each one:—"9, Rosby-place, Uddingston, Jan. 24.—Sir, please send following. The Leipzig Roller I had is giving every satisfaction, singing lovely, day and gaslight. Thanking you for selection, and honest dealing. Yours, David Wood." "Woodhouse, near Sheffield, January 20th. Sir,—Received Roller all right, and I wish to thank you for sending such a gem. He is now singing for all he is worth. Yours, J. Cooper." "132, Anerley Road, Anerley, London, January 18th. Sir,—Thanks very much for sending me such a lovely Canary. He sings all day long; I never thought of getting a bird to sing like he does, at the price. Yours, E. Lear." "29, Victoria Street, Tenby, January 16th. Sir.—Please send following. I am well pleased with Hartz cock, it is singing splendidly, and is more than I really expected for such a low price. Yours, T. Davies." "39, St. James' Street, Trafford Road, Salford, Jan. 12th. Sir,—Bird arrived safe, and am well satisfied with it. Thanking you very much for quick dispatch. Yours, T. Foster." "61, Wellington Street, Grimsby, January 10th. Sir,—Roller to hand, and I am more than satisfied with him. He was only unpacked ten minutes before he started singing. Thanking you for such a good bird. Your dealings are very honest. Yours, F. Gillespie." "Bray, Ireland, January 10th. Sir,—Birds to hand, and I am quite satisfied with them. The cock is a grand songster. He started singing shortly after arrival. Yours, E. O'Neill." "The Square, Aspley Guise, January 9th. Sir,—Roller arrived 'as fresh as a daisy,' beautifully packed. We are delighted with him. Many thanks. Yours, A. Evans." "22, Henry Street, Tyldesley, Manchester, January 7th. Sir,—Rollers arrived in good order, thanks for quick dispatch. Yours, G. Hilton." "24, Marsden Street, Kirkham, Preston, January 4th. Sir, —Roller you sent me has pleased very well. He is a champion. It is a pleasure to deal with such an honest man. Yours, Ed. Woods." The above letters which you will notice are all dated for January, 1910, are open to inspection at any time. Don't forget that all birds are safely and warmly packed (no matter how cold the weather) free of extra charge, and sent on full week's trial, solely at my own risk during the whole time, and money fully and freely refunded if every satisfaction not given. I am the sole importer of this strain of Roller, and all birds are stamped under wing "Hans Weber, Leipzig," and if any person would like to hear one sing, and cannot call at my place, I shall be pleased to send him one for a week, even if he does not desire to purchase, providing he will deposit cash with Editor of CAGE BIRDS until bird is returned. Inspection cordially invited; over 1,000 Roller cocks on view at all times, and fresh arrivals twice weekly. See British Bird advertisement.

MORE GAINS.

I have already the confidence of many thousand fanciers who read this journal, and it is with pleasure I note the ever-increasing confidence the readers have in me. This is easily proved by the thousands of unsolicited testimonials I have received from delighted customers (every letter open for your inspection bearing the original postmark). I always have and still do guarantee every customer satisfaction; this can only be done by my original seven days' approval system; all you have to do is to send your orders and p.o. direct to me, giving full description of your requirements. I in return carefully select from my large, well-assorted stock, birds in accordance with your orders, securely pack and forward them, carriage paid, to your address, on seven days' approval. You receive the birds in good condition, and are privileged to keep them seven days at my risk that you may be fully satisfied, and get the opinion of your friends that the birds are exceptionally good value for the amount paid, before deciding to keep them. Should any bird die during the time of approval, I replace it free of charge. You will plainly see with the above conditions it is impossible to be dissatisfied, for you only keep the birds that give every satisfaction. My sending all my Canaries carriage paid on seven days' approval at my risk, together with the high quality and reasonable prices of my birds, are the reasons the thousand and one customers are continually forwarding me their repeat orders. The quality of my birds defies competition. Note the following prices. But you must see the quality, it will astound you. Genuine trained St. Andreasberg Rollers, cocks, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6; a few contest songsters, 15/-, 20/-, 25/-; hens, 2/6, 3/6; Hartz Rollers, loud free songsters, cocks, 5/3, 5/9, 6/3, 6/9; matched pairs, 7/6, 8/6, 9/6; Yorkshire cocks, 6/6, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6; Yorkshire hens, 3/6, 4/6, 5/6; matched breeding pairs, 8/6, 9/6, 16/6, 12/6; Norwich cocks and hens or matched pairs same prices as Yorkshires; neat travelling cages, 3d. each extra; full illustrated price list of birds and cages, 1d. for postage. "FIRST AND SPECIAL BEST IN SHOW."

Read following from "Cattwood Aviaries, Belper, January 31st, 1910. Sir,—Pleased to say buff Yorkshire cock safe to hand. Arrived in splendid condition, and consider him a perfect gem. Followed instructions given in your letter, and pleased to say he was benched in the pink on Saturday, 29th, winning 1st prize and special, special best Canary in show (stood clear out in his class), and am perfectly sure you have given me far better value in this bird than the cash I sent you, and to prove how I appreciate your honourable treatment, shall recommend you to all fanciers I know. G. Elkins to L. Dykes. Another from 12, Shore Street, Campbeltown, January 25th, 1910,—Just a line to let you know I got the bird all right, and I showed him, and he got 1st here at Campbeltown Open Show. John McLean to L. Dykes.

I hold scores of similar testimonials from present-day winning exhibitors, of winners sold and winners bred from stock birds I supplied them with. Further comment unnecessary, but if you want "show birds" or "stock to breed winners," Dykes' Reliable strain is what you require.

Champion, long, stylish yellow Yorkshire cocks, at 6/-, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/- each; extra good buff cocks, at 5/-, 6/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/- each, all on full song, and for length, style and quality, cannot be beaten at higher prices. Grand racy, tight-feathered hens, yellows, at 4/-, 5/-, 6/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6; buffs at 3/6, 4/6, 6/6, 8/6, 10/6; pairs, properly and carefully matched, to breed own winners, from 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, 25/-, 30/- per pair; in clears, ticked, green-marked, cinnamon-marked, and a few even-marked, colour-fed or natural colour, all guaranteed cold rooms bred and kept. 10 1st, 3 2nd, and Specials, including gold medal, £3 cup (won outright), etc. This record was obtained by Miss Niall at this year's Christchurch and Ashburton shows, with a combined entry of 16 birds only. Miss N——, forwarding me catalogues for reference, writes: "All these exhibits were bred from your stock, or supplied by you direct." Such testimony of inherent quality for show and stock far outweighs references to own winners kept for own exhibition uses rather than for sale. Not being a regular exhibitor all birds I possess (except own breeders) are for absolute and immediate sale. Personally selected and unrelated pairs, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/- upwards; single birds proportionately; few exhibition specimens, 20/- upwards. 250 specimens in all Yorkshire varieties now ready and fit. All cold-room bred, reared, and kept. All on approval, cash or deposit. Full season's price list sent on receipt of stamp for reply: Jonas Knight (30 years breeder of Yorkshires only), Allerton, Bradford, Yorkshire.

Now is the time to buy stock birds. I have some real good ones for disposal, they are the right sort to breed winners. I have won 200 PRIZES WITH YORKSHIRES this season. Cinnamon-marked a speciality. I also have Clears and Green-marked.

Write, stating requirements—

CLEAR, ticked, variegated, foul or Green Yorkshires; cocks from 5/-; hens from 4/6 upwards; some splendid birds in stock; seven days' approval.—1, Ash-mount, Great Horton, Bradford, Yorkshire.

SAMUEL DEAN.

AMBLER'S WINNING YORKS.

All our champions, including Palace and other big winners, for sale, also some clinking stock birds, cocks and hens, wonderful length, shape and style, teeming with quality; pairs, from 15/- to 60/-; the oldest and purest strain in the Fancy; see our winnings for last 30 years; cold-room bred; approval, satisfaction guaranteed: Messrs. Ambler's, late of Bradford, 138, Westminster-rd., Morecambe.

Winning Yorkshires.

Direct from "Mr. Bates, Stoke," strain, which won for him thousands of prizes. I have sold from this strain to Mr. Blackhurst some toppers, and he won 1st, 2nd, 3rd, 1908, Crystal Palace; also 1sts, 2nds, 3rds at Bolton, Morecambe, etc., this season; also Mr. Banks, Cardiff, won 1sts, 2nds, etc., with this strain supplied by me. Some grand youngsters, same strain and models; cocks, Yellows or Buffs, from 6/-, 7/-, 8/-, 10/-, 12/-, 15/-, 20/-; hens, Yellows or Buffs, 5/-, 6/-, 7/6, 10/-, 12/-; matched pairs, to breed winners, 12/-, 14/-, 16/-, 18/-, 20/- pair. Any I send on approval and guaranteed to please you, as I don't exhibit these myself. Order at once; breeder 25 years.—Sandiford, Canary Breeder and Judge, Preston, Lancashire.

THE MARKED YORKSHIRE KING.

Having again won the Cinnamon Marked Y.C.C. competition, making it the fourth time in succession, also National Green Marked Y.C.C. 10-guineas trophy, now that the show season is over we are compelled to part with some of the above winners, as it is impossible for us to breed with them all, as we have over 40 first prize winners in the keenest competition. Now is the chance to get the best living at reasonable prices. Please note, these are all our own breeding with the exception of one, so buy direct from the breeder. It is acknowledged that our strain throughout the British Isles produce winners yearly. During the last four years we have won more competitions than all other Yorkshire fanciers put together, including the highest honours at Crystal Palace; also, we won more 1st at Jubilee Crystal Palace Show than any other exhibitor, including champion diploma for best bird. Those who want to be successful on the show bench, try our properly-matched pairs from 15/-, guaranteed to breed winners. All birds sent on approval. Deposit with Editor. Stamp for particulars: Ogden Bros., Dudley Hill, Bradford.

ever offered in this paper. I have au extra large stock mind you.

The Largest Collection in the World,

and from this present collection, which can be seen alive, and not merely on paper, I am prepared to send such value as I have never been able to do before, and that is saying a good deal; in fact, it spells a wonderful deal. The prices are not new, it is the superlative quality.

My special matched pairs of prize-bred Norwich Plainheads at 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, and 20/-; Crested ditto, 15/-, 20/-, 25/-, and 30/-; Yorkshires, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, and 20/-; Lancashires, 25/-, 30/-, 40/-; Cinnamons, 8/6, 9/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-; Lizards, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-; Border Fancies, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6.

To Beginners.

If you cannot afford a big price, send for a pair of my correctly matched Norwich at 8/6 or 9/6; and now note this.—In most cases where you send for pairs at this price, you are sent two buffs, often both marked birds—this is where you do not get what is required—well, I send you one marked, and one clear, one buff, and the other yellow. Travelling cage 3d. extra. Then for 3/6 I will send you a Double Breeding Cage, fitted with everything complete, for an immediate start. Total for Birds and Cage 12/3 for 8/6 birds, or 13/3 for 9/6 birds. But I would strongly recommend you to have my Cage No. 100; it has sand drawers, and is fitted with sanitary furniture throughout, and the price is only 6/-.

OLDHAM AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

Annual party in connection with the above society took place on January 29th in the large room at their headquarters, Shaw-road, when about 50 members and friends partook of an excellent tea. Later the room was cleared for music and dancing, which was heartily indulged in. The chair was occupied by Mr. J. Sharples. Songs were rendered in an efficient manner by Messrs. Hitchen and Addison and Mrs. Miller, and Mr. Howarth and Miss E. Dickenson created amusement with their Lancashire dialect. Mr. Miller was the accompanist, and Mr. Steeple played for dancing, the M.C. being Mr. W. Whyatt.

CLUB REPORTS.

ABERDEEN O.S.

A washing exhibition was given in the Trades Hall on January 28. There was a large attendance, despite the stormy weather. Birds were washed by Messrs. Balfour, Sandison, Strachan, and Hector, in their different styles, varying from that of twenty years ago to the most up-to-date method. The proceedings were watched with great interest, and while the birds were drying Mr. Hector explained the way to dress and stage a Crest. Questions were asked, the answers bringing out some interesting points. A vote of thanks to the performers brought a pleasant and instructive meeting to a close.—J. BRYSON, Sec.

AMBLE C.B.S.

Annual meeting held Jan. 29th at headquarters. The balance-sheet for 1909 showed a balance in hand of £5 12s. 6d., which was approved of by all. The following officers were elected for 1910: President, Mr. A. Scott; vice-presidents, Messrs. G. H. Smith, G. Brown, and G. Penrose; chairman, Mr. A. Anderson; vice-chairman, Mr. R. Luke; secretary, Mr. J. T. Crackett; assistant secretary, Mr. R. Hume; treasurer, Mr. J. P. Whittle; committee, Messrs. R. Glass, T. Glass, T. Inglis, R. Morgan, H. Gair, G. Geggie, T. Richardson, G. Robson, and O. Paxton; auditors, Messrs. R. Luke and H. Gair.—J. T. CRACKETT, Sec.

SUNDERLAND C.B.A.

Special meeting held on January 29 to consider some very important business. Mr. J. Fararr occupied the chair. The secretary placed before the members the agenda of the Cage Bird Union delegates' meeting at the forthcoming Palace show. The next business was the proposal from the Newcastle Society, inviting the other northern societies to consider the advisability of forming a Northern Federation. This matter was discussed at considerable length, and received most careful consideration, and it was ultimately decided that we remain affiliated to the union, and a delegate was elected to attend the proposed northern conference on our behalf, to discuss the question.—W. REID, Hon. Sec.

QUEEN'S PARK (Glasgow) C.B.S.

Annual general meeting held on January 28th, in the Marie Stuart Halls, Langside-road, Mr. J. M. Edwards presiding. The financial statements of club show and club were submitted, and these met with approval. A balance of £4 13s. 9d. was carried forward to the current year. The following office-bearers were elected for 1910:—President, R. Thomson; vice-president, R. Jeffrey; secretary, Robt. Heggie; treasurer, J. Taylor; auditors, Messrs. R. Miller, A. Torrence; and committee, Messrs. Geo. Gentles, R. Rennie, D. Taylor, Geo. Smith, A. Miller, Jas. Powell, G. McDowall, and R. Miller. A hearty vote of thanks was given the retiring office-bearers for their good support given the club during their term of office. It was arranged that this club should be purely amateur. There will be a show of matched pairs at the next meeting on February 25th; Mr. Thomson judge.—ROBT. HEGGIE, Sec.

HEYWOOD AND DIST O.S.

Annual general meeting held January 25th at headquarters, for the election of officers. President, Mr. J. Perry; vice-presidents, Messrs. J. W. Howarth and H. Turner; treasurer, Mr. R. Schofield; auditors, Messrs. J. Waddington and O. Wilson; committee, the exhibiting members; secretary, A. H. Meadowcroft; assist.-secretary, Mr. Jesse Ridings. The society is in a good financial position, and the prospects for the coming year are also good. While the business was being transacted, Mr. J. Lees (Rochdale) was judging a good class of pairs in another part of the room. 1st, J. Waddington (Nor.); 2nd, Richard Schofield (Yorks.); 3rd, J. W. Howarth (Nor.). Afterwards Mr. Lees gave his reasons for the placing of the winning pairs. Several of the members took part in a discussion at the close of which, on the motion of the president, seconded by Mr. J. Waddington, Mr. Lees was thanked for his services. We are doing our best to secure a cup for the coming members' show.—A. H. MEADOWCROFT, Sec.

CREWE O.S.

Extraordinary general meeting held at Beech Tree Hotel, January 25th. The meeting was convened for the purpose of discussing the possibilities of the society holding an open show. After the minor business, the Chairman (Mr. F. E. Cooper) said that a number of the members had for several years thought the society should hold an open show, but had very wisely held back until the finances were such as to put the club on a sound basis. He now thought they were in a good position and might well make the venture. But if we did so it would mean that the whole of the members would have to work hard. After much discussion it was unanimously decided to hold an open show on October 14th and 15th. It was also decided to apply for a number of specialist clubs' patronage, and the Secretary was instructed to write to several judges. Further discussion was then brought to a close owing to the lateness of the hour. A hearty vote of thanks to the Chairman closed the meeting.—J. C. HEATON.

BANKFOOT AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

The first annual tea and concert were held on January 22nd in the Bankfoot Schools. This event had been looked forward to with no small interest by its members, who had done everything possible to make it a great success, which, indeed, it turned out to be. Close on 200 persons sat down to an excellent tea, presided over by the wives and lady friends of our members. By way of showing the keen interest taken in this new society, I may say that several ladies were kept busy despatching teas to people who could not attend, but who were only too willing to help the society to the best of their ability, and to these the society tender their best thanks. After tea, the guests took their places in the concert room, a room specially engaged. Mr. H. Rayner (accompanist) played several selections on the piano. The concert far exceeded in interest any similar attempt in the district. Some of the very best artistes available were procured, every one of whom deserved and received well-merited rounds of applause. Miss E. Murgatroyd opened the concert with an excellent rendering of "Flight of Ages" and "River of Years." Mr. H. Wakefield, Miss E. Lupton, Mr. H. Priestley (phono fiddle selection), Miss A. Priestley, Mr. H. Barker, Miss J. Ogden (a promising contralto), Mr. J. H. Barraclough, Miss Laura Harrison, Miss Hird, Mr. W. Lawson (selections from "Maritana" on the violin), and the Low Moor Merry Mascots contributed to the evening's splendid entertainment. The Chairman, Mr. E. W. Johnson (our worthy President), referred to the advancement of the society since its inauguration in July last, when it led off with 26 members. The membership is now nearly doubled, owing no doubt to the smooth and friendly working of all the members, and to the school authorities' kindness in giving us the free use of the schools. Mr. Johnson paid the highest tributes, and mentioned that at the three shows held so far close on 300 birds were put on the show bench by the members, and, what is more, the society could hold its own with any other society in the district if only the present members would show the same enthusiasm in the future as in the past. No doubt a few obstacles will have to be surmounted, but with all members of one mind we shall face them smiling. So far this season we have had some of the very best talent in the way of lectures, with still more to follow. Mr. H. Gray presented the prizes. Every member who showed a bird during this last year received a prize, a scheme which the society intend to pursue again this year. The first show will be held on Feb. 12th, so that all intending members can still give in their names. The positions of the prize-winners were as follows:—1st, Mr. G. Hudson; Mr. O. Priestley and Mr. C. Hardaker tie for 2nd place; 4th, F. Gelder; 5th, Taylor Bros.; 6th, R. Wilkinson; 7th, R. Hinchliffe; 8th, J. Lawson; 9th, S. Warner; 10th, R. Sargeant; 11th, C. Bastow; 12th, F. Oldfield; 13th, B. Welman; 14th, Bywater and Waddington; 15th, A. Hiley; 16th, W. North; 17th, G. Musson; 18th, J. Crowther; 19th, f. Nicholl; 20th, W. Ketteringham. Mr. f. Nicholl secured as consolation prize a set of silver-mounted carvers in case, and a further consolation prize (a jam dish) was won by Mr. W. Ketteringham. A hearty vote of thanks was proposed to Mr. H. Gray for his kindness in presenting the society's first lot of prizes. This was seconded by Mr. H. Taylor, and carried unanimously. Mr. Gray replied. A vote of thanks was proposed by Mr. W. North to the ladies, for their kindness in taking such a prominent part in the tea-room, and without whose help we should have been lost. The same gentleman also proposed a vote of thanks to the artistes. This was seconded by our Chairman, Mr. E. Johnson, and the proceedings terminated with all the artistes being entertained to supper.—F. GELDER, sec.

WARRINGTON C.B.S.

Usual monthly meeting held January 27th, when Mr. F. W. Walters presided. Schedule for February show was drawn up and date fixed for February 19th. The show will be held at the Blue Bell Sale Rooms. Mr. W. R. Knowles will judge. We have decided to purchase four cups, which are to be won outright this season. One of these cups is confined to novices in £2 limit classes; this should prove an inducement for fanciers to join. We have arranged to have a paper or a lecture for every monthly meeting. Anyone interested in cage birds are invited to attend.—C. DUKES, Sec.

GLASGOW & W. COUNTIES B.C.

Meeting held in the Hall, 122, Ingram Street, Glasgow, on Jan. 29, Mr. Ramsay presiding over a good turnout of members. The balance-sheet, after being read, and the items explained, the members thought very satisfactory, there being a balance of £7 2s. 10d. in hand. The members then considered the letter from the Editor of CAGE BIRDS, re the defence fund on behalf of the British bird fanciers, and after the matter had been discussed by all the members, it was carried, that we grant £1 1s. out of the funds of the club to the defence fund. The election of office bearers resulted as follows: President, Mr. J. Ramsay; vice-presidents, Messrs. D. King and D. Johnstone; treasurer, Mr. P. Pettigrew; secretary, Mr. T. Drysdale; auditors, Messrs. A. Cant and W. Connelly; committee, Messrs. A. Thomson, W. Munro, D. Knox, A. Malcolmson, G. Marlin, and H. Brown. The members granted the sum of £2 to the secretary. The pair show for next monthly meeting was settled to be the same as last year, except the Crests classes, which were left out. It was carried that we have morocco cards for our monthly shows, entry money 3d. per cage.—T. DRYSDALE, Sec.

EALING, HANWELL & DIS. F.S.

Annual general meeting held on January 6th, but owing to the amount of business to be transacted, was adjourned to January 25th, at Hanwell Public Library. The Secretary's report of the year's work and balance-sheet were passed, the latter showing a satisfactory state of affairs. The distribution of prize money won at the annual and Grand United Metropolitan Shows then took place, and amidst much applause the silver cups awarded, the fortunate recipients being Messrs. F. Smith (cage birds cup), G. Melsom, F. W. Wilks, and J. W. Smales. The election of officers for 1910 was a somewhat protracted business. The Society are fortunate in securing James Morley, Esq., LL.M., J.P., as President. In responding, the new President expressed his pleasure at being elected, intimating his willingness to help forward the work of the Society in every possible way. Mr. J. W. Smales was again unanimously elected Chairman for the 5th year in succession. Mr. J. R. Higgins, Vice-Chairman; Committee: Messrs. B. Melsom, A. T. Clarke, W. Davis, O. J. Clarke, S. Hutt, W. Neale, F. Smith, G. Thursby. Hon. Sec., W. Bird; Hon. Assist. Sec. and Treas., J. F. Kendall. The Vice-Presidents were all unanimously re-elected, a pleasing feature being the election of two ladies as Vice-Presidents, namely, Mrs. Morley and Mrs. W. Bird, the Society now having quite a number of lady members. The programme for the year, next considered, includes seven lectures, seven evening shows, a young stock show, and usual annual members' show. Mr. P. P. Butcher then announced his pleasure in presenting a silver cup (challenge), also a silver cup to the member introducing most new members in 1910. Mr. F. Smith also promised a silver cup for cage birds section. These gifts were announced amidst loud applause. The lectures will be given at Hanwell Public Library, and the evening shows at the St. John's Memorial Hall, West Ealing. Subscriptions 2/6 per year; entrance fee, 1/-. Further information will be gladly supplied by the Hon. Assist. Sec. and Treas., J. F. Kendall, 76, Mayfield-avenue, West Ealing, or by me.—W. BIRD, Hon. Sec., 20, Shakespeare-rd., Hanwell.

Twitterings.

I have removed from Park Street, to 6, Essex Street, Southend-on-Sea, writes Mr. A. E. Pattrick.

We are holding our annual show on November 2nd and 3rd, write Messrs. Abbott and Austen, hon. secretaries, Dover and Dis. F. and F. Society.

All correspondence for the Gt. Horton Good Intent O.S. in future must be addressed to me, writes Mr. H. Chubb, the secretary, 227, Gt. Horton Road, Bradford.

I have had a number of CAGE BIRDS plates framed this year for special prizes, writes Mr. F. Easterling (London, S.W.). I find they are more appreciated than medals.

The London and Counties O.S. are holding their pair show on February 19th, at the Sessions House Hotel, Clerkenwell Road, E.C., writes Mr. W. Gilbert, the hon. secretary.

Kindly note that I have been appointed secretary of the Keighley and Dis. C.B.S., writes Mr. J. Binns, and all society communications should be addressed to me at 28, Lustre Street, Keigbley.

Visitors to London for the Palace Show will find Birch's Hotel (162, Strand) very conveniently situated as a stopping-place, and exceptionally comfortable, while the charges are extremely moderate.

Kindly note that I have been elected secretary of the Loughborough and Dis. C.B.A.; so all correspondence should in future be addressed to me at 33, Oxford Street, Loughborough, writes Mr. G. Jeffery.

OBITUARY.

Mr. W. LINSEY (Cambridge).

I regret to have to report the death of one of the best fanciers the Cambridge and Cambs. Cage Bird Society ever had, Mr. W. Linsey, of Cherryhinton Road, Cambridge. He was operated upon for some internal trouble, and he got over the actual operation, but burst a blood vessel a few hours afterwards. He leaves a widow and one son. His age was 46. He was really beloved by us all, an ardent fancier, a kind friend, and really one of the mainstays of the society. We deeply mourn his loss.—T. S. MOORE, Hon. Sec.

It is with deep feelings of regret, writes Mr. F. King (Cambridge) that I have to announce the sad death of our esteemed friend, Mr. W. Linsey, after a long and painful illness. He was an ardent fancier, and always willing to advise and help a brother fancier. I am sure that all who knew him will deeply sympathise with his wife, relatives, and the Cambridge fanciers in their severe loss.

Mr. W. SKIRROW (Windhill).

It is with regret that I have to report the death of Mr. Wade Skirrow, one of the committee of our society, writes Mr. J. Cook, assistant secretary of the Windhill, Shipley and Dis. O.S. Mr. Skirrow had been a very hard worker for the society for a good number of years, and the bereaved wife and children have the deepest sympathy of all the members.

Will Mr. Wm. Proctor kindly send his address to me? writes Mr. David Hepburn, 130, Main Street, Lumphinnans by Cowdenbeath, Fifeshire, N.B. He was giving a hint on net making in CAGE BIRDS of January 22nd.

When you are down at the Palace, make a point of seeing the "Ever Ready" movable bracket exhibit. This popular and handy little appliance, will be shown on the stall in actual use. See advertisement.—(ADVT.)

I think your routes for visitors to the Crystal Palace Show very good indeed. I visited the show last year, and found them most helpful. I hope to come up this year, and shall certainly have them in my pocket.—J. H. WILLOWS (Wednesbury).

Mr. Adams, the well-known Northern cage bird judge, has removed to the Eagle Aviaries, High Street, Folkestone, Kent, where he will be pleased to receive any communication regarding engagements for the coming show season.—(ADVT.)

Will all friends in the Fancy please note my change of address from Drayton Road to 14, Avenue Road, Kings Heath, Birmingham, where all orders will have best and prompt attention, writes Mr. W. H. Uzzell (late secretary, Midland Counties Y.C.C.).

A members' show of matched pairs for breeding is to be held at the Emmanuel Hall, Harrow Road, London, W., in connection with the Queen's Park and Dis. C.B.A., on February 12th. There will be 14 classes, and Mr. F. Easterling will judge.

The 1910 syllabus of the Hull C.B.S. is very neatly got up, and the programme is a very excellent one, including seven members' shows, a wild seeds, etc., competition, a washing exhibition, etc. The secretary is Mr. Ernest R. Ridley, 19, Lambton Street, Hull.

With reference to the paragraph which appeared under "Twitterings" last week concerning Wellington (Salop) Show, we understand that owing to the hon. secretary, Mr. G. Hitchman, meeting with an unfortunate accident the show is indefinitely postponed.

Kindly note that Mr. W. Beal having resigned the secretaryship of the Nottingham and District Permanent O.S., I have taken over this office, and I should be glad if fanciers interested would note my address.—J. WALMSLEY, 6, Brand Street, Meadow Lane, Nottingham.

Our Young Stock Show will be held on Saturday, July 9th, and the Annual Show on Saturday, December 3rd, both shows to be judged by Mr. J. Robson, writes Mr. H. W. Cook, hon. secretary, Poplar and Dis. C.B.S. Will secretaries please note to avoid clashing?

There is a report in circulation that the Yorkshire Canary Club of Ireland is in debt, writes Mr. J. R. Hyland, the hon. secretary. This is not true, and I am anxious that this rumour should be contradicted as soon as possible, as it will not be of any good service to our membership.

The annual social of the Bolton and Dis. O.S., writes Mr. H. Parkinson, the hon. secretary, will be held on February 9th, at the Joiners' Arms. It will commence at 7.30, and tickets (at a shilling each) admit lady and gentleman. We shall be pleased to see any local fancier friends.

As the Coventry Godiva C.B.S. financial year ended on January 30th, I should be very pleased to hear from fanciers not belonging to a society, and who would like to join one, in Coventry, writes Mr. W. H. Bray, the secretary (12, Berry Street). Nomination fee 1s., and 1s. per quarter contributions.

Crystal Palace Cage Bird Show opens to-day, Friday, at 3 o'clock, and closes Tuesday next at 4 o'clock. About 3,000 birds on view. Hundreds of good birds on sale, from celebrated breeders, at from 7s. 6d. to 30s. each. Judges lunch to-day (Friday) at 1.45; visitors welcome; tickets 2s. 6d. each. No extra charge to see the bird show.—J. W. RAMSDEN, show manager.—(ADVT.)

Great Crystal Palace Show Number
NEXT WEEK.

Special Expert Report. Charming Coloured Plate.

NEXT week will be published, according to custom, CAGE BIRDS great Crystal Palace Show number, and we are making every endeavour to ensure this being as complete a success as any ever issued by us in past years. A most charming plate has been produced to accompany it, a plate which is both educative and artistic, while the report of the huge National Show will be thorough in every detail, and the work of the leading experts of the Fancy.

Advertisers should take advantage of the remarkable world-wide circulation the Crystal Palace number always achieves, and we earnestly impress upon them the necessity of sending in their announcements as early as possible, in any case not later than first post next Tuesday, February 8th. Advertisements may be handed in at our stall at the Crystal Palace Show, where we hope to meet many new friends as well as all the old ones who regularly visit this function. Don't forget to put your name and address in our Visitors' Book.

We have taken CAGE BIRDS ever since it started, and we consider it a most valuable paper, and have derived much knowledge from it, and useful information.—BLANCHE GRIFFITHS (Hastings).

The drawing for Mr. Wilson's subscription sale has been postponed owing to the delay in the return of books, writes Mr. A. Cant, hon. secretary of the Hamilton Cadzou Oaks O.S. Will fanciers who are in possession of these books kindly return them at once, as the delay is causing great inconvenience.

Llanelly report credits me with 1st in Yellowhammer class, but I was not an exhibitor in that class, my only exhibit being a Siskin and Hawfinch, both securing 1st in their respective classes. The Siskin was also placed 1st at Spalding two days later, and the report credits Hipwell with this in error.—W. G. POOLE (Stratford-on-Avon).

The Nottingham and Dis. Permanent O.S. is now open to a radius of 20 miles from Nottingham, writes Mr. J. Walmsley, the secretary (6, Brand Street). We hold three shows per annum (two for members only, and 1 open), not counting table shows, etc, and valuable specials are open for members on points gained at the three shows. We heartily welcome all fanciers living within the prescribed area to join us, especially novices.

All readers should be sure and send their full addresses, plainly written, when answering advertisements, writes Mr. J. Dodgson (Bradford). Strange to say, nearly half of them send insufficient addresses, and we are constantly receiving our letters back from the "dead letter office." It is a waste of time and stamps having so many letters returned. I send one of my letters for a sample. (This is addressed: Mr. J. Bradley, South Molton, Devon.)

As our monthly meeting on February 7th clashes with the Palace Show, we have decided to abandon meeting that evening, and hold a pair show and the annual meeting on the Monday following, February 14th. Mr. J. Robson will judge the pair show. On that occasion we hope to comply with the excellent suggestion of the Editor of CAGE BIRDS to send the hat round on behalf of the Preston and Flowers Defence Fund.—H. SMITH, hon. secretary, Wimbledon and Dis. C.B.S.

Please thank the many friends, writes Mr. Sydney L. Cocks (Peterborough), who have written condoling with me in the recent loss of my father. As I shall now, for a year or two, at least, have double work to do, I have decided not to attempt any bird breeding, but, of course, shall not go out of the Fancy.

A very comprehensive price-list of cages (stock, breeding, show, etc.), aviaries, wire-fronts, baths, hoppers, and general fitments reaches us from Mr. J. A. Reece, Jockey Wire-works, Colston Street Yard, Bristol. The prices quoted are exceptionally low, and the quality of the goods guaranteed.

The Leyton and Dis. C.B.A. are now preparing their manual for 1910, write Messrs. Forse and Son, the hon. secretaries. Fanciers desirous of joining should communicate at once with us at Thornhill Road, Leyton, N.E., so that their names may be included. One of the new features is the specials presented by Messrs. Cooper and Billingsley for most points throughout the year, one for novices and one for champions and amateurs. The association is giving 10s. cash for most points over all sections. Members who have not paid their subscription for 1909 should do so at once to ensure their names appearing in the new manual.

Liverpool to Crystal Palace.

The saloon for the Crystal Palace Show leaves Lime Street Station (Liverpool) on Friday night at 12.15, and the return fare is 11s., writes Mr. V. H. Deacon.

Yorkshire Union Prizes.

Mr. S. Haigh ties for 12th medal in Yorkshire Novice Classes, one point having been omitted from catalogue. This makes F. Firth and S. Haigh 63 points each. In CAGE BIRDS' Amateur Competition, Mr. J. Isherwood won 10s. special, and Mr. W. Markwell 8s. special. These names replace those of Messrs. A. Wright and Son, E. Clegg, and F. Townsend, whose names were published in last week's list; the said three names should have been omitted. The winners of 2nd and 3rd sectional prizes in the above competition will be declared afterwards, as Messrs. T. Bentley and P. Drake and Son have won special prizes of more value in the other specialist clubs' competitions.—H. HILL, secretary, Y.U.C.B.S.

A Group of Gems from Foreign Climes.

The worst feature of these charming birds is that they usually arrive in a very poor condition, and need careful nursing for the first few weeks of their stay in this country. If you have a garden which supplies you with blighty foliage, and can get live ants' cocoons, the task of getting them fit will be a comparatively easy one. Sponge cake soaked in boiled milk and ripe fruit ad lib and some live food must be given regularly.

These exquisite and attractive birds may well cause the writer to deal in superlatives, and when I say that in demeanour and characteristics they are Tit like, I feel I have said sufficient to endear them to every lover of birds. Even those in our northern counties could keep them outdoors during the summer months. Under such circumstances, amid growing greenery, they are simply immense; and if given a roomy cage indoors for the winter months (the temperature of any ordinary bird—or living room would meet all their requirements. Only those who have seen them under such conditions can realise how entrancing they are as they search the foliage for insects or indulge in their silent flight round the aviary.

Yellow-Winged Sugar Bird (Cereba cyanea).—This lovely Blue Creeper is yet another species that calls for a lavish use of superlatives, for beautiful as the figure on our plate is, it does but scant justice to their glistening beauty and irridescent plumage, and fails to show how it responds to the effects of light and shade, while its jewelled turquoise crown glistens like the scales of a snake. Its beauty simply beggars description.

However, those who saw Mr. Townsend's exquisite specimen recently at the Horticultural Hall will know that the above description is not over-drawn. I also saw out of doors in a Cambridgeshire aviary last October a beautiful specimen that had been out of doors all the year round. Its owner described to me (what I also saw) the entrancing vision of this dainty species, uncurling the leaves of the Tamarisk bushes with which this aviary was furnished, in search of insect life. (Engaged in a similar occupation, and equally entrancing, was a lovely Necklace Tanager.) In the morning sun they were like living diamonds, throwing out dazzling rays of light on every side.

Here again we are confronted with the difficult task of getting them into condition, for this species also arrives in this country, mostly in a very weak and poor condition, but careful nursing will pull them round. Good grapes, milk-sop sweetened with honey, and small insects of any kind, living ants' cocoons, aphidæ, etc., are about the best means to use to bring them round. Consult their tastes, study them as individuals, and once you have got them fit, it is not difficult to keep them so, but some considerable trouble is necessary in attending to their wants. They cannot endure draught, but they need light and air, and fragile and dainty as they appear, they most certainly do not need a hothouse to keep them fit.

A Perfect Dream of Loveliness.

The Blue-winged Siva (Siva cyanouroptera).—This handsome species, which belongs to the sub-family Leiotrichinæ, is found in the Himalayas from Nepal to Bootan, and also in the hills of Assam; and, like its near relative, the Pekin Robin (L. luteus), is hardy and enduring, even amid English weather. Possibly some of my readers may disagree with my headline; well, we shall have to agree to differ. Though perhaps one of the quietest-coloured (therein perchance lies its chief charm) species on our beautiful plate, it suffers somewhat from association with the brighter coloured species thereon; but in either cage or aviary, what a lovely creature it is! How complete is the harmony and balance of colour—not a harsh line anywhere, but just a combination of restful and exquisite beauty.

It does not, however, rest on beauty of plumage alone; its characteristics and demeanour are of the first order. It is about the size of the English Chaffinch, but of slightly more slender build. It is equally pert and restlessly active in its movements, but has none of the wildness of Fringilla. To the above qualities must be added many Tit-like attributes, that must be seen to be appreciated.

My esteemed friend and fellow-aviculturist, Mr. E. W. Harper, was the first one to introduce this species to English aviculture, and for many years I enjoyed the acquaintance of the specimen which he presented to the Zoo. This bird never failed to come to the front of his cage to have his poll and nape of the neck scratched, and gave a sort of birdy-purr of satisfaction while the operation was being performed. Unless disturbed by other visitors he would remain quiet and enjoy being so indulged for quite a lengthy period; in fact, the writer usually tired first, and I confess to being an enthusiast where birds are concerned.

As a last word, permit me to say, Do not take all this for granted; take the first opportunity and procure a specimen and judge for yourself. If he is kept as a cage pet let him have a fly round the room daily. Diet: Soft food, ripe fruit and live insects. Jerdon, in his "Birds of India," names it the "Blue-winged Hill-Tit." In July, 1901, I wrote in the "Avicultural Magazine" concerning this species—"I consider it more beautiful than even the Violet-eared Waxbill." Most comparisons, I am fully aware, are odious, but after eight years' experience of the species my opinion is unaltered.

A Wee Mite.

The Flame-breasted Flower-pecker (Dicæum ignicolle).—It is generally that which is hardest to obtain for which we long and strive, and, most certainly, whate'er its cost, the first opportunity that comes my way of possessing this species, will not be overlooked. To Mr. E. W. Harper also belongs the honour of introducing Flower-peckers to English aviculture, though, unfortunately, the pair of Crimson-backed (D. cruentatum) and single Tickell's (D. erythrorynchus) which he presented to the Zoo, had but a short stay there, and were, for the greater part of the time, "behind the scenes."

These wee mites, only about the size of an English Wren, are fearless and confiding, even in their native haunts, frequenting woods and gardens. Their food in a state of nature is insects, fruit, buds, and the nectar of flowers. In captivity they thrive on some good soft-food mixture; sponge-cake scalded with milk, ripe fruit and small insects.

The specimen from which our figure is drawn was imported by Mr. W. Frost among the birds he collected for Sir W. Ingram, and has now been for some months on deposit at the Zoo. There on many occasions I have watched this wee mite for quite long periods, simply entranced, until the spell has been temporarily broken by the hasty movement of some passing visitor. His deportment is both Tit-like and Wren-like. How I should like to see him on a branch with blighty foliage. He is apparently quite as much at his ease "wrong side up" as he is in the normal position. He takes short rests hanging head downwards from the top of his cage, and has a habit of jerking his tail up perpendicularly in Wren-like fashion. The keeper tells me he thinks the bird's going a brief time without his diet would kill it. The food consists of banana (which he visits every few minutes), one mealworm per day, or biscuit meal, sugar, condensed milk and a little water. Fortunately he is thriving and is improving every day, and when one visits the Zoo he should certainly receive a visit. His address is: "Small Bird Home."

An Atom of Avian Beauty.

The Blue Wren (Malurus cyaneus).—I have used all my adjectives up and yet am confronted with a species that deserves them as much as any of the preceding. This species has been known about nine years, but during that period but very few specimens have been imported. As far back as 1902 Mr. R. Phillips succeeded in breeding this species—truly an achievement of which any aviculturist might be proud. I had the privilege and delight of seeing both the old and young when the latter was quite strong on the wing.

The English Wren is a favourite of all, and when I have said that in addition to the exquisite nuptial plumage of the male, their deportment is similar to plainly clad "Jenny" so dear to English hearts, it goes without saying that I have set many of my readers longing to possess it.

These birds seem to do well under the conditions of cage life, if the cage be a roomy one, judging by the specimens at the Zoo, which came over with the Australian collection in 1908. Last season they were placed in the open flights, outside the Small Bird House, and often have I gazed almost spellbound at the glowing beauty of the male. Perfect and exquisite as our plate is, it does not do justice to the glowing beauty of the male; the areas of blue are beyond description, either by pen or brush. He is an atom of jewelled beauty, by no means as fragile as his appearance would lead one to suppose.

In captivity they must have soft food, ripe fruit and live insects. Minute plant lice they cannot have too many of. It would be the sight of a life-time to see a pair of this species clearing a blighty plant or small bush of its parasites. Judging by the account Mr. Phillips gives of his success with the species, to anyone possessing a fairly roomy natural aviary and sufficient leisure to keep up a supply of minute insect life, there should be no insuperable difficulty in breeding them; that is, basing this judgment upon birds I have had under observation. But Mr. Phillips' success is unique so far. To any of my readers having friends in Australia, it should not be difficult to get some sent over, as they are plentiful enough in the localities they frequent.

THE INSURANCE SCHEME OF THE LONDON FEDERATION OF C.B.S.

The Insurance Scheme of the London Federation of Cage Bird Societies has at last issued from the realm of things theoretical, and, it is hoped by its promoters, has attained the status of a practicability. Our readers will remember that one of the chief obstacles in the way of the formation of a practical insurance scheme for the benefit of London fanciers belonging to affiliated societies, was the stamp duty imposed by the Inland Revenue Department of Somerset House, and that at the meeting of the Council held on October 8th, the sub-committee were asked to consider the advisability of providing three separate kinds of slips to cover the three risks—to, at, and from shows.

At the meeting of the Federation held on December 22nd, however, a scheme was successfully evolved and made ready for being put into operation on January 1st of this year.

Calling recently upon Mr. P. Adamthwaite, the secretary of the Federation, Cage Birds representative found him more than willing to talk about "the grandest thing ever put before London fanciers," as Mr. A. termed it.

"We have got a splendid scheme," he said. "The Council are now in the position to offer its members 150 per cent. more benefits in the way of the insurance of birds than the railway companies. Whereas the railway companies for the fee of threepence will only insure one's birds for the one journey, the Federation are prepared not only to insure a bird (or birds) on the homeward journey as well as the outward journey (either when birds are sent on approval anywhere or to an exhibition), but to insure them against robbery and fire while at a show—and all for the same fee, viz., threepence. Thus, the first rule (all the other rules remain as before) has been amended to read as follows: 'Insurance under the scheme of the Federation shall cover Canaries and cage-moulted British hardbills against all risks, including mortality in transit while in the railway companies' care, to and from a show, and robbery and fire while at a show.'"

"Are there any other advantages?" we ventured to ask at the risk of being charged with greediness.

"Yes, there are. There is the advantage that a fancier hasn't half the trouble when insuring his birds under this scheme that he had before. But the great advantage"—and we were asked to emphasise this point—"is that whereas an insurer under the railway company's scheme had personally to prove negligence on the part of a company before being able to claim anything in respect of the loss of birds (one of the hardest things imaginable), he is now able to leave this entirely to the Federation which will undertake this."

"So that," we ventured to summarise, "a fancier enjoys two practical advantages (the covering of risks on railway homeward journeys, and risks arising from robbery and fire at shows), and one moral advantage (the fancier being able to leave to the Council the responsibility of proving negligence), over and above those enjoyed under the railway company's insurance scheme?"

"Yes, that is so, precisely."

"Well, now," we asked, "what has a fancier to do if he wishes to insure his birds under the Federation scheme?"

"In the first place," Mr. Adamthwaite replied, "the fancier must be a member of a society which is affiliated to the Federation; otherwise he cannot enjoy these privileges. Next, he buys from the Federation a book of six threepenny certificates; this costs him one-and-sixpence. That does away once and for all with the misunderstanding about the certificates. Under the old scheme, if a man wanted to insure his birds three times he had to fill up three separate certificates, each of which was liable to a penny stamp duty; now, he can do all three under one. It is not a new scheme, but the old one revised upon the advice of the underwriters at Lloyds."

"Then Lloyds are backing up your scheme?" we interrupted.

"Yes, that is the great point about this scheme?"

"But nothing was said about that when the previous schemes were under discussion?"

"No; that was the card up our sleeve, so to speak. We were not working in the dark. The Council have all their claims covered at Lloyds."

Referring again to the method of procedure, we were told that, having applied for and received a book of certificates, a fancier would be able to insure his bird (or birds) with one of the certificates (the certificate only covers a face value for the journey definitely stated thereon) to the amount of £1. Or he would be at liberty to use the six certificates for an insurance value of £6, and any number of books of certificates may, we were informed, be purchased for use upon a similar basis.

"If a man," it was added, "insures five birds at a show for £10, say, and one of them gets killed by a fire at the show, for instance, he would, according to the rules of the insurance, be entitled to £2, but in the case of any single bird the largest amount it can be insured for is £5."

The Council propose also to issue a separate insurance for fire under ordinary conditions, at the rate of one shilling for the first £10 (which is the minimum) and sixpence for every additional £10. So that if any member wishes to insure his stock for £50, he can do so upon payment of an insurance fee of three shillings.

With regard to illnesses and deaths of birds at shows (other than by fire), a notification to the secretary of the Federation or to the exhibitor (or exhibitors) concerned by the show secretary, will, we were informed, be deemed sufficient.

Mr. Adamthwaite himself brought the interview to a suitable conclusion by stating that the scheme was well thought out and well backed up, and that not only were the claims fully covered at Lloyds, but if by some extraordinary happening their policy should "run out," then any claims still outstanding would be met by the Council itself. The Council, to use Mr. Adamthwaite's own words, "having now set themselves to pay, under the insurance scheme, all legitimate claims, fanciers need have no hesitation in taking up with the new scheme."

"The Federation," he added, just as we were saying goodbye, "intends now to stand or fall by what it has done, both in the way of this Insurance Scheme and otherwise; and London fanciers can either accept or reject what has been done exclusively for their benefit."

Prizes of 1s. and two of 6d. each will be given weekly for the best three anecdotes about birds written on postcards. Competitors must be under sixteen years of age, and state whence stories are taken. Two stars indicate the Winning Contribution; one star the runners up.

A Clever Thrush.

For some years we have kept a pet Thrush in our garden. One day, while we were having dinner, we heard a crash. The next moment our servant rushed into the dining-room and told us that a Thrush had flown through the open doorway into the kitchen. We came, and saw the Thrush sitting on a jug on the dresser. We went into the garden, and found that it was our own Thrush, whose rotten old cage had fallen from its nail in the wall and smashed to pieces. We were all pleased our pet had not flown away or been hurt. Wasn't it a dear, clever bird to come and tell that its cage was broken?—Dorothy Rodgers (aged 10), 123, Radford Boulevard, Nottingham.

*A Walk in the Fields.

One day my cousin and I went for a walk in some fields. As we were going we saw a man with an air gun, and we watched him for a minute or two, and while watching we saw him shoot a bird, which he found was a Robin. The man gave it to me and my cousin, and I ran home with it. We put it in a cage, and gave it some seed to eat and water to drink. When the weather got warmer we let the Robin go.—Sent by Sidney Bamford (age 11), 28, Mount Road, Walsall.

*A Talking Canary.

At a cottage in Sheerness there is to be seen and heard a talking Canary. He constantly pulls up short in the middle of his trill, inquiring in the clearest possible voice, "How do you do, Mrs. Munyeon?" "Quite well, Mrs. Munyeon?" and then he will rattle on again, only to stop again with "Pretty little dear, come and kiss Dicky."—Sent by A. Clements (age 10), 99, Dempsey Street, Stepney, E.

The Shows.

WATERLOO (Liverpool).

The Waterloo Progressive C.B.S. held their annual members' show on Jan. 15th, 1910, in the Oxford Hall, St. John's Palace, where from 80 to 90 exhibits turned up. The birds were of good average merit, and the Canary section contained all Yorkshires from clears to greens. Mules or Hybrids and British birds were of nice quality, though not very numerous. There were sufficient special prizes offered to afford every member who was showing a chance of winning one, which all did. Mr. J. Hunt, the hon. sec., had the birds all ready to judge in very good time, and it is not often one can record the fact that the show was judged, and the Secretary had his prize money and specials completed and some of it actually paid to the winners before 12 o'clock noon. We saw this actually done. Mr. Hunt must be a glutton for work, for he has had the courage to take on the Secretary's duty in connection with three shows in four weeks—Bootle, Liverpool and District (Amalgamated) and this. Mr. Chas. Houlton judged, and his awards were well received.

WISBEACH

The members of the Working Men's Club and Institute F. and F. S. held their annual show on Jan. 12 in the Institute Hall, which is well suited for a show of this kind. The entry of 352 constitutes a record, being about 30 more than last year. The quality of the exhibits reflects great credit upon the members. The competition in some classes was very keen, the winners being very little better than their less fortunate competitors. The cage bird section contained some really good specimens. Unfortunately there was really too much for one judge to get through in time for the opening of the show. The last section to be judged (the cagebirds), in consequence, got a jump. The society will, no doubt, obviate this another year by appointing two judges. Mr. C. Wicks (Norwich) judged.

METROPOLITAN C.B.S.

Annual general meeting, held at headquarters, on January 13th, four new members being elected, and one nominated. The election of officers for 1910 took place. We much regretted the retirement of our late chairman, Mr. Martin, and after a hearty vote of thanks for past services rendered, he assured us of his earnest support in the future. A vote of thanks was also given to retiring officers, bringing an enjoyable evening to a close.—G. HARWOOD, Hon. Sec.

CITY OF BELFAST O.S.

Usual meeting, held at 11, Waring-street, on January 8th, Mr. R. Trimble presiding. This being the annual meeting, the principal business was the election of officers for 1910, and after a lively discussion of the affairs of the society for the past year, the following gentlemen were duly elected. Mr. R. Trimble, president; Mr. A. Russell, vice-president; Mr. J. Ronaldsen, secretary and treasurer; Messrs. J. Neill, W. Trimble, R. Tedford, J. McAuley, H. McConnell, committee. It was arranged to hold our annual club show on the first Saturday in November, and that in addition to our usual classes for Belgian and Scotch Fancy Canaries, we give five classes for Norwich to meet the views of some of our members who breed both varieties, the classes to run as follows: Cl. or tkd. yell. cock, ditto buff, ditto yellow hen, and ditto buff and variegated cock or hen. A hearty vote of thanks to the chairman brought the meeting to a close.—J. RONALDSON, Sec.

DARLINGTON C. AND B.B.F.A.

Fourth annual general meeting, held at the George Hotel, on January 12th, when Mr. H. C. Carter presided over a good company. The secretary presented the balance-sheet, which showed the association to be in a good financial position, with a balance of £11 3s. 5½d. in hand, which was passed as read. The following officers were elected for 1910: Chairman, H. C. Carter; vice-chairman, C. D. Cooper; treasurer, J. Wildsmith; auditors, H. Hawkins and G. Tolson; hon. secretary, R. S. Black; committee, H. C. Carter, C. D. Cooper, J. O'Connor, H. Robinson, and J. G. Stephenson. A programme drawn up by the secretary for meetings during 1910 was submitted, and, after a deal of discussion, it was decided that the programme be acted upon. It was decided to hold our annual open show on October 15th. It was decided to hold a smoking concert at the club house on February 3rd, and we shall be pleased to see as many members and friends present as possible.—R. S. BLACK, Hon. Secretary.

SOUTH & NORTH SHIELDS C.B.S.

Monthly meeting, held at Gregg's Cafe, January 5th, Mr. W. Thompson in the chair. Three important questions were put before the meeting, viz., members' subscriptions, removal of headquarters, and the financial position of the society. It was proposed, and carried, that we fall in line with other northern societies and make our subscriptions 2/6 per year, with 1/- on entry. Secondly, "That we seek more convenient headquarters, nearer the Market Place and Ferries, to suit North Side fanciers, as many have promised to join as this year." (Carried.) The financial position of the society was given by the secretary, but it was the worst year the society had had in regard to entries. The Norwich, Cinnamon, and Crest classes, which were in former years a show in themselves, this year were standing with one, two, and three in a class. But I am proud to say we paid all open prize money within seven days, and, having regard to the great kindness of our most worthy supporters, Sir W. S. Robson, Mr. J. Kirkley, Mr. Readhead, and others, and the attention of Mr. Duke, our late secretary, to the donation list, we are almost on the right side of the ledger.—JAS. BARRASS, Hon. Secretary.

CITY OF BRADFORD O.S.

Annual general meeting held at headquarters, Flying Dutchman, on January 15th, when there was a capital attendance, Mr. Helliwell in the chair. The balance-sheet was gone through, showing a splendid balance of over £15 to the good on the year's working, placing the society in a sound financial condition. This was passed with a bumper, as also a vote of thanks to the officers and committee for their contributions to the success. Election of officers result:—Chairman, W. Wharton; vice-chairmen, J. S. Clarkson, J. Fortnam, and J. Clark; delegates to the Yorks. Union, J. S. Clarkson, J. Fortnam, and J. Clark; treasurer, F. Ludbrook; auditors, J. Clark and G. Hunter; secretary, F. Rhodes; assistant secretary, W. Morement. The annual dinner came up for discussion, the arrangements being left in the hands of a small sub-committee. It was decided to have it in the Market Tavern on February 8th at 7 p.m. (tickets, 2s. 6d. single, and 4s. 6d. couple). No doubt judging by the menu and the talent we have, it should be one of the best. We had to leave the Union rules (revisal, etc.) to the next meeting. A few new members were made, and we shall be pleased to see a few more roll up. A hearty vote of thanks to our new chairman, Mr. Wharton, brought the meeting to a close.—F. RHODES, Sec.

SHEFFIELD C.B.S.

Monthly meeting, held January 6th, in the Wentworth Cafe, Mr. A. Bradshaw (president) in the chair. It having been thought by some that we ought to be advertised more, Mr. J. Woolhouse was appointed to send reports of meetings to the Fancy Press. Mr. Kelby was appointed delegate to the annual meeting of the C.B.U., to be held at the Palace Show. The following resolutions were proposed for our delegate to bring forward: First, That the rule affecting members showing at non-Union shows be altered; second, That the C.B.U. sink their difference with the Yorkshire Union, and come to some terms, also that the Union hold a show, open only to Union members. The subject of our again joining the C.B.U. was deferred till after that meeting. The date of our annual show has been altered from the first Friday and Saturday in November to December 2nd and 3rd. Several gentlemen were named as judges for our open show, and it was left to the secretaries to see if they could officiate. The February meeting is to be a table show of matched pairs for breeding, and a washing competition. Mr. Bingham was elected to judge Yorkshires, and Mr. Tow, Norwich and washing; several members promised to bring birds to wash. An excellent programme for the year has been arranged. Messrs. F. Knight and H. E. Wilkinson were elected new members.—J. WOOLHOUSE.

Books for Bird Lovers.

Brief particulars of some of "Cage Birds" SPECIAL PUBLICATIONS for keepers of birds, with post free prices.

THE HYGIENE OF BIRD-KEEPING, 1/1.—By W. Geo. Creswell, M.D. Thoroughly treats of modern hygiene (the science of health) in bird-keeping.

SEPTIC FEVER OR CANARY PLAGUE, 7d.—By R. H. Clarke, M.D. The only booklet published concerning this dread disease, which Dr. Clarke has given very special study.

THE NORWICH PLAINHEAD CANARY, 1½d.—By J. H. Payne. Pronounced by all experts to be a most valuable pamphlet concerning the breeding of the variety; written by one of our leading judges.

CANARY BREEDING FOR BEGINNERS, 7d.—By Claude St. John. A Practical, up-to-date guide to Canary breeding, designed specially for the use of the beginner. Deals very fully with the choice, sexing, and mating of the birds, feeding for condition, the cages and their fittings, the bird-room, egg-food, nest-building, rearing and moulting the young, colour-feeding, training for show, and all the difficulties likely to confront the breeder.

MEATING-OFF AND FEEDING SOFTBILLS, 6½d.—By John Frostick. No fancier of Insectivorous Birds who wishes to succeed in his hobby can afford to be without a copy. It also contains notes on Bird Trapping, Cages, etc.

SEEDS, FOODS, AND WILD PLANTS FOR CAGE BIRDS, 1/2.—By various leading authors. Full information on the seeds suitable for all cage birds, their food values, uses, etc., with descriptions and illustrations of the wild plants indispensable to the successful keeping of British and other birds.

HOUSE'S CANARY MANUAL, 1/2.—By C. A. House. A thorough, practical guide to the general management and breeding of Canaries, dealing fully with the breeding, etc., of every member of the Canary family, including the Roller (or Singing) Canary. An illustration of each bird, by the master Canary artist, Mr. H. Norman; exhaustive chapters on aviaries and cages, breeding procedure, moulting, exhibiting, diseases, and seeds—a compendium of knowledge.

BUDGERIGARS AND COCKATEELS, 6d.—By C. P. Arthur. The breeding of Budgerigars and Cockateels is recognised as one of the most profitable and pleasure-giving sides of foreign bird-keeping. This eminent authority gives very full details upon how to keep, feed, breed, tame, and teach them to talk.

FOREIGN BIRDS FOR BEGINNERS, 1/1.—By W. T. Page, F.Z.S., etc., Foreign Bird Expert to "Cage Birds." A highly instructive Manual. It contains a magnificent coloured plate and a number of black and white illustrations. Indispensable to all keepers of Foreign Birds. Replete with useful hints.

BRITISH BIRD MANUAL, 2/3 (cloth bound).—By H. Norman; or may be had in two parts. Part 1: "Hardbills," and Part 2: "Softbills." Either Part, price 1/1, post free. Each part contains a beautiful and life-like coloured plate and numerous illustrations of birds and cages. Up-to-date information on the keeping of British Birds; full of extremely valuable hints.

COLOUR FEEDING OF CANARIES AND OTHER BIRDS, 3½d.—By J. W. Ramsden. Tells you how to mix the colour-food, and how to moult the birds to get the richest possible colour.

THE STOCK BOOK, 7d.—By G. E. Weston. Of our invaluable "Breeding Room Register" a well-known fancier has said:—"It makes bird-breeding easy." No breeder of birds can possibly afford to be without it. It simplifies the operations in the bird-room and makes it possible for everyone, even the veriest novice, to breed his birds as they should be bred. Contains both Pedigree, Breeding, Young Bird, and Show Registers of simple and unique character, in addition to useful account pages, and many invaluable "Hints for Emergencies."

AVIARIES, BIRD-ROOMS, AND CAGES, 2/3 (cloth gilt).—By H. Norman. Contains ten lovely full-page photographic plates. A practical guide which deals thoroughly with the proper Building, Fitting, and Management of Aviaries and Bird-rooms, and the making of Cages.

YORKSHIRE CANARIES, 1/1½.—By H. W. Battye (Past President of the Yorkshire Union). Absolutely the very best Handbook dealing with the Yorkshire and its sub-varieties. Contains complete instructions upon Pairing, Breeding, Moulting, and successful Exhibiting, also how to treat in both health and disease.

NORWICH CANARIES, 1/1.—By C. A. House. Tells the fancier all that he needs to know to enable him to become successful as a breeder, and exhibitor of the Norwich Plainhead. The chapters on "Forming a Stud," and "How to Produce the Ideal" are worth the cost of the whole book many times over.

BIRDS OF THE COUNTRYSIDE, 5/4.—By Frank Finn, B.A., F.Z.S. A handbook to the wild life of all our familiar British birds; their appearance and habits accurately described. With 12 beautiful coloured plates, and 118 photographic illustrations. A charming gift book.

PETS, AND HOW TO KEEP THEM, 5/4.—By Frank Finn, B.A., F.Z.S. Gives the correct method of housing, feeding, and managing every kind of pet; all sorts of animals are dealt with—monkeys, dogs, cats, lizards, tortoises, also gold and other fancy fish, while there is a large section devoted to birds. Contains many coloured plates and illustrations from photographs. Another charming gift book.

THE FUND TO DEFEND THE BRITISH BIRD FANCY.

This is a fund being established to enable an appeal to be made to the High Court of Justice, against a decision arrived at by Mr. Biron (the magistrate sitting at the Old Street, London, Police Court), at the instance of the R.S.P.C.A., that no person may be in possession of a recently-taken British bird if that said bird is included in the list of protected species for the district in which the said person resides. Whether the bird was legally taken in a district wherein it is not protected they contend does not affect the case. The society recently brought a test case (Preston and Flowers), and the extreme seriousness of the aforesaid decision will be at once apparent. It means that in protected districts (and they comprise practically all the thickly-populated areas and towns in the British Isles) everyone who keeps a newly-taken British bird, and every dealer who exposes one for sale, can be prosecuted and fined.

We, however, have it on high legal authority that if this decision of Mr. Biron be taken to the High Courts there is every likelihood of it being set aside, and in response to a request, have opened a fund to enable this course to be adopted, and the legal aspect of the question to be adequately thrashed out, as the defendants in this test case have not the means to carry the matter further, the estimated cost being from £50 to £60.

The need of funds is urgent, however, so do not delay; send your contribution at once, addressed to Mr. Geo. Crabb, c.o. the Editor, CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C., and state clearly in your letter that it is intended as a donation towards the "Preston and Flowers Defence Fund." Mr. Crabb is the well-known gentleman who for so many years was chairman of the London and Provincial O.S., and has very kindly consented to act as treasurer.

We publish this week the fourth list of subscriptions which have reached Mr. Crabb up to Wednesday night last:—The National British Bird and Mule Club, £2 2s.; Glasgow and Western Counties' N.M.B. and F.B.C., £1 1s.; Blackburn Lark F.A., 10s.; Cheltenham C.B.S., 8s. 6d.; Ilkeston O.S., 8s.; London and Counties' O.S., 7s. 6d.; Swansea C.B.A., 7s.; Dunfermline C.B.C., 5s. 6d.; Liverpool O.S., 5s. 6d.; Amble C.B.S., 5s.; Glasshoughton Linnet Club, 5s.; Harry Allen, 5s.; Poplar C.B.S., 5s.; Barrow C.B.A., 4s.; Sale Open O.S., 3s.; E. Jones (Newport, Mon.), 2s. 6d.; P. Brade (Preston), 2s. 6d.; Hebden Bridge C.B.F.A., 2s. 6d.; W. Lowne (Yarmouth), 2s. 6d.; W. Lucas (Coventry), 2s.; F. Cutting (London, S.E.), 2s.; J. Newell Rochdale), 1s.; Dan McArthur (Edinburgh), 1s.; Geo. Busbridge (Poundstock), 6d. These total £7 18s. 6d., and with the amounts previously acknowledged, bring the aggregate subscriptions to £28 0s. 7d.

We may say that the prosecution of the appeal is being duly proceeded with, and that Messrs. Margetts and Co., the solicitors for the appellants (Messrs. Preston and Flowers) have instructed a well-known London barrister, Mr. Artemus Jones, to conduct the case. We regret to learn from Mr. Ramsden (vide the letter published below) that the Crystal Palace authorities cannot sanction collections being made in the building. Still, all fanciers desirous of contributing to this Defence Fund can leave their subscriptions with the person in charge of CAGE BIRDS stall, and all such amounts will duly be handed over to Mr. Crabb and acknowledged in our columns. We hope the Fund will in this way be largely augmented.

SIR,—I submitted the current number of CAGE BIRDS to the Palace authorities this morning, pointing out the paragraph relative to collecting boxes for the Preston and Flowers Fund. I am instructed to inform you that no collection can be made inside the Crystal Palace for any object whatever, either by collectors or stallholders. This is a rule strictly enforced by the Palace authorities. They have many applications for permission to collect, chiefly from charitable concerns, but a polite refusal is made to all. Will you therefore kindly make a note of this in your next issue?

J. W. RAMSDEN, Show Manager.

Already at a sub-committee meeting we have decided to put every effort forward to assist the cause, and I will let you know as soon as possible the result and remit any money collected.
—W. NISBET, secretary, Musselburgh, O.S.

I wish you may be successful in your undertaking re Flowers and Preston, and hope all bird lovers will assist you to their uttermost. It would not be safe to have a bird if this ruling stands. If a bird in a cage was not happy he would not sing as he does. I have birds singing now 16 hours a day; they don't do that in the field.—G. TURNEY (East Ham).

Many Splendid Features this Year.

Place an order for your copy at once.

I am sending my "widow's mite" towards the fund for the defence of Messrs. Preston and Flowers, and would add my humble protest against this unwarranted attack upon the harmless hobby of so many of our fellows. If the R.S.P.C.A. (or any other society) will first sweep the land clean of really cruel sport, such as otter hunting, badger baiting, tame pigeon shoots, and "preserved" deer and game, it will not lack supporters to aid it in any needful protection of birds. I hope that the small men like myself will not be ashamed to send their little. It is a good cause, and we must each see to it.—DAN MCARTHUR (Edinburgh).

The members of the Ardwick and District C.B. Society unanimously decided that this was a most serious and important call on all societies for the members' consideration, and although this society is only in its infancy and has only a moderate balance in hand, we thought we could not do less than send 5s. out of the funds to this good cause, which I hope you will be successful with. If left unchallenged, this decision would cripple the interest in British birds and take away the attraction from our shows, which I am sure would not be complete without them.—J. SPENCER (secretary).

Kindly accept enclosed 10s. as donation towards the "Preston and Flowers Defence Fund." I am sorry not to have sent earlier, but can only plead pressure of business. I cannot think the magistrate, Mr. Biron, could have given the case proper consideration, as it seems ridiculous to think that one man may keep as many Britishers as he likes, and another, although only probably living a few yards away, be debarred from keeping any at all. I sincerely hope the appeal will have a sucessful issue from the bird-keeper's point of view.—W. GORE (Birmingham).

CANARY QUERIES.

Sex and Breeding for Song.

J.F.R.—As regards the bird which only sings when some noise is going on, if the song then is short and choppy, you are probably correct in your estimation of its sex. Get a more practical fancier to look at it and tell you what sex it is. If it is really a cock, it might open out better if you could let it hear another free-singing bird for the next few weeks. You should see that its cage is not infested with insects, and not too near the fire or burning lights in the evenings. Feed on a staple of three parts Canary to one part summer rape, and give a teaspoonful of the mixture you now use as staple twice a week only. Once a week give also a small piece of bread and milk sprinkled with soft sugar. You should be able to make a fair start in breeding good song birds for 30s. to 40s. Say, two good singing Roller cocks at 15/- and 20/-, and two hens (also Rollers) at 2s. 6d. each. You could run them as two separate pairs, or keep the best singing cock specially as a songster and tutor, and run the other cock with both hens alternately. The advantage of the latter method would be that you would keep the song of the best cock pure, as mating often causes the song to deteriorate in quality.

Ringing Queries.

W.I.—(1) The use of rings is about the best and most reliable method of marking the birds in order to keep the pedigree. Unless one is breeding Rollers for certain club purposes, ringing is not compulsory. (2) No. If properly carried out, ringing has practically no detrimental effects at all. Some hens have been known to throw the young out of the nest after the rings were put on. That, however, is scarcely the effect of the ring. The hens probably thought they were throwing out certain discarded substances, as a good hen should do, and, of course, the baby had to go with it. It is not a very common occurrence. (3) From seven to nine days old is the best age to put on rings, but there is no hard and fast rule. Must depend to a certain extent upon the development of the youngsters. If rung too soon rings are apt to slip off again; if left too long, there is a difficulty in putting rings on at all without injuring the birds. (4) Certainly there are different size rings for large and small breeds. Tell the vendor your breed when purchasing, and you will get the proper rings.

Cause and Effect.

Nick.—I think you give both these in your note. A bird kept in a brass wire cage, and hung high up in the window, would be a rara avis if it did not sooner or later become troubled with feathers falling out, cough, and asthma. If it has not gone too far, you may remedy it to some extent by the following; but please note, the removal of the cause is even more important than medical or any other treatment. Transfer the bird to a box cage, and keep it in the room away from the window, and not too near the fire, or where it will be exposed to the fumes of burning lights in the evenings. It should not hang higher than the level of burning lights, and must be quite free from all draughts. If not moved to a box cage, see that the open cage is kept as near as possible under these conditions, and also see that it is quite free from red-mites. Feed on a mixture of three parts canary to one part summer rape as a staple. Every second day for a fortnight give half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion well mixed in it and sprinkled with gold of pleasure seed, and on the alternate days give half a teaspoonful of hemp and a morsel of ripe banana. In the drinking water give, first, six drops of syrup of rhubarb and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence, for two consecutive days, and afterwards give six drops of tincture of gentian and four of tincture of steel every second day for a week, or a little longer if the loss of feathers has not ceased, or nearly so, by that time. As soon as the feathers have ceased dropping, discontinue the latter mixture, and give instead twenty drops of whiskey, five each of oxymel of squills, ipecacuanha wine, and two of eucalyptus oil, well shaken together, two days in every three for a week, and every second day for another week after. If not sufficiently recovered by that time, miss a week, and repeat the last-named medicine in the same order for another two weeks.

Birds Queer.

R.G. (Camberwell).—There must be something radically wrong with your management, or the place where the birds are kept. This must be discovered and remedied before any treatment will prove availing. See they are kept in a comfortable place, not necessarily over-heated, but just away from the cold side, and, above all, quite free from sudden fluctuations of heat and cold, or damp, or draughts. The cages also must be well strewn regularly with clean gritty sand, and the perches kept scrupulously clean. Then see that the cages are perfectly free from red-mites. Give plain Canary seed as the staple food, and add separately half a teaspoonful of summer rape every second day. Twice each week, on the alternating days, give a small piece of bread and milk, with two drops of cod liver oil emulsion on it, and sprinkled with soft sugar; and on two other days give a few grains only of a mixture of hemp, inga, gold of pleasure, and charlock. Three or four times a week give a good-sized spray of watercress. In the drinking water give six drops of syrup of rhubarb and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence two days in every three for a week. In the next week give six drops of tincture of gentian and four of aromatic sulphuric acid every second day, and on the alternate days twenty drops of whiskey, six of oxymel of squills, and five each of paregoric and chlorodyne. Then miss a week, and, if necessary, repeat it again the following week.

Scurfy Skin.

J.L.—Had you said how you have been feeding this bird, and given its age, it would have been a great help in advising. I must also assume you have quite satisfied yourself the effect is not caused by friction due to too small or badly-placed wire holes, in which case all you would need to do would be to remove the cause and leave Nature to cure the effect. Keep the cage and perches scrupulously clean, and well provided with clean gritty sand; see that no trace of red-mites or grey lice are present in the cage or on the bird, and allow bird to bathe freely, but see that it is not exposed to chills afterwards. Feed on a staple of plain Canary seed, and give separately half a teaspoonful of summer rape daily. Twice each week give a little bread and milk sprinkled with soft sugar, and three or four times a week a spray of watercress or other green food, if obtainable in good condition; and when green-stuff is not available, give a morsel of banana as a substitute. In the drinking water give twenty drops of whisky, as much chlorate of potash as will cover a sixpence, and the same quantity of Epsom salts every second day for a week, and afterwards give twenty drops of chemical food every second day for two or three weeks. Moisten the scurfy parts twice a week with a smear of zinc ointment.

Bald and Blind Roller.

W. I. E.—You should chloroform her; there is little probability of any improvement or of her being of any further use, whilst on the other hand there is a great likelihood of her becoming worse. There are doubtless some internal lesions, but it is not possible to say what they are without seeing the bird. To try to cure it, give twelve drops of dandelion juice, as much sulphate of soda as will cover a sixpence, and the same quantity of chlorate of potash, in each two tablespoonfuls of drinking water every second day for a week, and on the alternate days six drops of tincture of gentian and four of aromatic sulphuric acid; then miss a week and repeat again. Add a spray of green food to the diet in preference to fruit whenever the former is obtainable. Give also a small piece of bread and milk with two drops of cod liver oil emulsion on it, and sprinkled with soft sugar three times a week. Bathe the head two or three times a week with a warm solution of boracic acid—a teaspoonful of acid in a breakfast cup of hot water. If you decide to carry out my first suggestion, thoroughly cleanse the cage afterwards, with a strong solution of carbolic. Better still, burn it if it is an old one.

Noises at Night.

H. L.—The hen which disturbs the silent watches with squeaky noises and difficult breathing will never be of any more use to you, I am afraid. However, see that she is kept in a nice comfortable position; not necessarily overheated, nor yet cold; perfectly free from draughts or great variations of heat and cold, and in a pure fresh atmosphere; not near or above any lights that burn in the evenings. Keep cage strewn with clean gritty sand, and see that it is quite free from red mites. Do not allow the bath, save in quite mild weather, until well. Feed on a mixture of three parts canary to one part summer rape as a staple, and give a few grains only of hemp twice a week. Every second day for the next fortnight give a half-teaspoonful of crushed stale sponge cake with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion well mixed in it, and sprinkled with a pinch of gold of pleasure seed. On the alternating days give a spray of watercress or chickweed as soon as obtainable, or a morsel of banana. In the drinking water give six drops of syrup of rhubarb and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence daily for three days, and every second day for the remainder of the week, and during the latter interval give on the alternate days six drops of tincture of gentian and four of aromatic sulphuric acid. After this give twenty drops of whisky, six each of oxymel of squills and paregoric, and two of eucalyptus oil, well shaken together, every second day for a fortnight. Shall be glad to hear how the bird is at the end of that time.

Brevities.

Novelties (F.J.C.).—(1) Certainly, it is possible to obtain good results from two Canaries bred in 1909 if paired this season. It is, nevertheless, advisable to mate a yearling bird with one over a year old whenever possible. (2) The age limit of a cock fertilising eggs must necessarily depend solely upon the individual's health and stamina. The great majority begin to deteriorate more or less rapidly after the third or fourth season, but it is not very uncommon to hear of cocks eight, ten, or twelve years old filling eggs. What constitutes the actual record I do not know—probably something near a score. (3) It depends upon your object whether a fair result could be obtained by mating a Norwich with a Yorkshire. If it was only for song birds it would succeed as well as most crosses, but for any other purpose it would be an utter failure. Neither variety has anything to gain from such a cross which cannot be obtained by a far easier and shorter method. Therefore, the result would be simply wasters, and of little or no use save as songsters.

Sample of Grit (H.M., Thanet).—The sample of sand sent will serve excellently as a covering for the cage floors. There is no need to screen it any differently to the sample sent. You must deem yourself fortunate in having a free supply of such stuff at hand.

Mating (Greenie).—Your description is not altogether clear. Do you mean a foul green bred from cinnamons, or what? A "foul buff green cinnamon" seems to be a trifle mixed or overdone. Whatever may be the bird's colour or pedigree, the correct mate depends upon what you wish to breed, and you have omitted this information. Write again and say which colour this bird is, and if you know the parents, also say what colour they are and if you also add a note of what you aim at producing, it may help me to give you some real practical advice.

Result of Accident (J. Anderson).—As the bird is a pet, and only required for such a purpose, you certainly need not destroy it because it has had a leg broken quite off. Keep it in a low-topped cage with the perches quite low, and the food and water inside, so as to be very easily getatable by the bird without any straining. If the fractured stump has begun to heal, and appears to be going on all right, leave it entirely alone, but if it is not, and seems inflamed, touch it once with a drop of Friar's Balsam on the tip of a small feather, and repeat this the second day after. Subsequently slightly anoint it with boracic ointment daily until all seems to be going on well. The bird will quickly get clever at going about on one leg, when the stump of the other has healed.

Swelling on Flank (Anxious).—Without seeing the bird I cannot advise any interference with the tumour, if such it is. If the bird is a valuable one, your best course is to show it to your medical man or a veterinary, and ask their advice. It is quite on the cards it may be a simple abscess which could be evacuated and safely removed, but it may also be more serious, and unskilled interference is more likely to do harm than good. Feed it on a plain, wholesome diet, as frequently advised for songsters; keep bowels rather loose with saline aperients, or green food, and give six drops of tincture of gentian and four of aromatic sulphuric acid three times a week as a tonic. If it should have broken and discharged, wash well with a boracic solution, and anoint with carbolised vaseline.

Rollers Losing Voice (Killarney).—It is not quite true that Rollers always lose their vocal powers after two seasons, though it must be admitted that a number of them do. It is, however, purely a question of proper treatment and management, and if these points are kept well in order, with ordinary care a Roller will retain its vocal powers for a much longer period, and in many cases quite as long as any other variety. In addition to this, should its song become corrupted, or inferior, from a Roller point of view, it will still, in all probability, be rather better and more varied than that of an ordinary bred and wholly untutored bird. If you get a 1909 trained Roller, you will not go far wrong. The different fancy names are of little or no importance—the quality of song naturally depends upon the price paid.

Norwich Hen Unwell (Constant Reader).—I suspect this is nothing more serious than constipation. Give her half a teaspoonful of rape daily in addition to the staple diet of plain canary. Twice a week give a morsel of bread and milk sprinkled with soft sugar. Keep cage strewn with clean gritty sand, and see that it is not infested with red mites. Give six drops of syrup of rhubarb and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence daily for three days, and every second day for a week after, six drops of tincture of gentian and four of aromatic sulphuric acid. Give a little watercress daily if obtainable in good condition for use.

Seed Mixture for Aviary (G. Ward).—If you had said of what the mixture you are using consists, I might have been able to tell you what was causing the tendency to diarrhœa, and I should also have seen whether the seed was really at fault or not. Surely there may be other causes. If your mixture contains much linseed, this would be responsible, as also would too large a proportion of some of the so-called rapes. You will find it most economical to give the seeds in separate vessels. In one give plain Canary only; in another about one-third the size summer rape; a third about same size should contain hemp; and in a fourth about same size a mixture of equal parts inga, thistle, teazle, millet, linseed, charlock, maw, and gold of pleasure.

Early Starters (Novice, Rhondda).—How do you keep the birds in regard to each other? Not in the same cage, I hope, though this may not be unlikely considering the weather the past few weeks, your method of treatment, and the birds' forward condition. If you do this, or even if you keep them hanging side by side, you should separate them more effectually at once. It would be an advantage to remove the cock to another room, not warmer than the one he is now in, for a few weeks, and give the hens plain Canary only as a staple for the next fortnight, with half a teaspoonful of summer rape twice each week, and on two other days the same quantity of the mixture of seeds you are using. You have, by the way, been giving twice as much as you ought to have of this mixture. Add a pinch of Epsom salts to the drinking water for two or three days. Do not pair up if you can avoid for another six weeks.

A Sure Cure (No Nom-de-plume).—For asthma of a pronounced and chronic nature, I'm afraid, to be quite candid with you, I cannot recommend you a sure cure. In a very great number of cases cure is impossible, and alleviation is all that must be expected. As yours seems to be of recent origin the outlook is more hopeful. See, first of all, that the cause—draughts, damp, extremes of heat and cold, and impure air—are completely removed. Keep bird in a comfortable place—not over-heated, nor yet cold. Withhold the bath until better, and give a small scrap of bread and milk with two drops of cod liver oil emulsion on it, and sprinkled with soft sugar, twice a week only. In each two tablespoonfuls of drinking water give twenty drops of whiskey, five each of oxymel of squills, ipecacuanha wine, and two of eucalyptus oil, well shaken together, two days in every three for a week, and every second day for another week afterwards.

Feather Pulling (D.E.P.).—Assuming the bird moulted properly last autumn, I am inclined to suspect it is a hen in very fresh condition and anxious to begin nesting. If it did not moult all right, and has not been exposed to these extremes of heat and cold prevalent lately it may be about moulting, in which case keep it warm, free from great fluctuations, and give a scrap of bread and milk sprinkled with soft sugar twice a week, and twenty drops of Chemical Food in the water four times a week. If neither of these is correct, look carefully again for red mites, scraping out any likely crevices or joints with a pin, and also examine bird for grey lice. Let it bathe freely, and for a time soak a few quassia chips in the bathing water overnight. Also give the bread and milk as above for a fortnight, and dissolve a crystal of sulphate of soda, the size of a split pea, and as much chlorate of potash as will cover a sixpence, in the drinking water every second day for a week.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S. M.B.N.H.S., etc.

Budgerigar Unwell.

Mrs. B.—There is no doubt your bird has been egg-bound, but seeing that she has got rid of the egg should gradually recover. If there should be further recurrence of the helplessness, repeat at once the steaming, etc. Till she is able to get about again as usual, stick an inclined branch in the ground, so that it rests against her husk; she will thus be able to get up and down easily, without straining the wing in any way. There is another course open to you, viz., to cage up this pair of birds in a large cage, together with the husk, and bring them indoors till the worst of the weather is past; if not, I much fear she will ultimately succumb to egg-binding, now she has once been affected by it, before the end of March is reached. Your treatment was perfectly correct, and I hope you will now have no further trouble with it. See that she has access to crushed mortar rubbish and cuttle-fish.

Birds for Outdoor Aviary.

Novice.—Limit your breeding pairs to 15, and do not introduce British Buntings, Bramblings, or Chaffinches—for such an aviary the best of our indigenous species would be Gold and Bullfinches, Redpolls, Twites, Linnets, and Siskins. The following species would agree with these Zebra Waxbills, common and green Avadavats, Zebra Finches, Long and Rufous-tailed Grassfinches, White Java Sparrows, Bronze and Magpie Mannikins, and green singing Finches. A pleasing variety would be a pair of minute Diamond Doves and a pair of equally minute Chinese Painted Quails. In addition to the seeds supplied to the British Finches, it will suffice if you supply white and spray millet, with oats and paddy rice in limited quantities, a little ripe fruit, and green food. Though you have all seed-eaters, do not neglect to throw into the aviary any smooth caterpillars, spiders, beetles, etc., that you can capture. Supply soft food when they have young.

A Galah Cockatoo.

Anxious.—I think you have a bird which will turn out well, and make a fair talker. Do not give tea, coffee, or milk slops, nor any kind of animal food, and it should continue to do well. This species as a rule do not make good talkers in this country; nevertheless, I have come across many talented birds of this species one time and another—yours is certainly a promising specimen. Keep it in your midst, where it will hear plenty of conversation; also talk to it, and fuss with it generally, and I opine it will gradually develop into a good talker. Once the point is thoroughly hard (any limps should be scraped off), I do not think any harm is likely to result therefrom. I have a Senegal Parrot in a painted cage, and though it is gradually stripping the paint off, there have been no ill-effects.

Sexing Pekin Robins.

"Liothrex Luteus."—This is by no means easy, the intensity of colouration varies so with birds from different localities; again, unless you are comparing adult birds, young males and females resemble the adult hen. However, as you have procured a number from one source, it will be fairly safe to conclude they are from one locality; to assume that they are all adult, or all young, without seeing them is quite another matter. It may be taken that the female is less brightly coloured throughout, but more noticeably so on the throat, breast, and the red edges of the primaries; the latter are vermilion in the male, but only sienna-red in the female. The eye region in the female is whitish, in the male this is yellow. The bill of the female is shorter, stouter at the tip, narrower at the base, and not of so intense a red as that of the male. I also opine that even if your birds are young, you will find those with only the call note females, and those with the variable notes cocks. By the aid of the above you should be able to sex the majority as soon as they are in decent feather. The size and shape of the bill should be your safest guide.

A Feather Puller.

Nemo.—You give but few details, but stop your present seed mixture, and give the following: Canary seed, oats, hemp, paddy rice, dari, maize, and sunflower seeds in about equal parts. Also supply such ripe fruit as it will eat, plain biscuit, nuts, and green food. Keep a piece of clean cuttle-fish hanging in the cage. I should give a little boiled maize daily, about a tablespoonful, if the bird will eat it, after draining away all water, well dust it with flowers of sulphur before supplying to the bird. For a time give Dinneford's Magnesia and Parrish's Chemical Food alternately in the drinking water; of course, if the voidings become watery you must discontinue the magnesia for a time. I expect recovery will be slow, as these birds seem to cling to this habit once it is taken up. You must persevere with the above treatment. Report progress in a month. Do not give tea, coffee, or milk slops, table scraps, or any kind of animal food.

Roseate Cockatoo with Swelling.

M. A. Rogers.—I should keep the bowels of this bird moving quite freely. At the same time the voidings should not be continuously watery loose; keep them regulation with doses of Dinneford's Magnesia (one teaspoonful to each ounce of the drinking water) as necessary, with at least a day between the doses. From your description I take it the growth is not humorous, and that the skin of same is whole; in such case anoint it daily with tincture of iodine; in the event of the growth containing pus, I should foment it with warm water, and as soon as it is ripe, get rid of the contents by gentle pressure after lancing. However, I must say that in all these cases it is best to let a vet. see it, as the true character of the growth can only be ascertained by an examination—possibly it could be cut away, and a rapid cure effected. But if you wish to treat it yourself, and the conditions are as I have indicated, the above treatment should prove effective. In such case you had better report progress in a fortnight, with full details, or in case of it appearing worse either call in a vet., or write again at once.

Parrot Unwell.

E. J. McKinnon.—If the bird has difficulty in swallowing hard seed, supply a little boiled maize daily, but do not give any milk slops or puddings; plain boiled rice, well strained so that each grain is separate, if the bird will take it. Give the bird several doses of Dinneford's Magnesia—one teaspoonful to each ounce of the drinking water—with two days' intervals between the doses; the bowels must move freely, but the voidings must not be allowed to remain watery loose. On the days you are not giving the magnesia, well colour the drinking water with Parrish's Chemical Food. Well cleanse the nostrils, twice daily, with diluted glycothymoline—also put some honey and borax (can be procured ready mixed from any chemist) on its tongue, say, twice a day, the feather or camel-hair brush should be well cleansed for each occasion. Note. Boiled maize only keeps fresh one day, and stale grains must not be left about. You will, of course, supply seed mixture and ripe fruit as usual in addition to the above diet. As the bird has been ill some time you must persevere with the treatment, as recovery in such case cannot be rapid. Keep it warm, yet where it can get light and air without draught.

Brevities.

What Parrot? (Highlander).—So far as I can gather from your description, it is a Yellow-fronted Amazon, but I cannot be certain upon the point. Please repeat query next week, and give me an idea of the size of the bird, and whether it has a long or short tail. If the tail is short I think you may take it that it is correctly named above.

What Birds (Liverpolitan).—(1) This is almost certainly a Spermophila, but the species are so numerous, and many of them so similar to each other that naming some of them is difficult even with the living bird before one. From your description I should say the bird is the Guttural Finch. (2) I cannot place this at the moment and have no time to search before going to press; I am keeping the query before me and will try and answer it in our next issue.

What Bird (E.P.J.).—It is a Cockatoil, and a cock bird. The hen has the head grey, very slightly suffused with yellow, and the red cheek patches much obscured by grey. It should have a roomy cage, and while in common with all species, it cannot endure draughts, at the same time it is more hardy than our native sparrows. A diet of canary, white spray millet, a few oats, greenfood, grit, and water for drinking and bathing, will suffice to keep them fit. A piece of clean cuttlefish should be kept hanging in every hardbill's cage.

Early Nesting of Budgerigars (W.H.W.).—There is nothing abnormal in the early nesting of your birds; I have had them breed all through the winter, in an open outdoor aviary, and many young reared. In your aviary they should be quite comfortable, and I should simply leave them alone; attend to their cleanliness and supply them with sweet food as per directions already given, and your book. There is little doubt but what the young will be successfully reared, and the probability is you will have a successful season.

A Screaming Parrot (Beckett).—It is rather difficult to know what to suggest, but I think you will be able to overcome this in a measure by kindness, and as it becomes older and more fluent of speech it will exercise its voice otherwise than by screaming. I should, however, try the effect of gently covering it up whenever it becomes noisy and uncovering when it is quiet again—my experience of Parrots teaches me that they soon learn the meaning of it, and I and others have found it fairly effective.

An Indian Mynah (Minah).—These birds are practically omnivorous, and but little comes amiss to them. Some good soft food mixture should form the staple diet—for a change two or three times weekly a good portion of boiled potato (passed through a masher) can be added thereto; supply also ripe fruit ad lib, mealworms, and almost any insect you can capture. A little of any milk pudding you have at table can also be given—and general table scraps may be given regularly for it to pick over. It should have a large cage, which will require frequent cleaning to keep it sweet, as this species is a large eater.

What Parrakeets (P. R. E.).—(1) It is a Quaker Parrakeet, a Brazilian species, which is also known as the Grey-crested and Monk Parrakeet. (2) Some species of Conure, very probably the Gold-fronted, which is also known as the Jendaya. It is also a South American species, and an adult birds in good feather is very handsome indeed. Both are rather noisy species, not to be classed with the talking species, though I have met with talkers of both species, they become chummy, and are droll, and accomplished "tumblers," especially the former.

Birds for Small Aviary (Mackman).—Your aviary is not large, and I may say at once that if you attempt to keep Budgerigars with Finches you will certainly have many losses—maimed or murdered Finches are the ultimate outcome of such mixtures. I should not keep more than 24 birds therein. I should advise you to put in only 3 pairs of foreign birds, when, if you turn out your young Canaries later, the accommodation will be fairly well occupied. As you are a Canary fancier, why not put in three cocks, viz., green singing Finch, grey singing Finch, and Alario Finch, if you can get it, with the same number of Canary hens, and some interesting hybrids would result. With them you could keep a pair each of White Java Sparrows and Zebra Finches. If you are determined to keep Budgerigars you must give up the whole aviary to this class of bird; in such case repeat your query.

Green Parrots (St. John).—It is hard to imagine anyone would be so brutish as you describe. In the long run it does not pay even when looked at from that sordid point alone. I felt the case was hopeless, but many Parrots are so tenacious that I never give up hope myself while they live. In the light of your knowledge of facts you have done quite right in taking the step you have. It must, however, be borne in mind that these birds often come to hand in a shocking condition, practically naked; add to this that they are not particularly gentle with each other en route, while huddled together in the travelling cage, and it will be easy to understand what scarecrows and objects of pity some of them appear on landing.

Shama with Swollen Legs and Feet (Folkestone).—I fear old age is the principal cause, but you should at any rate be able to give the bird some relief. Mine regularly sheds the skin from its legs and feet very similar to the sloughing of a snake; probably this may occur with your bird a little later. Soak the affected parts in a hot (not sufficiently hot to cause discomfort) decoction of camomile flowers, dry with a soft cloth, and then lightly paint with turps, using a small camel-hair brush for the purpose, which should be well cleansed for each occasion. Let the food be nourishing, and supply at least six mealworms per diem.

BRITISH BIRDS, MULES AND HYBRIDS.

Answered by G. E. Weston.

Points of the Hawfinch.

A Constant Reader.—As a general rule it is safe to say a show Hawfinch needs to be as big as possible, consistent with fine quality of feather. The ideal colour is as near a rich reddish chestnut as possible, deepening on the back and to brownish on the head. The chest and shoulders must be very broad, and the head bold and wide, set on a short, thick neck. A narrow-headed bird, or one "hammer-headed," as it is termed (narrow either at front or back) is to be avoided. The wing markings must be rich and well defined, especially the bar, also those peculiar looking blue-black wing featbers with the metallic sheen. The bib is a most important marking. It should be as nearly as possible a perfect V shape, clean cut at the edges, and dense, solid black in colour—the wider and bigger the better. A common failing with otherwise good Hawfinches is to run pale in colour on the forehead—such birds are generally, however, on the pale side in colour all over. A Hawfinch will certainly thrive in a large cage. It should have plenty of good sunflower seed in addition to the usual Finch seeds.

A Red-backed Shrike.

A First Attempt.—It is impossible for me to say whether or not the bird was caught in England. I think you can safely take the word of the person who sold it. In any case, it matters very little, to my way of thinking, where it was captured. The sexes are easily to be distinguished. The dense black eye streak alone is sufficient to proclaim the bird a male, to say nothing of the pink suffused breast yellowish-buff in the hen. They require a good insectivorous mixture of biscuit meal, ants' eggs, dried flies, and meat meal—or puppy meal, or "Melox" would answer admirably as the basis—moistened with grated raw carrot, etc. Finely scraped, or minced, raw lean beef or mutton must be regularly given, especially during the moult, also hard-boiled egg. Live ants' eggs are relished, likewise cockroaches ("black beetles"), mealworms, and most other insects (including bees), mice and tiny birds. They improve at the second moult. In captivity the males make really excellent songsters, and will acquire the notes of many other birds.

Concerning Redpolls.

Tiny Tim.—A Redpoll, whether the Mealy or the Lesser, should be managed on much the same lines as the Linnet. One of the best possible seed mixtures is: Canary three parts, teazle two parts, summer rape and charlock one part each, linseed half a part, by measure. During the moult add one part of hemp, and towards the finish of the moult increase the proportion of linseed to one part. Also give a little maw seed now and again, and a little niger, too, while wild seed mixture is very much relished, and can be given freely during the moult. Seeding green food, such as shepherd's purse, chickweed, knotgrass, plantain, etc. is very good for them, and these things, too, require to be given more freely during the moult than at any other period. In fact, it is a free supply of them, and a free use of the bath, which put colour into, and gloss on to, the plumage. These wild seeding plants should be gathered fresh as often as possible, and the more minute, crawling insect life there is about them, the better for the birds. Redpolls also like thistle and hardheads. As a "conditioner" (for show or song) use the special mixture (gold of pleasure, etc.) recommended "Ploughboy" last week. A Mealy Redpoll must not be colour-fed; the bird should be, in my own opinion, mealy in colour, as its name indicates. No doubt many Lessers get some colour-food given them.

A Chough Puzzle.

Dubiety.—Your suspicions are quite justified, for it is the Alpine, and not the Cornish, Chough which has come into your possession. The short (comparatively) and yellowish bill settles the identity at once. As regards the chief points of a good exhibition Cornish Chough, these are size—a big, well-built, good-skulled bird being essential— and colour. The body colour should be a deep shining metallic black, with a distinct bluish cast, the legs and bill a solid, rich red, approaching crimson. Sometimes the legs and bill are a pale salmon colour, and patchy, at that, while the plumage is a dull, sooty black. The hen is a smaller, "meaner" looking bird than the cock, with a smaller head and bill, and is duller in colour. A cage is not really suitable for regular use, a medium-sized outdoor aviary being the ideal place, one with a stone trough, or suitable galvanised bath in it, to hold a decent supply of water. If you use a cage, it will have to be extremely large to permit the bird keeping in "show form." A rockery in the aviary would be very suitable; all perches should be very stout ones. Both Cornish and Alpine Choughs would need to be fed on similar lines in captivity. If your bird has not been got used to artificial food, you will need to give it plenty of flesh food, both raw and cooked, which can be cut up and rubbed into crushed dog biscuit made moist with hot water. Any of the biscuit meals prepared for dogs (such as "Melox" or Spratt's) will do for the latter purpose. You will find almost any live foods accepted with thanks—cockroaches ("blackbeetles"), gentles, garden worms, mealworms (by the hundred). The Chough I had was very fond of "messes" from the table—a mixture of potatoes, greens, meat, and gravy.

Brevities.

Goldfinch with Cold (A. Downes).—One of the best remedies for colds in birds (I have heard of many cures being effected by it), is a small teaspoonful of the following mixture stirred into two tablespoonfuls of drinking water: oxymel of squills, ipecacuanha wine and glycerine, one ounce of each, mixed. Any chemist will prepare it for you. It must be given over a reasonable period, not given for a few days and then left off. Keep the bird out of draughts.

Linnet Muling (Beginner of 16).—Am under the impression I answered this query last week; or one under a similar nom-de-plume. A tame, steady cock Linnet, which was caught last December, is quite likely to breed Mules this coming season. A German hen will answer as a mate; they make good mothers, but the young will, of course, be on the small side as regards size. I did not receive any seed mixture with your query. Use that recommended a correspondent of mine last week.

Linnet with Worms (No Nom-de-plume).—I have never been troubled by a case of worms in any bird I have kept, so have had no practical experience as to curing birds affected with them. Mr. G. Yates, the veterinary surgeon who conducts post-mortems for Cage Birds, states that many different kinds infest birds, and that the treatment varies according to the particular brand of worm. Send a specimen on to him (525, Caledonian-road, London, N.), and he will advise you of the best method of effecting a cure.

Goldfinches and Linnets (Goldie).—No doubt you would see the two answers given last week which dealt with the feeding of the Goldfinch and Linnet.

Feeding a Throstle (A.B.C.).—One of the best possible methods of feeding a Song Thrush to get him into high condition and full song, is that which was recommended to a correspondent in this column last week. I take it that you would see and peruse the answer to which I refer.

Hardheads, Etc. (Amateur).—Good knapweed (hardhead) seed is excellent for Goldfinches. I wish I had a supply of it myself. It is usual to put up a Foreign Goldfinch when trying to breed very large exhibition Mules. Some people say that the Foreign Finch is not so good a breeder (not so free) as the British. This may be true of the very large, very fat, and very lazy type of Foreign Goldie (not at all uncommon), but I find that the right stamp of Foreign Finch is as reliable as our native Goldie.

To the States (Americus).—I have had no experience of taking birds over to the U.S.A., but beyond seeing that you have suitable seeds for the Goldie and Bullie (as advised in the answers of last week, to which you refer), I do not know that you have anything else to worry about. The journey is short, and the birds can require nothing else beyond water and proper food. I take it that you will have to provide very small cages, and the wicker Roller Canary cages will be bad to beat, being both easily carried and easily kept clean, while they can be thrown away at the journey's end. You will, I think, find it best to cage each of the four birds separately.

A Tonic (M.G.F.).—A great many contest singers give their birds a tonic containing strychnine to "screw" them up to "concert pitch." That preparation known as Easton's Syrup is as good as any. It, of course, requires using with discretion, being very powerful. Give it in a glass or pot drinker only. Dose, commence with 5 or 6 drops in two tablespoonfuls of drinking water, and gradually increase to 9 or 10 drops. Give plain water occasionally and when the bird is "fierce" give the syrup only on special occasions (when needed). Of course, I presume your bird is in sound health.

British Bird Querists should purchase our "British Bird Manual," published in two parts, "Hardbills" and "Softbills," price 1/- each, or in cloth cover together, 2/3 post free.

Identity of Bird (Bunting).—The bird you describe is a Reed Bunting (sometimes, but erroneously, termed the Black-headed Bunting). It is a male in winter plumage. In the spring the bird's plumage takes on a more ruddy tint and the black head markings become more solid (dense) and glossy.

Privet Berries (R.N.S.T.).—It is possible to give an unlimited supply of privet berries to a Bullfinch and no harm accrue. I have done this many a time. Still, two or three good bunches daily are ample for the average pet bird.

About a Blackbird (Only a Novice).—Your Blackbird is not a "he," unfortunately, but a hen. This, of course, explains the absence of song. The cock bird is a solid black all over; he has not a "brown, mottled-looking breast," this being a certain sign of the feminine gender. Your feeding is fairly correct; if you omit the hemp, bread-crumbs, and chopped meat (or give but very, very little) it will be very good. I don't know whether you are aware that punch bar wire fronts can vary a great deal in quality and that the cheapest at first do not always prove so in the long run. We are not allowed to mention particular advertisers; it would not be fair.

GENERAL.

Answered by the Editor.

Collecting at the Crystal Palace Show (H. J. Hawes).—Accept our thanks for your kindness in writing us.

Illustrated Ideas (S Bramley).—These perches have been previously given.

Cuttings, Etc. (G. W. D.).—Many thanks. The result of the Essay Competition we are afraid cannot be announced for a week or two yet. The task of weighing the merits of the many articles is a heavy one.

Open and Members (No Nom-de-plume).—The word "open" applied to a show and the classes thereat means that anyone may exhibit who cares to enter; whether he is attached to any society, or otherwise, does not matter. We do not understand how you could be told that a show which advertised "26 open classes was a members' show." There must be a mistake (or a misunderstanding) somewhere.

POST MORTEMS.

Mr. G. Yates, M.R.C.V.S., 525, Caledonian Road, Holloway, London, N., will examine and report upon dead cage birds for a fee of 1s. 6d. each bird; for reply direct, 2s. 6d.; analysis, 21s. Subjects for post mortem examination must be sent packed in a box direct to Mr. Yates, with the fee, this and any accompanying letter being kept from contact with the dead bird. Any bodies sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

H. Clarke.—Replied by post.

John Hamilton—Parrot.—You should furnish particulars as to history of the case, the length of time your bird was ailing, etc.; these are valuable for purposes of investigation. Death was brought about by a process of depletion, due to the presence of worms in the intestines. The bird was literally fleshless, and in a most emaciated condition, the breast bone being most prominent. Nor could I discover a particle of fat in connection with the interior of the body. The trouble was of some standing, and even though you fed your bird most liberally, yet imperfect assimilation, due to the presence of these parasites, would rapidly conduce to a condition of innutrition. I should very much liked to have known whether there was any diarrhœa; circumstances lead me to think this might have been the case, as the proventriculus, or true digestive stomach, was reddened and inflamed. The bowels were perfectly devoid of any food contents, containing only mucous in which numbers of these worms were present. The worms were of the tape-worm class, and mostly in forms of segments or parts of mature worms. Unfortunately, I was unable to procure a good specimen of them for preservative purposes, as they were in rather a broken condition, and only properly recognised under a low power of the microscope. This would have been a suitable case for treatment. A little freshly-grated areca nut, made into a suitable consistency with butter, and administered by the beak occasionally, alternated with a suitable tonic preparation, might have afforded some good had the presence of the parasites been early discovered.

PROVINCIAL ROLLER C.C.

Meeting held at Swan Hotel, Fountain Street, Manchester, on January 29. Mr. A. Foulds (chairman). A good number of members were present. The balance-sheet was presented. It showed a surplus in hand of £15 0s. 10d., which we consider very good. Eleven new members were elected. Afterwards a discussion took place in reference to rings. Eventually it was unanimously decided that the P.R.C.C. adopt rings of their own. Further information can be obtained from—Andrew Percival, Hon. Sec.

MIDDLESBRO' & TEES-SIDE C.B.S.

Annual general meeting held at headquarters, Crown Hotel, January 22nd, when the following officers were elected: President, Sir Samuel Sadler; Vice-President, Dr. Howe; chairman, Mr. J. Hanson; Vice-Chairman, Mr. J. W. Watson; Treasurer, Mr. G. Harker; Secretary, Mr. A. Wake; Assistant Sec., J. Swinsco; Committee, Rev. B. Wilton, Messrs. R. Unthank, T. Oliver, F. Sahnon, T. Wells, J. Greenfield, D. Wells, J. Carr, C. Mallory, W. Thompson, T. Gibson, G. E. Lancaster, R. Taylor, T. Jenkinson, J. W. Thompson, H. Brown, J. Appleton, W. Rand, J. Unthank, E. Ward, Darnborough, G. Brown, W. Zealand; Auditors, Messrs. W. Thompson and Swinsco. A good number of members attended. The balance sheet proved to be highly satisfactory. After paying for two trips for the members, there was a balance of £14 5s. 1½d. in hand. We also decided to hold our annual open show on the usual date, viz., October 22nd. We should be pleased to enrol any new member at our next meeting on February 19th; entrance fee 1/-, and 6d. per month subscription.—A. Wake, Hon. Sec.

GT. HORTON (Good Intent) O.S.

Annual meeting held on Jan. 29, in the Church Schools, Southfield, Lane. Mr. G. R. Rushworth in the chair. Election of officers: President, G. R. Rushworth; vice-presidents, A. W. Hartley, G. Riley, and D. Bartle; treasurer, A. Holden; secretary, H. Chubb; asst. sec, H. Worsnop; auditors, W. Ketteringham and H. Gornall; Yorkshire Union delegates, H. Schofield and D. Bartle. Mr. A. Holden then presented the prizes to the following members for points for the year: 1, A. Holden; 2, Messrs. Hartley; 3, T. S. Whiteley; 4, H. Schofield; 5, D. Bartle; 6, C. Walker; 7, G. R. Rushworth; and 8, A. Firth. The following also won specials for Starred Birds: Messrs. Hartley and T. S. Whiteley. This year the society will hold 5 members' shows, 3 old bird shows, and two first feather shows. A very good list of special prizes has been promised for the above shows, and all augurs well for a good season. So rally up, members. The Yorkshire Union rules were discussed at great length, and one or two alterations were recommended. An invitation is extended to fanciers to join the society at the very low subscription of 3s. per year.—H. Chubb, Sec., 227, Great Horton Road, Bradford, Yorkshire.

NORTHERN B.B.M. AND F.B.C.

At a meeting held in Lockhart's Cafe, 65, Grainger Street, Newcastle, recently, new members were enrolled, viz., Messrs. T. Steel (Wallsend), A. Hamilton and G. Allinson (Newcastle), R. Blore (Jarrow), and W. McGinn (Walker), who were unanimously elected. It was proposed, seconded, and agreed that samples of medals be got for selection at our next meeting. Proposed by Mr. J. McKenzie, seconded by Mr. G. Taylor, that we hold a table show at our next meeting, the following classes to be provided for: Field-moulted British: Class 1, Linnet; 2, Goldfinch or Bullfinch; 3, A.O.S.: and 4, For, for those who have never won a money prize in open competition. Mr. G. Taylor was appointed to judge. Table show held in conjunction with the Northern Yorkshire C.C. resulted as follows: LINNET: 1, Bertram and Storey; 2, G. Taylor; 3, G. Steele. GREENFINCH: 1, J. Irving; 2, Bertram and Storey; 3, G. Taylor. HEN FINCH, ETC.: 1, G. Taylor; 2, Shepherd and Son; 3, T. Steele. FOR.: 1, J. McKenzie; 2, G. Taylor; 3, C. G. Pettersson. Mr. Maddison judged, giving every satisfaction. Proposed by Mr. J. Shepherd, that a hearty vote of thanks be given him; Mr. T. C. Crawhall seconded, supported by Mr. J. Curry. Mr. Maddison suitably replied, bringing a most enjoyable and interesting meeting to a close.—J. Bertram, Sec.

EAST BOWLING AND DIST. B.F.A.

The above society held a social and coffee supper on January 29th, in St. John's School, in connection with the distribution of prizes for 1909. There was a splendid turn-up of members and friends, the room being well filled. All present were agreed that it was the most successful function the society had ever held. The president, Mr. Robinson, occupied the chair. The following artistes sustained a capital programme throughout the evening:—Soprano, Mrs. Holdsworth; tenor, Mr. Clough; bass, Mr. Tempest; female impersonators, Messrs. Wilson and Thompson; accompanist, Miss Eyder. Each artiste was well received, and had to respond with encores. During the interval the prizes were presented to the successful exhibitors by Dr. A. J. Wheatley. The winners of the society's were A. Gledhill, J. Firth, and W. Helliwell in the open section, and Robinson and Sharp, F. Batersby, and H. Mitchell in novice section. L. C. Casey won Sandiford's medal for hottest bird fed on Sandiford's colour food. We also congratulate two of our members on having won novice medals under the Yorkshire Union. The proceedings terminated with a hearty vote of thanks to Dr. Wheatley for presenting the medals, to the artistes, and to the ladies for providing the supper. After this the audience all joined in singing the National Anthem.—L. Booth, Sec.

DUNFERMLINE AND DIS. C.B.S

First annual meeting held in the Co-operative Hall on January 29th, and in conjunction with it was held a breeding pair show. Mr. W. Hogg (Oakley) made the awards. CREST PAIRS: 1, Howie; 2, 4, Allan; 3, Kemp. NOR.: 1, 2, Barclay. BORD.: 1, 2, R. T. Campbell; 2, 4, W. Campbell; 5, Kay. MULE OR HYB.: 1, Howie; 2, 3, Rankine; 4, Kemp; 5, Rolland.—There was a good attendance, and the committee were amply repaid for their trouble. The members then sat down to business, under the chairmanship of Mr. J. Rankine, and the following officials were appointed for the ensuing year:—President, Mr. J. Rankine; vice-presidents, Messrs. W. Culley and J. Allan; committee, Messrs. H. Kemp, H. Barclay, A. Howie, A. Bowman, J. McGovems, W. Rolland, W. Campbell, G. Coutts, J. Fotheringham, and W. Malcolm. The members have agreed to have a ramble, the date being fixed for June 11th. The first feather show will be held on July 30th. The ordinary members' show will take place about the beginning of November, date and venue to be fixed. Since the society was formed a year ago, it has filled up a long-felt want in the district, and with a good programme to work on the committee are anxious that fanciers will come forward and give them their support.—Robert T. Campbell, Sec.

Correspondence.

A Phonograph Record of the Linnet's Song.

SIR,—I should like a phonograph record of a Linnet's song. Would Mr. Fred Allen let us know if it is possible to get one? I see another correspondent in CAGE BIRDS would like one, too.

PHONOGRAPH.

A New Cage Bird Society for Heptonstall and District.

SIR,—I am pleased to inform you that at a meeting held here on January 13th it was decided to form a new cage bird society, to be called the Heptonstall and Dist. Cage Bird Society. I was appointed secretary, and Mr. Herbert Smith (Smithwell Lane) treasurer. A chairman and vice-chairman are to be chosen at our next meeting. We have up to the time of writing enrolled sixteen members, and I am hoping that at the next meeting we shall have a few more.

PERCY F. MATHERS,
Smithwell Lane, Heptonstall, near Hebden Bridge.

Mice in the Bird Room.

SIR,—I have read both Mr. Storey's and "Fancier's Friend's" methods of ridding the bird room of mice, but I think the way I cleared my room of them is a lot better than either. In the first place fix sheet-tin on the legs of your rack so as to make it impossible for the mice to get on the cages. Then procure a few ounces of ordinary pepper and well sprinkle it on the cages, for fear of one getting on them, and around the skirting boards of the room, and whatever holes they may have. Then fill your powder bellows and puff as much as you can into the holes. Then in a day or two plaster or board up all the holes, after giving them a final sprinkle. I have used the above method with success. F. S. HOWARD.

The L. & P.O.S. Case of Stuffed Prize-winning Birds.

SIR,—I have recently received for the London and Provincial O.S. case of stuffed birds the following, for which, on behalf of the society, I tender the donors my best thanks:—Reddish Finch, from Mr. H. K. Picard (Hampstead); Buff Norwich Plainhead hen, from Mr. J. T. Billington (Twickenham); Sun Conure, Purple Naped Lory, and Lesser Hill Mynah, all from Mrs. K. L. Miller (Belgravia); Clear Yellow Goldfinch-Canary Mule, from Mr. R. Browning (Lydford, Devon); variegated Buff Norwich hen, from Mr. L. J. Richardson (Rotherhithe); ticked Yellow Lancashire Coppy, from Mr. W. Adams (Rochdale); Yellow Yorkshire (1909) and Buff Norwich cock, both from Mr. G. J. Warley (Tulse Hill); ticked Yellow Norwich, from Mr. A. J. Kilby (Caterham); Broken-cap Gold Lizard, from Mr. J. Rukin (Rawtenstall). All the birds I have got together will be on view at the Palace Show. I am still open to accept many varieties, and, needless to say, I shall be very pleased to receive deceased prize specimens from anyone in the Fancy (although I wish no one bad luck). The address of the bird stuffer is Mr. H. Small, 15, Grosvenor Road, South Norwood, London, S.E. The cost of the setting-up is defrayed by myself. G. CRABB.

Arrangements for the Great Yorkshire Prize Distribution.

SIR,—A committee representing each of the specialist societies in Yorkshire met at the Empress Hotel on Jan. 29th, to make the necessary arrangements for the annual prize-distribution and dinner. Mr. F. Armstrong, of Halifax, was elected to the chair, and the following business was transacted. Mr. H. Hill was elected secretary for this event. The committee decided on Saturday, March 5th as the likeliest date, and that a dinner should be provided as before for all who desire to attend, the price of same being 1s. 6d. per head, to take place at the headquarters, the Market Tavern, Bradford. It was unanimously decided that the prize distribution take the form of a social evening, and the following artistes were announced, subject to their acceptance: Messrs. Stafford, Mason, Mitchell, Midgley, and Berry, with Mr. Midgley as pianist. All the ladies are specially invited for this occasion, and it is hoped they will turn up in good numbers, both at the dinner and concert, to make the affair a success. Mr. D. Sunderland was again elected chairman for the occasion, the committee feeling he was the right man in the right place. It was proposed to hold the dinner at 4 o'clock prompt, the social to commence at 5.30. The committee balloted for the order in which the prizes should be given, with the following result, and in the order named: Yorkshire C.C., Open Norwich P.C., Yorks County British Bird and M.C., Cinnamon Marked Y.C.C., CAGE BIRDS, National Green Marked Y.C.C., and the Yorkshire Union. Prize-winners to receive all prizes from each specialist club at one time. It being found necessary to appoint a prize steward, Mr. John Greaves was appointed to that position. A vote of thanks was accorded to the chairman for presiding, this bringing the meeting to a close. The next committee meeting will be held half-an-hour before the Union Council meeting at the Market Tavern on February 12th. Will all fanciers and friends desirous of attending the annual dinner please notify me to that effect as soon as possible, so that arrangements can be made for same?

The Yorkshire Union of C.B.S. and Show Irregularities.

SIR,—I have been waiting, before writing, to see if some abler member of the Union took up this question, but, seeing none, I should like to write a few words. I was disgusted (but not surprised) with the decision of the Y.U. Council re an exhibitor having mixed seed in his show cages instead of white (as per rule). To let an exhibitor off with a caution, without any punishment whatever, especially a man who is a prominent exhibitor, and has been a prominent judge, even at Y.U. shows—surely, he ought to know better—is simply ridiculous, and spoils the whole Fancy. Can we wonder at novice members resorting to fraudulent practices when a leading exhibitor can get off scot free (even to the concealing of his name) for a violation of the rules, so that the Fancy cannot judge for themselves whether he is a guilty person or not? I write this letter, knowing that I am only voicing the opinion of a good many fellow-members of the Y.U.

Halifax. H. H. MITCHELL.

How Should "Bobbie" be Fed?

SIR,—I see Mr. A. Hollingshead wishes to know, How Bobbie should be fed? Well, I had two in my aviary, just out of the nest. I reared them on nothing but ordinary chicken meal at 2d. per lb., with what live food I could obtain in the garden, viz., wood lice, small earth worms, and occasionally a green caterpillar. They got exceedingly tame and would take the wood lice out of my hand. I might say they used to help themselves occasionally out of the seed boxes of the other birds; as for meal worms, they never had any whatever. S. MOODY.

SIR,—In answer to your correspondent, A. Hollingshead, re a cheap recipe for feeding a Robin without the use of meal worms, which he finds very expensive, I strongly advise him to give the bird its freedom, as without the use of mealworms and insects the Robin is doomed within a very short time. I know of no cheap recipe, but if he intends keeping this bird, then the best way of feeding I find is to get a packet of good insectivorous food (as advertised) and mix with it daily half-a-teaspoonful of ants' eggs, using water to bring it to a crumbly state; in addition to this give four or five mealworms daily. In the summer flies, spiders, and caterpillars should be given. Your correspondent must not forget that this bird is of a very active nature, and therefore should have a very roomy cage.

G. MARGARITIS.

Some Trifles that Matter.

SIR,—In your issue of January 22nd I note a sketch of perch with staple at end by Mr. Maisey. I may say my perches have a nail in the end to keep perch about quarter of an inch from back of cage. The staple, I consider, is dangerous, as any bird may get its claw fast and be dead before you find it. I have found birds hanging by the loops that fasten sliding doors to front of cages. I do not grumble at our friend for showing his ideas, because we all like to learn, but having had a lesson with the loops of cage front doors, I thought I would place my reason for not using staples before your readers. About four years ago I saw in your paper how to crush biscuit by rolling it with a bottle. I took this advice and it went well for a few weeks, better than I expected, but to finish up, the neck of the bottle came off and I had three days at home with the thick of my thumb laid open. So much for the bottle. Another thing I should like to impress upon your readers is never to hang an all-wire top cage on a nail that has any string attached to it. This is why: I had a splendid cock Chaffinch and hung him out in the sun on such a nail, and on my wife calling my attention to it I thought it was fast in the wires, and, rushing out to release it, I snatched the cage sharp off the wall, with the result that the bird's leg was ripped out at the hip, and this through a small bit of string getting fast round its leg. A New Society for Huntly and District.

SIR,—At a very enthusiastic meeting held in the Temperance Hotel on January 27 it was decided to form a new association for Huntly and District, to be called the Strathbogie P.P. and Cage Bird Association. The following office-bearers were elected:—President, Mr. John Wilson; Vice-President, Mr. Andrew Baird. A committee was also formed, composed of prominent fanciers in the town. It has long been felt that such an association was needed; so now it has got a start, I hope fanciers in Huntly and District will put their shoulders to the wheel and make no doubt as to its success. Anyone wanting particulars as to membership, etc., can have same on applying to me.

Bullfinches and Hemp Seed.

SIR,—I see in CAGE BIRDS that Bullfinches turn black sometimes when fed on hemp seed. That is not my experience, for I bought a lovely coloured bird, and he would only eat hemp, though I put all seeds but hemp in his cage. I tamed him, though two years old, by giving him hemp in my fingers, but finding he was hungry I gave him some in his cage, too. He was very ill moulting, but I kept him alive with egg and cracked hemp seed. He was too ill to get his food, so I fed him entirely by hand. He recovered, and was beautiful in colour, so it can only be in some cases that hemp does harm. I had a Bullfinch nearly black which had no hemp, but I gave him some to tame him. It was sold to me for a hen, but turned out a cock. I see in a bird book, too, that someone had a black cock Bullfinch which never had a grain of hemp. F. B.

The Judging of Roller Canaries.

SIR,—I have recently heard many discussions on the above subject, and on viewing the judging sheets of the present season, I find that Mr. J. Netherwood, of Wakefield, and Mr. F. A. Lester, of London, have frequently deducted points for high schockel, and on referring to the judging standard published in the British Roller Canary Club's book of rules I find they have no authority to do so. Now, I have the greatest respect for both these gentlemen, having exhibited successfully under them, both during past and the present seasons, and have not suffered in any way through these deductions. My object is to bring the matter to the notice of all Roller fanciers, and I trust they will express their views in this column, as either the judging standard should be altered, or these deductions not made. Clearly, one or the other is at fault, and now is the time to put matters right before the new book of rules (for the present year) is printed. It is no use having a judging standard unless we adhere to it. Many birds sing schockel in both a high and a low key, which adds to the variety, and the question is: Should this be penalised? I have heard many fanciers say the tendency of present-day song is to be short of variety, and that it is becoming monotonous.

ARTHUR FOULDS.

Ought a Rule to be Strained Sometimes?

SIR,—I regret having to take up more of your valuable space to again reply to Mr. Battison. Why correspondence at all when it is apparent to any sane thinking man that if he does not comply with the rules of a society he is out of order? What is the use of having rules unless they are enforced? Regarding what was said on the morning of the show (when Mr. Battison brought in his birds) I again repeat that—"You know the rules of the Association, and I shall have nothing to say in the matter," were the words I spoke, and others that were present can prove it. I fail to see why my name should be continually used, because if the Secretary had not carried out the rules it would have gone bad against him afterwards with the other members. Regarding cups, the cup classes were done away with this year, and starred birds taken from the unflighted classes and judged for cups; the competition for the Norwich cup was 15 birds by six exhibitors. Regarding alteration of rules of the show, these have not been altered (to my knowledge) for some years, except to add the Federation of London Societies' Clauses, and the cup rules, which do not carry any prize money. The remarks that schedule rules are never carried out is, I am afraid, not quite right; if so, why have rules at all? Of course, in an open show the point is stretched regarding the arrival of birds by rail, but in a members' show it is different, and all members must be treated on the same basis. I am pleased to say that the rule was carried out on Dec. 15th, and the birds were in at 9 p.m. and staged by 9.45 p.m. One member did not bring all his birds entered, but he would not go back and fetch the rest, as it was too late. This is a matter which the Secretary and Committee can prove. I hold a position as a committee-man of the West London F.A., and as such I think it is my duty to bring to the notice of the Society any matter that is detrimental to the general welfare of the members. The novice was not "downed," as Mr. Battison remarks, but saw his mistake (when pointed out by the committee), and did not waste columns in the Fancy Press when he knew he had not complied with the rules. Mr. Battison remarks that young fanciers often upset and alter rules. Old fanciers, such as our friend, Mr. Battison, who never attends the meetings, should be satisfied with the rules of young fanciers; the business must be carried on with those members that are there. As he says, he has a perfect right to his own views, right or wrong, but if he does not know when he is wrong he must be told, even by a young fancier. Every member of a society, when he has paid his subscription, should be on the same footing. Mr. Battison said he has helped the Fancy through Associations at his own expense. I think all fanciers will agree that what help they give to the Fancy they do it at their own expense, or I have been "out" when there has been anything to gain (except knowledge, which I am pleased to receive at all times). Members of our Association have known Mr. Battison for twenty years, and for that time he has always been the last in, and as soon as the judge had finished, and he had compared his birds with others, mostly with dissatisfaction, he would ask if he could take them away, as he had something very important happening at home. If his excuse has always been true, then he must have a very large family, and he has my sympathy.

A Resignation at Tredegar.

SIR,—Kindly allow me a small space in reply to "One in the Know." He states I resigned because I could not have a dark Goldfinch Mule class, in which I believed I could win. I did not attend one of the meetings to draw the classes out, so how could he say I wanted that class? But I always like to see a dark Canary Mule class, so that the dark Mules shall have a chance, because they do not stand any chance with the light Mules. I should not be sure of winning, as I have been beaten before at Cardiff, but I try to win if I can by fair play. So, my good fellow, let the specials go out in the open, and try and win there if you can. If you would like to know a little more, I shall be pleased to meet you, as I am no paper talker.

Can Chaffinch-Bramblefinches be Bred in a Cage?

SIR.—In reference to the letter in CAGE BIRDS of Jan. 15 on this subject, I can answer that question positively in the affirmative. I have at the present time a five-year house-moulted cock Chaffinch and a three-year house-moulted hen Bramblefinch, and the season before last the hen built a splendid nest in a twig I placed in the cage. She laid five eggs, which I took away, and put her some Canary eggs to sit on, which she hatched. The five eggs she laid I put under a hen Canary. About a week from hatching I looked at the eggs and found four out of the five good. I broke one accidentally, and the other three I replaced, and they duly hatched out. The Bramblefinch hatched the Canaries a day after. The Hybrids were three large, strong birds, and the Canary fed them well—as long as she had them. But on the Bramblefinch's eggs hatching, I decided to give her her own youngsters to bring up. This was when they were about three days old. So replacing them one morning, I went to work, leaving plenty of live food in the cage; but on returning at dinner time I found the youngsters flattened out, with the hen still on them. Whether it was my disturbing her by replacing, etc., I cannot say, but she seemed never to have got off the nest. I left the cock Chaffinch in the whole of the time from the eggs being laid till the young were hatched, and had no bother with broken eggs, all eggs being laid in the nest. I have also had fertile eggs from a hen Canary and a cock Bullfinch, but the young died in shell. Last season my Chaffinch-Bramblefinch pair did not breed till it was too late in the year to be of any use. I am hoping this year to be the possessor of a Hybrid from this pair, if I decide to keep them. I had a few members of the Yorkshire County British Bird and Mule Club, also its secretary, to see the young Hybrids, and they were also referred to in CAGE BIRDS by the secretary about July 7th, 1908. Hope by this letter to be able to convince "Hybrid" that the Chaffinch-Bramblefinch can be bred in a cage. If he tries again, I advise him to give plenty of young blowflies.

JAMES LANE.

To Tighten Birds Up in Feather

SIR,—Will any of my friends, readers of CAGE BIRDS, tell me in the correspondence columns how I can keep my birds in tight feather? Mine are very loose in feather, but they are not moulting. A NOVICE.

How to Arm Nets.

SIR,—Perhaps "Netter" and others who have so readily and so lucidly instructed us as to how to net, how to make our own netting needles, how to arm our nets, and how to outwit "sharped" Goldies, will further complete their contributions by advising us as to the kind of linen thread that should be used in the making of a first-class bird-net? Will carpet thread do, or is it too thick? Which is the lightest and best thread, and where may it be obtained and for how much? Brown or khaki colour is a showy one on grass. Is drab or green better?

ANOTHER AMATEUR.

G. H. Chirgwin's Appeal to Our Readers.

SIR,—I should be extremely obliged if you would allow me to thank Mr. J. H. Jowett for the two handsome Norwich Plainheads he has sent me to be sold for the benefit of the Variety Artistes' Benevolent Fund, and also for his kind letter that you were good enough to publish in last week's issue. I may say that Mr. Joe Elvin has bought one of them, and Mr. Charles Osborne, the celebrated song writer and composer, the other one.

GEO. H. CHIRGWIN,
President of the V.A.B.F.

The Recent Llanelly Show.

SIR,—I wish to thank you for the good report you gave our show, and also the exhibitors for their kind support. One thing I am sorry to say, that our show came on the eve of the election (which was on the following day), and as there were no less than four political meetings being held in the town on our show day, this made a great difference to our gate, which only came to £1 16s. 9d. I can assure you that our show was worthy of more public support than is shown by the gate. By the time this is in print I hope to have all my prize money sent out. At meeting held last Saturday evening it was decided that there should be held (providing we can get a suitable place) a members' 8 miles radius show (open to the County of Carmarthen), to assist the members to get out of their deficit; the same to be held on Saturday, Feb. 26. As I have felt the strain and work so much, I fully intended resigning my position as secretary (not the society), but have made up my mind to see this through, and do not intend that my successor should take the position as secretary with an encumbrance. Since January 5, 1909, I have worked two open cage bird shows as secretary, and have been assistant secretary in the working of two members' shows and the late County Fanciers' Association Shows, therefore you may see that to follow my daily work and to give so much time to the Fancy was bound to take effect on my health and comfort. At the same time, the Fancy locally may rely on having all the assistance it lays in my power to give.

DANIEL JOHN, Hon. Secretary.

Prize Money at Dulwich O.S. Show.

SIR,—On behalf of the Dulwich O.S., I beg to tender our sincere regrets to those exhibitors who are still waiting for their prize-money or special prizes. A meeting will shortly be held to discuss the predicament the society has found itself in, and to see if arrangements can be made for a scheme to help us out of the difficulty. In the meantime, I earnestly beseech those donors to the prize fund, or of special prizes, to fulfil those promises which are at present only on paper; also I beseech those officials who did not pay their entry fees, and who have sold tickets and not accounted for them, or who have received money and not handed it over, and those (and they are many) who did not pay their annual subscription to do so at once, and avoid further unpleasantness or proceedings. In answer to Messrs. Parks and Lacey, the dinner they mention did actually take place, and all specials in hand were presented. The donors of the others have been written to, but without results. We are sorry these gentlemen did not honour us by their presence, for they would have had a right good welcome and jolly time at the expense of the contributors. We perfectly remember what took place at the show—congratulations on all sides re the splendid hall and on the comfort and staging of the birds. Personally, I don't wish to pose, in my position as co-show manager, as a paragon of all the virtues, for I, in common humanity, have many failings, and if by any chance I have overlooked any exhibitor's queries, I beg to apologise for my apparent want of courtesy. If they will take into consideration that for some months I have been upset by private worries, coupled with piles of threatening letters from irate exhibitors, they will perhaps take a lenient view, and sympathise over the situation. Now the D.O.S. is going through troubled waters most of the officers and members have deserted it like rats from a sinking ship. But I am thankful to say I have still two or three good officers left on the bridge, including the popular vice-chairman, Mr. P. G. Sprules, who mean to try, with help, to weather the storm, and bring the society safely into the harbour of success.

C. F. WOOLHOUSE.

Norwich Plainheads at Auchterarder Show.

SIR,—In reference to your report of the recent cage bird show held at Auchterarder on the 22nd of January, in the criticism of the birds exhibited by me on that occasion, while I am quite willing to admit that as far as my birds are concerned, you paid them a high compliment, a more personal, spiteful, insinuating attack was never made by one fancier upon another, and I ask upon what grounds the reporter makes the assertion that the birds exhibited by me were not my own, but belonged to another Dundee fancier? Being quite a young fancier, and a working man at that, my record for the season will compare favourably with that of any fancier in the North-East of Scotland, having won over 60 prizes, along with a championship cup, under all kinds of judges, not one of whom have I ever spoken to or toadied with in my life. Now, to take up the classes seriatum, take up my young yellow cock bird beginning at the City of Glasgow Show in the early part of the season. He has never been out of the prize list, except upon one occasion. As for yellow hens, I have also been a strong exhibitor, notably in Fifeshire, which you will see on looking up the reports of the shows there. In the Buff cock class my winner was one of four which I bought at the back of the New Year; and what is there wrong with that? In the Buff hen class my unfed, which was first at Buckhaven and third at Cardenden, was second at Auchterarder, against colour-fed birds. As for my third-prize bird, a better specimen does not stand in Scotland to-day, only she went into a second moult, which has left her somewhat patchy. Now to come to the Yellow variegated cock class, here your critic "takes the cake." He designates my first and special bird as "the Scottish National winner," if he is not mistaken—a bird which I have shown all through the season, and only on one occasion (at Dundee) has he been otherwise than amongst the prize-winners. In the Yellow variegated hen class your critic has much need to learn the adage, "That fools rush in where angels fear to tread." My first prize hen (aye, and my second one, too), while I am quite willing to admit is a grand one, has never appeared upon the show bench before. The second one was first at our local club show. Now, to come to the Buff variegated class, both of my young cock birds, which were first and second, I have shown in the unflighted classes both at Lochcraig and Cardenden, which you will see by looking over the prize lists of these shows. Now, to come to the variegated hen class, where the bird is supposed to come from the same stable as the last; my first and third birds have hardly been a Saturday in the house since the show season commenced, and as far as my first one is concerned, she has never been out of the winning every time shown. And as for my third prize bird, no bird is better known on the show bench in Fifeshire, where the reporter, in criticising the Kirkcaldy Show, designated her as "the most stylish" bird in the hall. As I have condescended far enough to give particulars of my birds for the sake of my own personal honour, I call upon my ungentlemanly critic either to substantiate his charges or give me an unqualified apology. Thanking you in anticipation that my denial of his baseless charges may be given the same publicity as the charges preferred against me.

JAMES KERR, 61, Provost Road, Dundee.

[Although it is against our rules to publish comments on show reports, we print the above letter as sent, for the simple reason that we think our correspondent has entirely misconstrued the remarks made by our reporter, who, in this case, happened to be the judge himself who awarded the prizes. Any charge of malice, therefore, falls completely to the ground, the obvious intention of the remarks being to show that these awards had been endorsed by other judges.—Editor C.B.]

Can British Birds be Stolen with Impunity?

SIR,—I am writing to you of a case I have had at the South Western (London) Police Court to-day (Jan. 31), where a man, last Saturday, came into my shop and asked to be shown some Goldfinches, which must be good ones. So my wife showed him a three-year-old Goldfinch among some others. He took the three-year-old Goldfinch off the counter to look at, and asked the wife to show him another one. While she went to get the other, he opened the cage door, took the bird out, and ran away. The wife followed him until a policeman came in sight, and then she gave him in charge. But the policeman said he could not take the man, as it was a wild bird! I was not satisfied with that when I came home, so I went to the station and asked whether the policeman was right. There was a doubt about it, so they sent a detective to the address that he gave, found him, and brought him back to the station, then sent for us to charge him, which I did, and the case came on to-day. He was charged with stealing a bird and cage valued at 12s. 6d., and with an assault on a young fellow who tried to stop him. I had a witness who was in the shop and saw him take the bird out of the cage and throw the cage back. But the magistrate who heard the case brought it in "drunk and disorderly," fine 5s., and 10s. for assault. Now the court was full of police-constables to see whether the policeman was right in not charging the man. They say that a wild bird belongs to anybody. If that is so, bird shop keepers must look out. People can come into your place and take all the wild birds out of their cages, and you cannot convict them. This man admitted taking the bird, by coming down and offering to pay for it. I must tell you that it was 4.30 p.m. when it happened, and the man went home and went to bed, and was not charged until 10.30 p.m. I don't know how they could bring it in "drunk and disorderly"! He was not drunk when he came into the shop. It is getting very serious for us. We must not have recently taken birds, and we must not have the old ones, by this. All the fanciers about here have asked me to write you. This bird had won a lot of singing contests, and was well known. I think there is some injustice somewhere. Whether it was done to screen the policeman I do not know. When giving a verdict the magistrate never mentioned the bird and cage. T. GOODRIDGE.
257, York Road, Battersea.

[We are indebted to Mr. Goodridge for sending the report of this interesting case. He, and other dealers, with British bird keepers generally, need be under no alarm, however, concerning the attitude of the Police Constable mentioned. Any person taking a British bird under such circumstances as detailed by Mr. Goodridge can most certainly be prosecuted for theft. It is a fact (as our Barrister-at-law pointed out in our columns some few months back), that when a wild (i.e., British) bird makes its escape from captivity, it is held by the law that the bird (broadly speaking) reverts to its wild condition, and that its former owner loses his title to it—i.e., if re-captured it becomes the property of whosoever effects its capture. But this, of course, has nothing whatever to do with the deliberate theft of birds out of their cages, which is unquestionably a punishable offence. The magistrates' decision in convicting the man of an offence he had not been charged with (assuming Mr. Goodridge to know the full extent of the charges laid), is one, of course, which we cannot explain.—EDITOR.]

The C.B.U. in the North.

Is there Trouble Ahead?

SIR,—"Lover of Justice" is not satisfied with my explanation re the Mule at Newcastle Show. Allow me to express the hope that he was present at Thursday night's meeting in "Canny Toon." If not, perhaps he has heard something which will satisfy his "love for justice." With reference to the letter by J. Graham, I ask your readers to take note of the report of Gateshead Society meeting, and compare J. G.'s letter with it. Mark the words in report, "Not one spoke in favour of the C.B.U." Yet here is one who has nothing to say in defence of the C.B.U. at the meeting of his society, who rushes into print with his grievances to impress your readers that he is one of those to whom the C.B.U. is dear. Take my advice, J. G., and voice your sentiments at the meetings of your society; it will have more effect. Also, it would be much more to your credit to avoid personalities. J. G.'s reference to what he terms the "clique" from Newcastle is rather amusing than otherwise. I would like to ask him if members of the Gateshead Society who live in Newcastle should be gagged and muzzled, and not allowed to either speak or vote? It would appear so from his letter. With reference to J. G.'s personal comments about myself, allow me to say that I don't live in a glass house and throw stones, but rather prefer to come into the open and fight fair and square against principles or powers that I consider to be wrong. With regard to quoting Scripture, which he says does not suit me (never mind what J. G. says), it will perhaps edify and profit him to ponder well these words: "First cast out the beam that is in thine own eye; then thou shalt see clearly to cast the mote out of thy brother's eye." With reference to "Twite," may I be allowed to point out to him that he is descending to a very low level of morality when he begins to strike below the belt? I would like him to answer two questions, and I trust he will do so truthfully and without prevarication. First, have I, as chairman of the N.C.B.S., at any time during my term of office, when presiding, ever left the chair at a moment's notice? I take it that he wishes readers to infer that I have done so? Second, have I at any time been lacking in courtesy when discharging my duties as chairman of the N.C.B.S.? Now, "Twite," let us have the truth, please, and nothing but the truth; also, along with your name. Don't hide any longer behind the hedge, and throw mud at those who are doing their best to forward and lift up the Cage Bird Fancy to a higher plane of morality.

J. CURRAH.

SIR,—When the Union took shape, Newcastle Society affiliated, though not without opposition. Mr. Currah was elected delegate to the District Committee. After attending the committee meeting he tendered his resignation to the Newcastle Society as their representative, giving as his reason that he found instead of trying to create good feeling the committee showed a greater desire to cause unpleasantness by their treatment of fanciers, and it was his desire to stand well in the eyes of all fanciers. As no other member would accept the position Mr. MacPartling volunteered to act rather than have the Society unrepresented. Then one of Newcastle's finest members at that time got into trouble, which caused a flare among them and it was sought by the irreconcilables to make the most of the opportunity to leave the Union, which failed. At the same time Newcastle Society was "bought to book" by an exhibitor at their 1907 show for handing a valuable special over to another exhibitor whose bird was not judged for this special (according to the judge's statement), the claimant being accredited on slip and catalogue. The Council of the Union upheld the judge's decision. This brought the Newcastle Society to fever heat. An attempt was made to have this decision set aside, but failed, the Council endorsing their previous action. There have been several attempts to "burst" the Union by the chairman and secretary with the help of the present vice and one or two of the committee, which till now have been frustrated. This brings us to the present crisis, which has worked up since the representative. Mr. MacPartling, attended the last annual general meeting of the Union and gave his report on what transpired then. He was savagely attacked for the action he took by these same members, who, among other things, called him a "traitor." That night finished by a vote of confidence in the honesty and ability of Mr. MacPartling being carried by a two to one majority. At a committee meeting held previous to the recent Scottish National Show it was decided to leave the Union, hence the hilarity on that excursion. At the meeting of the Society on the 6th of January the business of the night was on the resolution: "That we do not affiliate to the Cage Bird Union." An amendment was moved "That we obtain the views of the other societies in the North as to whether they are prepared to leave the Union, and form a Federation for the North, before we sever our connection with it." The mover of this believes in a governing body, which explains the caution noticeable in the wording. The question was debated from a little after 8 till 10.30 p.m., seven or eight speaking in favour of severance and three speaking in favour of the Union. When the vote was taken 38 voted for the amendment. For the resolution the vote was so small that the chairman did not declare it, and when asked for the result said the amendment was carried by a large majority. This was a serious and unlooked-for result, knowing what was to appear in the Press that week-end. The members of the Newcastle Society have been placed in an awkward position by these advisers refusing to have the verdict of the C.B.U. Council in favour of the winner of the carvers carried out, every one being liable to suspension. Leaving the Union does not free them from that rule; hence the appeal to other societies in the North. A circular has been drawn up to send to societies which does not give a true impression of the Newcastle position.

FATE.

(Owing to pressure on space, we have been compelled to hold over until next week several letters on the above subject, including one from Mr. Crawhall.—EDITOR.)

Results of our Recent Competitions.

The Coloured Frontispiece.

A very large number of readers entered for the competition in which was set the task of colouring the frontispiece of the special Christmas issue, and the merit of the paintings was very good on the whole, though, curiously enough, a much larger proportion of competitors than has been the case in former years apparently failed to correctly identify the birds, the small bird in the top right-hand corner proving the chief stumbling block. This, in reality a Gold-Crested Wren, was turned into Siskin, Redpoll, various members of the Tit family, and even the Chaffinch, by certain of those who competed for the prize. Needless to say, this greatly handicapped their chances of success. The prize (half-a-guinea cash) has been awarded to

MR. W. COLLINS,
Croyde House,
Norfolk Road,
Southampton.

The effort adjudged second in order of merit was sent in by Mr. James Palmer, 22, Learmonth Grove, Edinburgh, while Mrs. Rose, George Street West, Luton, secured second place. These three paintings have been framed, and will be on view at the Crystal Palace Show this week-end as an attraction for CAGE BIRDS' stall.

In addition to the trio above, very excellent efforts were sent in by the following: Miss M. C. Palmer (Herne Bay), Miss Beatrice Smith (Worcester Park, Surrey), Miss Edith Bettison (Bude), and Messrs. C. Kennedy (Leyton), Jas Ruffel, jun. (Glasgow), R. Clarke (Thirsk), H. G. Brooks (Leamington Spa), T. Binmore (Torquay), A. McLauchlan (Govan), S. H. Walker (Malton), and C. P. Leggett (Sudbury).

The Puzzle Canary.

The Puzzle Canary competition in our birthday number proved immensely popular, several thousand readers evidently whiling away pleasant hours pasting together the squares which had been purposely jumbled by our artist. What is more, a good number of competitors succeeded in getting the squares into their proper order, unlike last year when in a somewhat similar competition not one solution proved to be correct. This necessitated the winning solution being selected on the score of neatness, and the judges awarded the palm in this respect to who, however, was closely pressed by Mrs. A. Durant (South Woodford), Miss A. Brampton (Hampstead, N.W.), and Messrs. A. F. Carrington (Hitchin), and G. M'Allister (Dunoon, N.B.), whose arrangements of the squares were embodiments of neatness.

MR. G. FUIDGE,
97, Avenue Road,

Our Conundrums.

In this competition four prizes of 2s. 6d. each were offered for the four best replies, written on postcards, to the following questions:—

Question 1.—What new variety of Canary ought breeders to strive for?

The prize is awarded to Mr. H. C. Brooks, 2, Dovonshire Road, Horsham, Sussex, for this answer:

I am of opinion that breeders should strive to produce a variety of Canary, combining the spangling and cap of the present day Lizard, with the beautiful colour of the Green Canary. Nobody denies the beauty of the spangling of the Lizard, but the drawback of this variety is undoubtedly the fact that its plumage fades with each succeeding moult. On the other hand a Green is generally considered to improve in colour with each moult for several years, so that if the spangling could be grafted on to the "fixed" green colour, I cannot but believe a very handsome new variety of Canary would result.

Question 2.—What British bird is best for the beginner—and why?

The prize here goes to Mr. B. J. Pounsett, Jasper Road, Upper Norwood, S.E., who says:

The Linnet has claims for the novice unequalled by those of any other Britisher. It can be obtained very cheaply; is easy to manage; can be comfortably "housed" at a small outlay; is a delightful songster, and an altogether charming birdie pet. Good, wholesome seed, plenty of pure water for drinking and bathing, a position free from draughts and damp, and a clean cage, are all "Lintie" wants, and he will delight his owner with his charming music for many months in the year. If required of him, he will not be backward in taking unto himself a Canary wife, and himself aid in the production of Mules, which will prove fine songsters and usually long-lived. I plump for the Linnet.

Question 3.—Is cage or aviary the best for Hybrid breeding purposes—and why?

The award goes to Mr. J. Horsey, 1, East Sheen Avenue, Mortlake, who plumps for

The cage, if large enough—24in. long, 18in. high, is a suitable size. Keep in a rather secluded place. Have the nest opposite or close to the door. Provide plenty of wild seeds, and grit. Make foundation of nest with usual nesting material, then put a little chaff, small feathers, or other stuff which wild birds use in building nests in corner of cage. Birds are quite contented under such conditions. The cage is better for one to get at the birds to remove eggs, etc., and they are not disturbed so much as in an aviary, where, when you go to attend to one nest, you possibly frighten the hens of others. Valuable time is also wasted through hens "flirting" or "scrapping" with the aviary's other occupants. Lastly, an aviary is too costly for most of us.

Question 4.—What foreign bird makes the best ladies' pet—and why?

The following, sent by Mrs. Ambler, Station Road, Worsbro Dale, near Barnsley, is the winning postcard:

It is with confidence I recommend a Green Amazon Parrot for a lady's pet (the green proving more sagacious than the grey), as I possess a wonderfully tame and faithful one, being able to do anything with her. She perches on my shoulder, climbs about me, and kisses me continually, also following me about on the floor like a dog. Her sayings are based upon her affection for me, being such as, "Hallo, love," "Little pet," "Kiss poll," etc. She even sleeps on my knee if I am resting in the twilight, cooing to me all the time. Why do I think it is the best? Because if kindly treated it shows and returns its affection more vividly than other birds. Of birds, they are the nearest human in their intelligence and discernment, and give sensible answers in conversation; also they allow of handling and fondling. Lastly, and most important, I think, their conversation proves company of itself, often helping someone who has to spend many a lonesome hour to pass the time pleasantly.

A great number of other interesting replies were received, and we shall hope to print a selection of them in our next issue, together with an analysis of the voting on the various points raised by the questions which were set competitors.

Club Reports.

DENTON AND DIS. C.B.S.

The first meeting was held at headquarters, Denton Brotherhood, Jan. 24th, when a fair number of fanciers were present. Mr. E. Marlor was elected chairman. The Chairman made a few remarks re the work of the society for the coming year. It was decided to hold a pair show, Norwich and Yorkshires, at our next meeting, Feb. 21st. It was a very successful meeting, and we enrolled several members. Any others wishing to join would oblige by communicating with me, when I shall be happy to present their names at our next meeting.—W. HOPWOOD, Sec., 63, Market Street, Denton.

SOUTH-WEST LONDON C.B.S.

Annual meeting held January 20th at the Plough Hotel, Clapham Junction. The balance-sheet for 1909 was passed, the club having a grand total of £9 in hand. The officers for the ensuing year were elected, and as that grand old tried and trusted fancier, Mr. Lilley, who has been sec. for so many years thought it was time he had a rest, the members had to accept his resignation with regret. Mr. McLaughton was elected chairman, with Mr. Lilley as treas. The following were elected on the committee: Messrs. Graham, Lester, Ralph, Bruges, Broughton, Slade, Walkin, and McGregor. The pair show will take place on February 10th, when I hope members will rally round me and let us have a good beginning.—JOHN JEFFREY, Hon. Sec.

LUTON C.B.S.

General meeting held on Jan. 17th. The Secretary read the balance-sheet, which showed the society to be £6 6s. 1½d. to the good. This was considered very satisfactory, considering over £6 was lost on the open show. The officers for 1910 are as follows:—President, Dr. Rose; chairman, Mr. G. Bennett; vice-chairman, Mr. E. Bloomfield; committee, Messrs. Ball, F. Webb, Codd, E. Litchfield, Rhodes, Brewer, Thring and Meadows; hon. treasurer, Mr. L. Titmus; auditor, Mr. S. Parkin. Mr. E. Cherry was elected secretary for the sixth year. The open show was fixed for Dec. 7th. Judges, Messrs. J. Robson and A. Silver. The question of the recent British bird law case was gone into, and our society considers it the duty of the C.B.U. to take up the appeal in the interests of the Fancy generally.—E. CHERRY, Hon. Sec.

RUTHERGLEN AND DIS. O.S.

Annual general meeting and election of office-bearers held in the Rechabites' Hall, on Jan. 17th, Mr. Joel in the chair. Mr. F. Wilson, secretary, submitted the balance-sheet, which showed a very satisfactory surplus of £7 1s. 0d. in the treasurer's hands. The following gentleman were unanimously elected to the various posts: President, Baillie Love; vice-presidents, Messrs. T. M. Tod and R. Livingstone; secretary and treasurer, V. Johnson; committee, Messrs. Lappin, Livingstone, Bennett, Brownlie, Frame, and Rennie. It was arranged that Mr. Livingstone should give a paper on Norwich Plainheads at our next meeting on Feb. 21st. A vote of thanks to the retiring Secretary for his past services, and to the Chairman, brought a most successful meeting to a close.—V. JOHNSON, "Ivanhoe," Stonelaw Road, Rutherglen.

LAISTERDYKE B.F.A.

Annual meeting held recently, and the officers for 1910 are as follows: President, Mr. J. L. Turner; chairman and treasurer, Mr. E. Padgett; vice-chairman, Mr. W. Wharton; secretary, Mr. J. E. Hudson, 75, New Hey Road, Bowling, Bradford; trustees, Messrs. A. Bottomley and H. Shoesmith. Meet at Railway Hotel, Laisterdyke, first Wednesday in each month.—J. E. HUDSON, Sec.

YORKSHIRE .C.C. OF IRELAND.

Committee meeting held on January 31st. The following members were present: Mr. C. A. O'Reilly (Chairman), Messrs. Kenny, Dulgenan, Dowling, Neale, and Hyland, Hon. Sec. The Secretary read the correspondence ,and Mr. Duigenan promised to give his prompt attention to several complaints that were read. It was proposed, seconded, and carried that Mr. J. P. Rooney and a fully qualified chartered accountant (who is not a member of the club) be appointed to audit the balance-sheet for the forthcoming general meeting. A number of new members were duly elected. The next meeting will be held on February 10th. Mr. Duigenan promised to have a balance-sheet ready for the committee by then, and it is hoped there will be a full attendance. According to report, the club is heavily in debt. This is not a fact, and I will do my best to let every member of the club know how the club stands when the balance-sheet is ready.—J. R. HYLAND, Hon. Sec.

STONEHOUSE C.B. AND H.S.

Meeting held January 15th in the Royal Oak Tavern. Mr. J. Cuthbertson presided. It was decided to hold our annual show on November 5th. It was also decided to guarantee our show in CAGE BIRDS. Decided "That William Melvin be responsible for this advertising." Also a table show was held. Judge, Mr. T. Sorbie. CK. CAN.: 1, Cuthbertson; 2, 4, Murdoch; 3, Mather; vhc, Gray; hc, Wallace. HEN: 1, 2, 4, Cuthbertson; 3, Melvin; vhc, Gray; hc, c, Smith. MULE: 1, Whitelaw; 2, Burns; 3, Gray. BRIT.: 1, 4, Melvin; 2, Sorbic; 3, Gray; vhc, hc, Whitelaw; c, Smith. Next meeting February 12th, when there will be three classes of matched pairs—Canary, Muling Pair, and Hybrid Breeding Pair. A special will be given by Mr. J. Cuthbertson for most points in three classes, also one by Mr. D. Sorbie for best hybrid breeding pair; also a special by Mr. K. Wallace for best Goldfinch cock. Judging at 7 p.m.—WILLIAM MELVIN, Assist.-Sec.

LONDON AND COUNTIES O.A.

Annual general meeting held January 17th at headquarters, Session House Hotel, Clerkenwell-road, Mr. F. W. Thorpe (president) in the chair. Mr. Pretty proposed, and Mr. F. W. Thorpe seconded, that the secretary send a letter of regret to Mr. E. S. Lugg for having to resign. Proposed by Mr. H. J. Pearce, and seconded by Mr. O. Heine, that a letter be sent to Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Morrison expressing regret at losing (for the benefit of Queensland, Australia) two of their most respected members and good fanciers. The society thank them for the goodwill of both displayed in helping to make the society successful. The auditors presented the balance-sheet for 1909, showing a balance in hand and assets valued at £4 14s. Mr. F. W. Thorpe proposed a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. W. Gilbert as secretary. A hearty vote of thanks was passed to the auditors, Messrs. R. J. Pretty and H. J. Pearce. Proposed that Rule 37 be suspended, and a provisional meeting of six committeemen be held. Five new members were made: Messrs. E. Pretty, W. Shakespeare, D. W. Tatten, G. Thurling, and T. W. Chappell. Officers for 1910 as follows:—President, F. W. Thorpe; hon. secretary, W. Gilbert; committee, Messrs. F. Green, O. Heine, E. Pretty, W. Shakespeare, D. W. Tatten, and G. Thurling. A hearty vote of thanks to the chairman brought a pleasant evening to a close.—W. GILBERT, Sec.

GREENWICH & DEPTFORD C.B.S.

At the meeting held on Jan. 13th, Mr. Meades in the chair, a recommendation of the committee, "that this society remove its headquarters from the 'Two Brewers' to the Cecil Hall, Woolwich Road, East Greenwich," came up for discussion. It was pointed out that members generally preferred non-licensed premises for their meetings, and that the membership was likely to increase by the change. It was unanimously agreed that the headquarters on and after February 11th be the Cecil Hall as above. The Cecil Hall is an institute in connection with Christ Church, East Greenwich, and is directly on the tram route, a "stop" being outside the premises. The new meeting room is comfortably warmed, and is of convenient size for the table shows. Other business transacted was the adoption of pair stock, and British Bird Show Schedules, which will be held on Feb. 11th and March 11th respectively. The Committee trust all members will do their utmost to make the first show in the new headquarters a record one. Arrangements are being made for an attractive programme for the year, and an improvement is being made by abandoning the August meeting, which is very poorly supported, being as it is in the middle of the holiday season. The society is again giving two silver spoons for second most points, and one for third most points scored throughout year. Four gentlemen were elected members.—HAMER AND PUTNER, Hon. Secs.

ROCHDALE (Good Intent) O.S.

First Annual Dinner.

The first Annual Dinner drew a very fair number of members at the residence of one of our fellow-members, Mr. J. Hamson, when full justice was done to a six-course dinner, after which we held a concert. Our President, Mr. Collinge, took the chair. Mr. Cromby, of Littleborough, accompanied. Songs were sung by Messrs. Perry, Meadowcroft, Schofield, Lees, and Pleasance. A few selections were also given on the gramophone, after which a hearty vote of thanks to the host and hostess and artistes brought a pleasant evening to a close. On Jan. 18 a large assembly was present when Mr. T. Holt gave an excellent washing exhibition and lecture, which was followed by a competition for two prizes, and proved a great source of interest, owing to the different methods of the competitors. The winners turned up in Messrs. Sidaway and Leach, Mr. B. Lord undertaking the judging. The following evening we held our third table show of hens, and again some well-known winners were staged, Messrs G. Adams and W. T. Banks judging. Prize winners:—LANCS.: 1, 2, Adams. LIZ.: 1, 2, 3, Haytock; 4 and v.h.c, Nuttall. NOR.: 1 and vhc, Harrison and Rayner; 2, Schofield; 3, 4, Dewhurst; h.c. and c., Lees. YORKS.: 1, Schofield; 2, 3, Faulkner. A discussion took place on birds staged and proved interesting, as a great deal of information was forthcoming, and I may also state that we have put a very important question for the Cage Bird Union meeting at the Palace, asking for all the societies to be balloted with regard to having the same privilege as the Yorkshire Union Members as members of affiliated C.B.U. societies have not equal chances, the Union members being able to show at any exhibition whether affiliated with the C.B.U. or not.—WM. ADAMS, Sec.

NEW STEVENSTON AND DIS. O.S.

Second general meeting held in the Masonic Hall (Mr. Wm. Wood in the chair) on January 11. After all prize money and specials had been paid out, and all working expenses taken off, we found that we have the sum of £6 1s. to carry forward to next year, and that even after buying three silver cups (one for young Norwich, one for young Border, and one for young Scotch Fancies). The cups have been won this year by Messrs. D. Clark (Norwich), R. Murdock (Scotch Fancy), and W. Wood (Border Fancy). Our radius is 5 miles, and we shall be pleased to enroll new members from next meeting, February 8, in the Masonic Hall, until the second Tuesday in May, entry money 1/6, and 6d. per month January to December. Members may show as many birds at our annual show as they think fit free of charge, only they must be clear on the society's books. All intending members and fanciers will be welcome.—JAS. LAMB, Sec.

HIGHGATE, HAMPSTEAD C.B.S.

Annual meeting held at Spencer Hall on 27th January for the election of officers The result: Chairman, Mr. G Gardner; Vice-Chairman, Mr. Dickson; Treasurer, Mr. Fisher; Secretary, Mr. Law; Assist. Sec., Mr. Hyde; Auditors, Messrs. Horner and Shearer; Committee, Messrs. Shakespeare, Johnson, Cooper, Pile, Street, Bush, Knight, Hall, Penney, Dann, H. T. Jones, and Abrams. The balance-sheet was then read, showing a substantial balance on the right side, due to the excellent way in which the shows during the year had been patronised, all four shows showing a fair profit. It was decided to hold the pair show on February 26th, Judge, Mr. G. Gardner; British Bird Show, May 26th, Judge, Mr. W. Shakespeare; Young Stock Show, July 9th, Judge, Mr. Dobson; and the annual show on Nov. 11th and 12th; Judge, Mr. J. Robson. It was also decided to help the fund for the defence of Messrs. Flowers and Preston by an appeal to all our members for donations. Will all members willing to subscribe, please send to the Secretary their donation at once? Also, will all members willing to advertise in Rule Book send adverts on at once, the latest date for receiving same, February 8th.—C. W. LAW, Secretary.

NATIONAL BRITISH BIRD & M.C.

Committee meeting held at headquarters, Feathers' Hotel, Great Chapel Street, Westminster, Jan. 27th; present, Messrs. J. Robson (chairman), C. T. Maxwell, C. Cooper, T. R. Trower, J. Dewhurst, W. H. Vale, W. A. Lott, J. Dobson, H. J. Fulljames, J. Frostick, A. Silver, H. Goodchild, G. E. Weston, H. J. Hawes, M. Preston, S. Palmer, Plumbridge and Carr. A letter was read from Mr. Marley, which the secretaries were instructed to answer. Mr. Cooper related the interview he had with Mr. Ramsden re the club's patronage and the reserve judge at Crystal Palace Show. It was unanimously carried on the proposition of Mr. Fulljames, and seconded by Mr. Trower, "That whereas it is recognised by the committee of the N.B.B. and M.C. that the decision of Mr. Biron in the case of the R.S.P.C.A. versus Flower and Preston would, if allowed to stand, imperil the object of the club, which has the promoting of the proper keeping and exhibiting of British birds and their hybrids, to the extent, at least, of entirely prohibiting the exhibition of British birds, the sum of two guineas be voted out of the funds of the club for the purpose of assisting an appeal to have such decision set aside and prevented from being recorded as a precedent." A hearty vote of thanks was accorded Mr. Nichols and Mr. Plumbridge for the trouble they had taken in the said case. Mr. Tout (Portsea) was elected a member. A hearty vote of thanks to the chairman concluded the meeting.—PLUMBRIDGE and CARR, secs.

"Cage Birds" Record Birthday Number: SOME OPINIONS FROM READERS.

Good luck to CAGE BIRDS. The Birthday Number was a champion.—P. MARSDEN (Gateahead).

Your lovely plates with the last double number were splendid.—CHARLES F. KEELER (London, E.).

Allow me to congratulate you on the splendid Birthday Number of CAGE BIRDS.—H. BUTLER (Bournemouth).

I must say your Birthday Number and the plates are more than a success. CAGE BIRDS is always my first thought on a Friday morning.—A. J. SHIPTON (London, S.W.).

I have been a reader of CAGE BIRDS ever since its birth, and find it to be a great benefit. Your Birthday Number was a real treat.—SAM HAIGH (Halifax).

I was delighted with CAGE BIRDS Birthday Number. It was a marvellous threepennyworth—worth sixpence, in fact.—S. A. SCOTT (Newcastle-on-Tyne).

I cannot find words to eulogise your Birthday Number sufficiently. May CAGE BIRDS be long spared to cater for our wants.—J. G. HUTCHINSON (Newcastle-on-Tyne).

May I congratulate you on your last Birthday Number? I think it surpasses all previous numbers of its kind.—H. A. ROGERS (Nottingham).

The Birthday Number is certainly a record. Up to the time of writing I have not finished reading it. I wish CAGE BIRDS and its staff every success.—H. BARNARD (Bude).

Only one word needed for Birthday Number of CAGE BIRDS—magnificent. May new readers come in their thousands and, at the birds' election, give their vote for CAGE BIRDS.—H. REES (London, S.W.).

Thank you for the splendid Birthday Number of CAGE BIRDS. I think the plates and the Calendar are excellent, and the best you have produced. Success to CAGE BIRDS is my wish.—A. M. PENFOLN (Mortlake).

I think CAGE BIRDS should be known more here in Lowestoft, and I will do my best for you. I must also thank you for the grand Birthday Number. I think it is perfect. CAGE BIRDS is getting better than ever.—G. KNIGHT (Lowestoft).

I had one of the first copies issued of CAGE BIRDS. To think of that and look at the Birthday Number which is before me, and note the strides you have made, well, I cannot find words to express my congratulation. Good iron, go ahead.—T. H. SPURRY (Cardigan).

I must congratulate you on the Birthday Number. It is a real masterpiece from Mr. Norman's brush. I have taken CAGE BIRDS almost from the commencement. I have never seen the like of this number before. I wish CAGE BIRDS even more success.—J. GARNER.

I must congratulate you on your splendid Birthday Number with coloured plates. I have been taking your paper ever since you first started, and would not go without it. I have been a breeder and keeper of cage birds this last 58 years. I wish you many more birthdays.—WM. SIMPSON (Londonderry).

Your Birthday Number was the best you have ever put in circulation. Our boys hung on to the election cartoon on the front page, and we were some time before we could get hold of "C.B." ourselves to dip into the interior. You have excelled your greatest efforts.—W. DOWNING (Manchester).

I find it impossible to express my sentiments in words concerning your Birthday Number. May its records never be less, and we only want some more like it. The 'Xmas and Birthday Numbers are being sent to my brother in South Africa.—WALTER LE NEAVE (St. Pancras, London, N.W.).

May I be allowed to congratulate CAGE BIRDS and its enterprising staff upon the excellence of the Birthday Number. For variety of interests, fairness in giving the humblest reader a hearing, as it were, and practical worth to learners in any of the multifarious matters which concern birds, I believe it stands unequalled.—R. RHYDDERCH (Rhyl).

Allow me to congratulate you on the great success of your excellent Birthday Number. You cannot say, with the little birds on the front cover, "It's work we want," as you and your able staff have had work enough, and it is surprising how well it is all done. CAGE BIRDS is a good "Budget," providing for the needs of the country. No wonder you head the poll by a large majority. The coloured plates are grand. The plate of the Sandpiper, too, is a treat to all bird lovers, and is worthy of a place amongst the best pictures in all fanciers' homes. I wish CAGE BIRDS many happy returns.—THOS. ROBSON (Newcastle-on-Tyne).

There is no doubt you will receive many an appreciative letter in commendation of your Birthday Number. I do not think it could be surpassed, the plates and reading matter being alike excellent. My wife and I had eagerly looked forward to its production, but no imagination could have foretold how beautiful it would prove. It would indeed be invidious to name this or that as particular where all is so good. I bind the volumes of CAGE BIRDS each half-year into a cloth cover, and in this way it is a never-failing well of knowledge from which to draw in times of doubt. I intend to keep the calendar to make a frontispiece for the new volume just begun. I wish "C. B." many happy and prosperous returns of the day.—A. N. EVANS (Asdley Guise. Beds.).

Your Birthday Number was simply A1.—E. E. SOW.

CAGE BIRDS Birthday Number was a treat, and the coloured platea alone were worth the money.—S. BROWNE (Partick).

Your Birthday Number is a perfect treat. The plates, too, are simply grand, and could not possibly be better.—K. MACLEAN (Forres).

Your Birthday Issue, I am sure, is a treat; the pictures alone are worth twice the money.—JOHN H. JOWETT (Bradford).

CAGE BIRDS Birthday Number was simply grand, and the plates and calendar beautiful.—W. NISBET, secretary, Musselbrough O.S.

Your Birthday Number is a very fine one. The plates, too, are very good.—H. CROSSLAND (Hale).

CAGE BIRDS Birthday Number is simply beautiful, and worth double the price charged for it.—H. CLARK (London, N.).

The Birthday Number of CAGE BIRDS was a topper. Every success to the journal and its staff.—E. NOLAN (Llandudno).

Your Birthday Number beats all issues yet published. I wonder what next you are going to give us.—R. V. RAINE (Cathcart).

CAGE BIRDS Birthday Number is a treat, and Mr. Goodchild's Foreign bird plate and the calendar could not, I am sure, be improved upon.—JAS. CLARKE (Rothesay).

I must congratulate you on your Birthday Number of CAGE BIRDS, especially on the black and white plate, and wish CAGE BIRDS every success.—W. MINTY (Frome).

CAGE BIRDS Birthday Number is A1—a real knock-out. I wonder how it is got up so cheaply. I wish the journal every good wish.—G. JONNSTON (Carlisle).

I was greatly delighted with the Birthday Number of CAGE BIRNS, and the cartoon on the front page is great.—R. HAMILTON, secretary, Falkirk and Dis. C.B.S.

I must congratulate you upon the splendid Birthday Number this year. It fairly eclipses all previous ones.—R. MITCHELL (Bournemouth).

CAGE BIRNS Birthday Number is a marvel. I have taken it in from the first issue, and it is wonderful what strides it has taken. I wish it continued success.—W. THOMPSON (Chatham).

I wish to congratulate you upon the Birthday Number of CAGE BIRDS, which was splendid. I wish the journal every future success.—E. R. ROBERTS (Penygroes).

Your Birthday Number is a regular eye-opener. The coloured plate of Yorkshires is a study. How happy any fancier would be if he could breed a team like them.—G. H. BARNWELL, hon. secretary of the Harrogate C.B.S.

Your Birthday Number is simply marvellous. The coloured plates make one just stare. I hope you will be able to record a big number of birthdays.—J. FORD, hon. sec., Kelty and Blairadam C.B.A.

I cannot sufficiently express my delight with CAGE BIRDS immense Double Numbers. They are a boon to all fanciers. I always follow CAGE BIRDS, the only true fanciers' guide.—C. GORNON (Taunton).

The Birthday Number of CAGE BIRDS is marvellous; it is just simply lovely. I send you my thanks for such a treat. The plates are fit for a frame—to adorn the walls of a mansion or cottage.—G. TURNEY (East Ham).

CAGE BIRDS Birthday Number is a marvel, and any fancier who has missed seeing it has missed a good thing. My wish, on behalf of my society, is that CAGE BIRDS may long flourish.—J. FORRESTER, hon. sec. of the Greenock, Port Glasgow, and Gourock O.S.

I feel I cannot let this opportunity pass without offering you my congratulations upon your record Birthday Number. I should be delighted to pay 3d. for same every week. The plate of Yorkshires is really marvellous. I wish you every success.—S. DENISON (Huntly).

Your Birthday Number was grand, and beats all previous numbers. It is the best I have ever seen. The plates are simply wonderful. It is a pity breeders do not all try to follow your plates more.—J. W. ROGERS (Fishguard).

I must say your Birthday Number is a clinker. The plates are excellent, and the calendar has been well worth waiting for. It is worth its place on any wall. I wish CAGE BIRDS still greater success.—JNO. KILPATRICK (Uddingston).

I am glad I have a copy of CAGE BIRDS Birthday Number. I have the 1909 Birthday Number, too, which also was very beautiful, but I think this year's beats all that have ever come under my notice.—C. A. BOURDON (Jersey).

I have the Birthday Number of CAGE BIRDS, and the front page ("The Birds' Election") is worth the money, never mind the beautiful plates, and other information re birds. I am showing it to friends.—PETER SMITH (Tyldesbury).

I have taken CAGE BIRDS since its first number, and I consider I am doing myself a good turn by continuing to do so. Although a bit late, I wish "C.B." a prosperous new year. I congratulate you upon the wonderful Birthday Number.—G. FRANCIS (Lowestoft).

I must say the Birthday Number of CAGE BIRDS is worth anyone's while to read. I have given it to my mate, who is starting to be a bird lover, and there is no doubt he will, like myself, be a constant reader. I wish good old CAGE BIRDS even greater success.—J. H. SILVER (Highgate, N.).

Your record Birthday Number is magnificent.—J. J. ROLSON (Great Corby).

I congratulate you on CAGE BIRNS Birthday Number.—L. E. BLACKLEY (Falmouth).

The Birthday Number of CAGE BIRNS was really a treat.—D. TURNBULL (Winchburgh).

Just a word to congratulate you on your Birthday Number. It is simply grand.—S. MOODY (Bristol).

I think the Birthday Number of CAGE BIRNS is excellent. The plates alone I think are worth the money charged. I wish CAGE BIRDS every success.—C. EVANS (Hucknall Torkard).

I was very pleased with the Birthday Number. It really gets better each year. I wish CAGE BIRDS every success.—G. COSTA (London, S.E.).

Your Birthday Number was magnificent; and I am quite proud of the coloured plates. I have introduced this grand number to my friends.—S. BECKETT (Oldham).

Let me offer you my thanks for both your Christmas and Birthday issues. They were simply superb in their photos and coloured plates, while the letterpress in the supplement was delightful to read.—D. MCARTHUR (Edinburgh).

Allow me to congratulate you on your grand Birthday Number. Why, the cover was worth the money. I will go in for "protection" on behalf of our feathered pets till we can grow our own bold Spanish and our nutty brown German rape. I wish CAGE BIRNS every success.—F. HUGHES (Henley).

Your Birthday Number was a grand success and the product of splendid workmanship on the part of your staff. I have had a copy of CAGE BIRNS weekly for six years now, and I have handed copies to birdy friends of mine, and they never miss purchasing a copy of it either.—CHAS. QUINN (Donnybrook).

Allow me to congratulate you on your Birthday Number. It was magnificent in every respect, and I particularly appreciated the beautiful coloured plate of lovely foreign birds, which I am having framed. I wish CAGE BIRDS the continued increasing success it so fully deserves.—G. E. HAGGIE (Oxford).

Heartiest congratulations upon your superb Birthday Number. It is indeed great value for money, and I wish you "many happy returns." The birds' election picture is really clever, and caused many a hearty laugh in my household. My advice to birdy men is to vote solidly for CAGE BIRDS.—J. B. WATERMAN (Dulwich, S.E.)

I was agreeably surprised on receiving the Birthday Number of CAGE BIRDS, and was especially pleased with the coloured plate of Yorkshires. I consider it honestly worth double the price charged. May I wish you many happy returns of the day?—JAS. DICKENSON (Derby).

Many thanks for the splendid Birthday Number of CAGE BIRDS, containing the plates and calendar, which latter I have posted up in my living room. A Sandpiper (as depicted on page 17) was seen 28 years ago by my wife at Laxey, I.O.M., who noticed that it was always alone, apparently without a friend.—E. N. SMITH (Redditch).

Allow me to congratulate you on your splendid Birthday Number, which is a long way in front of any of your previous Special Numbers. Your photo, too, of the Scottish National committee and judges is a credit to CAGE BIRDS. I wish CAGE BIRDS every success.—WALTER B. SMART, hon. sec. of the Loanhead and Dis. C.B.S.

I wish your up-to-date journal every success. Your Birthday Special Number is a treat. Being a good old Liberal, your front page fairly took my eye, and I guess it has also made some of the Tariff Reform men do a good broad smile. Whoever the artist was he must have had his brains in the right spot.—D. H. TEDSTONE (Brecon).

I think CAGE BIRDS Birthday Number is simply grand, and I was pleased to see the article on "Jack" the talking Starling; it interested me very much. And after reading Mr. Chirgwin's account of his bird, too, it has put me more in the mind to make the Starling one of my pets. I wish CAGE BIRDS every success in the years to come.—JOHN YOUNG (Glasgow).

Just a line to congratulate you and your artists upon the grand Birthday Number of CAGE BIRDS. It is a paper every fancier ought to take in and read with interest, for help it gives of every description and some very good advice. I only wish there was a C. B. Society in this district. I wish CAGE BIRDS every success and brother fanciers also.—W. FORDHAM (Bishop's Stortford).

I appreciate highly your Birthday Number; it is wonderful. Fanciers (whether they think it or not) are under a deep debt of gratitude to you and your staff, and the support you have in the advertising department must be most encouraging. You have beaten all records, and I hope by the next birthday you will be able to announce a further record.—THOMAS SMITH (Glasgow).

CAGE BIRDS Birthday Number is simply marvellous. Allow me to thank you, too, for reproducing the picture of myself in its supplement pages. CAGE BIRDS should be read by everyone who has the hobby of bird-keeping and breeding at heart, for anything one wants to know by writing to CAGE BIRDS they will get an answer about. It was through reading "C.B." that I got to know about that famous bird the Belgian.—JOHN FAIRLY (Coatbridge

I am greatly pleased with the Birthday Number. I think it is a marvellous threepennyworth, and honestly worth twice the money.—E. TREADWAY (Isleworth).

I cannot let slip this opportunity of thanking you for the splendid Birthday Number which you have given us. The coloured plates and calendar are really works of art, and suitable for hanging in any home, while the reading matter is quite a treat.—GEO. RAESIDE (Irvine).

Allow me to congratulate you on your Birthday Number of CAGE BIRDS. It was a great surprise to me to see my Clear Cap Silver Lizard, winner at the Scottish National, on the plate. I have taken CAGE BIRDS from the first number, and I have all the special number plates. I think this a masterpiece, a "knock-out." It excels all others in my opinion. I wish CAGE BIRDS every success.—J. DEWSNAP (Glossop).

Your Birthday issue was splendid. It was a coincidence that CAGE BIRNS Birthday Number arrived on my own birthday, and I was delighted to see you had given my cage with glass litter-preventer a place in it. It may interest you to know that I have had a letter from a fancier at Spalding asking me to make him one like it, as he (with many another fancier) has a wife who likes birds, but does not like the litter they make.—F. THOMAS (Margate).

The Birthday Number of CAGE BIRNS undoubtedly breaks all records in "birdy" literature. A beautiful art supplement, two coloured plates and a novel coloured calender, together with a tremendous collection of bright, chatty, up-to-date literature about our feathered favourites, make up a splendid issue. Cage bird fanciers should at once procure a copy of this marvellous production.—"Rex," in "The Dewsbury Reporter."

I have to congratulate you on your splendid Birthday Number. It is a marvel of cheapness, and is brimful of information. Imagine my surprise in opening the pages of your supplement to see the photograph of my old lady and myself. Words fail me to express my thanks for your kindness in placing my photograph in such a magnificent number. You say all records by this number are broken. I say the same.—ALEX. GREENHORN (Mid-Calder).

This is the first time I have ventured to write personally to you, but I cannot refrain from thanking you for the surprise I received when I opened my Birthday Number of "C.B." Never before did I see such a birdy treat—the exquisite coloured plates, the beautiful calendar, the art supplement, and last, but not least, the excellent comic cover (which I had a good laugh over). The Double Numbers this year have been regular feasts.—MISS C. D. FITZMAURICE (Kilrush).

The Birthday Number of CAGE BIRDS is splendid. It improves every year. We (the old fanciers round this district) used to think we had two good fanciers' papers in the eighties and nineties, but they are not to be named beside good old CAGE BIRDS. The plate of Yorkshires is a masterpiece. I always look out for my CAGE BIRDS every Friday morning, and I have been a reader of it since its first number. In the year 1875, when I started bird keeping we had to get our support from older bird fanciers, but the novice of to-day has CAGE BIRDS to look for every week with good advantage. I wish you many happy returns and much success.—J. T. BURNETT (Nelson, Lancs.).

Allow me to offer you my hearty congratulations on the excellence of the Birthday Number of CAGE BIRDS. The handsome coloured plates and the other charming illustrations are marvels of artistic beauty. I attach these plates in an album, which I procured specially for the purpose. It is needless for me to say that the pictures are most interesting and greatly admired. I have been getting CAGE BIRDS regularly every week now for a number of years, and I can assure you it is with the keenest pleasure I look forward to its arrival; in fact, its arrival is the event of the week. I wish CAGE BIRDS prolonged and increased prosperity.—FRANCIS SHAND (Fochabers, Morayshire).

I must congratulate CAGE BIRDS and its staff upon the Birthday Number. It is a credit to all concerned. It is the best number that has been published yet, and there have been some good ones from time to time. The plates are fit to be framed to hang up in any fancier's birdroom. I give nearly all my plates to young fanciers, some of whom have gone to the trouble of getting them framed. I always keep one or two copies of CAGE BIRDS in my boxes (I am a signalman on the railway), and as lots of people from all parts of the country come in, I show them the plates and then they beg them of me. I have got several subscribers to the paper by doing so, and this number has nearly turned them cage-bird mad; in fact, some of them have bought the number for the sage of the plates.

We tender our sincere thanks to the many kindly readers who have sent us congratulations, and regret that it has proved impossible to acknowledge them all in this issue.—EDITOR.

Notes from Erin.

FANCIERS will be delighted to learn that the new Dublin society, the Y.C.S. of I., has a balance of £12 to its credit after paying all liabilities. This shows that each officer entrusted to look after the club's welfare performed his duty, and great credit is due to Mr. Carroll, the hon. secretary, and his band of workers. Congratulations to every member of the committee on their achievement. This club went to great expense, purchasing silver trophies for competition amongst members.

IT has been proposed to give a big "spread-out" to the members of the Y.C.S. of I., and to invite delegates from all provincial societies. A committee has been appointed to go into the matter and make a report as regards expenditure, etc. This is just what is required in the Irish Fancy, so as to bring us together, and become personally known to one another, and have a chat over our hobby. There is no reason why other clubs should not follow the example of the Y.C.S. or I., and give a social evening. I am sure we would all heartily join in with this movement, as the cost per member would be trifling. We could have a very enjoyable evening together, no doubt profitable to champion and novice alike, for we could exchange opinions, and go away feeling that we had educated ourselves and obtained valuable assistance in connection with our hobby.

RUMOUR has it that at a recent committee meeting held in Dublin the chairman was obliged to vacate the chair owing to the threatening attitude of one of the officers. It would be interesting to know if this gentleman is training for the light-weight belt, or is he only preparing himself for a "knock-out"? In any case, I understand that the latter has "come off"; he is suspended from the committee.

THE exhibition season ended for the Y.C.S. of I., Y.C.C. of I., and N.P.C. challenge and novice cups on Friday last at Larne show. The officers and committee deserve great praise for the able manner in which they carried this, their first venture, through. We trust they will be recompensed for their labours by having a good balance to their credit.

LAST show of this season will be held in Cork early next month. We trust this fixture will be well patronised, and that having had to postpone it will not affect them. We should all do our utmost to try and assist in making our hobby more popular in the south. I trust that our Cork friends will next season join us hand-in-hand as of yore, and with unity amongst us our hobby and clubs are bound to prosper.

"CLOSED RING."

Under the White Rose.

BRADFORD CITY O.S. hold their annual dinner and social on February 8th, at the Market Tavern, Godwin Street, Bradford, and they will be pleased to see any friends on that evening. This affair is always a very pleasing one, and all visitors can rest assured of a convivial and joyous time.

ARRANGEMENTS are now well in hand for the great amalgamated prize distribution and social of the combined societies interested in the Fancy. As usual this will take place at the headquarters, Market Tavern, Bradford, those taking part being the Yorkshire Union Y.C.C., C.M.Y.C.C., Y.C.B.B. and M.C., O.N.P.C., and the N.C.M.Y.C.S. Also the Bradford East rose bowl will be presented on this occasion. The date is not yet quite settled, but will be either on March 5th or 12th, and fanciers will do well to keep both dates open until such time as the exact date is arranged. The display of talent this year is to be quite "classical," several notabilities having been arranged with by friends in the Fancy. Also the dinner as inaugurated so successfully last year, will again be included, and last, but not least, "ladies are again specially invited." So don't forget, we want more of you there than we had last year. But we don't want quite as much snow as came down last year on March 6th; those from outside districts were hard put to it to get home.

VERY many fanciers who keep their birds in the top storey (and they are numerous in Bradford, Halifax, and other districts), have had a very hard time of it through the last two weeks of frost and snow. Many times have the water glasses been frozen and required warming in order to enable fanciers to get the block of ice out. The windows, too, have been covered with snow to the depth of several inches, keeping out every ray of light, and necessitating the use of artificial means of lighting for the birds to see to feed. A large number of glasses are broken by thawing, and I know of one fancier who put candles under the skylight to remove the snow so as to admit daylight, and "flop went the glass"—a big crack right across. My word! What a time we are having; it makes one long for the summer time.

I AM sorry to hear that the energetic and obliging secretary of the Shipley Society has sustained a very severe loss. He was afraid the birds could not stand the hard and cold weather, so he arranged a heating apparatus with an oil stove, and by some means the fumes escaped and suffocated very nearly all his birds; the few that are left are not likely to recover. This is very hard, as Mr. Martin had spared no expense or trouble, and had got a splendid stock together, having scored top points at their members' shows and won their cup. But he is a true Yorkshire fancier, and it is hoped he will continue in the Fancy, and not be long before he is out amongst the winners again—hard lines

ANOTHER fancier has, I regret to report, passed away in the person of Mr. John Bennett, who for many years was a member and hard worker for the Great Horton Society. He was a keen fancier of the Yorkshire, though for a year or two he has not had any birds in his possession. The Fancy's sympathy is with his family in their sudden bereavement.

"STRAIGHT 'UN."

Wild Bird Life.

Birds in Wind and Snow.

Very rough, stormy weather has prevailed this last few days, with snow, heavy wind, and rain, so that life in the open has been anything but pleasant. Wild birds have deserted the more exposed situations, and are to be found upon the sheltered sides of the woods and hedgerows. Flocks of Sparrows, Greenbirds and Buntings seek the vicinity of the ricks, and even there one notices how they instinctively make for the side less exposed to the wind. Birds of all kinds dislike to have their feathers ruffled by the gale, and the big Rooks feeding on the slope are no exceptions to the rule; all have their heads to the wind. So have the Plovers away in the low-lying water meadows, where they may be seen daily in ever-increasing numbers. Lately they have been joined by a few snow-white Gulls, possibly driven inland by the gale round the coast. A perky Robin alights on the fence, the feathers round his flanks ruffled by the wind. In a twinkling he turns facing the opposite direction. Birds move quicker, and are most restless, than any other form of animal life. Their existence frequently depends upon watchfulness, as there is danger in the air, upon the ground, and on every side of them. While the hard weather lasted wild birds did not seek the vicinity of houses to the extent one might have expected. One is inclined to think that by some unknown sense they may be aware that the weather conditions would only be of short duration. Last season the Redwings flocked in hundreds from the higher ground, down to the meadows around the village, previous to a long spell of frost and snow, which appeared to me to be a sign that they had some foreknowledge of hard times to follow. While living in the country I have seen hundreds of birds suddenly appear upon farm and woodland, previous to very bad weather; this may be accounted for by their deserting a district farther north where the elements were against them. This is a form of migration constantly taking place during the winter months. Looking from the window before daylight recently a dark object was just discernible upon the lawn; this proved to be a Blackbird, which was evidently feeding by touch, as it was still too dark to see the worm. It was certainly a case of the early bird and the worm once again.

The Speedy Starling.

During migration Starlings are supposed to fly considerably faster than Skylarks, although the latter birds possess the longer wings, and are not easily overtaken by a Hawk hunting singly.

The Magpie of the Shore.

One of the most singular birds of the seashore is the Oystercatcher. It is best described as "the Magpie of the beach," its black and white plumage, brilliant orange bill, and pink legs making it a very conspicuous object along the coast. It loves the sand and shingle and rock-bound coast, with quiet bays and creeks.

A Note on the Chaffinch.

A Swedish naturalist states that the female Chaffinches migrate from Sweden, but that the males do not. On the Continent Chaffinches appear to be more highly prized as cage and song birds than they are in this country. It was in France that the saying originated: "As gay as a Chaffinch."

No. 382.
A Useful Spring Perch.

Sent by Mr. J. Limb, Buxton Terrace, Holloway, near Matlock Bath, Derbyshire.

Enclosed is a sketch of a useful spring perch, which is of very great convenience. To the bird it is something like nature, as it springs just the same as the branch of a tree does when a bird alights on it. It also prevents red mite coming from the back of the cage along the perch. To the bird-keeper it is also beneficial, because it can be taken from the outside of the cage to be cleaned; thus it does not disturb the bird. It is simple, and easily made out of a piece of wood cut to the shape as shown in the sketch. It can be left as far from the back of the cage, and as far out at the front, as the maker chooses. You cut the grooves (A and B) out opposite each other. These are to fit down between two of the wires, so make them to fit as tightly as possible, and then the perch will be firmer, and give a better result. I hope the sketch will make all quite clear.—J. LIMB.

No. 383.
How to Bend Cage Fronts.

Sent by Mr. F. Western, 57, Fenton Street, Princeville, Bradford.

It is in the bending of show cages where so many fanciers fail. Having tried several ways myself, I find the following the best, simplest, and easiest method of making them. First, cut your wire and punched bars the desired lengths, and place in your frame the same as if making a loose front. If your frame does not hold a seven-bar wire front, as in sketch, solder the bottom half, say four bars, and then take it out and solder the other three. Having the front made, next comes the bending. Get an old machine roller about 6½ inches wide, and 15 or 16ins. long. Nail this to a frame the same as in Fig. 2. Then cut a groove across the centre of the roller for the middle punch bar to fit in. Get six pieces of punched bar, and file into the holes (Fig. 3) for the ends. When bending place the centre punched bar into the groove, place one hand on each side of the front, and press both hands down together until it is the proper shape. Then put your ends on and solder. Thread your wires down at the ends and solder. Make the body; bore three holes each side for the top to fit in, as in Fig. 1. The same method applies to making bath tops in bending. I nail a piece of wood on a table as a gauge to hold the front to; then bend each end separately over the end of the table, making a square top; and then solder a bottom to it. This cage, when finished, looks very neat, every wire being bent alike, which is the main art of show-cage making.—F. WESTERN.

To Bend Show Cage Fronts.

REVIEW OF SCHEDULES.

Thirsk, Feb. 18, Public Rooms.—Judge, Mr. H. J. Chittenden. 9 open classes: Yorks. 5, Nor. 1, Mule 1, Brit. 2. Prizes, 8s., 4s., 2s. Fee 1s. Ent. close Feb. 11 to J. BELL, Ingramgate, Thirsk, Yorks.

Cowal, Feb. 12, Town Hall, Dunoon.—Judge, Mr. Stark. 2 classes (confined to members). Ent. close Feb. 7 to J. MACKINNON, Woodburn, M'Arthur St., Dunoon.

Nests of birds, Poultry, etc., should be regularly sprinkled with KEATING'S POWDER, especially when hens are sitting. Don't forget to do this just previous to the eggs hatching, to destroy the Red Mite. It kills all insects, harmless to everything else.

Books for Bird Lovers.

Brief particulars of some of "Cage Birds" SPECIAL PUBLICATIONS for keepers of birds, with post free prices.

SEPTIC FEVER OR CANARY PLAGUE, 7d.—By R. H. Clarke, M.D. The only booklet published concerning this dread disease, which Dr. Clarke has given very special study.

THE NORWICH PLAINHEAD CANARY, 1½d.—By J. H. Payne. Pronounced by all experts to be a most valuable pamphlet concerning the breeding of the variety; written by one of our leading judges.

CANARY BREEDING FOR BEGINNERS, 7d.—By Claude St. John. A Practical, up-to-date guide to Canary breeding, designed specially for the use of the beginner. Deals very fully with the choice, sexing, and mating of the birds, feeding for condition, the cages and their fittings, the bird-room, egg-food, nest-building, rearing and moulting the young, colour-feeding, training for show, and all the difficulties likely to confront the breeder.

MEATING-OFF AND FEEDING SOFTBILLS, 6½d.—By John Frostick. No fancier of Insectivorous Birds who wishes to succeed in his hobby can afford to be without a copy. It also contains notes on Bird Trapping, Cages, etc.

THE CRYSTAL PALACE SHOW.

Once again it seems that the great Crystal Palace Show is likely to be held under mild weather conditions, the outlook at the time of penning these lines being extremely favourable over the South of England.

For convenience of visitors, we append the best routes to the Palace from the various railway termini:—

PADDINGTON (G.W.R.)—Take the Underground from Praed Street to Victoria or Aldersgate Street; then the Chatham Railway to the Crystal Palace High Level Station. Or take the Bakerloo tube (see from Marylebone).

MARYLEBONE (G.C.R.).—"Bakerloo" tube to Elephant and Castle; then transfer to Chatham Railway to High Level Station. Or go to Baker Street Station and take the train to Victoria.

EUSTON (L.N.W.R.), ST. PANCRAS (M.R.), and KING'S CROSS (G.N.R.)—Underground to Aldersgate Street; or 'bus to Ludgate Hill or Holborn Viaduct, and then Chatham Railway to Palace. Or take the City and South London (tube) Railway to London Bridge.

LIVERPOOL STREET (G.E.R.)—Rail direct, via New Cross; or 'bus to London Bridge, Holborn Viaduct, or Ludgate Hill, and then by L.B. and S.C. or Chatham Railway.

WATERLOO (L. and S.W.R.)—Take half-penny car to Elephant and Castle (or the "Bakerloo" tube), then transfer to Chatham Railway.

Victoria, Ludgate Hill, St. Paul's, Snow Hill, Holborn Viaduct, Moorgate Street, and London Bridge.—Rail direct to the Palace from these stations.

Direct trains to the Palace also run from Willesden and Clapham Junctions.

Additional Excursions.

In addition to the railway excursion arrangements detailed in our last issue, the following particulars have come to hand.—

Gt. Eastern Railway: On February 5th, for 1, 2, 3, or 5 days, from Ely, Lynn, Wisbech, Cromer, Aylsham, Wroxham, Saxmundham, Norwich Thorpe, Dereham, Yarmouth, Lowestoft, and districts; 1 day from Clacton-on-Sea, Hythe, and districts; and half-day from Cambridge.

North Eastern and Midland Railways: For 1, 3, or 4 days, on Feb. 5th, from Harrogate.

Midland Railway: On February 5th, for 1, 3, or 4 days, from Ilkley, Guiseley, Barnsley, Swinton, Rotherham, Sheffield, Chesterfield, and districts; for 1, 2, 3, etc., days, on February 5th, from Lincoln, Newark, Bradford, Kirkstall, Leeds, Normanton, Manchester, Chester, Winsford, Knutsford, Altrincham, Matlock Bath, Liverpool, Southport, Warrington, and districts.

Great Northern and Gt. Eastern Joint Railways: On February 5th, for 3, 4, etc., days, from York, Doncaster, Gainsborough, Lincoln, Sleaford, Spalding, and districts.

ANNUAL MEETINGS AT THE CRYSTAL PALACE.

The Cage Bird Union.

The annual meeting of the Cage Bird Union will be held in the Electric Theatre at the Crystal Palace on February 5th, at 4 o'clock, for the Council, and at 4.30 o'clock for the delegates. The agenda is as follows:—

1. Sunderland Society: "That all delegates required to attend delegate meetings, to receive at least a fortnight's notice."

2. "That the monthly list of C.B.U. shows to appear in the Press a fortnight before the date of the first show."

3. "That members showing at non-affiliated or non-licensed show be severely dealt with, and that district secretaries obtain catalogues of all shows in that district, and inquire into doubtful cases."

4. Leek Society. "That any member showing Canaries in Mule classes be expelled for three years."

5. Sheffield Society: "That Rule 22 be deleted."

6. To hold a show for members only.

7. "That an arrangement be made with the Yorkshire Union, so as to allow members of both Unions to show at both Union shows."

8. Rochdale (G.I.): "That all affiliated societies be balloted regarding Rule 22, so as to give C.B.U. members an equal chance of exhibiting with the Yorkshire Union at any show, whether affiliated or not."

9. Mr. D. A. S. Longden: "That all birds be the bona-fide property and in the possession of exhibitors at least 7 days before the date of show."

10. Mr. Longden: "That any exhibitor not being a member of the Union be debarred from showing at any C.B.U. show, Crystal Palace excepted."

Southend Society: "That the Union do not affiliate or license any society unless the said society guarantee to pay all prize money within 14 days. Secretaries failing to notify the Union secretary within 21 days, the secretary do take such steps as may be necessary for the recovery of same, and that catalogues be sent to the Union secretary containing a list of names and addresses of exhibitors."

12. Pendleton Society: "That entries from non-registered members of the Union be not accepted at shows held under C.B.U. rules."

13. "That the Union try to get better terms from the Railway companies as regards rates of carriage of birds to and from shows."

14. Any suggestions calculated to advance the interests of the Union.

15. To fix place for annual meeting for next year.—J. RAYNES, secretary, 9, Richmond Road, Chorlton-cum-Hardy, Manchester.

The Crested Canary Club.

The annual general meeting will be held in the Board Room at the Crystal Palace, on February 5th, at 3 p.m. Members unable to attend should send observations or suggestions on the agenda by letter to reach me in time to be laid before the meeting.

AGENDA.—I.—To receive balance-sheet and annual report.

II.—To discuss Mr. G. C. Ley's scheme for providing more classes in Crest and Crestbred section; to obtain better entry, and to limit the loss of societies on these classes to a minimum.

III.—To arrive at a definite decision as to the conditions upon which one or two of the cash specials will be given that are at present more often withheld.

IV.—Presentation to John Tyson, Esq. (late hon. secretary); V, any other business.

The "Roberts' Cup" is for competition among C.C.C. members at the Palace Show. In addition a very handsome medal in case is given by the Toronto Cage Bird Society, to be won by the best Crest shown by a C.C.C. member.

Result of the voting for 1910.—Committee: T. Heath 49, R. Rhodes 44, W. E. Greeves 40, T. Taylor 39, R. L. Crisp 35, G. C. Ley 35, T. R. Ind 32, R. Armstrong 27, R. B. Tope 25, W. Glasscock 18, J. Heath 48, J. Robson 26. Hon. Secretary and Treasurer: J. S. Clarke, practically unanimous. Fifty-seven voting papers were sent in, four of these being spoiled.—J. S. CLARKE, hon. sec.

The Southern Norwich P.C.

Will members of the S.N.P. Club make every effort to attend the annual general meeting on Monday evening, February 7th, at 7.30 prompt, in the Board Room at the Crystal Palace, as there will be important alterations in rules.

Moved by Mr. E. Baker: "That byelaws be altered as will be recommended by committee."

Moved by Mr. Woolhouse. "That a new rule be inserted to govern patronage: 'That the clubs or societies applying for our patronage shall be submitted to the whole of the members, and those obtaining the highest number of votes to receive the same.'"

Moved by Mr. Midgley: "That the shows for the cup competition be reduced to four in number and spread over a longer space of time."

Moved by Mr. A. E. Godden: "Members joining after August 1st, subscription to be paid within one month, or before any show competing at, to be enabled to partake in any benefits of membership."

Moved by Mr. Tottle: "That all points scored by members competing for club specials at shows under club patronage, be published by the hon. secretary in the Fancy Press within 14 days of such shows, and all appeals against such points to be made to the hon. secretary within 10 days of such publication.—F. S. MATTHES, hon. secretary.

Cinnamon Canary Club.

The annual general meeting will be held February 5th at the Crystal Palace Show. Time and place will be posted on the cage of the winning Yellow cock. The following resolutions moved at the general meeting at Manchester last October:—

1. Proposed by Mr. H. Riding, seconded by Mr. L. Roberts, "That the club's novice rule read the same as that of the Cage Bird Union."

2. Proposed by Mr. H. Riding, and seconded by Mr. A. Bentley, "That a subscription list be opened to provide a trophy to be competed for annually, and to be won three times in all. A medal to be given to the winner each year." The proposer suggests that it be given for the best unflighted; the seconder's suggestion is, to be competed for at the club shows.

3. Proposed by Mr. Seed, and seconded by Mr. Hill, "That a novice's points count throughout the show season."

Any other notice of motion should be forwarded as soon as possible, so that it may be placed upon the agenda.—R. J. PRETTY, Hon. Sec.

A List of the Meetings.

SALE OPEN O.S.

Members' annual show, held January 29th, in a room kindly lent by the president, Mr. T. Shield, Queen's Hotel. Mr. A. Royle placed the awards, and gave general satisfaction, 94 birds being staged. Some very fine specimens were amongst these, notably in Norwich and British. Mr. C. R. Field won special for best Canary and best bird in show, with an unflighted yellow, Mr. G. Hickson pressing very hard with a very fine buff Yorkshire. Special for best British bird was captured by Mr. G. Allcock with a lovely brown Linnet, after a hard struggle with a beautiful Goldfinch belonging to Master T. Fielding, who was runner-up. An extra special was given to this bird. A splendid yellow-green Norwich, shown by Mr. E. Jones stood first in class, but unfortunately, through some person putting drinker on too soon, allowing him to bathe freely, it was stopped from being judged for specials. Some good Mules were also staged. The secretary and assistant secretary had things well in hand, backed up by the president, who was quite enthusiastic and courteous to all. Several of the committee were very conspicuous by their hard work, and attention. Specials for points were also won by Messrs. Critchley, E. Jones, G. Allcock, H. Whitney and Son, A. Taylor, and Whitney and Son.

WIBSEY AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

The first show for 1910 was held on January 8, at "Horse and Groom." Mr. W. Richmond (Rodley) placed the cards, and gave every satisfaction. The point winners were: Hudson (26), Mann (23), and Thornton (18), J. Taylor (16). Mr. Ellerton, of Ashley Street, showed a Lizard in the A.O.V. class, and a great deal of interest was taken in this small but handsome bird; Mr. Ellerton has been a breeder and exhibitor of this variety close on 30 years.

METROPOLITAN C.B.S.

Annual pair show held at headquarters, Lavender Hill, S.W., on January 27th. There was a very good entry of both Canaries and pairs for Hybrid breeding. The Norwich and Yorkshires were well represented, the novice class in the latter being a very fine collection. In this section, Mr. J. King took premier honours with a beautifully balanced pair; these also secured special for best pair of Yorkshires in show. Mr. F. Tibbs secured second and third with two grandly matched pairs, shown in high fettle. The Norwich were a nice collection of typical birds, Mr. F. Martin showing some of his best. This society always have a good class of Borders at their shows, and this one was no exception to the rule. Mrs. L. Thynne sent a capital team, the winners being in fine form. The Hybrid class was well above the average, a good Goldie and fine Norwich hen leading. The special winners were Messrs. Martin, King, Best and Mrs. L. Thynne Mr. H. Norman judged, and during the evening gave a short lecture on pairing, which was listened to with careful attention by the good muster of members. Mr. G. Harwood carried out his duties as secretary in his usual efficient manner.

CITY AND SUBURBAN A.C.B.

Show of pairs matched for breeding held at the Church Institute, Paddington-street, in glorious weather, on January 29th. The entries totalled 142, or five less than last year. The Canary pairs, as usual, maintained their high standard of excellence, notably in the Crest, Yorkshire, and Plainhead sections, where the pairs of Messrs. H. Dickinson, T. C. Pickard, F. J. Martin, A. W. Curtis, F. Knight, T. Hart, R. L. Crisp, G. Menhennett, F. King, and F. A. Tebbs were especially meritorious. The hybrid pairs were not quite up to what is generally seen, a slight reaction having set in after the famous struggle of the annual show. However, Messrs. G. Pile, F. Curry, and Elgar put down some creditable pairs. Special for best champion pair was captured by Mrs. F. J. Martin with a beautifully-staged pair of Plainheads of exceptional size; for best amateur, Mr. H. Dickinson with a pair of Crests; and for best novice, Mr. F. King, with a sweet pair of Yorkshires. The correct and dignified carriage of the Scotch Fancy of Miss Louisa Jolliffe's easily captured the special for the best pair shown by a lady, and attracted a large share of attention from the outside public. The plated teapot, presented by Mr. T. Monger, was won by Mr. R. L. Crisp with 17 points, and the Wynn cup by Mr. W. W. Elgar, 12 points. The superior catalogues, with awards which are a feature at these shows, were on sale at 2.30. The attendance was good, including well-known visitors. Mr. J. Robson officiated.

N. MANCHESTER C.B.S.

The members held their annual show in the St. Stephen's Schools, Cowan Street, Harpurhey, on January 29th, when some 130 exhibits were staged. The Norwich, Yorkshires, and Borders held the fort in the Canary section. There were also a few British bird and Hybrid classes. The extreme cold weather told on some of the birds, which caused them to hunch their backs a bit, and otherwise good birds had to stand down in consequence. The special for best bird in the show went to a really good variegated buff belonging to Mr. J. Norris. There was a Cinnamon-marked yellow Yorkshire hen in the novice section which would have won this special (a real beauty) except that it was not eligible as it belonged to Mr. G. Pike, the donor, and debarred his own exhibits from competing. This is a young society, which holds three shows per year for its members, and a large list of special prizes is offered for each. Mr. J. Davey is hon. secretary, and he spares neither time nor trouble to make the society's affairs a success. Mr. C. Houlton judged, and all present appeared satisfied with the results.

DALMELLINGTON (N.B.)

The 42nd annual exhibition of the Dalmellington O.A. was held in the Public School on January 29th. Entries were quite up to those of former years, while the quality was good. This little show, which is confined to a district, could boast quite a few champion moulted specimens. Could this society not see their way to extend the radius, or, better still, make theirs an open show, as there are plenty of exhibitors in the shire? The Public School is quite an ideal place for a cage bird show, being roomy, free from draughts, and affording excellent light. The exhibits were nicely staged. The show was well patronised, and the committee are to be congratulated on their success. Mr. James Pettigrew makes an efficient secretary, and thoroughly understands what he is about. He was ably backed up by a strong band of workers, each one doing his utmost, and president Pettigrew, and vice-president McKnight are also to be congratulated. Judging was got through in good time, and the awards, which were made by Mr. P. Pettigrew, all round were well received.

SPEN VALLEY C.B.S.

Third winter show, held in the Commercial Hotel, Cleckheaton, January 29th. Entries did not come up as we expected, no doubt owing to the very bad weather. There were only 66 exhibits. Mr. F. Allen won most points with 59, W. Fielding 31 second, H. Hadwen 33 third, also special given by Mr. J. Barron. The awards of the judge, Mr. F. Benn, gave every satisfaction.

DEWSBURY AND DISTRICT CAGE BIRD SOCIETY.

Second members' show, held on January 29th, at the Saville Hotel. Entries came up very well, numbering 86. Mr. H. J. Chittenden judged, his awards leaving little room for complaints. In the champion section Messrs. Pickering 32, Hinchliffe 30, Hall 30, and Blackburn 24 are running well together for points. In the novice section Messrs. Taylor 35, Rayner 33, Clennett 30, Pollard 27, Shaw 24 are also going strong.

NANTYMOEL.

Show held at the Public Hall January 26th and 27th. The cage birds were not laid out to give the spectators the best view of the birds, but no doubt this will be rectified another year. The hon. sec., Mr. W. Graves, is a most courteous person, and is ably assisted by a hard-working committee. Mr. J. Harrison judged.

BELPER (Derby).

The 20th annual show, held in the Public Hall, in connection with the local show, on January 29th. The cage birds were nicely staged at one end of the hall, and every care was taken of the exhibits by that willing steward, Mr. W. Elkins. There were two very noted birds on view in Mr. W. G. Poole's noted Hawfinch, which still looks well, and Mr. W. C. Harrison's Bullfinch. Mr. Elkins had on view a very fine black Bullfinch, which attracted great attention. This "gate" was very good indeed, and we expect to see Belper with a case hard show entirely on its own in the near future. Mr. J. N. Harrison judged, and gave satisfaction.

YORKS. Singing Contests.

YORK.

Usual Linnet contest, held at Crown Inn, North-street, when upwards of 20 birds competed. Result:—1st, Bean; 2nd, Granger; 3rd, Smith. Judge, Mr. Perry. Timekeeper, Mr. J. Smith.—J. W. SMITH, Hon. Sec.

Usual weekly Linnet singing contest held at Bricklayers' Arms, Palmer-lane, January 29th, when 20 birds faced the judge (Mr. J. Andrews), whose awards gave every satisfaction. Result: 1, Mangham; 2, Kendra; 3, Guy Wilson; 4, Buckle; 5, Harrison. Mr. J. Limbert was timekeeper.—WM. EMPSON.

LEEDS.

Usual contest held at Kings Head, Shannon Street, January 29. 1, 3, Sissons; 2, Stead. Judges, W. Naylor and A. Jennings. Also on January 30, when some very good singing was heard. 1, Stead; 2, Hardcastle; 3, Sissons. Judges, Messrs. Jennings, Naylor, and Hoban. Also on same evening grand Canary contest was held. 1, Wake; 2, Jowitt; 3, shared between Sissons and Grey. Judges, Messrs. Summers, Jennings, and Hoban.—WILSON NAYLOR, hon. sec.

Usual weekly contest held at Skinners Arms, Buslingthorpe-lane, on January 30th, when 12 birds sang. 1, Simmons; 2, Thurkill; 3, Green. Judges, Messrs. Renton and Gallie Usual fortnightly Roller singing contest held at the Plasterers' Arms, Skinner-lane. Some nice singing was heard from some very lengthy rolling and note-changing birds. 1, Longbottom; 2, Wake; 3, Jowett. Judges, Messrs. T. Summers and H. Jennings. Next contest, February 6th, commence 7.30 p.m.; open to all. Also, seeing there are no time singing contests for Linnets in Leeds, Mr. Kendall will give three good prizes to encourage this style of singing, which gives every Linnet fancier a chance. February 6th; commence 1 o'clock.—JOE HARGREAVES, Hon. Sec.

LONDON.

Owing to the "Queen Victoria," Wharfdale Road, King's Cross, not having room enough, singing handicaps are not held, writes Mr. F. Westmore, but we have a large show of Goldfinches, Linnets, and Mules, as Mr. Harry Cadd has a side room, and is pleased to give any bird a trial. A large number of fanciers meet there, and Mr. Cadd is always pleased to see them.

KENT COUNTY C.B.A.

Annual General Meeting.

Annual general meeting held in Barton-road Boys' School, Dover, on January 26th, and was well attended; chairman, Mr. N. Campany. The balance-sheet, and also the secretary's report, were submitted. Both were accepted and passed. Messrs. Rayner and Heritage respectively moved and seconded a cordial vote of thanks to the hon. secretary for the satisfactory way in which he had carried out his duties, and congratulated him on the state of the balance-sheet, which, although showing a small deficit, was a very great improvement on the previous one. Result of elections:—President, Mr. J. Broad; vice-presidents, Messrs. Birch, Worstold (deputy Mayor of Dover), Gibbs, Dr. T. A. Howes, and Col. Norris, M.V.O. Mr. Campany declining re-election as chairman, owing to business considerations he had in prospect, Mr. E. C. Rayner was elected to that position, and Mr. J. Reeve vice-chairman. Mr. Campany at this stage vacated the chair, and upon his successor taking his seat, proposed a vote of thanks to the late chairman for the able and impartial manner in which he had always filled the position. This was carried with much acclamation, testifying greatly to the esteem in which he is held generally by the association. Mr. Campany, responding, assured us he would not desert us, but would at all times do what he could for the association. Committee: Headquarters, Messrs. Abbott, Austen, Eade, Hendry, Heritage, Hunt, Lockett, and Leaver; County, Messrs. Brett, Taylor, Patterson, Weaver, Thompson, Meades, Holness, Jenner, JorCan, Flint, Wood, and the Rev. H. A. Seames. A local member (whose modesty is only exceeded by his loyalty and devotion to our hobby) offered the use of a room in his house for a bird-washing demonstration on February 9th, at 7 p.m., he finding soap, towels, drying cages, fire, etc., on condition his name is not published in the Fancy Press. Needless to say, the offer was "jumped at," and a hearty vote of thanks accorded Mr. —— for his kindness. Messrs. H. Sarjeant and Geo. Sanderson were re-elected hon. treasurer and hon. secretary respectively. Messrs. Heritage and Leaver moved and seconded that we hold an evening show in Barton-road Boys' School on February 23rd; Mr. Abbott judge. Entry fees are as usual, for the benefit of the association. Mr. Leaver offered a silver medal to the member making the most entries. Mr. Heritage a silver medal for most points throughout the show, and Mr. E. C. Rayner a silver medal for most points in British birds. The ballot papers were ordered to be destroyed, which brought a splendid meeting to a close with the usual vote to the chairman for presiding.—GEORGE SANDERSON, Hon. Sec., 17, Beaconsfield-avenue, Dover.

ALWAYS USE OUR

DEPOSIT SYSTEM.

We are not responsible for the statements made in advertisements, nor of the bona-fides of either buyers or sellers In all transactions the adoption of our Deposit System should be insistedupon.

IMPORTANT.

SEND THE FULL COMMISSION.—If the full commission does not accompany the deposit, the vendor will not be notified of its receipt until the amount deficient, plus the extra postage incurred, has been paid to us.

HOW TO REMIT.—Under no circumstances will Cheques or Post-dated Money Orders be accepted as deposits. Uncrossed Postal Orders must be sent and the numbers taken for safety.

RULES.

1.—PROCEDURE.—The intending purchaser should send to this office the amount of the purchase (our deposit fee included), and at the same time he should communicate with the seller, stating what it is he requires sent on approval. We acknowledge receipt of the deposit to both parties. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vendor, and must write same clearly and distinctly.

2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. If a sale has been effected, we hand the amount deposited to the seller. If a sale has not been effected, we return the amount to the depositor. The transaction must be conducted by the parties themselves. We merely hold the deposit.

3.—AMOUNT OF COMMISSION.—The fee is 6d. for each £1, or fraction of £1, and it must be sent at same time as the deposit.

4.—IMPORTANT POINTS.—The depositor must decide within forty-eight hours of the receipt of the goods whether he will keep or return the same, unless, that is, some other period of approval (of which we must be advised) is agreed upon by both parties. The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods. If the goods are not returned within the said forty-eight hours, we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period. And should the seller fail within three days to notify us of the receipt of his goods back again, the transaction will be treated as ended, and the deposit be returned to the depositor.

5.—A SATISFACTORY PURCHASE.—When a transaction has been completed to the satisfaction of both depositor and seller, both parties must at once return the deposit receipts as a guarantee of its completion. The depositor must at the same time instruct us to pay over the deposit to the seller.

6.—GOODS ALREADY SOLD.—If the goods are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or, if for any other reason he declines to do business, he must at once return the deposit note to us. Failing its receipt, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the sender after the expiration of three days.

7.—FRESH TRANSACTION.—In case no sale be effected, a deposit is available for purposes of a fresh transaction, provided another deposit fee be paid.

8.—GOODS IN TRANSIT.—Goods in transit are at the seller's risk, and any damage or loss sustained on the journey must be borne by the seller. But goods not approved of must be properly packed and returned by the same means as were used in sending the same.

9.—PAYMENT OF CARRIAGE.—The payment of carriage must be a matter for arrangement between the vendor and depositor. We do not undertake to settle disputes affecting questions of carriage. But in the absence of other arrangements the purchaser is liable for the carriage of the goods, and if the goods are sent on approval and returned, each party pays the carriage one way.

10.—DISPUTES.—In case of a dispute, the decision of the Editor is final.

PREPAID ADVERTISEMENTS

UNDISPLAYED.—6d. for the first sixteen words. One Halfpenny per Word for each word over sixteen. MINIMUM, 16 words 6d.

IMPORTANT NOTE.—Two or more Advertisements coming from the same advertiser, even if sent in different names, are reckoned together, and, after the first Sixteen words, are charged at two words a penny, but no single advertisement, even if accompanied by others, will be charged at less than the minimum price, viz., Sixpence.

Headlines or Footlines 6d., 9d., 1/-, 1/6 according to size.

Small prepaid advertisements of a general nature and not connected in any way with the Cage Bird Trade are inserted at the rate of ½d. per word throughout. Minimum 12 words 6d.

Advertisements must in all cases bear the bona fide name and address of the advertiser, and no advertisement will be inserted if addressed to a receiving office, or similar place of call.

Postal Orders must be sent as far as possible. All moneys should be made payable to F. CARL.

The Proprietor reserves the right to refuse any advertisement, or to cancel any advertisement ordered for a series, at any time, without assigning any reason for so doing.

Advertisements close Tuesdays first post in each week, and should be sent to the Advertisement Manager, CAGE BIRDS, 151, Fleet Street, London. Terms for Display Advertisements on application.

MY SELF-ACTING SPRING-NET TRAPS catch birds of every description without any attention, price 1/6; larger size, 2/-, carriage paid. I have received hundreds of testimonials stating they are worth double the money of any trap advertised. Read two, and beware of cheaper imitations that are not worth the cost of carriage: "Sir,—I received the net trap; it is honestly worth a dozen of some of the nets advertised. I tried it this afternoon and caught more birds in two hours than I have caught in other traps in two months.—George Matthews, Bird Catcher, 2, Lucas-street, Stockport." "Sir,—Trap arrived. It is far superior to all others. I have to-day caught fifteen Linnets, six Redpolls, four Chaffinches, three Greenfinches.—J. Scragg, The Old Brewery, Armitage-road, Rugeley." Entirely self-acting and self-setting trap cages, warranted to catch birds and reset without attention, 1/6; loose netting, strongest and finest obtainable ½in. mesh, 7ft. deep, 5d. yard; ¾in. mesh, 7ft. deep, 8d.; 10ft. deep, 4d. yard; post free: Morris, 112, Cape Hill, Birmingham.

HUMAN LINNET.

Gentlemen,—If you want good honest value, send to me, I give 7 days' approval. Do not be led astray by so-called Linnet kings and specialists, anyone can be either. I get my title from CAGE BIRDS, and am considered by all to be an expert. If you want more proof read testimonials below. I have some beautiful cock Linnets, been caged months, not fresh caught rubbish, 1/- and 1/6 each, singing grand, specials 2/- each. Big, fine finger-tame cock Linnet, sure muler, 2/-; other grand birds 1/6 each; cock Linnets, very tame, well pencilled, good nutty brown, ready for show, 1/6 and 2/- each; real Norwich type cock Linnets, learnt under my well-known champion (quality song), 2/6 each, with fancy cage (or contest cage), 3/9 lot; real bargain, they are the talk of the bird world. I have a grand lot of pear-tree cock Goldfinches, been in outside aviary since November; cocks singing hard, right for muling or catching, 3/- and 3/6 each; others with deep, square-cut blaze, grand broad heads, beautiful wings, bars, buttons, 4/- and 4/6 each; real bulldog type, gems, 5/-; guaranteed been caged months and not small common rubbish; massive hen Bullfinches, 2/- each; cocks, grand birds, 3/- and 3/6; real giant cock Greenfinches, finger tame, 1/- and 1/6, one a gem, 2/-; Chaffinches in excellent condition, 1/- and 1/6 cock Larks, singing hard, 1/- and 1/6; one can be heard singing hundred yards away, only 2/6. To all Linnet, Lark, Thrush, and Blackbird fanciers, I ask you all to send P.O. 1s. for my Book of Secrets and Mixture, it acts like magic. You do not know what can be done with birds until you have tried it. I have sold it to hundreds of fanciers, and all say it is a remarkable secret. Please read this:—"53, Selby Terrace, Tinsley, near Sheffield. Sir,—I cannot speak too highly of your secret mixture. I have tried it on another bird, and it is also singing now."—Mr. Fisher to Fred Allen. I could fill a page with testimonials of it. If you want proof of my birds please read these:—"40, Darnell Street, Newcastle. Sir,—I must congratulate you on the way you executed my small order. I only wish I had got all my birds from you. The bird has been singing all day."—Mr. Scott to Fred Allen. "178, Harrington Road, Workington. Sir,—I am delighted with Linnet."—Mr. Croull to Fred Allen. "26, Allen Street, Hucknall. Sir,—Birds arrived safe, and am satisfied with them. Thanking you for prompt attention."—Mr. Severn to Fred Allen. Gentlemen, give me a trial and you will be delighted. I send out as advertised, and do not fill my advert. with a pack of untruths. I guarantee you will be more than satisfied. Write at once to the only Linnet Specialist in Hull, and the leading British bird dealer, Fred Allen, Porter Street Aviaries, Hull.

Matched pairs, 20/6, 25/6, 30/6, 35/6, 40/6, 45/6, 50/- per pair; single cocks, 15/6 to 40/-, and the finest hens living, yellow and buff, 12/6 to 30/6; recent testimony from prominent fanciers; names and address on receipt of postcard if required, not false statements, but facts. "Jan. 12th, 1910. Dear Sir,—I received birds to-day. I like the yellow hen very much, and the buff cock is a gem, splendid head, chest, wings and tail, a real good one. This also applies to the yellow hen. Yours truly."—Jan. 30th, 1910. Dear Sir,—Enclosed please find P.O. 50/- for birds sent. I am well pleased with them; they are splendid birds. Yours truly."—"Jan. 31st, 1910. Dear Sir,—I received the bird safely, and am perfectly satisfied with him. Thanking you for your courtesy. Yours faithfully."—Space does not permit any more; approval willingly; satisfaction guaranteed.—Judge A. E. Silk, Whitstable.

BUY DIRECT OF

breeder and trainer. Finest strain of Rollers in the country; trained to perfection, 7/6, 10/-, 12/6, 15/-, upwards; hens, 2/6, two for 4/6; cash or deposit: F. Cartwright 15, Farfield, Kidderminster. Established 1888.

COMMON SENSE

Will tell you that unless my birds were as represented publicity would do me harm instead of good. It stands to reason that there must be something special about my Leipzig Rollers, otherwise I certainly could not go on selling them year after year like I do. I have repeatedly said in these columns that my Rollers are better and cheaper than any others on the market, and to prove this I ask all intending purchasers to test one against any other sold on similar conditions. I am largest retailer of Rollers in United Kingdom, and on Feb. 3rd alone sent out 73 consignments containing nearly 200 German Canaries. This is a fact that can easily be verified, as I hold signature of Midland Railway Company for these parcels. I now have over 1,000 (one thousand) Leipzig Rollers, all in full song, day and gaslight, with long hollow and double rolls, sweet, silvery trills, waterbubble runs, soft roulades, piccolo trills, bell, harp, gong, flute and Nightingale notes, etc., etc., and every one guaranteed free from chipping, chopping, or other harsh notes whatever, price, 7/- and 8/- each; special Bandmaster or Schoolmasters, 10/- each. I also have a grand lot genuine Seifert contest Rollers at 12/6 and 15/- each. These are guaranteed genuine Seifert blood, and excel in the deep liass and hollow bell rolls, etc., and their song is a cascade of ever-flowing melody. I also have 20 pure "Gluck" Rollers, fit to win contests in keenest competition immediately, price 20/-, 25/-, 30/-, and 40/- each. Genuine Gluck hens, related to above, 4/- each. I beg to draw attention of connoisseurs to these Gluck Rollers, as they are, without doubt, the finest parcel of birds ever exported from Germany. Leipzig Roller hens, 3/- each, 2 5/-; ordinary loud, free singing Hartz cocks, every bird in full, loud free song, 5/- each, 7 31/6; Hartz hens, 2/- each, 3/6 couple. Special Roller singing cabinets, with folding doors and loose fronts, made especially for my Rollers, 2/6 each; ordinary singing box cages 1/-, 1/3, and 1/6 each. Please note every Canary is sent on a full week's trial at my risk, either on receipt of cash or CAGE BIRDS deposit system, on the distinct understanding that unless birds give you fullest satisfaction, and realise your every expectation, you only have to return it, and back comes the whole of your money, promptly and cheerfully, without question or comment. Read following unsolicited letters, with which I give full name and address, also date, so that sceptics may make any enquiries they think proper:—"Parkfield Gardens, Worcester, Feb. 6. Sir,—Rollers arrived safe and sound, and are doing well. Both cocks started singing same day. Shall be pleased to recommend you as opportunity occurs. Yours, Wm. Hurlstou." "Ivy Bush Hotel, Pontardawe, Feb. 6th. Sir,—Pleased to inform you that contest Roller arrived safe, and am highly pleased with same. Yours, Wm. Rapsey." "King-street, Kilkenny, Feb. 5th. Sir,—Bandmaster arrived in splendid condition. I am thoroughly pleased with him; he is an excellent songster, just the bird I wanted. Thanking you for kind and prompt attention. Yours, M. McGrath." "23, Fleet-street, West Keyham, Devonport, Feb. 5th. Sir,—Rollers arrived safe, and I am well pleased with them. You will hear from me again. Yours, W. King." "12, Grange Villa, Co. Durham, Feb. 5th. Sir,—Contest Roller arrived safe, and started singing soon as unpacked, and has sung ever since. He is a beauty. Yours, W. Corker." "17, Nantyhar, Cymmer, Feb. 5th. Sir,— Received Leipzig Roller safe, and am very well pleased with him. He sang as soon as he arrived at station, and was singing all the way home, as my daughter was carrying him. He is best I ever heard, and anyone can come and see him. Yours, J. Matthews." "10, Timothy Row, Cwmbach, Feb. 4th. Sir,—Received birds safe. Thanks for sending such a fine songster, quite pleased with it. Yours, Arthur Williams." "Rose Cottage, Birnam, Perthshire, Feb. 3rd. Sir, —Roller arrived safely in 43 degrees of frost none the worse. He is singing beautifully both day and gaslight. Thanking you for nice bird. Yours, C. Morgan, Postman." "11, Cecil Street, Limerick. Sir,—It is time I thanked you for sending such a really fine Roller. He is a splendid bird, and I must say I never got such value before. He is admired by everyone who sees him. Please send following: Yours G. Manders." "Windermere, Cargate Avenue, Aldershot, Feb. 2nd. Sir—I am pleased to say Roller sent is entirely to my satisfaction, and sings nearly all day. Yours, A. Harrington." "Chatham, Feb. 1st. Sir,—Roller arrived safe. I am very pleased with him. I have had a lot of birds, but this one takes the cake. He has been singing ever since he was unpacked. Yours, G. Neve." When you take into consideration the above letters are written by persons, who apart from business transactions, are entire straugers to me, it will at once be seen that my statements are not empty clap-trap, but sound, stubborn facts, and the birds are what I claim for them, absolutely the best on the market. I am sole importer of Hans Webers' Leipzig Rollers. Every cock bird is stamped on wing, "Hans Weber," and no other dealer in England can sell you one feather of this strain unless he first purchases it from me. All birds safely and warmly packed with food for 48 hours, free of extra charge, and sent on seven clear days' trial at my risk, during whole time; cash or deposit system of CAGE BIRDS, whichever you prefer. Kindly note carriage on one to three birds costs 6d. only to any part of kingdom. See British Bird column for further advt.

USE OUR PICTURE POSTCARDS

IT'S HERE.

It is here that you must carefully study the prices and the special conditions of sale if you would have the best quality Canaries at the most reasonable prices. I have carefully studied the requirements of breeder-amateur and the one bird keeper for many years, and to meet their requirements I have the best up-to-date bird rooms properly fitted up and stocked with the finest collections of birds ever seen; every bird cold room bred, and kept in the best of health and condition; all cock birds in full song and full of vigour. Birds from such aviaries as these must be far superior to those in stuffy, evil-smelling bird shops, garrets, etc. If you want good songsters or breeders you require birds that are bred and kept under the most healthy conditions, properly caged and kept. I do not buy other breeders' wasters, therefore have no wasters to sell, although my prices are so very cheap I guarantee all my birds to be pure-bred of good shape and full of quality, bred from and related to prize-winning stock birds. It is the thousands I sell yearly to my regular customers and friends that enables me to sell the best quality at the lowest possible prices. To prove to you the superior quality of my birds, I will forward you any birds you require from my stock, carriage paid, on seven days' approval, at my risk. You receive the birds in good condition, and are privileged to keep them seven days at my risk that you may be fully satisfied, and get the opinion of your friends that the birds are exceptionally good value for the amount paid, before deciding to keep them. Should any bird die during the time of approval, I replace it free of charge. You will plainly see with the above conditions it is impossible to be dissatisfied, for you only keep the birds that give every satisfaction. My sending all my Canaries carriage paid on seven days' approval at my risk, together with the high quality and reasonable prices of my birds, are the reasons the thousand and one customers are continually forwarding me their repeat orders. The quality of my birds defies competition. Note the following prices. But you must see the quality, it will astound you. Genuine trained St. Andreasberg Rollers, cocks, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6; a few contest songsters, 15/-, 20/-, 25/-; hens, 2/6, 3/6; Hartz Rollers, loud free songsters, cocks, 5/3, 5/9, 6/3, 6/9; matched pairs, 7/6, 8/6, 9/6; Yorkshire cocks, 6/6, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6; Yorkshire hens, 3/6, 4/6, 5/6; matched breeding pairs, 8/6, 9/6, 10/6, 12/6; Norwich cocks and hens or matched pairs same prices as Yorkshires; neat travelling cages, 3d. each extra; full illustrated price list of birds and cages, 1d. for postage. All Canaries forwarded to your address carriage paid on 7 days' approval, at my sole risk, cash or deposit: Miss E. L. Storey, Practical Bird Specialist, Crowle, Doncaster.

"FIRST AND SPECIAL BEST IN SHOW."

Read following from "Cuttwood Aviaries, Belper, January 31st, 1910. Sir,—Pleased to say buff Yorkshire cock safe to hand. Arrived in splendid condition, and consider him a perfect gem. Followed instructions given in your letter, and pleased to say he was benched in the pink on Saturday, 29th, winning 1st prize and special, special best Canary in show (stood clear out in his class), and am perfectly sure you have given me far better value in this bird than the cash I sent you, and to prove how I appreciate your honourable treatment, shall recommend you to all fanciers I know. G. Elkins to L. Dykes. Another from 12, Shore Street, Campbeltown, January 25th, 1910.—Just a line to let you know I got the bird all right, and I showed him, and he got 1st here at Campbeltown Open Show. John McLean to L. Dykes.

I hold scores of similar testimonials from present-day winning exhibitors, of winners sold and winners bred from stock birds I supplied them with. Further comment unnecessary, but if you want "show birds" or "stock to breed winners," Dykes' Reliable strain is what you require.

Champion, long, stylish yellow Yorkshire cocks, at 6/-, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/- each; extra good buff cocks, at 5/-, 6/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/- each, all on full song, and for length, style and quality, cannot be beaten at higher prices. Grand racy, tight-feathered hens, yellows, at 4/-, 5/-, 6/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6; buffs at 3/6, 4/6, 6/6, 8/6, 10/6; pairs, properly and carefully matched, to breed own winners, from 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, 25/-, 30/- per pair; in clears, ticked, green-marked, cinnamon-marked, and a few even-marked, colour-fed or natural colour, all guaranteed cold rooms bred and kept. Travelling cages 2d. extra.

Also some champion pairs of cobby Norwich, and large Crests and Crest-bred, at reasonable prices. Easy payments arranged, and birds sent off at once to any bona-fide fancier. All on seven days' approval at my risk, and safe delivery guaranteed any distance. State wants to the old, reliable breeder, exhibitor and judge, with a life's practical experience, who has won considerably over 200 cash prizes (including over 50 1sts), three challenge cups, and numerous specials for best birds, etc., etc., during the present season, at all leading shows (see reports), who breeds his own winners, and can therefore give you the best satisfaction. Inspection invited at any time: new season's price list post free on receipt of post card.

if you will only allow me to submit them for your approval, for it has never been my practice to make statements that cannot be fully borne out by facts. I claim nothing that cannot be proved. Here are that for quality and price positively defy all competition, and all claims: Cocks, 5/6, 6/6, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 15/-, 20/-, 30/-; Hens, 3/-, 3/6, 4/-, 4/6, 5/6, 7/6, 10/6, 15/-; PAIRS MATCHED FOR BREEDING, 7/6, 8/6, 9/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, upwards. Cages 3d. extra. Extended list free.

N.B.—If you have birds a bit too fine, and want to introduce fresh blood and length, let me know, I can fit you up properly; having some of the largest birds in the "Fancy." this is no silly, idle boast; I have no place or time for that in my life.

See my advert. on page 128.

JOHN MACE, SHEFFIELD.

High-class Yorkshire cocks, in full song, 7/6, 8/6; hens, 2/6, 3/- each; all bird room appliances: John Mace, Naturalist, Barnsley, and Blonk-st., Sheffield.

Winning Yorkshires.

Direct from "Mr. Bates, Stoke," strain, which won for him thousands of prizes. I have sold from this strain to Mr. Blackhurst some toppers, and he won 1st, 2nd, 3rd, 1908, Crystal Palace; also 1sts, 2nds, 3rds at Bolton, Morecambe, etc., this season; also Mr. Banks, Cardiff, won 1sts, 2nds, etc., with this strain supplied by me. Some grand youngsters, same strain and models; cocks, Yellows or Buffs, from 6/-, 7/-, 8/-, 10/-, 12/-, 15/-, 20/-; hens, Yellows or Buffs, 5/-, 6/-, 7/6, 10/-, 12/-; matched pairs, to breed winners, 12/-, 14/-, 16/-, 18/-, 20/- pair. Any I send on approval and guaranteed to please you, as I don't exhibit these myself. Order at once; breeder 25 years.—Sandiford, Canary Breeder and Judge, Preston, Lancashire.

10 1st, 3 2nd, and Specials.

including gold medal, £3 cup (won outright), etc. This record was obtained by Miss Niall at this year's Christchurch and Ashburton shows, with a combined entry of 16 birds only. Miss N——, forwarding me catalogues for reference, writes: "All these exhibits were bred from your stock, or supplied by you direct." Such testimony of inherent quality for show and stock far outweighs references to own winners kept for own exhibition uses rather than for sale. Not being a regular exhibitor all birds I possess (except own breeders) are for absolute and immediate sale. Personally selected and unrelated pairs, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/- upwards; single birds proportionately; few exhibition specimens, 20/- upwards. 250 specimens in all Yorkshire varieties now ready and fit. All cold-room bred, reared, and kept. All on approval, cash or deposit. Full season's price list sent on receipt of stamp for reply: Jonas Knight (30 years breeder of Yorkshires only), Allerton, Bradford, Yorkshire.

THE MARKED YORKSHIRE KING.

Having again won the Cinnamon Marked Y.C.C. competition, making it the fourth time in succession, also National Green Marked Y.C.C. 10-guineas trophy, now that the show season is over we are compelled to part with some of the above winners, as it is impossible for us to breed with them all, as we have over 40 first prize winners in the keenest competition. Now is the chance to get the best living at reasonable prices. Please note, these are all our own breeding with the exception of one, so buy direct from the breeder. It is acknowledged that our strain throughout the British Isles produce winners yearly. During the last four years we have won more competitions than all other Yorkshire fanciers put together, including the highest honours at Crystal Palace; also, we won more 1st at Jubilee Crystal Palace Show than any other exhibitor, including champion diploma for best bird. Those who want to be successful on the show bench, try our properly-matched pairs from 15/-, guaranteed to breed winners. All birds sent on approval. Deposit with Editor. Stamp for particulars: Ogden Bros., Dudley Hill, Bradford.

Solid Facts, No Bounce

During the last eight years my birds have won the highest honours it is possible to achieve on the show bench, namely, the Yorkshire 20-Guinea Challenge Cup, four out of five times competing; the Amalgamation 25-guinea Trophy, the Yorkshire Union 30-Guinea Trophy, the Cinnamon Marked Trophy, the Naylor Challenge Cup twice in succession, twice championship for best cinnamon mark, and thrice champion for best Yorkshire in show Crystal Palace. My record of 28 first and special prizes in two successive years at Palace stands unbeaten. The three following birds were bred by me, namely, Paragon Perfection, thrice winner of championship for best Yorkshire at Palace, and scores of other prizes and specials; Paragon Eclipse, twice winner at Palace, and 50 first and special prizes; Paragon Victor, winner of 30 first and special prizes. Other noted winners too numerous to name. Having selected my stock birds, I have now for disposal some of the finest and most typical birds in the Fancy. Reasonable prices; 3 days' approval; stamp for particulars: W. H. Shackleton, Melrose House, Lytton-rd., Bradford.

Bargains of all Bargains

and from this present collection, which can be seen alive, and not merely on paper, I am prepared to send such value as I have never been able to do before, and that is saying a good deal; in fact, it spells a wonderful deal. The prices are not new, it is the superlative quality.

My special matched pairs of prize-bred Norwich Plainheads at 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, and 20/-; Crested ditto, 15/-, 20/-, 25/-, and 80/-; Yorkshires, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, and 20/-; Lancashires, 25/-, 80/-, 40/-; Cinnamons, 8/6, 9/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-; Lizards, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-; Border Fancies, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6.

To Beginners.

If you cannot afford a big price, send for a pair of my correctly matched Norwich at 8/6 or 9/6; and now note this.—In most cases where you send for pairs at this price, you are sent two buffs, often both marked birds—this is where you do not get what is required—well, I send you one marked, and one clear, one buff, and the other yellow. Travelling cage 3d. extra. Then for 8/6 I will send you a Double Breeding Cage, fitted with everything complete, for an immediate start. Total for Birds and Cage 12/3 for 8/6 birds, or 13/3 for 9/6 birds. But I would strongly recommend you to have my Cage No. 100; it has sand drawers, and is fitted with sanitary furniture throughout, and the price is only 5/-.

For Lancashires, Lizards, Cinnamons, Dutch Frills, Belgians, Scotch Fancies, etc., send for solved. For full proofs send postcard at once for my large book, "Parrot Prattle," now containing 168 pages. This is the most wonderful book ever offered free of all charge to all Parrot fanciers. (This "Parrot Prattle" is registered copyright, and all infringers and imitators will be proceeded against). It contains hundreds of testimonials from all parts with full names and addresses, many interesting facts, and gives valuable advice and hints to all Parrot buyers. Full details of our original system of selling Parrots on four weeks' trial, at our risk, which we were the first to introduce. We sell Parrots of all descriptions on four weeks' trial, at our risk, before settlement. Cheapest and best in the Kingdom, and any Parrot sold by us and not giving full satisfaction, will be exchanged any time within twelve months. Remember we lead and others try to follow. Write to other dealers as well as us, and judge for yourselves. Lists of Parrots for sale and above book post free on receipt of postcard. Telephone No. 40 Morecambe.

However, as this is only a beginning, and expected to be held every week, we may anticipate a better entry, and an improvement in the singing. About 70 paid for admission, which augurs well. 1st, McPhee; 2nd, Ross; 3rd Marr; 4th, Sellars. The three first birds were bought by auction in same room for less than 6d. each; the 4th bird was supposed to be an English winner.—A. LINNET ADMIRER.

WINDHILL, SHIPLEY & DIS. O.S.

Monthly meeting held on Feb. 5th, when the balance-sheet was read and passed; a nice sum was to be handed over to our new treasurer, Mr. R. Sutcliffe. The new secretaries are Messrs. R. Garnett, 17, Woodville Terrace, Windhill, and J. Cook, 16, Fair Bank, Cragg Road, Windhill. It was decided to hold our members' show on July 16th. We are holding our tea and social on Feb. 19th. This is one of the old sort of teas—plenty of joints, served hot, at 1/6 per head, so hurry up members and friends, and let us have a good tea together. The concert will be one of the best ever held. Please let me know how many tickets are required as soon as possible.—J. COOK, Assist. Sec.

CROYDON F.A.

A well-attended committee meeting was held on February 1st, under the presidency of Mr. J. N. Sulton. The Secretary reported that Sir Robert Hermon Hodge, Bart., M.P., had kindly consented to accept the office of president, and he was sure his acceptance would be appreciated by the members. Mr. T. B. Mason (Thornton Heath) was unanimously elected vice-president. The chief item on the agenda was the date and place of the next general meeting, and it was decided to hold it at the St. Andrew's Institute and Club, Lower Coombe Street, on February 15th, to which all fanciers (residing within a radius of 7 miles of the Town Hall) are invited. In the meantime, particulars can be obtained of me at 70, Oakfield Road, Croydon.—A. G. HEWENS, Hon. Sec.

LANCASHIRE C.A.

I am obliged to postpone our annual meeting, which should have taken place on February 12th, but the Rochdale O.C. have postponed their British Bird Show till February 19th. So will members please note that the annual meeting will take place on February 19th, instead of the 12th. All intending members are invited.—C. WHITEHEAD, Sec.

CROOK ORIGINAL C.B.F. & F.S.

Annual meeting held at headquarters, Crown Hotel, on Jan. 26th, when the following officers were elected: President, H. P. Douglas, Esq., vice-presidents, F. W. Morson, Esq., H. Pratt, Esq., M. Dawson, Esq.; chairman, A. Bainbridge; vice-chairman, W. Brown; treasurer, F. E. Rudkins; secretary, Bird section: F. Brown; other sections, J. Homer; sub-committee, J. Siddle, M. Dawson, W. Brown, H. Rudkin, A. Rudkin, J. Traylor, T. Hindmarsh, F. Heslop, and W. Watson; full committee, A. Bowes, M. Nattrass, W. Messenger, R. Elliott, J. Metcalf, W. Lister, F. Feetham, J. Thompson, R. Brown, J. Brown, J. Cuthbertson; auditors, A. Bowes and M. Nattrass. The society is still in a good position, with a balance in hand, although this year has not been a successful one. However, things point to a prosperous new year. We shall be pleased to enrol new members at our next meeting, Feb. 16th; annual subscription 2/6.—BROWN AND HORNER, Secs.

HAMILTON (C.O.) O.S.

Meeting held on February 5th in the Lesser Hall; 14 present, Mr. D. Johnston (vice-president) in the chair during the early part of the evening, and Mr. W. Haddow (president) during the latter portion. A discussion ensued as to whether we hold an open or confined show. It was eventually decided to hold an open show, the date to be fixed at next meeting. The balance-sheet was read by the secretary, and showed a substantial balance, although our late members' show was not a success financially. It was decided to hold the balance-sheet over until next meeting, as the audit had not been completed. The election of officers resulted as follows:—President, Mr. W. Hamilton; vice-president, Mr. J. Braidwood; secretary and treasurer, S.Q.M.-Sgt. A. Cant, 48, Barrack Street; auditors, Messrs. J. B. Smith and W. Shearer, jun.; collectors, Messrs. A. M. Kendrick and J. B. Smith; committee, Messrs. Hamilton, Braidwood, Cant, Smith, Shearer, junr., Johnston and Shearer, sen. The Secretary announced he would give a gold, a silver and a bronze medal, which offer was unanimously accepted. A discussion ensued as to the allocation of these, and the result will be announced at next meeting. The hat was then passed round in aid of the Preston and Flowers Defence Fund, and resulted in a collection of 4s. 6d. A committee meeting will be held on February 19th at 48, Barrack Street. A hearty vote of thanks to the chairman closed the meeting.—A. CANT, sec. and treasurer.

NEWCASTLE C.B.S.

Special meeting held January 27th, when letter of "Lover of Justice" came up for discussion. The gentleman (Mr. Johnstone) whose Mule is referred to, was summoned to attend, and he said that he could hardly find words strong enough to condemn the action of the writer. He put him down as a mischief-maker, and he had no right to interfere because, so far as he (Mr. Johnstone) was concerned, the case was settled at the show. He was quite satisfied after the show manager, Mr. Currah, had explained to him the reason his bird could not be found to be judged in the members' class. Mr. David Scott moved that the best thanks of the society be given to Mr. Johnstone for the able manner in which he had stated his case and cleared the Newcastle Cage Bird Society from all blame, and in condemning "Lover of Justice" for writing this letter. This resolution was seconded by Mr. J. Shepherd, and was carried unanimously, and most of the members present strongly condemned the action of this would-be "Lover of Justice." The next item was to hear our delegate's report in regard to a C.B.U. meeting held December 4th, to hear Dr. Galloway's decision on the Mules which had been protested against at the late Wallsend Show. But Mr. Macpartling failed to put in an appearance. The secretaries were instructed to ask him to give his report at our next meeting, or send a written statement. We might remind members that our annual social will be held on Tuesday, February 22, and tickets can be had from the secretaries or committee. We hope to see a large turnout of members and friends.—CURRY AND HUTCHINSON, Secs.

BANKFOOT AND DIS. C.B.S.

Annual Meeting.

Annual general meeting held February 1st at Bankfoot Schools, Mr. E. W. Johnson (president) in the chair. The balance-sheet for our first annual tea and concert was read and passed, showing a good balance on the right side. The balance-sheet for the year also shows a good balance. This society, though only seven months old, has a nice banking account, besides having given splendid prizes for competition. Decided, that we hold four old and two young bird shows, the first to take place on February 12th, second on June 18th, third July 23rd, fourth October 15th, fifth November 12th, and last December 24th. The first three prizes are as follows: First prize, cup value 30s.; 2nd, gold medal, value 25s.; and 3rd, gold medal, 15s. Mr. E. W. Johnson, who was again elected president, promised a special value 10s. 6d., and Mr. H. Taylor a special value 5s., for those members who do not gain a 1st in a full class up to the last show. A further list of prizes is in course of arrangement. As was the case last year, every member who shows a bird during the competition will receive a prize. The list of prizes given will compare favourably with that of any other society. Any fancier wishing to join and exhibit at our first show may give his name to any member, and bring along his birds on February 12th, when he will receive a welcome. The voting was as follows:—President, Mr. E. W. Johnson; vice-presidents, Messrs. H. Kershaw and H. Taylor; treasurer, E. M. Waddington; auditors, Messrs. H. Smith and B. Wilman; assistant sec., Mr. W. North; Management Committee, J. Lawson, R. Hinchliffe, B. Wilkinson, W. Ketteringham, and J. Hodgson; trustees, O. Priestley and F. Gelder.—F. GELDER, sec.

Southern Norwich Plainhead Club.

Annual Meeting.

The annual meeting was held in the Board Room of the Crystal Palace on Feb. 7th, Mr. E. Baker in the chair. There were also present Messrs. J. W. Ramsden, L. Richardson, R. A. Newley, T. Botell, A. T. Bellinger, E. W. Rogers, G. F. Woolhouse, H. Schneider, H. Frost, S. Gill, G. Crabb, A. J. Kilby, Geo. Gardner, F. Lathlieff, R. J. Pretty A. E. Lawrence, G. W. Saunders, C. Young, and C. J. Godfrey. The Secretary announced that the specials had been won as follows:—Messrs. Gill and Pethick, the £10 10s. cup, with 128 points and the £3 3s. special with 92 points; Mr. E. Baker the £1 1s. special with 74 points; Mr. Midgley the 15s. special with 69 points; Mr. Hodder the 10s. special with 58 points; and Mr. Rennie the 5s. special with 56 points; Mr. E. Baker won the £1 1s. cup at Battersea with 19 points; and Mr. Kirby the £1 1s. cup at Swansea with 14 points. In the novice competition Mr. G. Palmer won the teapot, also the 2s. 6d. special for best 4th prize bird at Southend; and Mr. F. Botell the 2s. 6d. special for best vhc bird at same show. Mr. F. Knight won the teapot at Wimbledon; and Messrs. Berry and Mitchell the 2s. 6d. specials for best 4th prize and best vhc birds at the same show. Mr. Billington won the teapot at Horticultural Hall, and Mr. G. A. Thursby the 2s. 6d. special for best vhc bird. Mr. Billington won the £1 1s. cup for novice section for most points; Messrs. Gill and Pethick the special for most points given by Mr. J. W. Ramsden, and Mr. Billington for second most points for birds fed on his pure pepper.

Mr. E. Baker was re-elected president; Mr. Matthes, treasurer; and Messrs. Heath and Simpson auditors. The following were elected on the committee: Messrs. Hodder, Ramsden, Geo. Gardner, Curtis, Robson, and Morris, for London; and Messrs. Midgley, Rennie, A. J. Kilby, Collings, Rippon, Ellis, for the provinces; and in case of Mr. Rennie declining to stand, his place will be filled by Mr. A. E. Godden.

The Financial Position.

The Hon. Secretary and Treasurer presented the balance-sheet for the year, and made a brief statement of the work of the club. They had had fairly good competition at the shows during the year. He would like to have seen a few more novices enter the competition, but they seemed to leave off just at the point when they ought to go forword to success. They had £33 6s. 7d. in hand on Dec. 30th, but there were a lot of expenses, amounting to £27 9s., which left a balance in hand of £5 15s. 7d. Their assets, including specials, were worth £8 10s. 7d., and if they received donations to the sum of about 30s., they would be able to provide all specials. Several gentlemen at once subscribed towards the sum asked for by the secretary. They had enrolled from eighteen to twenty new members, and he had received six resignations, which left an increase of twelve to fourteen members on the year, but he thought they would have to strike off about ten or twelve members who were in arrears. The report was adopted on the motion of Mr. Woolhouse, seconded by Mr. A. J. Kilby.

Mr. G. F. Woolhouse moved: "That a new rule be inserted to govern patronage: 'That the clubs or societies applying for our patronage shall be submitted to the whole of the members, and those obtaining the highest number of votes to receive the same.'" As no one rose to second the motion, Mr. Gardner said, in order that it should be discussed, and without pledging himself to agreement, he seconded the motion.—Mr. Newley said he could not see that any good was likely to accrue from the adoption of the proposal.—Mr. Kilby: Shows which have been given the club's patronage have always been selected by the committee.—Mr. Matthes said he could not see how the proposal could be worked. It would cause muddle, and perhaps the sending out of three sets of voting papers before their patronage was settled. This would entail additional expense of 7s. or 8s. in postage, etc., and he would rather they spent the money in specials. He assured Mr. Woolhouse that when the committee granted patronage they did so without any bias or feeling, and solely with a view to benefitting the club's members.

Others took part in the discussion, and ultimately the motion was lost.

Mr. Midgley moved: "That the shows for the cup competition be reduced to four in number and spread over a longer space of time."—This motion was seconded by Mr. Richardson, and the Chairman said he thought it unfair to run these shows so close together. Another thing he would like to mention, the societies which received the club's patronage frequently gave no other specials, which made things very unfair to non-members of the club who were exhibiting. He thought that when granting club patronage some intimation should be given to societies that the club did not think it fair for committees to withdraw all other specials.—Mr. Matthes thought four shows would not be sufficient.—After further discussion, Mr. Gill moved that patronage be given to six shows, leaving it to the discretion of the committee to fix the details, bearing in mind the opinions expressed.—This was carried.

Mr. Baker (the chairman) having to leave the meeting, it was moved that Mr. R. Pretty take the chair for the remainder of the business.

Mr. Godden moved: "That members joining after August 1st, subscription to be paid within one month, or before any show competing at, to be enabled to partake in any benefits of membership."—Mr. Richardson seconded.—After some discussion, the motion was put to the meeting and carried.

Mr. Tottle moved: "That all points scored by members competing for club specials at shows under club patronage, be published by the hon. secretary in the Fancy Press within fourteen days of such shows, and all appeals against such points to be made to the hon. secretary within ten days of such publication"; but as it was not seconded the resolution fell through. But the Secretary promised to give as much information in the Press as he was able to get as to points after each show.

Proposed by Mr. Woolhouse, seconded by Mr. Saunders, "that a hearty vote of thanks to sent to Mr. E. Baker (president) for his past services."—Carried.

A vote of thanks to the retiring officers, moved by Mr. Saunders, seconded by Mr. Young, concluded the meeting, which was about the best annual meeting the club had had since its formation.—The Secretary then announced that he could only thank all for their kind assistance to himself and the officers. To those who won specials he said he would get them as soon as possible, and send them on after a presentation meeting, to be held in conjunction with a lecture on the Norwich Plainhead by Mr. Robson in March.

We are pleased to be able to acknowledge this week a substantial increase in the sum total. The efforts of readers have been supplemented by a generous donation of £5 5s. from Messrs. Spratts Patent, Ltd., evidencing the sympathetic interest taken by this world-renowned firm in the welfare of the bird-keeper and his hobby. The preparation of the case is proceeding rapidly, and under the best possible of legal advice, so that in the near future we hope to be able to announce the date of trial of this momentous issue, the result of which, we are convinced, will vindicate the right of the British bird-lover to proceed in his hobby free from the practically killing restriction that Mr. Biron's decision would impose.

This is a fund being established to enable an appeal to be made to the High Court of Justice, against a decision arrived at by Mr. Biron (the magistrate sitting at the Old Street, London, Police Court), at the instance of the R.S.P.C.A., that no person may be in possession of a recently-taken British bird if that said bird is included in the list of protected species for the district in which the said person resides. Whether the bird was legally taken in a district wherein it is not protected they contend does not affect the case. The society recently brought a test case (Preston and Flowers), and the extreme seriousness of the aforesaid decision will be at once apparent. It means that in protected districts (and they comprise practically all the thickly-populated areas and towns in the British Isles) everyone who keeps a newly-taken British bird, and every dealer who exposes one for sale, can be prosecuted and fined.

We, however, have it on high legal authority that if this decision of Mr. Biron be taken to the High Courts there is every likelihood of it being set aside, and in response to a request, have opened a fund to enable this course to be adopted, and the legal aspect of the question to be adequately thrashed out, as the defendants in this test case have not the means to carry the matter further, the estimated cost being from £50 to £60.

Sympathisers should send their contributions at once, addressed to Mr. George Crabb, c.o. the Editor, CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C., and state clearly in their letter that it is intended as a donation towards the "Preston and Flowers Defence Fund." Mr. Crabb is the well-known gentleman who for so many years was chairman of the London and Provincial O.S., and has very kindly consented to act as treasurer.

The fifth list of subscriptions received by Mr. Crabb up to Wednesday evening last is as follows: Messrs. Spratt's Patent, Ltd., £5 5s.; Tunbridge Wells F.A. and committee, £1 2s.; Nottingham and Notts O.S., 15s.; Peterboro C.B.A., 15s.; Leicester Hand-in-Hand C.B.S., 10s. 6d.; Coventry O.S., 10s. 6d.; per Mr. D. Ross, of Forres (Mr. D Ross, 3s.; Mr. C. Ross 2s; Mr. C. Ross, jun., 1s.; Mr. A. Phimister, 1s.; Mr. J. Main, 1s.; and Mr. A. Cample, 1s.), 9s.; Swan Bird Club, 7s.; Ormskirk C.B.S., 7s.; Kelty and Blairadam C.B.A., 7s.; Broughty Ferry C.B.S., 5s. 10d.; Stockton-on-Tees C.B.S., 5s. 3d.; Nelson C.B.S., 5s.; Kirkcaldy C.B.S., 5s.; Colne C.B.S., 5s.; Windsor C.B.A. 5s.; Mr. W. Judd (Leicester), 5s.; Lutterworth C.B.S., 5s.; Hamilton (Cadzow Oaks) O.S., 4s. 6d.; Darlington C.B.S., 4s.; Halifax O.S., 3s. 6d.; Sheffield Linnet Singing Society, 3s. 6d.; J.H., 2s. 6d.; J. P. Carr (London, S.W.), 2s. 6d.; Robindene, 2s. 6d.; Mr. A. Hacker (Shoreditch, E.), 2s. 6d.; Mr. Jas. A. Douglas (London, W.), 2s.; Mr. E. Hedges (Maidenhead), 1s.; Mr. N. Netherwood, and two friends, 9d.; and Mr. A. L. Penfold (London, W.), 6d. These amounts total £13 18s. 10d., and together with those already acknowledged, bring the aggregate subscriptions received up to £41 19s. 5d. In acknowledging the amount sent by Mr. H. Allen last week, this should have been given as Mr. Harry Allen (Leeds).

Protection in Co. Dublin.

The "Dublin Gazette" announces that the taking or destroying of the eggs of the following wild birds is prohibited throughout the Co. Dublin, including Lambay and Ireland's Eye, between March 1st and August 1st, for five years, commencing March 1st, 1910:—Black Guillemot, Chough, Crossbill, Goldfinch, Kestrel, Kingfisher, Oystercatcher, Owl, Peregrine Falcon, Plover, Raven, Shelduck, Skylark, and Tern.

SPRATT'S SPECIALITIES.

Some "Good Things" for Bird-keepers.

With the breeding season so near, fanciers, if they are wise, will be looking round not only for suitable kinds of foods for their stock, but for those foods whose quality is absolutely reliable. Now is the time over and above all others when the greatest care needs to be exercised in the giving of "conditioners," etc., to one's birds, and a little judicious management at this critical period will be worth a great deal later on. And it was with a view to supplying these special needs of fanciers that Messrs. Spratt's Patent, Ltd., introduced the specialities for which they are now so well known.

No one needs enlightenment as to the claims of Spratt's renowned Cage Bird Food, whose rearing qualities are so well established. The enormous sales of this article have more than justified the experiments of the proprietors in seeking out and placing within the reach of all fanciers a thoroughly good and genuine substitute for the egg and bread diet of years ago. Another of this firm's specialities is "Spratt's Cod Liver Oil Food," which will be found a most valuable conditioner for all kinds of birds, and especially for hens which need to be brought into perfect breeding form. Fanciers who want their birds to do well in the breeding season should not fail to give these two articles an important place in the birdy menu.

On reason why Messrs. Spratt's are able to command such a huge and ready sale for their goods is that they only deal with seeds and foods of the very finest quality the world can produce; thus whether they supply big users with large quantities of Canary rape, hemp, thistle, teazle, niger, lin and other seeds, or individual fanciers with small packets of their celebrated "Mixed Bird Seeds," absolute reliance can always be placed on their goods. And what a boon are their packets and bags of "Mixed Bird Seeds" to the bird-keeper, whose time and knowledge of the best methods of seed-mixing are limited!

"Spratt's Finch Mixture" and "Spratt's Linnet Mixture" are two foods specially adapted to the needs of Mule breeding fanciers, and it will be seen that the best interests of the birds and of the bird-keepers alike are considered, when it is pointed out that no fewer than twenty kinds of seeds are used for each "mixture." Two important specialities are "Spratt's Caledonia Grit" and "Spratt's Avicultura Gravel," by means of which the keeping of birds in good health and condition should be an easy matter. Other specialities include "Spratt's Chemical Food," "Spratt's Canarydyne" and "Spratt's Quinella," all of which are invaluable as tonics and remedies for the various ills which birds are heir to.

LOOK HERE FANCIERS! Not one entry in 5 Yorkshire, 1 Norwich, 1 Mule or Hybrid, 1 British Bird, classes at THIRSK, FEBRUARY 18 Entries extended to February 15. Classification in last week's "Cage Birds"

BELL, Ingramgate, THIRSK.

At the recent roller skating carnival held at the St. Margaret's Hall, Twickenham, one of our readers, Mr. W. H. S. Shoobert, took first prize for the most original fancy costume, which was entitled "Cage Birds," and made from our coloured plates, etc.

Seven cage-bird classes are provided for the members' show of the Tunbridge Wells and Dis. F.A., to be held in the Friendley Societies' Hall, Camden Road, on February 16th. The public will be admitted at 7.30 p.m. A good show is expected.

I am pleased to inform you, writes Mr. G. Hitchman, the hon. secretary of the Wellington (Salop) and Dis. P.P. and Cage Bird Society, that I am making satisfactory progress towards recovery from my accident, and hope to get out of doors (on crutches) in a few days' time.

The 1910 programme of the Manchester and Northern Counties O.S. is a very inviting one, including lectures by Mr. J. W. Cutmore (Popular British Birds), Mr. W. A. Cowgill (Management of the Yorkshire Canary), Mr. J. Bottle (The Norwich Canary), Mr. W. A. Bladon (Experiments with Cinnamon Blood), Mr. C. Houlton (Hybrid Breeding), washing demonstrations, etc. The secretary is Mr. H. Boothman, 8, Kettering Road, Levenshulme, Manchester.

WELLINGTON (SALOP). Annual Open Show of Poultry, Pigeons and Cage Birds (under Cage Bird Union License), March 3rd and 4th, 1910. Cage Bird Judge, Mr. A. C. Brotherhood. No cancelling or amalgamation. Silver Cups and Gold Medals presented second day of Show and Prize Money within three days. Schedules ready February 14th from the Hon. Secretary, 6, Spring Hill, Wellington, Salop.

The annual social of the Newcastle C.B.S. is due to be held on February 22nd next, and members and friends are requested to make a note of date.

I am pleased to inform you that the new hon. secretary for the Coventry O.S. is Mr. J. Shaddock, of 97, Moor Street, Coventry, writes Mr. Geo. Peters, the late hon. secretary.

The 1909 balance-sheet of the Midland Roller Canary Club shows a balance in hand of £6 8s. 3½d., which, considering the club is a new one, is highly satisfactory. The secretary, Mr. J. H. Willows, and his colleagues are to be congratulated.

I very much regret that my new price-list is not ready yet, writes Mr. E. E. Pass (Hucknall Torkard). I have been expecting it for a fortnight. The delay is caused through the firm that is making the blocks being dilatory; but to those who have sent their address we will post us early as possible (free of charge).

Mr. Duigenan has informed me, writes Mr. J. R. Hyland, hon. secretary of the Yorkshire Canary Club of Ireland, that through unforseen circumstances he is unable to have the balance sheet ready for the committee which he promised for February 10th. Therefore the meeting will not be held till February 17th.

We have received an order (cash enclosed) for a copy of "Aviaries, Birdrooms, and Cages," and a copy of "The British Bird Manual—Hardbills," but the sender's name and address appear not to have been sent. Upon receipt of this information we shall be pleased to execute the order at once.

We have secured the services of Mr. Wilcock of Bradford, to judge our show on October 29th next, writes Mr. E. Woodhead, hon. secretary of the Hartlepools C.B.S. As this is his first appearance at our fixture, we hope exhibitors, especially Yorkshiremen, will give him a flattering entry.

TWO SUPERB STANDARD WORKS.

"Our Canaries."

"Cage Bird Hybrids."

READY ON OR ABOUT APRIL 9th.

I have for some considerable time past had under preparation on a scale of unprecedented beauty and completeness the two works named as above. Nothing to equal them can be or will be given to the public at the same price. To instance the thoroughness with which these books have been designed, there will be no less than 16 separate and distinct plates of Mules and Hybrids, and 36 separate and distinct plates of Canaries. No pains or expense will be spared to secure the maximum of result at the minimum of expense to the purchaser.

F. CARL,

154, FLEET STREET, LONDON, E.C.

We are asked to state that Mr. Harry E. Wilkinson and Mr. Fred. W. Elliott have gone into partnership.

First in Class 31 at Llanelly Show should read Quarman instead of Morgan and Willcox.—S. W. Quarman (Bristol).

Messrs. A. Hallam and W. Lovatt have been appointed secretaries of the Longton and Dis. C.B.S., and all communications should be sent to them at No. 5, Francis Street, Longton, Staffs.

Owing to the Brotton Fanciers' Society not having got all the subscriptions in up to date, they are compelled to postpone the payment of prize money until they have a meeting on February 16th, writes Mr. W. J. Beaglehole, the secretary.

Kindly note that I have taken over the secretaryship of the Blackpool and Fylde Cage Bird Society. I shall be pleased to receive names of fanciers who would care to join our society, writes Mr. Jas. R. Crossby, 91, Handsworth Road, Blackpool.

May I draw Metropolitan fanciers' attention to the fact that we are having a lecture by Mr. R. J. Watts on "Foreign Birds," at our next meeting on February 21st, at the Sessions House Hotel, Clerkenwell, E.C., writes Mr. W. Gilbert, the hon. secretary, London and Counties O.S. All fancier friends are invited.

I have disposed, at a very handsome figure, of my winning team of Mules and Hybrids, viz., the clear Linnet Mule, yellow var., Goldfinch Mules, yellow Canary Bullie, and Linnet Bullie, winners of 26 prizes in Scotland to Mr. H. Christian, of Leicester, and wish the plucky owner every success, writes Mr. Charles Douglas (Tarbert).

The proprietors of the H.D.S. "Ever-ready" movable bracket, write us expressing their appreciation of the courtesy and help extended to them in connection with their stall by Mr. J. W. Ramsden during the recent Palace Show.

Mr. G. Taylor, of Hatfield, near Doncaster, draws our attention to an error in his advertisement last week. The price given as 7s. should be 70s. Will applicants who have received no reply to their letters please accept this explanation?

At the next general meeting of the Preston O.S., to be held at the Tokio Cafe, on March 3rd, after the usual business there will be a tea, followed by a concert, when some good talent will be in evidence. It is expected all members will be present, also any local fancier who would like to spend the evening with us will be welcome.—R. Taylor, secretary.

It may interest you to know, writes Mr. R. Taylor (Preston), that there is a Canary here in Preston which is over 18 years old. Mr. Cleminson was a neighbour of the people who owned the bird 15 years ago, and knows the bird well. It is only a common one, and is singing hard at the present time, and can be seen at Mrs. Walker's, 11, Brad Street, Preston.

Our next show will be held on November 12th, writes Mr. T. Arnott, hon. secretary of the Kirkcaldy C.B.S. The judges of same are: for Scotch Fancies, Mr. W. Rodger (Slateford); for Border Fancies, Mr. J. W. Bruce (Coldstream); for Norwich, A. Thomson (Aberdeen); for Crests, Mr. W. Reid (Falkirk); and for British, Mr. W. Sharp (Bathgate). These gentlemen are all specialists in the respective varieties, and are well-known exhibitors themselves.

We hear that Mr. J. Walsh, of Blackburn, has been engaged to judge the British, Mules, etc., at the annual show of the Morriston and Dis. C.B.S., to be held on December 8th.

The next meeting night being February 15th, and it being the last meeting of the year, it has been arranged to have a social evening and presentation of prizes at headquarters, when all members who have gained points will receive a special.—F. Mitchell, hon. secretary of the Brighouse and Dis. C.B.S.

Our young bird show takes place on July 2nd, and the annual show on November 18th and 19th, writes Mr. V. Wynn, hon. secretary of the City and Suburban A.C.B. Will secretaries kindly note, so that the dates may not clash with our neighbours'? These are the same as last year.

Members of the Newcastle C.B.S. are earnestly requested to attend at the special meeting to be held on February 17th, when it is expected that our president, A. J. Heggie, Esq., will be attending, write Messrs. Curry and Hutchinson, the secretaries. The election of officers has been held over until this meeting by request.

We are holding our show on Easter Tuesday, March 29th, writes Mr. F. J. Davies, hon. secretary of the Aberdare P.P. and Cage Bird Association. Mr. Castree will judge the cage birds. It is hoped other secretaries will note the date to avoid clashing. We hope to make the show an annual event, it having been dropped for some years.

The Selston and Dis. F.S., writes Mr. F. Maltby, the secretary, has decided to hold a table show on February 19th, entry fee 6d., when all above six entries in each class will go towards the society funds. All exhibits must be at the schoolroom, Selston, not later than 7 o'clock. Fanciers wishing to join the society should apply to me.

I take this opportunity of publicly acknowledging and thanking all who have assisted us in the matter of Mr. Wilson's subscription sale, writes Mr. A. Cant, hon. secretary, Hamilton (Cadzow Oaks) O.S. The winning numbers will be published in the Fancy Press and in a local paper issued on February 19th. If there are any duplicates of sold tickets not yet returned, I will be pleased to receive them up to February 12th.

For the 26th year in succession the exhibits at Cruft's great dog show are being benched by Spratt's Patent, Limited, and during the three days Spratt's meat "Fibrine" dog cakes, "Rodnie" or puppy biscuits are exclusively used for all breeds. It is satisfactory to know Messrs. Spratt's guarantee that their dog cakes contain neither chemicals nor added sugar, both ingredients being regarded by that company as injurious if continuously given.

We are informed that a remarkable consignment of Australian birds (valued at over £1,000) has just been received by Messrs. De Von, Ltd., the well-known dealers, of Bethnal Green Road, London, E., who imported them direct. The birds have had a very good voyage, arriving in fine condition. Included are some rare Parrakeets, Red and Black-headed Gouldians, and a few of the rare and beautiful Painted Finches, besides numerous Finches of the better-known species.

The balance-sheet of the Manchester and Northern Counties O.S. for the year ended December, 1909, shows a balance in hand of £8 17s. 2d. which, considering four honorariums amounting in all to £14 14s., were paid, and £3 6s. devoted to special prizes for the July First Feather Show, must be regarded as very satisfactory indeed. The late secretary, Mr. G. W. F. Lythgoe and the present secretary, Mr. H. Boothman, are to be complimented on this result.

The first show of the Irvine and Dis. O.S., writes Mr. W. S. Clark, the hon. secretary, closed at 4 o'clock, and we had every bird out of the hall, and those going by rail off to the station, and fed and watered about a dozen birds that were not able to reach their home, or catch their connections—all shortly after 7 o'clock. Everything, too, went off without a hitch. I think this says much for us. Our drawings amounted to over nine pounds, and we will be able to carry all this and more over to next year. So our outlook for our next show is very bright.

The last of the series of four table shows, in connection with the Rochdale Good Intent C.B.S., writes Mr. W. Adams, the secretary, is to be held on February 16th, birds staged at 7.30, and show to open at 8.30 p.m. The competition having proved so keen in previous shows, several being equal in number of points, extra classes are being provided. It is the outside fanciers who are not already members whom we desire to see, and they are just as welcome as our own members. The society is gradually making its way to the top, and we hope we shall have a good response to this call, as if time permits there will be a discussion on the birds staged.

The Early Birds.

I have three nests of Roller Canaries (12 in all), and one Mule (Goldfinch and Canary), all January (1910) birds, writes Mr. J. Leverland (Leeds).

A Secretary Protests.

I very much regret to have to express my feelings regarding the poor attendance of the members at the meetings of the Admiral Duncan (Notts.) O.S., writes Mr. Wm. Healey, the secretary. As secretary I cannot do otherwise than take it as a personal insult to myself. There were six members present at the general meeting, and five members (including a new one) at the annual meeting! I cannot possibly do business with such poor support. There is small wonder at secretaries resigning when their efforts on behalf of their society receive such lukewarm support from the members.

The Exhibiting of British Birds.

By GAVIN ALSTON (Darvel).

We will suppose we have got a specimen we have great hopes in, and are about to prepare to moult it. It has great size in its favour, fine shape, and carriage, and is a beauty for colour and marking, and we cannot help looking at it every time we enter the birdroom. How are we to treat it during the moult so as to be able to stage it afterwards in the best possible form?

Different species require different treatment. Let a large portion of their bill of fare be the same as they are used to getting during the moulting season in a natural state. Give a Goldfinch plenty of thistles and hardheads, and a Bullfinch plenty of rowans. Linnets, Twites, Redpolls, and Siskins, enjoy a mixture of wild mustard, chickweed, and all the other common weeds. In addition to these a Greenfinch is very tenacious on the half-ripe heads of oats and sunflower seeds. A Chaffinch and Bramblefinch moult best in an open wire flight, where they can get plenty of winged insect life. All these extras should be given in addition to the usual bird seed of best quality. The Buntings are easily catered for, some ripe oats, a mealworm or two daily, and Canary seed only being required.

Colour-food is also sometimes supplied to many of the British birds particularly the Greenfinch, Siskin and Yellowhammer. Some individuals eat it readily, and it only requires to be supplied in addition to their other food, for the greater part of the day, so as to force them to eat the colour-food. There is a diversity of opinion as to how highly they should be fed, but I believe in either feeding them as heavily as possible or keeping them their natural colour. Red feed should be used, and not yellow, as is sometimes advised, and should be mixed up the same as for feeding Canaries—two heaped teaspoonfuls to one egg, with an equal quantity of biscuit powder. Begin with it lightly at first as soon as you see any feathers shed, and increase it gradually till you see the excrement quite red in colour, and by it you will know they are getting plenty. Continue the colour food till after they are quite through the moult, and let them have a little of it once or twice a week afterwards all through the show season.

A Moulting Essential.

The great thing in moulting birds for exhibition is to get them through the moult as early in the season as possible. The new feathers assume neither their full depth of colour nor their full lustre at first. These develop gradually after the birds are clean-moulted. It is advisable, therefore, to allow sufficient time for this before placing the bird in a show-room. It is also advantageous to get a bird through the moult as quickly as possible. A quick moult denotes a healthy subject, a very slow moult a weak one. I think birds moult earlier and get through it quicker if kept in a birdroom that gets well heated up with the sun through the day; and they moult quicker in a large flight than in a small cage. Plenty of fresh air, light and exercise, are all in their favour. Draughts, however, must be avoided, as half-naked birds are very liable to catch cold. When the birds are clean-moulted they should be allowed a bath every bright day, also a little lint seed, as these are two very good conditioners. If the birds will not use the bath in a cage they should be sprayed, and this some of them greatly enjoy. Keep spraying them first one side and then the other, till the water begins to trickle off them. Then they have had enough.

To be sure of winning you should moult at least three birds of the different species. One may disappoint you in the moulting, and you are all the better for having two you can send out. Suppose they differ considerably in type and marking, they are none the worse for that. Judges differ in their tastes; they vary as to what in their opinion constitutes a good bird, so that the specimen that pleased one may not at all appeal to another. You can see the proof of this at almost every show. Birds may be winning in a large class one Saturday, and yet not in the cards in the same company on the next one, and it is only a bird that no judge can get past that tops the class every time, and such birds do not turn up every season, but only once in a while.

Judges and their Judging.

Some judges must have a very large bird, something that "fills the eye"; others lay more stress on shape and quality, and if you don't know the judge's taste you will do better to give him the choice of two birds, so that if you are "out of it" with the one, you may chance to be "in" with the other. Often it will be the exhibit that you think least of that comes nearest the front. You can see that every week if you study the show catalogues and the prices of an exhibitor's two entries. The one that is first in the catalogue and in at the bigger price is probably left out, and the one marked at the lower price is among the tickets.

If you find that a judge does not care for your exhibit, don't trouble him with it any more. It is only throwing money away; but if you find that he puts it well to the front, follow him up with it to the next show he is judging. You will run a good chance again of winning. And so it is that some judges get into bad repute with some exhibitors. Exhibitors say "Oh, he'll just give so-and-so the prize," when all the time it is just that exhibitor's particular bird he is partial to. Therefore, brother fanciers, suppose a judge does not give your exhibit the place you think you are entitled to, do not begin to blackguard him; rather incline to the belief that he acted fairly, and that he considered the different birds were entitled to the places he put them in. Of course, I am aware there are some glaring cases where anyone can see your birds were beaten by inferior ones. But it is bad policy for a judge to act unfairly, because at the next show he adjudicates at he will find fanciers do not patronise it because they have not confidence in his placings. And, after all, it is not flattering to a judge's skill if nobody can see eye to eye with him; but if a judge has the reputation of putting the best birds to the front just see what an entry is sent out to him.

Some judges again have the unenviable reputation of being "terrors on fakers"; they turn their glasses over a lot of the birds and test any they are suspicious of. While I would be the last to defend dishonest exhibiting, I do think no judge should be allowed to remove any bird from its cage to be tested till at least two of the show officials have sanctioned the procedure, and then the secretary should be instructed to communicate at once with the exhibitor informing him of the action that had been taken, and giving the result of the testing. This would give the exhibitor a fair chance of vindicating himself on the spot. I think it should only be in cases of the gravest suspicion that a bird should be caught and so run the risk of being spoiled for the rest of the season.

To Prevent Birds Washing at Shows.

It must be apparent to societies that the success of a show depends largely on the party (or parties) appointed to judge it. It is essential then that you hold your meeting for that purpose early in the season, so that you can engage the judge you wish, as the best men are generally "picked up" early. Be early then, and save disappointment.

But to return to our subject; there are other reasons for your exhibit being placed further back than you think it deserved. It very frequently happens that when you send your birds to a show, whoever is unpacking them fills up the drinkers to the lip. If the morning happens to be bright, the birds want to have a splash in it, and when the judge comes to look at the class, the faces of your birds are all wet. If the exhibit is a Goldfinch or a Goldfinch hybrid, no judge can see its merits when it is in such a state. Any bird, in fact, is placed at a disadvantage if its face is wet. If you are staging your birds yourself, you can avoid this by only putting a little water in the bottom of the tin, but it is not always convenient to accompany your birds to a show, and in that case a tin drinker (with a hinged flap and a small round hole) should be used; this entirely obviates any chance of a bird performing its ablutions on a show morning.

My Experiences in the Breeding of the Crested Canary.

By A. F. FIFIELD.

My favourite variety of Canary is the Crest, and for the last four years I have confined myself to this variety. My income being very limited, I have to do things on a small scale, so it is quality I go in for, and not quantity.

My bird-room is outdoors, and is 7ft. long by 5ft. wide, and 6ft. 6ins. high. Inside it is fitted out with two flight cages, 40ins. by 20ins. by 11ins. along the bottom, with two rows of four cages, 20ins. by 15ins. by 11ins. on top, altogether making a very useful and compact stack, nicely filling out the shed, and accommodating about 20 birds.

My Ideal Crest.

The great drawback to Crests is blindness. I therefore favour the spreading crest, coming nicely to beak-end with a good droop. I do not like to see a crest too dense and heavy, as apart from affecting the eyes it makes the bird look top-heavy, and out of proportion. I also like to see plenty of good body feather, nice and veiny, as I think this always adds to the appearance of a good Crest. The coloured plate with one of the Birthday Numbers of CAGE BIRDS depicts a good specimen of what I have in my mind's eye, and makes an excellent model for anybody to work to. It does the artist great credit.

Early in the spring I look up all the breeding utensils and thoroughly clean them, and get everything in readiness. I generally pair the birds together early in April, having in the meantime got my birds into good trim, by being rather liberal with their diet, giving them plenty of green food, and a little egg-food twice a week, for about a month before putting them together. I usually put up four pairs of Crests, and one pair for feeders.

When they have been together about three days, I put the nest-pan in and some moss, and find they generally soon get to business. I always take the eggs away each day until the third is laid, substituting "dummies," as this is the safest way. If the cock behaves himself, I leave him with the hen, as he will be a great help to her when the eggs hatch; but if he is at all meddlesome, I take him away, as it is risky leaving him.

When the Hens are Nervous.

Cage No..... FIRST ROUND.

Description of Parents.....

No. of Eggs Laid.....

No. Hatched.....

I fill the cards up and keep them, putting a fresh one in for each round. Then at the end of the season, I can soon total up what each pair has bred. I hang the bath on two or three days before the young are due to hatch, as I consider it helps to soften the shell, thereby making it easier for the young to get out.

When the young are about a week old, I give a little green food, in the way of very young lettuce leaves (having previously planted some lettuce seed), which I find more beneficial than either watercress or dandelion leaves.

The Food Supplied.

I use egg and biscuits, making it gradually weaker and weaker until the young are weaned on to seed at about six weeks old, by which time, of course, they are by themselves in the flight cages, the Crests in one, and the Crest-breds in the other. When they are about seven weeks old, I give them nothing but good, sound, plain Canary seed, with a bread-and-milk diet once a week, as I find this freshens the birds up wonderfully.

I might add a warning note here: Keep your eyes open for "plucking" hens. Last year I had two young hatch out of four eggs, they were both self-greens and very promising youngsters. All went well until they were about three weeks old. The parents appeared to be feeding and behaving themselves all right, but on coming home one evening, I found they had plucked absolutely every feather out of the young birds. I had to remove them to a nursery cage, but the parents refused to feed them, so I fed them by hand until they could pick up for themselves. They looked despicable objects in the nursery cage, and I never expected to rear them, but I did, and they were a lot of trouble for a long time, as they kept partially moulting, being two late birds.

I never take more than three nests from one pair of birds, as I think they have had enough by then, so I turn them all into the flight cages for a stretch.

The Moulting of Crests.

The moulting period is generally a most trying time to all fanciers, more especially to the breeders of the other varieties, that must essentially be colour-fed to do any good on the show bench. Personally I always adopt the plan of singling out the most promising youngsters, and moulting them by themselves, leaving all the others in the flights, Crests in one and Crest-breds in the other. I give a bath on warm days, as I think it invigorates them, and helps them to shed the old feathers better. I also give them a little egg-food occasionally, and put a little Parish's Chemical Food in the drinking water once a week, as I am a firm believer in the saying: "Prevention is better than cure."

I always keep chemical food at hand, as I find it a good pick-me-up with youngsters in the moult, and in very bad cases I put two or three drops daily direct into the beak, always with beneficial results. I use sawdust during the winter on the bottoms of the cages, putting the grit in a separate tin for them. I start using the sawdust when the birds begin moulting, and use it throughout the winter, till pairing up time; then I go back to sand for breeding time and the summer. I find that this answers satisfactorily. In conclusion, let me say that if ever I am in doubt about anything, I always look up CAGE BIRDS, as I am sure of being able to pick up a wrinkle or two from it.

HOUSE'S CANARY MANUAL

By C. A. House. Post free 1/2 (postal order).

A thorough and practical guide to the general management and breeding of Canaries, written by a well-known expert and judge. It contains chapters dealing fully with the breeding, etc., of every member of the Canary family, including the German (or Roller) Canary.

An illustration of each bird, by the master Canary artist, Mr. H. Norman, reproduced in the finest art style.

There are also exhaustive chapters on aviaries and cages, breeding procedure, moulting, exhibiting, diseases and seeds—a compendium of knowledge approached by no other book of its kind at the price.

CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

How I Bred My Canary-Bullfinch Hybrids.

By Mrs. M. H. ASKHAM.

Specially written to accompany Mr. Norman's Coloured Plate.

The very artistic and life-like coloured plate by Mr. H. Norman, which accompanies our Crystal Palace number was painted, so far as the two Hybrids are concerned, from the beautiful specimens so successfully exhibited by Mrs. M. H. Askham. The cock was awarded first prize at this Palace Show in probably the strongest competition yet seen where Canary-Bullies have been concerned. It is with pleasure we publish, by courtesy of Mrs. Askham, an account of the methods by which her Hybrids were produced.

As possibly my experiences in the breeding of Canary-Bullies may be of interest to some of your readers, I will endeavour to recount them. Having been given a cock Norwich Canary from a good strain, it was suggested to me that I should find a mate for him, and dispose of the young birds to my friends. This I did and little by little increased my stock, until I had three or four pairs going.

Fired with Ambition.

In 1906 I visited the Crystal Palace show, and there saw the two beautiful Canary-Bullies exhibited by Mrs. Skey. I was so charmed with those lovely birds, and so astonished at the enormous value assigned to them, that I became fired with ambition to endeavour to breed some of the same kind.

I studied the pages of CAGE BIRDS, and availed myself very freely of the facilities afforded through the correspondence columns of that valuable paper for obtaining information, and I attribute much of my success to the advice so generously given. Seeing an advertisement in CAGE BIRDS of what appeared to be a likely hen Bullfinch for sale, I procured her. She came from a rural district of Norfolk, and was described as house-reared. I paired her with a young Norwich cock of my own breeding, but the match was not a happy one. Master Canary led a truly hen-pecked life, and without the aid of counsel or court, a separation was speedily resorted to. A fresh mate in the shape of another home-bred Buff Norwich Canary, then over six years old, was introduced, and friendly relations between the pair were soon established, and Mrs. Bullie in due time went to nest. Alas! all four eggs were clear. Later she laid one more egg, and curiosity on my part led to disaster. On testing the egg I had the misfortune to chip it with my nail. To my disgust I found that I had damaged an egg containing a well-formed chick.

Being now late in the season, I had to be content with this semblance of success, and hope for better luck next year. After the moult I turned all the birds into a large flight cage, where they remained a happy and merry party until it was time to start them housekeeping again.

The season of 1907, my second attempt at Hybrid breeding was attended with more cheerful results, for on June 9th I was delighted to find that I possessed a fine healthy Canary-Bullie chick. This turned out to be a hen, and though perfect in shape and size, is wanting in the depth of colour possessed by her brothers, and thus, while always getting a good deal of admiration, is not able to stand up on the show bench against her more highly coloured rivals. Nevertheless, she has brought home several prize cards.

On 7th July two more chicks appeared, one with white feathers in his tail. He has been successful on the few occasions where a variegated class appears in a show schedule, but when there are only light and dark classes much uncertainty exists as to the proper place for him. One judge will award him a prize in the dark class, while a week later another judge will "wrong class" him. It requires a good deal of imagination to say that a Canary Bullfinch is a light hybrid, and possibly some day an authoritative ruling may be given as to the correct classification of similar birds.

The second chick, startled by a severe thunderstorm and the heavy rain and hail on the glass roof of the small conservatory in which the birds are located, managed to wriggle between the wires of his cage, and flying with great force against the glass came to an untimely end. Other settings this season were abortive.

At My Wits' Ends.

More success attended my efforts in 1908. On 9th June a fine cock bird, without any white feathers, was hatched, and despite the vicissitudes of his early days, which I will relate presently, has gained for me many honours, and I am hoping he may yet bring in more glory in securing for me another win towards the possession of the challenge cup offered by the London and Provincial O.S.

When he was six days old I was horrified to find that the foster mother (hen Canary) had gone off her feed and that the chick was starving. All my other hens were sitting, and I was at my wits' end to know what to do next. My birds are so used to being handled by me that I can with impunity take a hen off her nest, change her into another cage, in fact, do just what I please with them. I accordingly placed the "orphan" under a very reliable hen for warmth, and decided to try hand feeding. The hen took no exception to the intruder, or to my feeding him, and after 24 hours I was surprised and delighted to discover that my confidence had not been misplaced, and that the good old hen had started feeding him on her own account.

Immediately he began to thrive. For a week the hen sat on her eggs (the product of Mrs. Bullie), and fed the stranger. Then I transferred the eggs to another hen to finish off, which she did successfully.

I may say that I was led to adopt this course because, earlier in the season, I had the misfortune to lose a hen which had hatched and was rearing a Canary-Bullie and a Canary chick. Having no foster mother available, I sent the Bullie to a friend, but the hen there resented the intrusion and kicked the stranger out to perish, while the Canary chick which I had stuffed under this same hen was calmly adopted and brought up.

The Sixth Canary-Bullie.

On 23rd June my sixth Canary-Bullie was hatched from one of the above-mentioned transferred eggs. This also was a cock with a white marking on its tail feathers, and as I was now getting more birds than I could manage, I parted with him at a good price to a fancier from the Continent. The year 1909 was a blank entirely, and this season I shall try a younger cock.

I have no regular bird-room, but keep them in cages in a small conservatory, facing south-east, and very much shaded by large trees on the south side. People are constantly passing through the conservatory to the garden, but so confident are my birds that beyond evincing a little curiosity, they take but little notice even when dogs are in the place.

All through the winter the birds run together in a large flight cage, and during the breeding season I use the ordinary London breeding cages with only an open shelf, on which the nest pans are placed in full view of all persons passing in and out of the house.

Mrs. Bullie will neither build nor sit, so I provide her with wild Finches' nests, new if possible. After a little pulling about she establishes herself in it, and rarely drops her eggs outside. She keeps three pairs of Canaries working hard all the season, and this means that I must, except for the early broods, sacrifice all my Canary eggs. So ravenous are the hybrid chicks that two, or one hybrid and one Canary, are all that a pair of Canaries can properly attend to.

As regards feeding, none of my birds have ever tasted egg or egg foods. The diet of the young chicks consists of dried flies, ants' eggs and crushed Osborne biscuits. Mealworms, canary, hemp, rape and whatever seeds seem necessary as the birds progress are given with green food, wild seeds and berries when available.

The Canaries are educated to take the dried flies, ants' eggs and biscuit mixture, and so are ready to start feeding the hybrids with appropriate food directly they are required to. The mixture is, as a rule, given dry, and a fresh supply three times a day is provided.

Mrs. Bullie is very fond of sunflower seeds of which she gets a very liberal supply, wire worms, green fly (aphides), spiders, caterpillars from the currant bush, all in the course of time appear on her menu card. She also gets in the spring shoots from currant, hawthorn, plum and the fruit trees. She likes apples and grapes, and during the breeding time dandelion flowers and seeding heads.

I do not hand wash my birds, but they are supplied freely with baths of rain water, and if indisposed to bathe are sprayed with a fine scent spray. All cages are thoroughly cleaned out every day to keep them sweet.

I have tried to get the Bullfinch-Canary cross without success. Mr. Bullie treats all attempts at flirtation on the part of the Canary hen with the greatest contempt. Last season one of the hybrid cocks displayed amorous tendencies towards a hen Canary, but here again there was no result. To any would-be Canary-Bullie breeders I say, be not discouraged by failures and disappointments at first. Persevere, get on good terms with your birds, tame them as much as possible, and in all matters of doubt take advantage of the advice which can so readily be obtained from the experts on the staff of CAGE BIRDS. There is no reason why others should not be as successful as I have been.

Our Conundrum Competition.

Some highly interesting replies to four interesting questions.

We append a selection from the answers sent in by readers who entered our "Conundrum Competition," the prize-winners in which we announced last week.

A FANTAIL NORWICH.

Why not strive for the Fantail Norwich Canary? This variety could be obtained by training the tail to grow upwards, at the same time spreading the feathers in the shape of a fan. This variety would look very pretty, and be much sought after.—SAMUEL ANDERSON (Dundee).

A BREED OF WHITE ONES.

A good (new) variety of Canary would be a breed of white ones; pure in colour as a white Java Sparrow.—H. G. HALL (Gorleston-on-Sea).

HALF-WAY BETWIXT A BORDER AND NORWICH.

I would advise the making of a new variety of Houdan-Canary. The type I would suggest is a jaunty type, half-way betwixt that of the Border and the Norwich. The main features to be the Houdan Poll or Busby, as in the poultry of this name. This head-dress should grow up and backwards from the frontal to a good length, so as to make a nice perfect "bob" on the head, the eye to be visible. The best colours to cultivate would be white and cream, and later on possibly there could be an article in these columns theorising the way to proceed to make speckled birds in this variety. The birds would be a distinct improvement on our present Crest, being of a more jaunty type, and therefore pleasant to the eye. The type also suggests a much hardier bird with more prolific qualities, for the Border and Norwich (from which they should be formed mainly) are generally both hardy and fruitful birds. No doubt CAGE BIRDS' artist could draw an ideal sketch of this suggested type.—EDW. WILLIAMS (Liscard).

WHITE CANARIES NORWICH IN TYPE.

Canary breeders ought to strive for a breed of Canaries pure white in colour, and of the Norwich type, but as large as possible; these would be both ornamental and exceedingly useful as clear Mule or Hybrid breeders, throwing out lovely tints of colour when crossed with most of our British birds.—WM. COWARD (Barrow-in-Furness).

WHAT ABOUT THE WELSHMEN?

Breeders should strive for a Welsh Fancy Canary. Other counties have their own breed, and there are, I think, plenty of good fanciers in Wales to take up a new variety.—JAMES HOARE (Bridgend).

IRELAND WITHOUT A FEATHER.

The new variety of Canary breeders should strive for is the one to be called the Irish Fancy. As you know, poor Ireland is left without a feather, as it were.—THOMAS ORMISTON (Dublin).

CANARIES WITH FRILL NECKS.

I have been reading a fancier's view of the Dutch Frill Canary, and he strongly recommends it to the novices as well as the old hands, giving his reasons for same. Why not strive for a new variety in the form of a frill neck, bred on the same lines as a Jacobin pigeon, i.e., with hood and mane, etc., and the better these points the more valuable the bird?—H. K. (Birmingham).

BEAUTIFUL AND EASILY BRED.

The Yorkshire Self Cinnamon. It is easily bred, and when one breeds a good typical bird and gets it nicely colour-fed, it is, to my mind, one of the most beautiful of the Yorkshire varieties, and no doubt would soon be as popular as his brother, the Yorkshire Green.—FRED ALLEN (Cleckheaton).

A WHITE EVEN-MARKED BORDER.

An even-marked Green (Border type) Canary. Ideal bird to have body colour either yellow or buff-green. Markings to consist of light spectacle eyes, either five or seven inside flight feathers in each wing, also light, and one or two either side of tail; in short, just the opposite colouring to the even-marked bird now shown.—J. M. B. MOORE (Whitehaven).

WELL WORTH STRIVING FOR.

If it can fairly be called "new," I think the Cinnamon-marked Norwich would be well worth striving for. To my mind, any Cinnamon-marked variety of Canary is very handsome, the Buffs in particular, especially when colour-fed, and as the Norwich variety is very rich in colour, and takes colour-food well, the result of grafting the Cinnamon-marks on to that variety should be an extremely handsome bird, which could not fail to win many admirers.—H. C. BROOKS (Horsham).

WHY NOT A BLACK NORWICH?

I think fanciers ought to try to breed a strain of Black Canaries, shape and form similar to the Norwich Canary.—THOMAS HAYES (Kirkham).

AN "ELIZABETH" YORKSHIRE.

Why not an Elizabeth Yorkshire? This variety, possessing a collar round the neck but open at the throat (the same as worn by Queen Elizabeth) could be obtained by training the feathers to grow upwards, also cropping them to make them grow longer?—SAMUEL ANDERSON (Dundee).

Question 2.—What British Bird is best for the beginner and why?

The Brown Linnet is the best for a beginner, it being a bird that is easily catered for and one that is admired for its song. If it has the good points of an exhibition bird, it generally finds a place on the show bench. This in many cases makes a beginner a keen fancier.—E. THORPE (Barugh, near Barnsley).

A BIRD WHICH GREETS ITS OWNER.

What is the best Britisher for the beginner? The Linnet, because it is a charming songster. With kind attention, too, it soon settles down to cage life. It invariably greets its owner with its lovely call notes, which show they are contented. It will make a prolific Muler paired to a Canary. The majority are safe with eggs, and feed the young. Linnet-Mules (if only as good songsters) fetch 10s. to 15s. each, and are nearly always preferred to Canaries, whilst exhibition Mules can and are bred by novices and champions alike for an outlay of 4s. or 5s. only.—J. HORSEY (Mortlake).

THE MOST BEAUTIFUL FINCH.

The best British bird for the beginner, I should say, is the Goldfinch, as it is the most beautiful of our British Finches, a free songster, cheap to buy, and easy to keep. Novices should purchase Greypates, and feed them on a mixture of a half-pound of niger, 3ozs. of Spanish canary seed, 3ozs. of linseed, 2ozs. of crushed hemp seed, and give fresh water two or three times a day, and every other day a pinch of Epsom salts in drink. The birds would then be very little trouble.—J. HOARE (Bridgend).

A BIRD WHICH CHEERS.

The Goldfinch is the best bird, in my opinion. Why? Because he is always cheering you up with his song. It is a bird that requires very little attention. It is also a good Muler. A novice will find it thriving on canary seed with a little mixture twice a week. It is very fond of greenstuff and a bit of apple or any fruit is good for him. Don't forget that the best cage is one with plenty of room, and only open in the front.—C. F. WILLIAMS (Gloucester).

THE POOR MAN'S SONGSTER.

What British bird is best for the beginner? I say the poor man's songster—the Linnet. Why? Because, in the words of Mr. G. E. Weston, "Song in the Linnet is not a question of price; it is possible any day in the week to buy for 6d. a bird that will become a charming singer." He will want taming, of course, which I have found to be an easy matter, for though at first a shy, timid bird, he soon becomes reconciled to captivity, and being a seed-eater is but little trouble. And given a nice, roomy cage, with plenty of clean gritty sand and a free use of the bath, there is no reason why the Linnet should not be a never-ending source of delight to the beginner in the fascinating hobby of British bird keeping. The best seeds for the Linnet are Canary, teazle, rape, charlock, linseed, with maw, niger, thistle, mustard, sesame as tit-bits; green food, shepherd's purse, groundsel, plantain.—WM. FORDEY (Rochdale).

FINE AND BOLD LOOKING.

I consider Greenfinches are the best birds for beginners. They are fine, bold-looking birds, and can stand rougher treatment than other Finches, as a rule. They do not bash about so much when fresh caught, and they soon become tame and confiding. They keep in good tight feather in limited quarters, and are easy to cater for, sunflower, canary, a little hemp, linseed, and rape, with shepherd's purse, chickweed, groundsel, knapweed, dandelion, and especially cornflower heads, and nearly-ripe wheat, with plenty of baths and a well-cleaned and sanded cage, keeping them in health for years. Their song is certainly not very much, but their call note of "Joey! Joey!" is as sweet and clear as that uttered by any bird. Some Greenfinches are fond of blackberries, and in severe weather I have seen them crack and eat maize. A good Greenfinch costs about 6d., and is not so liable to die off as a Goldfinch or Linnet costing three or four times as much.—G. O. STRIDE (St. Alban's).

BEYOND COMPARE.

The Goldfinch is the best for a beginner. My reasons are that no British bird can compare with the Goldfinch in beauty, song, and muling collectively. He adapts himself readily to cage life, is hardy, and easily catered for. A bird combining so many good qualities must appeal to a beginner, creating the "fever," and will make him, like Oliver Twist, "ask for more." It is a fact that for beauty of plumage the Goldfinch yields the palm to no other British cage bird. As a songster, with the exception, perhaps, of the Linnet, he is in the top flight amongst the hardbills. He also takes first place, being more applicable for hybridising, both with the Canary and other species. As a result of which his progeny also excels, both for beauty and variety, and commands a ready sale. Finally, and, perhaps, most important, a bird possessing so many attractions will soon win his way in the home, overcoming scruples or objections, whether these originate from stern parent or careful wife.—S. R. FULLER (Harrow).

The Heating of Bird-houses.

SIR,—I should like to hear from other working-men fanciers what they consider the best and cheapest way of heating a bird house. I bought one about a year ago. I have about twenty birds at the present time, and am pleased to say that although the water gets frozen up they are looking well, but owing to a recent illness I find I cannot stop long with them, as it is too cold at present. I thought of putting another thickness of board inside; would that answer? The last day I went to work I took a copy of CAGE BIRDS down the mine with me to give to a young man who is just commencing to keep birds.

Chaffinches that were Hatched and Reared by Canaries.

SIR,—The views of your correspondent "Hybrid," in January 15 issue, regarding Chaffinches not being reared by Canaries, are wrong. For instance, last breeding season I put a Chaffinch's egg under a hen Canary sitting on two eggs of her own. Unfortunately the egg came out four or five days sooner than her own, and in consequence the young Chaffinch smothered her two young ones the second day after they came out. In a second nest a hen Canary (a buff Norwich) hatched and reared five young Chaffinches on egg and biscuits. When strong three of them took fright one day and flew out of the nest, and the hen would not feed them afterwards, and so allowed them to die. But two remained in the nest. These she successfully brought up, and they are alive still—two strong, healthy birds. They are both hens I presume. She laid four eggs and sat close the usual time, but they were all clear. But the cock Canary was unsuccessful with his own species also. The Chaffinches get nothing to eat except mixed seed. The other three were cocks. A friend of mine two seasons ago Canary-reared a hen Chaffinch from the egg he put under her. This hen Chaffinch he put in last season with an indifferent cock Canary.

Holding Capacity of Aviaries.

SIR.—By the merest chance I noticed "Onlooker's" letter a fortnight ago, for I make it a rule never to read letters placed over a pseudonym, and but for catching sight of my own name it would have been passed as usual. While thanking "Onlooker" for drawing attention to anything that might mislead your readers (and my unqualified remark might possibly do so), I do not think many of your readers would take his extreme view. In the first place, my allusion to the aviary 50ft. by 50ft. was but a passing one—it is but one of a series no one having such an aviary, or shall I say such space, at his command would be likely to confine a pair of birds to 6ft. of ground space, let alone one. Again, a crowd of 5,000 birds could not be kept together, where 80, even in a very confined space, could! I will, to prevent new readers going astray, recapitulate what I have written on many occasions in the columns of CAGE BIRDS. Capacity of an Aviary.—One bird only, the size of a Norwich Canary, or two Waxbills, must be allowed to each square foot of the floor area of any aviary; larger birds must be given space pro rata. For breeding purposes not more than one pair of birds should be kept to each foot frontage of the aviary—two or even three feet would be the better. Nearly all my contributions have been written for the mass of birdkeepers who, like myself, have but limited accommodation for their birds, and must, perforce, get the utmost they can out of it, and not for the few who have almost unlimited space and means to provide palatial aviaries (palaces) for their birds. I fear I have on many occasions transgressed my own rules as to the number of birds to be kept in a given space, though I never keep any in small cages. To prevent any possibility of further confusion permit me to state that last year, in an aviary 12ft. × 10ft. × 6½ft. high (this ground area includes shed and flight) I kept the following: One pair Himalayan Grey-winged Ouzels, 2 Rosella Parrakeets, 1 Gold-fronted Conure, 1 Senegal Parrot, 10 Budgerigars, 1 pair Cockatiels, 1 pair Common Sparrows, 1 pair Peaceful Doves, 1 pair Green Cardinals, 1 pair Rosy Pastors, 1 pair Black-headed Sibias, 1 pair Silvery crowned Friar Birds, 1 Sombre Miner (Australian Honey-sucker), 1 Gold-fronted Green Bulbul, 1 pair Cowbirds, 1 pair Red crested Cardinals, and 1 pair of Quails. To give the proper significance to the above, I must state that but few of the birds enumerated are smaller than Thrushes, and many of them larger than Pigeons. Moreover, many years ago, when I set up my first aviary, it was a small affair, 10ft. long, 1½ ft. wide, and 6ft. high. Three feet of the length was a small shed. In this aviary I had 25 to 30 birds, such as Cutthroats, Java Sparrows, Zebra Finches, Avadavats, Canaries, Greenfinches, Redpolls, Siskins etc.; and I may say that I have never had an aviary since that gave me better results—I had nests and reared young from six species the first year it was set up. I may further say, for the encouragement of the aviarist with but limited accommodation, that at the present time the only ground area I am able to devote to birds is 23ft. by 10ft., forming two aviaries of about equal size, one other 2ft. x 6ft. deep and high, and a greenhouse bird-room 10ft. x 6ft. I usually have between 80 to 100 birds, much as given above, and though many of my aviculturist friends look upon me as a hopeless and confirmed heretic, yet my records have not been bad, and but few of my birds (after they have passed the critical first few weeks in England) are with me for a less period than five or six years, many of them much longer. I must ask pardon for writing at such length, but have done so in the hope of making my position clear once and for all, especially for those who have the zeal though little space, time, etc., to devote to their hobby.

Can Tame Bullfinches be Bred in Captivity.

SIR,—I have in my possession a pair of Bullfinches which have become very tame indeed. Can any of your readers inform me if I stand any chance of breeding with them in captivity? At first I thought I would give them their liberty in my bird room, and let them do as they pleased, but I am afraid they would upset the breeding of my Yorkshires. If any of your readers have had success in breeding Bullfinches in captivity, may I ask them, through our friend CAGE BIRDS, how they managed same with regard to size of cage, foods, etc., for which I should thank them most heartily.

Whose Should the Prize Card be?

SIR,—On receiving CAGE BIRDS of December 4th, 1909, from a friend of mine, and coming across the above subject, I would like to give my opinion, as I had a similar case at Bathgate show last year. The person that will take (or expect to take) the prize card that another exhibitor has won (although of very little value), has no respect for rights of property. At Bathgate show, January 16th, 1909, I exhibited a Yellowhammer in the British Bird Selling Class. He was awarded 1st prize, and claimed, cage not included; neither was the prize card, in my way of thinking, as I was charged 1s. for this card, a "Model Card." The purchaser did manage to leave the cage but no card was there after the bird had gone. This is written with all due respect to the Secretary and members of the above show, not with any animosity, as I wrote the Secretary about the prize card being missing, and he allowed me what he had deducted from my prize money for it. But this is not the point. I am exposing the person that, in my opinion, stole the card. I intended bringing the subject up then, but I did not have time. But if ever I get to know in a reasonable length of time who has it, and it is not returned either to the Secretary or me (the rightful owner of the card, although not charged for it), I intend making a test case of this. The subject is simple to me, and no conundrum about it—the card is the property of the exhibitor it is awarded to. The claimant buys the bird and sometimes you find the cage is included in the sale, but I have read hundreds of schedules and never yet come across one where the prize card is included in the sale. If the buyer is entitled to the card, why does he not send in a claim for the prize money also, as in my case he was getting a part of it, as the price of the card was deducted from the prize money? But the same applies to free prize cards certainly.

R. D. PARLETT.

St. Louis, U.S.A.

P.S.—If anyone needs a reply to the above it will take about three weeks.

[We certainly think that the purchaser of any winning show-bird is not legally entitled to take the prize-card which has been awarded the said bird, this clearly being the property of the exhibitor. We have no doubt, however, that secretaries would provide a duplicate card (marked "duplicate") if requested to do so. In Mr. Parlett's case, however, a charge is made, and in our opinion the card remains the sole property of the society until that charge is paid. In all probability the buyer of his bird took away the prize-card in ignorance and all good faith; and probably the society would have sold the purchaser one had they been asked so to do.—EDITOR.]

Catching Magpies.

SIR,—Wild birds are better for decoy birds than those reared from the nest, for these never know the call-note well, or, at least, do not repeat it often enough. Now, the Magpie is 18in. in length, of which the tail alone measures ten, and the tail shines near the end with a purple tint, gradually shading into a steel blue. The Magpie builds near towns and villages, and feeds on worms, insects, fruits, or roots, and sometimes eats eggs and young birds in their nests. He can easily be caught in winter with lime twigs placed near some small pieces of meat. Let "Bird Lover" use a little patience, and bait the place for three or four days, where he sees the coveted Magpie, and he will find (if he is not too anxious to get him in a cage) that his would-be pet will get used to his feeding, thus ensuring his getting used to the change of diet when he is in captivity. The cause of a quarter of the wild birds losing their lives is the sudden change of diet. When you have caught your bird, you can, if you like, cut the flight feathers of its wings. In the following autumn they may again be allowed to grow. By this method you will be able to get a few nestlings, as the bird will keep about the place, and in the following spring build near your place. Then you can take the young as soon as you see the tail feathers sprouting, when you will have birds which you can teach anything, and which will follow you wherever you go. Only be careful not to leave anything shining about, or your pet will hide it, even to your silver spoons or gold rings. Above all things, get some good bird lime, not a mixture resembling treacle, because if your Magpie gets on and should happen to break away, he is not caught so easily the second time. I remember spending £5 to catch one that had been on and got off. So just use a little patience, and you are bound to succeed, either in catching the one or the pair.

GEORGE TURNEY.

A Novice's Advice to Novices.

SIR,—No doubt novice readers of CAGE BIRDS would benefit by the experiences of a novice in dealings with some advertisers. I started in the Fancy with a common pair presented to me by a friend which died before I could try my hand at the breeding of Canaries. I was looking through the columns of a newspaper when I noticed this:—"Grand slim Yorkshire cocks, three-and-sixpence each." I thought, here is a chance to make another start; so I wrote to the advertiser for price of hens. His answer was one-and-sixpence each. I sent the money for one pair. I received the birds alright, but I received two Roller hens. One was healthy and the other had asthma. I was only fifteen years of age, and pocket money does not reach a very high figure at that age. So I was in a fix. An elder brother bought a cock bird and we went in shares with the youngsters that were reared. The result was: First round, five youngsters, second round, four; and third round, three. So I think I did well, considering the way I fed them, which was on Canary and hemp seeds, equal parts, and as much egg-food as they could eat, and green food. No fancy seeds of any kind did I know of then. I sold my share of youngsters and sent to a reliable man for a yellow Yorkshire cock, price ten shillings; which I received alright, and it was a very nice bird. But in my ignorance of bird-keeping I hung the bird in the draught and he caught a chill. I wrote to the man I bought the bird of and explained how my bird was; I also told him I would pay for a remedy if he would send me the price. But I got no answer, so I took good care not to deal with him again—once bit, twice shy, is my motto in buying birds and other things. This was a few years ago, and since I have taken CAGE BIRDS in I have found it a valuable paper for the Fancy. For the first few years I had very bad luck with my birds. I could not rear any youngsters. I remember one season I bred nine youngsters. There was only one cock in the lot. In 1907 I had four pairs of Hartz Rollers, and only bred six, so I thought I would start Norwich-breeding. I started with five cocks and eight hens, and I bred five youngsters. The hens laid in all sixty-three eggs; three-parts of them were full eggs. I had thirty-two hatch out alright, but the hens would not feed their young. In 1908, with nine hens I only bred seven youngsters. I had plenty of birds hatched out, but with the same result—bad feeders again. And I am sure these bad results were only by my being too eager to start my birds. I started them too early. This, I think, I can prove by my 1909 breeding season. I put the birds up the second week in April, six weeks later than in the other two years, and I bred thirty-two youngsters with the very same birds I used in the 1908 breeding season. I think that will show that it is a great mistake to start early. So, beginners, don't be too eager to start your birds breeding

Books for Bird Lovers.

Brief particulars of some of "Cage Birds" SPECIAL PUBLICATIONS for keepers of birds, with post free prices.

SEPTIC FEVER OR CANARY PLAGUE, 7d.—By R. H. Clarke, M.D. The only booklet published concerning this dread disease, which Dr. Clarke has given very special study.

THE NORWICH PLAINHEAD CANARY, 1½d.—By J. H. Payne. Pronounced by all experts to be a most valuable pamphlet concerning the breeding of the variety; written by one of our leading judges.

CANARY BREEDING FOR BEGINNERS, 7d.—By Claude St. John. A Practical, up-to-date guide to Canary breeding, designed specially for the use of the beginner. Deals very fully with the choice, sexing, and mating of the birds, feeding for condition, the cages and their fittings, the bird room, egg-food, nest-building, rearing and moulting the young, colour-feeding, training for show, and all the difficulties likely to confront the breeder.

MEATING-OFF AND FEEDING SOFTBILLS, 6½d.—By John Frostick. No fancier of Insectivorous Birds who wishes to succeed in his hobby can afford to be without a copy. It also contains notes on Bird Trapping, Cages, etc.

SEEDS, FOODS, AND WILD PLANTS FOR CAGE BIRDS, 1/2.—By various leading authors. Full information on the seeds suitable for all cage birds, their food values, uses, etc., with descriptions and illustrations of the wild plants indispensable to the successful keeping of British and other birds.

HOUSE'S CANARY MANUAL, 1/2.—By C. A. House. A thorough, practical guide to the general management and breeding of Canaries, dealing fully with the breeding, etc., of every member of the Canary family, including the Roller (or Singing) Canary. An illustration of each bird, by the master Canary artist, Mr. H. Norman; exhaustive chapters on aviaries and cages, breeding procedure, moulting, exhibiting, diseases, and seeds—a compendium of knowledge.

BUDGERIGARS AND COCKATEELS, 6d.—By C. P. Arthur. The breeding of Budgerigars and Cockatoels is recognised as one of the most profitable and pleasure-giving sides of foreign bird-keeping. This eminent authority gives very full details upon how to keep, feed, breed, tame, and teach them to talk.

FOREIGN BIRDS FOR BEGINNERS, 1/1.—By W. T. Page, F.Z.S., etc., Foreign Bird Expert to "Cage Birds." A highly instructive Manual. It contains a magnificent coloured plate and a number of black and white illustrations. Indispensable to all keepers of Foreign Birds. Replete with useful hints.

BRITISH BIRD MANUAL, 2/3 (cloth bound).—By H. Norman; or may be had in two parts. Part 1: "Hardbills," and Part 2: "Softbills." Either Part, price 1/1, post free: Each part contains a beautiful and life-like coloured plate and numerous illustrations of birds and cages. Up-to-date information on the keeping of British Birds; full of extremely valuable hints.

COLOUR FEEDING OF CANARIES AND OTHER BIRDS, 3½d.—By J. W. Ramsden. Tells you how to mix the colour-food, and how to moult the birds to get the richest possible colour.

THE STOCK BOOK, 7d.—By G. E. Weston. Of our invaluable "Breeding Room Register" a well-known fancier has said:—"It makes bird-breeding easy." No breeder of birds can possibly afford to be without it. It simplifies the operations in the bird-room and makes it possible for everyone, even the veriest novice, to breed his birds as they should be bred. Contains both Pedigree, Breeding, Young Bird, and Show Registers of simple and unique character, in addition to useful account pages, and many invaluable "Hints for Emergencies."

AVIARIES, BIRD-ROOMS, AND CAGES, 2/3 (cloth gilt).—By H. Norman. Contains ten lovely full-page photographic plates. A practical guide which deals thoroughly with the proper Building, Fitting, and Management of Aviaries and Bird-rooms, and the making of Cages.

YORKSHIRE CANARIES, 1/1½.—By H. W. Battye (Past President of the Yorkshire Union). Absolutely the very best Handbook dealing with the Yorkshire and its sub-varieties. Contains complete instructions upon Pairing, Breeding, Moulting, and successful Exhibiting, also how to treat in both health and disease.

NORWICH CANARIES, 1/1.—By C. A. House. Tells the fancier all that he needs to know to enable him to become successful as a breeder, and exhibitor of the Norwich Plainhead. The chapters on "Forming a Stud," and "How to Produce the Ideal" are worth the cost of the whole book many times over.

BIRDS OF THE COUNTRYSIDE, 5/4.—By Frank Finn, B.A., F.Z.S. A handbook to the wild life of all our familiar British birds; their appearance and habits accurately described. With 12 beautiful coloured plates, and 118 photographic illustrations. A charming gift book.

PETS, AND HOW TO KEEP THEM, 5/4.—By Frank Finn, B.A., F.Z.S. Gives the correct method of housing, feeding, and managing every kind of pet; all sorts of animals are dealt with—monkeys, dogs, cats, lizards, tortoises, also gold and other fancy fish, while there is a large section devoted to birds. Contains many coloured plates and illustrations from photographs. Another charming gift book.

FANCIERS' PRINTING.—Fanciers requiring business notepaper, postcards, trade envelopes, etc., should write us for a quotation. We are now in a position to supply these at specially low rates combined with first-class work. Artistic memos., with block of any desired bird, and fancier's name, address, and 12 words of description, 250 2/-, 500 2/6, carriage paid.

THE JUDGES' LUNCHEON AT THE PALACE SHOW.

This function was well attended, amongst those who sat down under the presidency of Mr. G. Crabb being Mr. and Mrs. Holliday, Mr. and Mrs. Thynne, Mr. and Mrs. Ramsden, Mr. and Mrs. Mortlock, Mr. and Mrs. Read, Mrs. Gill, Rev. G. H. Raynor, Messrs. Battye, Brown, Camps, Dewar, Dobson, Finn, Gardner, Heath, Lester, Mundell, Robson, Silver, Swaysland, Broadley, Day, Matthes, Wright, Carl, Law, Holder, Dickens, Oldaker, Couzens, Roehl, Trower, Newley, Graves, Contanche, Pretty, Norman, Collins, House, etc.

Mr. Crabb said he only intended giving the company one toast, because he knew that all wanted to get back to the birds, and that toast, "The Judges," they could not miss. He was pleased to welcome the company present; he was pleased at the big entry, an entry he did not expect, as he thought that after the Jubilee show there would be a kind of reaction, but it had kept up well, and was above the average. This was due in some measure to the most excellent schedule sent out by Mr. Ramsden, and to the fact that the judges engaged to make the awards had the confidence of the exhibitors. It was interesting year by year to watch the numbers, and the Yorkshires, as usual nowadays, came out well on top, being far the most numerous; then followed the Norwich, Borders, and Greens. He was sorry to find that the open Crest section was cancelled. Crest men should see to this, or they would be losing their position in the Fancy entirely. So far as the Palace executive were concerned, they could not be blamed for cancelling the section. It only contained 17 entries; therefore, what could they do? The chief credit of the wonderful success achieved was due to Mr. Ramsden—(applause)—who so ably managed the show—it could not be done better. Mr. Ramsden was always thinking and working out some new idea. Speaking of the exhibits, Mr. Crabb said: We get rare birds and rarer birds. Each year has its novelty; last year we had the White Canary; on this occasion we have the Black Mule. Before the show we had the Hunstein's Bird of Paradise, one of the rarest birds ever seen, but that to-day has been beaten by one rarer still, the Stella Lory, which had never been seen on the show bench before. Thus we go on, as I said, with our new features and rare birds. He coupled with the toast the names of Messrs. W. Mundell and W. Swaysland, whom they seldom met, but were always pleased to welcome. (Applause.)

Mr. Mundell, in a humorous speech, thanked Mr. Crabb for his kind remarks, and the company for the way in which the toast had been received. As to the judges, well, some were good and some were bad. They would hear about the latter to-morrow, when the exhibitors who had lost were in the show. As to the Palace judges, they tried to do right; in fact, some of them almost fell over themselves in their efforts in that direction. As for himself, he only tried to please one man, himself, and he had done it. He must say, however, that Mr. Ramsden, good man as he was, hurried the judges rather, so that they should finish by luncheon time. Now, if he had given them a couple of hours longer they would have been able to have made luncheon do for tea, and thus have saved themselves a couple of shillings each. (Laughter.)

Mr. Swaysland said he was pleased to see such a good show, and such a good lot of exhibitors. The committee had worked well, and he hoped the show would be a big success.

Mr. Ramsden announced that he had received letters from two old friends, Messrs. J. F. Mills and S. Cook; the former was prevented being with them because he was attending the funeral of his sister, and Mr. Cook, he was sorry to say, was laid up with influenza.

Mr. Dewar proposed "The Chairman," a toast heartily received, after which the gathering dispersed.

GOSSIP FROM THE PALACE SHOW.

Will Enlist Again.

Among the old timers was Mr. G. Sands, of Camberwell, a one-time Yorkshire enthusiast. It was a wrench to have to give them up; and to try and make it easier he dropped the Fancy papers as well. But he told us in confidence that he simply had to come to the Palace! We shall surely see him in the ranks again some day.

A Long Bird at a Short Price.

That champions of the season do not always command tip-top prices is exemplified by the fact that Messrs. Ambler's famous yellow unflighted which won the championship at the Crystal Palace, was, we are informed, purchased by its present owners for the low price of 30s.

In Luck.

It was exceedingly interesting to go down the rows of cages, stop at the places where "sold" in large type was conspicuous, look up the price in the catalogue and note the merit of the exhibit. Many exhibitors will wear "the smile that won't come off" when they receive the official notice of the disposal of their charmers.

Slow But Sure.

The sporting spirit ran riot for about twenty minutes one morning of the show, when one of the small foreigners becoming tired of his quarters, went roaming "on his own." Good old Small was quickly on the spot with the net, but the little dodger knew just how to manœuvre between the cages, and then dart away to another district. The cry "here he is" came from all quarters at once. But Small wasn't having any. "No! No!" he said; "let him come to me. I'll wait beside his cage!"

Seeing is Believing.

"Comparisons are odious," but there is no other way of convincing some fanciers. They cannot understand how that yellow cock which has won first and special at ——, and so on, could have been beaten. But you quietly reach down the winner and place them side by side. Then, dear me! they would never have thought it.

Prattle from the Parrots.

On the last day of the show one of the Amazon Parrots proved quite talkative. Of course, like all of its kind, the words "Pretty Polly" frequently came in. This was too much for the big Macaw opposite, who could not resist telling him to "shut up." How unmannerly!

All is Not Gold.

"A rattling hen that, and cheap at the limit!" said a connoisseur of the variety. "Not worth 9d.!" spoke another, in a soft whisper, to his chum, as they stood by. And he added: "She has never laid an egg, and I have had her for two seasons!" You never know your luck with good hens in limit classes!

Money Back.

Racing to the sales office to claim a bird in a £3 limit class, a veteran fancier planked down the three sovereigns. The clerk looked at book, then said: "We will let you have it at catalogue price, 25s., sir. Will that suit you better?" The old hand had gone by the classification, not looked at the catalogue price, and, needless to say, he vowed that it was the smartest purchase he had ever made.

The F.B.C. at Tea.

A meeting of the Foreign Bird Club was held on the Saturday, the first of its kind, and of an experimental nature—18 sat down to tea, and a pleasant social time was spent. It will certainly not be the last gathering of this nature. Mr. Wesley T. Page in a few words touched upon how nearly the club was to being "wound up" three years ago, and very keen appreciation was expressed of the part Mrs. K. L. Miller and, later, Mr. Tinniswood Miller, had taken by stepping into the breech as hon. treasurers during a very trying period. Mr. Page also welcomed Mr. H. Willford as a colleague for the present year, as hon. business secretary and treasurer. Mr. Page stated that their prospects had never been brighter, the steady increase of membership had been maintained (the past year showed a net gain of 38), while the interest of members was fully maintained. Two members' gatherings were arranged to take place at the Zoo in April and August respectively. Conditions of the cup competition were discussed, and the duration of shows mooted, both subjects being left to the Council to deal with.

Not a Scare Crow.

"Have you heard the whistling Crow?" asked a Canary fancier. "No, where is it?" was the reply. "You'll find it on the bird food stall, just outside," was the tip! I went, and lo! there stood a certain pa of a family listening in raptures. "My word, and isn't it grand! Isn't it sweet! Where does it come from?" he asked. "Why, out of the mouth of the bird sitting in that cage," I said, pointing to a "hand-made" bird. "That thing?" he answered. "Why, I thaw't that wur heer to frighten off the Sparrows from the bird food."

A Surprise.

A North Country tourist to the show, when shown the hot-water pipe and told its purpose, said. "That pipe! I thow't it wur the feeder for the Thames from the Manchester Ship Canal!"

Candid.

"White Canary?—White elephant!" said a blunt fancier of the old school. "They are common enough in my country. I have often seen them. Some of the chaps get double buffing, and one of this sort comes!" Singular! but the breeder of "the" white Canary avers that it came from two yellows!

A Long Run.

It was with regret we heard that an attack of illness prevented that much-respected veteran British bird judge, Mr. Sam Cook, from attending. Up to and including last year's "Jubilee" event, he had been present at Crystal Palace shows for 34 years without one single break.

A Veteran Goldie-Bullie.

A nine-year-old Goldfinch-Bullfinch Hybrid was exhibited by Mr. W. Andrews (Weston, Bucks). The bird has been a great prize-winner, and certainly provides the exception to the general rule, for most fanciers consider examples of this mating to be short-lived. The veteran was looking in the pink of condition. His owner states that he has been put outdoors every day, and kept in a cold room at night.

What a Record!

A Cornish Chough, exhibited by Miss V. Lewis (Maryport) is stated in the catalogue to be the winner of 138 1st and special prizes. Truly a grand reward—hard to beat, we should imagine.

Black the Fashionable Colour.

Last year saw the "run" upon the white Canary. This year the public affection—and that of the Press—was lavished upon a black Canary-Goldfinch Hybrid, which, by the misunderstanding of the reporter of a certain widely-read daily paper found itself christened and "boomed" as a "Black Canary," quite the latest thing in birdy fashions. How the public flocked to gaze upon this marvel; crowds pushed and jostled before its cage the whole day long. "Where is that black Canary?" seemed the first words of every visitor. It was bought for £2 2s. (catalogue price), by the Rev. G. H. Raynor.

NOTE.—If an answer is required concerning the proper mating, etc. of Norwich, Yorkshires, Crests, Cinnamons, Greens, Borders, Lizards, Scotch or any other variety of the Canary family, we shall, should the querist desire us to do so, be pleased to submit his question for answer to some leading specialist of the day on the variety concerned.

CANARY QUERIES.

Concerning a Crestbred.

Scotch Boy.—Am glad to hear treatment has had such good effect on Crest-bred hen. As regards future treatment, I certainly would not advise you to hang her in the window again now. That course would probably result in bringing about a speedy relapse. By all means bring her out of the dark corner, but hang her in some bright spot further in the room, and not anywhere close to the window. Her peculiar behaviour when you go near is probably merely a symptom of tameness in the first stage, which would be the natural outcome of her seclusion whilst in the dark corner and being attended to regularly. It will probably soon pass off when she comes out in a bright light position again. You may stop all medicines now, or give them only about twice a week for another fortnight to make the cure more permanent. Also stop giving the hemp so often, and if you are going to breed with the bird give instead a pinch of a mixture of equal parts hemp and inga twice a week, and a half teaspoonful of egg food sprinkled with gold of pleasure seed twice or thrice a week. Give green-food four times a week. The same staple diet is suitable for your other birds. Supply the bath four times a week.

Losing Feathers.

Feather Plucking.—I do not at all share your opinion that the loss of feathers is due to the bird plucking himself. The probability is he is badly in moult, and if he moulted properly last season he is now most likely exposed to draughts, or hung high up near the ceiling in an impure atmosphere, or badly worried by red mites. Look well into these points and remedy the causes if they exist. Keep him fairly cosy, but not too warm. Feed on a mixture of three parts canary to one part summer rape as a staple. Give separately every second day half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion well mixed in it, and sprinkled with gold of pleasure seed. On the alternate days give half a teaspoonful of hemp, and a morsel of ripe banana. Allow him to bathe freely if he does not appear to suffer from chill afterwards. In the drinking water give six drops of syrup of rhubarb and a pinch of Epsom salts for two days, and afterwards six drops of tincture of gentian and four of tincture of steel every second day. Continue this treatment for a fortnight, or a little longer if it seems necessary. You should not put the birds together until the end of March or beginning of April, by which time the Yorkshire should be in good condition. If not, you may start with the Linnet as you suggest. You would do well to get "Canary Breeding for Beginners," 7d. post free from our Manager.

Two and One.

W. C.—The two hens can scarcely seem to be quite healthy so long as they show the symptoms. Your feeding is incorrect; you give far too much gold of pleasure seed. First of all see the birds are quite free from draughts from the window. If this is assured, it will be quite correct to keep them on the wall opposite the window, where they will have a good light. They should also be free from damp or sudden extremes of heat and cold. As a staple diet, give a mixture of three parts canary to one part summer rape. Every second day for the next fortnight, give a half teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake, with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion, well mixed in it, and on the alternate days give a scrap of ripe banana and a few grains of hemp. In the drinking water give twenty drops of whiskey, five each of oxymel of squills, and ipecacuanha wine, and two of eucalyptus oil, well shaken together, two days in every three for a week, and every second day for another week afterwards if necessary. The cock should be kept in a box cage, and not so near the ceiling. Let its cage be at least as low down as the level of gas burners, and not in close proximity to them when in use. Feed him the same as advised for the hens, and in the drinking water give six drops of tincture of gentian and four of tincture of steel, every second day until he ceases losing feathers. Then give twenty drops of Chemical Food in the water daily for a time. A bird singing in the breeding cage is not a certain sign that it will fill the eggs, nor yet is a mute bird bound to prove infertile.

Protracted Moult & Not Singing.

H. Barker.—It is more than likely the position in the kitchen window is the direct cause of the very protracted moult, and the latter, of course, is accountable for the birds not singing. As they are well beyond their youth now, you must not expect them to recommence singing after moulting so promptly as previously. Keep them in a fairly comfortable and equable temperature, not necessarily very warm, but as free as possible from fluctuations, and in a pure atmosphere, out of reach of any fumes from burning lights in the evenings, and, above all, see they are quite free from draughts, as is very unlikely to be the case whilst hanging in the window. It would be much better to move them to a bright place further in the room. Also see that the cages are quite free from red-mites. Having seen to these points, feed on a staple of plain Canary only. Every second day give separately half a teaspoonful of summer rape to each, and on the alternate days for a fortnight the same quantity of crushed sponge cake, with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion well mixed in it, and sprinkled with gold of pleasure seed. After the first fortnight stop this, and give instead a morsel of bread and milk sprinkled with soft sugar twice a week. Twice each week give a pinch of a mixture of equal parts hemp, inga, teazle, and black rape. Four times a week give a spray of green food —dandelion for preference, as soon as it is obtainable. In the drinking water give a pinch of Epsom salts for two days, and afterwards six drops of tincture of gentian and four of aromatic sulphuric acid every second day for a week.

Silent since Moulting.

Anxious.—If you had said how you feed and treat the bird, and given some idea as to its age, it would have helped me. It is not uncommon for cock birds to remain silent from the time of moulting until the spring, after the first vigour of youth is passed, so if your's is a few years old, there may be nothing at all wrong. However, you can do no harm in carrying out the following instructions. First see he is kept in a fairly equable temperature without great variations of heat and cold—not necessarily very warm, nor yet cold—and quite free from all draughts and chills, and damp. See also that the cage is quite free from red-mites, and as a staple diet give three parts canary to one part summer rape seed. Every second day for the next fortnight, and twice a week for the following fortnight, give half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with four drops of sherry mixed in it and sprinkled with a pinch of gold of pleasure seed. On two other days each week, give a pinch of a mixture of equal parts hemp, inga, and teazle. Give a spray of watercress of two young leaves of dandelion, when obtainable, four times a week. In the drinking water give six drops of syrup of rhubarb and a pinch of Epsom salts daily for three days, and afterwards give six drops of tincture of gentian and four of aromatic sulphuric acid every second day for a week.

A Stylitic Crest.

R.C.—Am not quite sure if the initials are correct; the query concerns the Crest which sits with his back up, thinking perhaps, but not singing. There is doubtless something seriously wrong with his treatment. Try what a month of the following will do, and adhere strictly to this regimen in the meanwhile. As a staple diet give plain canary only. What you call "mixed Canary seed" is probably a haphazard mixture of many kinds of seed besides Canary, and you must drop this, for the present at any rate. Every second day give separately half a teaspoonful of summer rape seed, and on the alternate days for the next fortnight give half a teaspoonful of crushed stale sponge cake with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion well mixed in it, and sprinkled with gold of pleasure seed. Twice a week give also about half a teaspoonful, not more, of a mixture of equal parts hemp, inga, teazle, and black rape. Four times a week give a good spray of watereress, or a leaf of dandelion, if obtainable. After the first fortnight stop the sponge cake and give instead a morsel of bread and milk, sprinkled with soft sugar twice a week. In the drinking water give six drops of syrup of rhubarb and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence, every second day for a week, and in the next week give six drops of tincture of gentian and four of aromatic sulphuric acid every second day. Hanging near the window is very risky, and you must assure yourself it is perfectly free from any draught.

Misguided Efforts.

X.Y.Z.—You must surely now see the folly of following the advice of wild experimentalists. How the scalding, if such it is, could have arisen if you had given nothing more than you say, I do not quite see. As regards the bird not singing, you ought to have first satisfied yourself it was a cock. If it has now any difficulty in feeding owing to the soreness, supply bread and milk daily until it is able to eat seed freely again; then, or at once if it is now able to eat seed, put it on a diet of plain canary seed, and give separately every second day half a teaspoonful of summer rape. On the alternate days give the same quantity of crushed stale sponge cake with two or three drops of cod liver oil emulsion well mixed in it, and sprinkled with gold of pleasure seed. Twice a week give a pinch of a mixture of equal parts of hemp, maw, inga, teazle, and sesame seeds. In the drinking water give as much sulphate of soda as will cover a sixpence for two days, and afterwards colour the water to a light pink colour with a crystal or two of permanganate of potash. Continue this for a fortnight, and then report result. Do not give any other medicines of any kind until you hear from us again after reporting result. Slightly smear the sore places externally with boracic ointment twice a week, but avoid soiling the feathers as much as possible.

Loss of Voice.

Yellow Cock.—Although you say the bird is out of all draught, I suspect he got a severe cold in some way to bring about the loss of voice. Keep it in a cosy place, free from sudden fluctuations, but not overheated, nor yet on the cold side. In addition to your present staple diet, give it half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver emulsion well mixed in it, and sprinkled with gold of pleasure seed, twice a week, and a small pinch of a mixture of equal parts hemp and inga, on two other days each week. Give a small tuft of flower heads of groundsel or a spray of chickweed or watereress four times a week, and when these are not obtainable, or not in good condition, give a morsel of ripe banana as a substitute, but no apple, and give the preference to the green food in the order named whenever available. Stop giving sugar, and substitute instead a cube of hard common table salt for a time. See it always has plenty of fresh pure air. Make a paste by well mixing as much chlorate of potash as will cover a sixpence, in a teaspoonful of honey, and adding just enough fine biscuit powder to make a soft paste. Give a piece the size of a small pea on the end of a perch daily. Continue this for a month, and then report result.

About a Room and Feeding.

Spouty.—Your sketch shows a ventilator in the centre of the room, which you do not mention in letter. Is this intended to indicate the one over the window? If not and there is really an inlet for fresh air in the centre of room, there is no need for you to keep the door open. The outlet you have made over the window should be fitted with a sliding solid cover to enable you to regulate its size and effect. With holes in the door you need not keep it open continually. Keep the room aired and fresh, and see that it is not damp or stuffy. Do not give the bath freely to the one or two birds which are inclined to wheeziness until the weather becomes milder. I do not think you need worry about them; the recent weather is doubtless responsible. Give them a little bread and milk, two or three times a week with two drops of cod-liver oil emulsion on it, and sprinkled with soft sugar. Also increase the diet by giving in addition to the staple half a teaspoonful of summer rape every second day, and three times a week the same quantity of a mixture of one part each hemp, inga, charlock, and a half-part each of linseed, maw, and gold of pleasure. As you keep the birds in cages you may keep as many birds as you can conveniently find space for on the wall opposite window for breeding cages. The wall opposite the door would accommodate two large flights for young birds. But do not commence with the limit of your capacity—remember that a good increase is expected during the next few months.

Results of Mating.

Jacques.—You are incorrectly informed about the mating of clear Yorkshire cock with no Cinnamon blood, and a self Cinnamon hen not breeding any cocks among their young. What was probably meant was that you would not produce any cinnamon-coloured cocks from such a mating. If the Yorkshire is really untainted by Cinnamon blood you may go a step further, and say you will get no Cinnamon young at all—neither cocks nor hens—from the mating. The progeny will probably consist largely of green and variegated greens, but there will be both cocks and hens. There is, however, so much Cinnamon blood now diffused among Yorkshires that it is next to impossible to tell from external appearances whether any given bird is affected by it or not. If your Yorkshire is quite free from it, you may confidently expect the above results, but if he is even remotely connected with Cinnamon blood, it may upset this forecast. Had the mating been the other way, viz., a Cinnamon cock with a Yorkshire hen, free from Cinnamon blood, then you would have bred Cinnamons among the young, but every Cinnamon youngster would invariably have been a hen. This is probably how your informant got mixed.

Four in One.

Dubious.—(1) The four young Yorkshire cocks will not be too young to breed with this season, unless they were hatched very late in the summer, and even then you might take a nest from them in the coming summer. They should be mated for preference to 1908 or 1907 hens. With giving the mixture you name as staple food, they should require little or no preparation for mating, beyond a half teaspoonful of egg-food three times a week, and a leaf or two of dandelion daily as soon as it is available and fit for use. You would do better to feed as frequently described in these columns. (2) Mate one of the young cocks with this hen in preference to the half-bred. Provided the birds have not previously been in-bred it will not matter if it happens to be one of the related birds. I fancy you will find a reference in book to the age for mating. (3) The aviary will not be a good place to breed in, nor even to keep the young in for any length of time, unless you can prevent the heat becoming excessive, which you might do by having the top well ventilated by raised "lights" and covering the glass roof with "summer cloud" shading. I would not advise you to keep the birds in it through the winter. (4) You do not say what works they are, the noise of which you are anxious about. If the noise is fairly constant, and not accompanied by great vibration or shock, it would probably not affect the birds breeding at all.

A Trio.

W. R. and R. R.—The query being on two sheets, each of which bears one of these signatures, I give both to ensure identification. (1) You should have described the appearance of the skin on the bare place, and also said whether the bird moulted properly last autumn. Feed on a staple of plain Canary; give half a teaspoonful of summer rape every second day, and on the alternate days a similar quantity of crushed sponge cake with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion mixed in it, and sprinkled with gold of pleasure seed. Twice each week also slightly dust it with a mixture of two parts flowers of sulphur to one of chlorate of potash. Give a spray of green food four times a week; allow it to bathe freely; see cage is perfectly free from red mite; and slightly anoint bare place twice a week with sulphur ointment. If not better in two or three weeks, write again, and give particulars asked for. (2) You will find the following an improvement upon your dietary at this season. In addition to the staple, give half a teaspoonful of summer rape every second day. On the alternate days give twice a week a similar quantity of egg-food, and twice a week the same quantity of a mixture of equal parts hemp and inga. Stop using apple now, and give green food instead; and stop giving linseed altogether. (3) I will certainly not advise you to use an oil-stove in such a small room. It would be more than usually risky in such cramped quarters. If you think you must have some form of heat, a system of flow and return hot-water pipes, with the boiler and heating apparatus—which might be an oil-stove if necessary—placed outside under a separate cover, would be most suitable.

Moulting and Diarrhœa.

W. Billington.—There must be something seriously wrong with your management for the diarrhœa to have lasted so long, and you ought to have said how you feed and keep the bird. If the cage it occupies is an old one I would strongly advise you to break it up and burn it. In any case, move the bird temporarily, and wash out the cage with a fairly strong solution of carbolic. When dry, return bird to it, keep the floor thickly strewn with sawdust, which remove and burn daily until the looseness is quite stopped. Keep it in a comfortable place, free from sudden extremes of heat and cold, and impure air, and quite out of reach of draughts. Allow it to bathe three times a week if it does not seem chilled afterwards. See that all your seeds and food and water are quite pure and free from contamination by vermin. If any doubt about the water, boil all before use, and do not use rain-water from storage cisterns by any means. Feed on a mixture of three parts Canary to one part summer rape as staple. Every second day give half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake, with two drops of cod liver oil emulsion mixed in it, and on the alternate days give a few grains only of hemp, and a morsel of ripe banana. Give no green food until some days after diarrhœa is stopped. In the drinking water give six drops of syrup of rhubarb and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence for one day only, and afterwards give six drops of dandelion juice, six of tincture of gentian, and four of tincture of opium in the water every second day until the bowels are normal.

Brevities.

A Broken Tail (Saltash).—If you have now removed the Canary to a cage by itself, as your letter seems to imply, remove the feathers gradually by plucking out three, one from each outer side, and one from the middle, every second day. Remove them with a firm gentle pull, and the operation will be trifling. The tail will then be reproduced in a very short time. Of course, if any perfect feathers are remaining, you need not remove them, but only the broken ones.

To Tune His Merry Throat (Music).—See reply to "Anxious," and feed and treat the bird as therein advised. Pay particular attention to the remarks anent mites, draughts, and impure air, and if your bird is subject to any of these causes see they are wholly removed before beginning treatment.

Not Singing (H. Lucas).—I should be doubtful about the sex of this bird if it is supposed to be of the sterner material, as I suspect is the case, as you think, and rightly too, that it should be in song. Better get someone to look at it who can decide the question for you. You can try the treatment advised to "Anxious" for a month, and if it is really a cock it should be in full song at the end of that time. Give a dandelion leaf daily for green food as soon as you can obtain them.

Moulting Stopped (Constant Reader).—Glad to hear the treatment has been successful in stopping the moulting. Of course, you may discontinue the treatment now, and perhaps by the time this appears the bird will have shown more signs of starting to sing again. If not, you must exercise a little patience, and it will probably make a start in a week or two. Go on keeping it under healthful conditions as previously directed, and feed it now as you will see frequently advised for song birds here. Give a leaf of dandelion daily as soon as obtainable.

Medicines (Derry).—You will find much information on the matter you enquire about in CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL, which will probably be on sale when this appears, 8d., post free, from our Manager. Saffron is often of use to help a bird to break away in the moult; gentian is a good general tonic, and the preparation of rhubarb is a very useful and safe aperient, to mention those you ask about. Take a word of good advice, however: Never use drugs or medicines of any kind whatever, without there exists a real necessity, and even then, if you know nothing about them, or the effect they are likely to produce, only employ them under advice.

In-breeding (C. J.).—You would be much better advised to leave in-breeding severely alone until you have gained more experience in the ordinary course of mating. Your object being to increase the size of your next young brood is very doubtful indeed of being fulfilled, if, as I suspect is the case, your present stock is rather on the small side. Had your stock been rather on the large side, and not previously in-bred, you might have mated them as you suggest, but on the whole I think you would do better to get unrelated birds, with plenty of size, and suitable in other points, even if you have to dispose of the birds you propose as mates to procure the new ones.

Pecking Cage (Paddy).—I expect it would be somewhat misleading to call them little woodpeckers. The birds are all right, and this mischievous habit is doubtless the result of the approaching Spring stirring up their energies to greater activities. They are only working off steam, but unfortunately for the appearance of the cage you cannot well cure the habit. Try painting the nibbled places with a feather dipped in castor oil, or eucalyptus oil, and at the same time stick a few pieces of cuttlefish in the wires, and tie on the wires a bit or two of string for them to unravel. This may divert their attention.

Song, Colour, and Mating (A. Munday).—You cannot break the Canary of singing the Chaffinch song, save by keeping it where it would hear only Canaries singing, when it may possibly discard the acquired song in the course of time. You could breed with him, and remove the young cocks out of his hearing as soon as they can do for themselves, when they will sing the proper Canary song if you only allow them to hear a good singing Canary cock. It would be mere waste of time to attempt to colour feed your birds with pastry colouring. Tasteless pepper is so much better than any of these discarded substances that you would probably find yourself a long way behind all your competitors in colour. No, do not mate up the hen for a few weeks to come. Put her on plain canary seed, and a liberal supply of green food for a week.

Numerous Deformities (Innocent).—Sorry, but I really cannot tell you the reason without knowing very full particulars as to treatment. Were the legs really broken just above the feet, or was it the whole of the claws that were clutched together and turned underneath. I should rather think the latter, as really broken legs among young in the nests are very uncommon, and would probably be due to accidents, quarrels, or vice, among parents. Are you sure no one was in the habit of interfering with the young? And are your old birds strong and healthy and unrelated? Again, did the deformities occur most frequently among large or small broods? These are points I should like information upon, as also the size of your cages and nest pans, and a knowledge where they are kept. I may then be able to help you to avoid the trouble.

New Purchase Coughs (E. Helps).—It is possible the birds caught a cold on their journey, or perhaps may have been kept in a warmer place than yours. Do not overheat, but see they are in a nice cosy place, perfectly free from draughts, and as free as possible from extremes of heat and cold. In the drinking water give twenty drops of whisky, six of oxymel of squills, and two of eucalyptus oil, well shaken together, very second day for a week, by which time they should be quite restored. You omit to say how you feed, but you will be able to gather the best method from other replies, and in addition to the staple seed diet, give a morsel of bread and milk sprinkled with soft sugar, on the alternate days between the above medicine for a week. Stop giving linseed tea. The bird that does not sing may probably prove to be a hen. I assume you are keeping them in separate cages; if not, you should do so.

Mating Yorkshire (P. Humphrey).—You must not by any means mate the yellow cock which is too thin in neck with yellow hen, as you will, by so doing, probably intensify the fault in the young. Get two good lengthy buffs which are rather inclined to stoutness in neck, and with rather strong shoulder properties. If one of these hens is bred from a three-quarter Belgian hen and a typical Yorkshire cock, so much the better, as it will give you some useful material for next year's work, as well as a fair chance of getting a good bird or two for show the coming season. Of course, if the cock bird is clear, you should get ticked or marked hens, and vice versa.

Roller Hen Fat (Nirvana).—If the hen has been having no other luxuries than the simple diet you name, she ought not to have been over-fat, especially in such a roomy cage. If she is not in such an overfed condition as to be lethargic, I do not think you need trouble about trying to reduce her much, as she will be none the worse for being just on the plump side if you are going to mate her in the coming season. Give her a liberal supply of green food daily—watercress, chickweed (as soon as obtainable), flower heads of groundsel, and a leaf of dandelion daily. Also limit the diet to a small teaspoonful of seed daily for a fortnight, and every third day give only half this quantity. Keep cage clean and free from husk meanwhile.

Plan of Room (Working Man).—I cannot quite grip the plan. What is, or has been, the room in question? Is it a conservatory, or something of that kind, and does the glass portion you indicate by double lines extend from the roof to the floor, or how far, and where is the window placed? If you will try again and send me another rough sketch giving these particulars, and also say which you call the back wall, I will do my best to help you. Meantime keep the birds in their present position, but see they do not get overheated, until the beginning of April, when you should be able to transfer them to the room with safety. During this interval you must make any necessary alterations in the room to ensure its being well ventilated, and as free as possible from extreme fluctuations of heat and cold.

Seed Samples (G. Dear).—A is a trifle small, but very plump, sound, and well ripened; it is sweet and of very good quality. B is smaller still, also thin, not so well ripened, not very sweet, and of decided poor quality. C, exceedingly small, none too well ripened, and seems badly harvested; dear at any price. D, practically the same as C, but seems better harvested, and a trifle sweeter; still not desirable. No E sample reached me; will reply if to hand later. F is an ungraded sample of from moderate to very small size. It is of fair average quality. G, a well-ripened seed of fair size and good quality. H, trifle small and thin, not over sweet, and seems badly stored. The order of merit is A, G, F, D, B, C, H, the four last all undesirable. As regards the bird, put a thin perch where he roosts and keep the others rather on the thin side, too. I do not advise you to try any other mechanical aid. Glad to hear other birds are now doing well. Comment on E sample next week.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S. M.B.N.H.S., etc.

Amazon with Cold.

A.M.A.—I should advise the keeping of this bird in one room for a time, at any rate, so as to secure a fairly equable temperature for it. Give it for one day only, one teaspoonful of Dinneford's Magnesia to each ounce of the drinking water; repeat this after an interval of two days; in between, that is, when not giving the magnesia, supply for its drinking water as under two parts water to one of the following mixture: Ipecacuanha wine, oxymel of squills, and glycerine in equal parts. Your diet is very unsatisfactory; it is the "bits or most things" which is doing the mischief. Confine the diet to the seed mixture, ripe fruit, plain biscuits, and a few nuts; keep a piece of clean cuttlefish hanging in the cage, and it would be well to keep its nostrils well cleansed with diluted glyco-thymoline. Do not give any slops, or table scraps of any kind; treat as above, and report progress in about 10 days, and I will try and assist you further. I think the bird will recover, though you have let it get into a very bad way before writing. See rules re reply per post.

In Poor Plumage.

J.K.—I cannot even now be quite sure of the species, as you do not say whether it has a long or short tail; however, I take it to be some species of Amazon. Carry out our previous instructions as to magnesia and ripe fruit, and for a month I should lightly spray it with diluted quassia solution; this can be procured ready for use from several of our advertisers. Use a fine sprayer. On the days you are not giving the magnesia, well colour the drinking water with Parrish's Chemical Food, and continue this till the bird is in condition again. Diet: prepare the following seed mixture: Three parts each Canary and white millet seed, and one part each hemp, sunflower, oats and paddy rice; well mix and keep a supply continually in the cage. Also for a time (if the bird will eat it) moisten a piece of plain biscuit with water and dust it with flowers of sulphur. Continue this till it is in feather again. It can have a few nuts (shelled walnuts are best). Keep a piece of clean cuttlefish in cage. Do not give tea, coffee, or milk sops or slops, nor yet any kind of animal food; it is this which has caused the trouble, and it will take some time to right it. However, continue the above treatment, and the bird will ultimately recover. A Parrot may like to have food with you at mealtimes; have something to hand which can safely be given, say chemical food water, and moisten a bit of stale bread or biscuit therein occasionally, and give this.

A Sick Grey.

H.B.R.—I do not gather from your reply whether you have given the Dinneford's Magnesia, or carried out the directions given in my previous reply; if not, do so. Your diet is satisfactory, and I am rather surprised the biscuit you name should have had that effect, and can only conclude that by chance something unwholesome had crept in in the course of manufacture. The same applies to the plant, unless it is really of a poisonous nature; but even then, since the bird still lives, the effects have by this partially passed away. Give sufficient of the magnesia to clear out the bowels, and then put it on a course of Parrish's Chemical Food till it is quite fit again. I am of opinion the trouble will soon disappear. A little of the honey and borax on the tongue occasionally will help to keep the mouth clear. If there should be any further relapse, please write at once, giving full details.

Constructing an Aviary.

G.H.—While a good aviary can be made on the lines you suggest, I do not quite like some of your propositions. The wire partition you propose to use to form the inner flight seems to me very unsuitable to provide against draught. You must have small outlets to the open both on ground level and higher up, and it appears to me that unless great care was taken these would cause a more or less continuous draught; have the partition dividing off your inside flight from the shed, principally of wood and glass, and then fix your branches so that the birds will be protected from draught—provide no perching accommodation where any draught is possible. I fear Canaries will make sad havoc with your plants and bushes, especially in spring, before the trees are in leaf—the buds are eaten as soon as they show green. Canaries are almost as bad as Parrakeets for killing growing shrubs. I should also make the indoor flight at least 3½ ft. wide, and the first four or five feet of outdoor flight should be roofed in; the floor of this portion might with advantage be kept loose and covered with a good three inches of gravel, mortar rubbish, and shingle. You could keep 100 birds in the aviary; of course, all bushes, etc., would soon be killed, and breeding results would be few. You should get excellent results from a dozen pairs in such an aviary. Hops make excellent climbers for the aviary, and are very ornamental. I should also put in several box and fir trees, and one or two clumps of bamboo. Note: Bullfinches are fond of buds, and soon kill trees and bushes in captivity. The following would be a nice series to begin with: Long and Rufous-tailed Grass Finches; Masked, Pectoral, Ribbon, Zebra, and Red-headed Finches; Diamond Sparrows; White Java Sparrows; Bronze and Magpie Mannikins; Common and Green Avadavats; Orange-breasted and St. Helena Waxbills; and pairs each of some small species of Dove and Quail. Get "Foreign Birds for Beginners"; see advert. in this issue.

What Cockatoo?

"Cockney."—(a) I am of opinion your bird is a Goffin's Cockatoo; it is not, by any means, a common species, and is usually a very handsome and intelligent bird. (b) The majority of Cockatoos are not great talkers, though all talk a little, and I have come across really talented talkers. (c) If my supposition is correct, then the bird is certainly worth 60s.; but there are two points your description is very vague upon. If there is a patch of reddish-pink on the breast, and the upper mandible is three-quarters of an inch longer than the under mandible, then you have a Slender-billed Cockatoo, a much cheaper species, the full value of which is about 30s.; this latter species does not make much of a talker. (d) A seed mixture of canary and white millet, hemp, maize, oats, paddy rice, and sunflower seed in about equal parts, well mix before supplying to the bird, this will form your staple diet; also supply such ripe fruit as it will eat, plain biscuit, dry boiled potato, nuts, and green food. Do not give table scraps and other messes.

Grey Parrot Unwell.

H.B.R.—You make it very difficult for me to help you, by giving me practically no information. I can only form the conclusion that a long course of improper dietary has brought it into a very precarious condition. Please send me these particulars at once. Give the bird several doses of Dinneford's Magnesia—one teaspoonful to each ounce of the drinking water—but stop same as soon as the voidings become watery. Bathe the nostrils with diluted glyco-thymoline once or twice daily, and put a little honey and borax on its tongue two or three times a day. Also give it a few sips of very weak brandy and water (chilled) several times a day, but not sufficiently often to prevent it drinking the magnesia water freely. If it has any difficulty with dry seed, try it with a little boiled roaize (this only keeps fresh one day), plain biscuit, just moistened with water, and ripe fruit ad lib, any kind it will take. When it went off its food a query should have been put through at once—you have lost valuable time. Please send details asked for, and I will try to assist further.

Brevities.

Green Singing Finch (A.M.M.).—Many thanks for informing us of the complete recovery of your bird; we much feared the worst, as the case appeared hopeless when you last wrote. The slight wheezing will disappear with the advent of warmer weather, though there may be a recurrence of same during next winter. Take up the treatment again at once in the case of any slight relapse.

What Cockatoo? ("Briton").—I think your bird is the Lemon-crested Cockatoo, and that it is yet quite a young bird; they are not noted as fluent talkers, nevertheless, most of them talk a little, also scream a little; but a well-trained specimen is an interesting bird, and also very handsome when clean and tight. I do not believe in butter or other fats for Parrots or Cockatoos; such sooner or later usually set up feather pulling and eating. Give it a seed mixture of Canary and millet, hemp, oats, sunflower, paddy rice, and maize, in about equal parts; also supply ripe fruit, nuts, and plain biscuits. Keep a piece of cuttlefish continually in the cage, and either keep the drinking water in the cage or permit it to satisfy its thirst two or three times a day. Do not give table scraps or slops and messes of any kind.

What Bird? (F.P.).—The body sent me was that of an Orange-breasted Waxbill, a minute, beautiful, and hardy species. These birds usually do well on a diet of canary, white and spray millet seed, with seeding grass and fresh lettuce as green food, and a little ripe fruit for such species as will take it. Draughts soon kill birds, and in the window is a dangerous place in most rooms.

Seed Mixture for Grey Parrot (H. E. Bush).—You would find the following meet the case; of course, any item which the bird refused to eat could be dropped: Two parts each Canary and white millet seeds, and one part each hemp, sunflower, paddy rice, oats, dari, and small maize, well mix, and keep up a continuous supply. (1) Practically nothing certain is known on this point, but probably three or four years old at least. Grey Parrots mature slowly. (2) Yes, the bare skin on the sides of the face is pear-shaped in one bird, and round in the other. (3) Simply getting them thoroughly fit; buying the ordinary plain wholesome diet is all you can do. I should say you have a true pair, but you can do nothing to hasten matters, save, perhaps, supplying them with a large log.

What Parrot? (T. H.).—The small coloured illustration sent is that of a Blue-fronted Amazon; this species, though not as a rule as clear a talker as the Grey Parrot, yet ranks next to it, and most specimens make fair talkers, good whistlers and mimics. I heard individuals laugh, cry, mimic cat, dog, or any calls they had been accustomed to hear in a marvellously realistic manner. Keep it in your midst, talk to it and fuss with it generally, and it will ultimately respond, and both repeat words and sentences and mimic sounds which it hears.

Parrakeet in Poor Plumage (J.K.).—It is very difficult for me to advise you, as you do not give me sufficient data to recognise the species. Kindly describe its plumage, and state if it gets anything else to eat—scraps, etc. Please give me fullest details. A bird that gets so much liberty as yours does, ought not to be in that condition. In the meantime, get a bottle of Dinneford's Magnesia and put one teaspoonful into each ounce of the drinking water every other day, so long as the voidings are not watery loose. Also give as much ripe fruit as the bird will take; if it refuses one kind try it with another. Upon receipt of yours I will reply per return.

Lovebirds Not Hatching Out (Sambo).—I suppose your birds are Budgerigars; but it is not safe to answer queries on supposition, and I must ask you to repeat query with a sufficient description of the plumage to enable me to recognise what they are—all species of Lovebirds are mostly green in hue. Canaries could not bring up their young. Leave them alone for the present, then at the end of March remove the old husks and replace with new—possibly parasites are causing trouble.

Green Parrot in Poor Feather (L.B.).—Providing the bird does not over drink, the water is best left continuously in the cage; but if this is not safe, then let it satisfy its thirst about three times a day. If the bird will eat sufficient of it, give it a seed mixture of canary and white millet in equal parts, and only give the large seeds in small quantity two or three times a week. Supply daily about a tablespoonful of boiled maize (note: it only keeps fresh one day), boil till soft, the grains should be whole, drain away all water, and well dust with flowers of sulphur before supplying to the bird. Ripe fruit, nuts, plain biscuit should be also supplied. Continue to give the chemical food for some time yet, and also the magnesia sufficiently often to keep the bowels moving freely, but not loose. When weather is not too severe, spray the birds with quassia solution twice a week. Recovery of condition must of necessity be somewhat slow seeing the condition the bird has got into.

Grey Parrot with Growth under Tongue (W.H.S.).—If your bird is a valuable one, I should advise you to let a vet. see it; probably the growth could be cut away and the bird relieved at once, and the cause permanently removed. However, examine the tongue carefully and note whether there appears to be a splinter of any kind in it; such happenings, though not common, have occurred, and occasioned the bird much trouble and pain till removed. If you elect to treat it yourself, keep the bowels moving freely (not loose) with Dinneford's magnesia, and with a camel hair brush anoint the sore daily or oftener with honey and borax; if it is a simple sore, I have known this to work wonders, and it can do not harm at any rate; the brush must be well cleaned for each occasion, and also a fresh portion of the mixture used each time. A Grey Parrot should have seed mixture, ripe fruit, plain biscuit and a few nuts, also cuttlefish and grit.

Continuous Moult ("Blood-feather").—The bird has got into a generally bad condition by your former improper dieting, and only time and a plain, wholesome diet will put matters right. Diet as follows: Seed mixture—two parts each canary and white millet, and one part each hemp, sunflower, maize, paddy rice and oats, in equal parts; well mix, and keep a supply continually in the cage. Also supply ripe fruit, plain biscuit, and a few nuts. Confine your diet as above, and on no account give any table scraps or slops of any kind. Keep the bowels moving freely (not loose) with occasional doses of Dinneford's magnesia, and when not giving this, well colour the drinking water with Parrish's chemical food. A continuous supply of cuttlefish and grit should be kept up.

Avadavats Bare of Plumage (Denys W.).—You have practically done all you could for them. The fact is, none of them have ever got over the hardships of importation, and the difficult feature is that once they become bare, Waxbills and the small Ornamental Finches keep each other so. You must keep a watch that it is not being plucked by its fellow captives. I can only suggest that you hang one or two cocoanut shell nests in the cage, pushing a little moss in each. The birds will crowd into these, and keep themselves warm during the cold nights. You have done all that you can, and I fear there will be little improvement till the warm weather comes round.

African Silverbills (A. W.).—Such mishaps are by no means uncommon, though Silverbills as a rule make excellent parents. So far as I remember, young Silverbills in my aviary have always been reared entirely upon seed and green food, though they had access to the soft food provided for the softbills sharing their enclosure. I should supply canary, white millet, also spray millet and a little of some good soft food mixture and green food ad lib. Silverbills have bred in almost every month in my aviary from March to October inclusive, though at this time I have no Silverbills, the aviary being mostly given up to rare softbills.

Sex of Skylarks.

A. Lord.—The cock and hen Skylark are coloured and marked exactly alike, practically speaking, and no beginner could sex them by these points. The cock Skylark is always an appreciably bigger bird than the hen, and has a longer sweep of wing. The difference in these points is very apparent when a good cock bird is compared with an average hen. Even when folded, the wings of the cock can be seen to reach farther down over the tail. Once one has had a little experience with the species, the sexing is by no means difficult. Any dealer worth his salt can pick you out a cock bird with absolute certainty. Pay him a fair price for doing so.

Beginners and Muling.

Lady W.—The safest, easiest, and most likely to be successful method for the beginner in Mule breeding is the adoption of one or other of the following plans:—Either put the cock Linnet and cock Goldfinch in the breeding cages now with their Canary mates, or else hang them close to each other (cock to hen) so that they can see one another and become acquainted. In the latter case you would put them together for breeding about the last week in March. I can't tell you any exact date, for that depends entirely on the condition of your Britishers, and only you yourself can answer for the latter. If you have double breeders, with a wired centre partition, you can put cock one side, hen the other, and withdraw the slides when the hens seem desirous of going to nest, which they will show by carrying pieces of nesting material about in their beaks, and by loud "calling" accompanied by much vigorous bouncing about the cage and flapping of wings.

An Opinion of Sunflower Seed.

Black and White.—In my opinion sunflower seed is a very excellent and wholesome food for all seed-eating birds, either whole, for those who can shell it, or lightly-cracked, for those which find it too large to be negotiated otherwise. All seed-eaters are fond of it, once they have tasted it. Larks, Pipits, and similar semi-grain-eating birds, relish it very much when shelled and just "kibbled" (broken up), either given alone or placed on top of their soft food. I get through a large quantity of sunflower seed, and never have any but good results from its use. Of course, it must not be given so freely to some birds as to others. Greenfinches, Crossbills, and Hawfinches, for instance, will hardly do really well unless they have it in plenty; Chaffinches and Bramblefinches should have it fairly freely; Goldfinches, Bullfinches, and other small Finches should be given a frequent feed. For growing young birds (especially Hybrids), it is excellent, not only being a nutritious food, but providing them with something to exercise their beaks on, and pass away spare moments which otherwise would very likely be devoted to pecking at their companion's plumage—everyone knows how mischievous young Mules can be in this latter respect. For adult Hybrids, of whatever variety, a small feed of sunflower seed daily is very good; the larger varieties (Bullfinch or Greenfinch cross, for instance) may have a more liberal supply.

Breeding in an Aviary.

Constant Reader. It is not at all necessary to put a shrub (a living plant) into an aviary for hen British birds to nest in. As likely as not they would ignore it, though quite possibly they might use it. They do some strange things. I myself have fixed up the most secret and snug corners for them to build their homes in, but they only "turned up their noses" at my contriving, and planted their nests right out in the open, within a very few inches of the wire-netting front. Fix up as many likely spots as possible (one cannot do more), and then leave the birds to go their own sweet way, keeping an eye open, however, for fear two couples should fancy the same site, for a pitched battle is almost certain to result should this happen, and unless one or the other gives way it may become necessary to interfere. Hang up nest-boxes in likely corners (or place them on shelves, etc.), and arrange bundles of pea-sticks, or suitable dead branches branches, here and there about the place. It is a very good plan to get a few old, yet not dilapidated, Blackbird and Thrush nests out of the hedgerows, and stick these about. Many Bullfinch and other hens will gladly re-line and use them. It is possible to get disused "first-round" nests of the above species in the season in plenty of time for use in one's aviaries and cages.

More Muling Troubles.

Puzzled.—Some Canary hens absolutely will not accept the attentions of cock British birds; such are rare, it is true—but I have had them myself, and so has many another fancier. Still, it often happens when two birds are rushed together, and one of them is not ripe for breeding, that serious fighting ensues, which embitters the couple for the rest of the season. Again, not even the luckiest of breeders can expect to meet with success from every hen put up. The Goldfinch and the hen Canary should be introduced in a double breeding-cage, having the wired slide down the centre—that is, one bird in each compartment. When the hen begins to carry nesting material about in her beak, and appears to be looking for a receptacle in which to deposit it, hang up a nest-box, withdraw the slide, and let the Goldfinch run in with her. Before this takes place, I fancy you will find him (if, as he ought to be, in condition) both singing to her and feeding her through the wires. If so, you can shake hands with yourself on a rosy outlook. A great deal more depends on the proper mating of Muling (and other) couples than the majority of breeders seem to credit. Some do not even seem to worry about whether the birds are in breeding condition; when they think the time has come for them to breed, pop they go together. Then there is trouble should one of the twain happen to be rank and its partner contrariwise.

Feeding for Breeding.

Parroket.—To get Finches into high breeding condition, pinches of gold of pleasure, sesame, hemp, niger, maw, dandelion, and similar "wild" seeds are invaluable. You must look out for early tender dandelion leaves and the flowering and seeding heads, and give the bird a free supply, seeing they are never in a frosted condition when offered. This is invaluable as a "conditioner" for breeding birds. For early supplies, look on sheltered banks (railway embankments for instance) which face south. Also let the bird have sprigs of seeding shepherd's purse, and chickweed, and flowering groundsel tops, looking out for the earliest possible supplies. The hen Canary does not want forcing, or she will go to nest before the Finch is fit, and the result will be disappointment, in the shape of clear eggs. Let her have good, sound canary seed only, with a little summer rape every second day, and a "nip" of hemp and niger twice a week. A small feed of egg-food once a week will do her no harm; plenty of time to give it oftener when the month of March is well in. In these matters, however, all fanciers must use their judgment according to the breeding condition or otherwise of their birds.

Early Bullie Eggs.

Lover of Birds.—It is early yet for fertile eggs from Bullies. If any of the eggs chance to prove fertile, transfer them at once, by all means, to the reliable feeding hen Canary you have. She will rear the young without any trouble on the usual food supplied to hens having young Canaries under them, i.e., egg food, crushed hemp, summer rape, young leaves of chickweed, shepherd's purse, lettuce, etc., giving in addition, of course, insectivorous food and any live foods you can command. One word of caution. Don't get messing and fussing about the cage to an utterly unnecessary extent, or you may quite likely put her off her duties. Should she unfortunately neglect them, remember that the hand-rearing of Bullfinch Hybrids offers but little difficulty, even when it has to be undertaken at quite a tender age. the chief things to observe are frequency and regularity of feeding, and giving but a little at a time—not over-stuffing them.

POST MORTEMS.

Mr. G. Yates, M.R.C.V.S., 525, Caledonian Road, Holloway, London, N., will examine and report upon dead cage birds for a fee of 1s. 6d. each bird; for reply direct, 2s. 6d.; analysis, 21s. Subjects for post mortem examination must be sent packed in a box direct to Mr. Yates, with the fee, this and an accompanying letter being kept from contact with the dead bird. Any bodies sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

R. N. S. Tebb.—Canary. Death arose from consolidation of the lungs, originating in an attack of pneumonia. It is not common to find the lungs of birds in this state, as pneumatic attacks in same are generally of such an acute character as to allow no time for consolidation. It no doubt originated in the first place from cold, and it is plain to see that distress in breathing would be more manifest after handling as you describe. The grinding noise would be actuated by attacks of pain. The affection has been originating some little time. The consolidation is due to the fact that an outpouring of inflammatory material takes place, filling up the minute air spaces of the lungs, giving it a solid appearance, and as it increased in quantity so the breathing would become more and more distressed.

Where has the Whiskey Gone?

SIR,—I won at Felinfoel on the 18th Dec., as special in class 24, a bottle of whiskey, as the secretary, Mr. T. J. Davies, wrote to me when he sent me 5s. as half-prize money. I did not receive the whiskey. I wrote twice to Mr. Davies, and have not had any acknowledgment.

JUSTICE.

What Size Should Travelling Cages be?

SIR,—Will some kind reader of CAGE BIRDS kindly give me information on the proper size of travelling cages for one, two, three, four, five, six pairs of birds respectively? Also how many can you send in one cage, so as to be clear of the law? I am a regular reader of CAGE BIRDS, but have never seen this referred to.

INQUISITIVE.

How to Remove Ice-blocks from Water-tins.

SIR,—I see that "Straight Un" complains of difficulty of thawing frozen drinkers, etc. I find the following plan excellent. I take a pail of cold water (straight from tap) into the bird-room, collect all the drinkers, and put them into it. By the time I have given the birds some seed, I have only to turn the drinkers upside down and out drop the blocks of ice. I use the little "top hat" drinkers. If fanciers will only give this method a trial, they will be agreeably surprised with the result.

The Preparation of Crests for Exhibition.

What is Legitimate.

SIR,—May I crave a small space in the columns of your valuable paper to enable a few fanciers in this city to elicit some information regarding the preparation of Crests for exhibition? I was present at a Bird Washing Competition, on January 28th, held under the auspices of the Aberdeen O.S., when a lecture was given on how to prepare Crests for exhibition. In his remarks the lecturer said that most of the leading fanciers trimmed their Crests, as it was almost impossible to breed a bird with a perfect formation of crest—one that was fit for exhibition without trimming. In the rules of most societies there is a statement to the effect that all exhibits having clipped, drawn, or painted plumage will be disqualified. Now, in spite of this, it was here openly confessed that they clip all objectionable feathers that make the formation of a crest imperfect. I should like to know if this is allowable in competition as regards Crests? Seeing that most of those present, along with myself, are novices in the art of exhibiting Crests, would not such a statement have a detrimental effect on the Fancy, as novices could have no chance of gaining the coveted prize ticket against the wiles of professional fakers? I do not think that anyone would object to the use of hot water and irons to assist the feather to keep in place and make a perfect formation, but when it comes to removing objectionable feathers it cannot, in my opinion, be called other than trimming. Should this letter come to the notice of any Crest exhibitors I should be exceedingly obliged if they could enlighten us on this most important subject.

Help Wanted from Skylark Keepers.

SIR,—I have read many letters concerning Mr. Knight's mode of feeding the Skylark. Now, having bred many Skylarks in captivity I would like your readers to know how I feed my birds. I have an old coffee mill, and I grind up 1lb. hemp seed, ½lb. rape seed, ¼lb. maw seed, ¼lb. linseed, half pint grey peas. I mix all together, and afterwards I add 2ozs. of ants' eggs. I take a teaspoonful for each bird, and I add to this breadcrumbs and scraped carrots and turnips. For a change I add chopped sprouts, scraped swedes, celery, chickweed, watercress, stewed English wheat, rice, pearl barley, chopped mealworms, boiled and baked liver and boiled eggs. The green food and stewed food are mixed with the breadcrumbs and seed, which will keep the food moistened, and will also keep the birds in good condition. I keep my birds in a room with the temperature from 55 to 60 degrees. I have bred over 30 Skylarks in captivity, and I have taken numerous prizes both by showing and in singing contests. I have also sung Skylarks in some of the public concert halls in Birmingham for the Christmas Tree Fund, also for the Lord Mayor's Fund and City Aid Society Funds, and employment funds, and several other minor charitable funds, with my famous Skylark "Charity." I can safely say that my food is good for restoring the bird's life. Our president, Mr. Joseph Jukes, had a bird live to the age of 22 years. The bird's name was "Rule Britannia," and it was fed on the above-named diet. When the bird was 21 years old he beat my famous "Charity" by half a second in a contest of 28 singers. Our secretary, Mr. W. Martin, holds testimony of several large contests, etc., of my bird's doings. There is no doubt our friend, Mr. Knight, is quite puzzled as to what style of feeding he shall commence upon with his new bird, so let me advise him to follow my example, where there is so much proof of my birds doings from the above modes of diet.

A Recipe Wanted for a "Conditioner."

SIR,—Will the fancier who wrote an article some year or two ago, called, "Hints for Novices," kindly favour me by again stating his recipe for a "Conditioner"? It was made up of port wine, honey, and I believe sulphate of iron. Have lost the article, and I wish to make up another bottle. It has proved a most useful tonic, and saved a good bird with chronic diarrhœa for me.

Prize Money and Entry Fees at Abertillery Show.

SIR,—I entered two birds at the above show. I received number and label for one bird; the other class was cancelled. I sent my Greenfinch, and secured first with him. Up to the time of writing I have not received either prize money or my returned entry fee. I have written to the secretary twice, but have not received a reply to either of my letters. The show was held under C.B.U. rules, and I trust that they will make a note of this.

DAVID S. LEE.

The New Society for Codnor Park.

SIR,—I notice a letter from one who signs himself "Nom-de-plumo" referring to the Codnor Park Cage Bird Society, also myself. "Nom-de-plume" states that he would like to know what I call a majority. What I stated say 2 to 1 is a majority. What I stated in my letter of January 21st, that the majority of the cage bird fanciers had resigned from Selston Society is correct, and I defy "Nom-de-plume" to say it is false. I can say without fear that there are 7 resigned, which left 3 members on the books for the cage bird section when I gave up. As regards my resignation of the secretaryship of the Selston Society, I ask of you, "Nom-de-plume," to withdraw the remarks you have published as to my not having given up one post before taking over the secretaryship of the Codnor Park Cage Bird Society. I defy you, or any other present member of the Selston Society, to state that I had not sent my resignation in, by letter, as I was unable to get to the meeting, as I was at work that night, and this you are aware of, as I told all the members present at the previous meeting I should be unable to get. My resignation had been delivered and read out at your meeting before I had been approached, or had any idea of forming, a society at Codnor Park. I have proof of my letter being read out at the meeting, but by what I gathered from one and then another you were not going to accept it. Yet none of you could write to me and tell me so, but sent the minutes of the meeting for me to copy, and seek fresh headquarters for you to hold your meetings. I hope, "Nom-de-plume," that you have got what you wanted by being made hon. secretary.

J. H. MITCHELL,
Hon. Sec., Codnor Park C.B.S.

The Cage Bird Union in the North.

SIR,—I notice another correspondent has entered the arena re the above subject, and signs himself "Fate." If he is man enough to disclose his identity, he will be fully answered, as his effusion is nothing but a parcel of inaccuracies and misrepresentations. If he is not prepared to back up his statements with his name, then I for one will treat it with contmpt.

J. CURRAH.

SIR,—I have no wish to introduce the personal element into my correspondence My first letter was a simple query about a statement in your journal, which I proved to be incorrect. It was not signed, so I also decided to use a "Nom de plume." I neither mentioned Mr. Currah nor a society. If you choose to take everything to apply to yourself, Mr. C., you are entitled to do so; but there is no "coercion." When you replied, and Mr. Curry also admitted his inaccurate statement, you showed the Fancy how things stood. My letter was written in defence of the C.B.U., and to that I intend to confine myself "at present." (Mark the "at present.")

"TWITE."

SIR,—I think the most abused man in the North of England at the present time (I think I can even include politicians) is Mr. MacPartling, and all through being so unfortunate as to be the Union representative for our society. It is scandalous how he has been abused by these cowards (what else can I call them?), who abuse people under noms-de-plume. At the time of penning these few lines I don't know what the result of his Mule case will be, but whatever the result, there is not a fancier or workmate but will bear me out when I say that a more respectable, truthful, straightforward, aye, man of the highest integrity, you will not find in the Fancy. When elected to be our C.B.U. representative, it was not with his free will, for he was not desirous of filling the position, but since he was elected, I must say that a better champion the Union never had. If the birds are not Mules, then I'm afraid that some of his hens must have been "lying awrang" or been with an "unco (strange) man" quite unknown to Mr. MacPartling. Whatever the verdict may be, I am sure Mac's character needs no vindication. As I have heard that my name has been mentioned as the writer of some of these anonymous letters, I would be much obliged to you if you would kindly contradict such rumour.

J. G. HUTCHINSON.

[We have received no letter other than the above from Mr. Hutchinson concerning the "C.B.U. in the North."—Editor.]

SIR,—This correspondence is not of the edifying nature one could wish it to be. If writers would only confine themselves to the point of whether the C.B.U. has justified its existence up to the present time, then one would be better able to understand the position. May I appeal to my brother fanciers to leave personalities alone, to sink petty jealousies, and to join hands to elevate and uplift the Fancy in the district to a higher plane? Whether this is done through the C.B.U. or through a Northern Federation, I for one care little. When the Union was formed, I was one of its greatest supporters in the district, and would continue to be so if I thought that its tendency was to elevate the Fancy, but when I see it used as the cat's paw for the relief of the feelings of jealous members, when it does things it ought not to do, and leaves undone things it ought to do, when it suspends one man (myself to wit) for showing at a small country show out of the regular show season, and takes no action in the scores of other cases which are happening on all sides in the regular show season, when men, to evade rule 17, are showing in their daughter's, son's, wife's, and other names, and no action is taken, then one begins to wonder if the Union is the power it ought to be. I know it will be replied that these cases have not been reported to the officials, but so far as I know, there is no appointed secretary for No. 1 district. Even if there were the discredit to which the Union has fallen is such that no respectable fancier would undertake to report these cases, much less send an anonymous catalogue. Another thing which we fanciers have to complain about is that the business which is conducted is not reported in the Fancy Press, and unless we happen to be present at the club meeting following the district committee's meeting, when the delegate usually gives his report, we know nothing of their doings. All other clubs' doings are reported in your columns, but so far as I remember, only about three meetings of all held by the twelve district committees have ever been reported, and I do not remember ever seeing the report of an executive meeting since the formation of the C.B.U. It is quite possible that the Union in other parts is doing some good work, but if so, why hide its light under a bushel? Surely its doings ought to bear the light of scrutiny. We want official reports of its transactions, so that we may know what the officials who are elected annually have done during their term of office. We want to know who those officials are, and to whom we ought to report any cases of irregularity which are brought to our notice.

T. C. CRAWHALL.

SIR,—Mr. Currah asks your readers to look at the report of Gateshead meeting and compare "J. G.'s" letter with it. I am astonished at one who professes to uphold truth writing such a thing, for he knows perfectly well that the report of the meeting is not correct. There were remarks made for and against the C.B.U. Examine the report again, Mr. C. It says, "after some very heated discussion," etc. How could there be "very heated discussion" if everyone present was in favour? What about my figures, 11 for and 8 against? Who is hiding behind the hedge now, taking advantage of a report he knows is not correct? As for the quotation, "First cast out the beam," etc., I think you had better start yourself, Mr. C. I hope you will be man enough to acknowledge you are in the wrong this time. I never thought you were a humorist. I am glad I tickled you about your clique (or "flying squadron"). It would have been as well if one of your clique had been muzzled at the Gateshead meeting. I suppose he was very nice to Mr. MacPartling at the Newcastle meeting. What a nice man he can be to your face. "J. G." does not wish to stop any member (mark you, "member") from speaking or voting. What I object to is anyone not a member of the society doing both. I have been told (how far it is correct I do not know yet) that some of the clique who supported the resolution to leave the C.B.U., were not members of Gateshead Society. I will ask your readers to judge for themselves whether "J. G." or Mr. C." is correct about the result of that meeting. I think the Gateshead secretary has been very indiscreet in his report of the meeting in his remarks about the representative of No. 1 district. The case is not settled yet, and even if it was, I think the remarks were quite uncalled for. I think Mr. MacPartling honestly believes the birds are Mules. If I have hurt your feelings, Mr. C., I am sorry, but remember you are not the only one who wants "the truth and nothing but the truth."

J. GRAHAM.

SIR,—I have certainly no wish to enter into any controversy, as it is not in my line, but I am compelled on this occasion in the interests of justice. Being the owner of the Mule that one of your correspondents, who signs himself "Lover of Justice" is harping on about not being judged in the members' class, I consider it my unbounded duty to give your readers the true state of affairs. That it could not be found when wanted was entirely my own fault, for, instead of gumming the member's tally on the front of the cage, I put it on the top corner, and when the stewards of the Mule section came to look for it to be judged in the members' class, quite naturally they were looking for the label on the front of the cage. No doubt I felt rather annoyed when I came in immediately after the members' class was judged (although it was detained for about twenty minutes in the hunt for my bird) at finding my bird had never been out, and probably said in my vexation some things that would have been better left unsaid. About half an hour after this I met Mr. Currah, our respected chairman and show manager in the show room, and, of course, I told him about the business, and, I can tell you, he felt rather grieved over the matter, and said he would have the class judged over again, as "right was right." But such a course I would not sanction, as by this time I had got over my feelings, and had had an explanation from the steward who was in charge of the section, and "who" had "no" self-interests in the Mule section. So, you see, "Lover of Justice," you should not be so hasty in going to the Press over so trifling a matter without the facts of the case, and accusing officials, which are second to none, of neglect of duty. As far as I was concerned, I had forgot all about the affair, and was rather surprised when I saw it brought forward, after a lapse of three months. If "Lover of Justice" is a member of the N.C.B.S., why didn't he bring the matter up at the club room, the proper place, where it would have got a fair and square hearing? And, on the other hand, if he is not a member, let him mind his own business, as I am quite capable of looking after mine

Mice in the Bird Room.

SIR,—Having read the different methods of ridding the bird-room of mice, I think this method would be of use. Fill all holes up with broken glass so as to stop the mice from eating their way through; then bend some sheet tin so as to nail on to the floor and skirting boards. I have tried this with success. KELLY.

SIR,—I send you my experience in one house for ten years. The mice were very bad in it and I set to work and got some tar and some pieces of wood; then I tarred the back of the wood with it and fixed wood round the best way I could. Then for the small holes I put some tar in an old tin and a little water in it. Then I put paper into it and soaked it; finally filled up the holes as tight as possible with the mixture. I have never seen a mouse since. The next-door neighbour asked me what I had been doing as the mice were running all over. I told him to do as I had been doing and send them downstairs. This same cure applies to outdoor aviaries. You dig a small channel round and round and fill it up with thick tar; then cover with earth. Neither mice nor rats will go through it. You can get coal tar from any plumber or drysalter.

Can British Birds be Stolen with Impunity?

SIR,—Being a lover of British birds I was greatly interested on reading Mr. Goodridge's letter under this heading. It reminds me of a case I heard of some time ago, which happened here in Bristol. A man took a tame Magpie from a cage which was hanging outside its owner's house, and took it to a bird dealer's shop, and offered it for sale The dealer gave him a fair price for the bird, but a day or so after a gentleman called at his shop and claimed the bird as his, which, no doubt, was true, for upon talking to it and calling it by a pet name it was quite evident whose bird it was. The police were communicated with, but the parties were told that it was a wild bird, and therefore a charge of theft against the man who took it from the cage would not stand. The Magpie was, I think, by mutual arrangement returned to its owner.

ST. GEORGE.

SIR,—I should say certainly not. I fail to follow the magistrate's unjust decision. For a man to go into a shop and ask to see some birds, one of which, when shown him, he deliberately opens the door to take—a bird which has been in the shop-keeper's possession over three years, and surely that is long enough to entitle him to ownership—while he draws the attention away by asking to be shown another, making off out of the shop with the bird—I should think is robbery in one of its worst forms. I should like to have seen him severely dealt with. Besides which he assaults a young man who tries to stop him with the stolen bird in his possession. The man after being charged (but which is not accepted by the police) owns that he is guilty of the theft by offering to pay for the bird, there being also a witness in the shop who saw the occurrence. Yet the magistrate fined him 5s. for another offence for which he was not charged—viz., for being "Drunk and disorderly." Neither, I believe, was anything said about, nor had he the appearance of being so. Therefore, I fail to see or follow the reason of such a verdict. Was the magistrate "caught napping" or his thoughts gone wool-gathering? He also fined him in addition 10s. for assault, but for the charge and bird and cage nothing was done or mentioned. If they (police) say a "wild bird belongs to anybody," how can that be, if they are not in anybody's possession and proteeted all the year round? I think the decision very hard and unjust and an encouragement to such persons to go and do likewise in any shop where wild birds are for sale. If this is the law, then the sooner it is altered the better. Could not the case be taken up again and retried?

The Judging of Roller Canaries

SIR,—At our meeting on Feb. 5th, Mr. Foulds' letter was read, as published in CAGE BIRDS re the judging of Rollers, and all our members were most unanimous in support of Mr. Foulds' statement with regard to high schockel, no such tour being included in the B.R.C.C. standard. Probably these birds have been singing high bell tour, and should have been penalised for such and not for high schockel, as appears on judging sheet. How and where did this tour come from, and whose invention? We are of the opinion with regard to high and low schockel, that this schockel tour is a waving hollow tour, and cannot be sung in a high key to give offence; therefore this schockel should not be penalised, as already has been. We should like to hear other fanciers' views on this matter.

How to Arm Nets.

SIR,—In reply to "Another Amateur" re thread for making a good net, the kind I use is as follows: Go to your bootmaker and get him to send for a pound or half-pound of linen machine thread, the same sort that is used for stitching the uppers of the boots together. This is very fine and very strong. You can get it in 2oz. spools, of about 600 yards, without a knot in it. It is very smooth and works up very nice, but the cost is about 5s. 4d. a pound. Or you can buy it by the spool, about 8½d., any colour. The colour I use is white. Brown hardly shows on the ground. For arming the nets I use brown water cord, the size they use for pike fishing, and for the top lines I use curbing line, same as the men use for laying of curb stones, very tight, but wonderfully strong. If "Another Amateur" will give his address, I will send him a sample of the thread, and he can see for himself. Any further information I am willing to give to any on the above.

SIR,—Our attention has been called to a letter written you by Mr. W. P. Bell and published in your valuable paper, CAGE BIRDS, of January 29. In it, he complains that he has not received his prize-money, 5s., also that he has written the secretary three times, and only received one reply. He does not say that he was distinctly told in that letter that his prize-money had been sent, and that it was sent on August 10, the day after the show; also that we had a witness who checked the account, and also saw it posted. We do not say he received it, but we are positively certain it was posted to him. We have received many letters from successful exhibitors thanking us for the prompt way in which we paid their prize-money. It was a great surprise to us to receive a postcard from Mr. Bell a month after his prize-money had been sent, saying he had not received it. This is the only complaint we have received. Mr. Bell says he will withhold his support from our next show. We do not suppose this will ruin us, as actions speak louder than words, and several exhibitors were so pleased at the satisfactory way everything in connection with our show was carried out, that they have offered us several special prizes for our next show. We hope you will kindly insert this explanation in your next issue.

G. WARD AND A. BROTHWOOD, Secs.

A Crown Claimed from the Cage Bird Union.

SIR,—At the last meeting of the Whittington Moor Cage Bird Society, I was instructed to let you know of the treatment we are receiving at the hands of the C.B.U. We held our first open show on Boxing Day, and, without the aid of the C.B.U., it proved a grand success. Shortly before the last day for receiving entries, several members of neighbouring societies approached us to obtain a licence from the C.B.U. that they might make a few entries. We at once sent off the necessary 5s., but received a reply to say that, being purely a cage bird society, we could not be granted a licence. This we now know is according to rule, but, note, no 5s. was returned. Being unable to have a licence granted us, we had no option but to refuse about 30 entries from Union members. But this is not our grievance. Our secretary wrote off for the return of the 5s., and, in reply, came the following letter:—

January 15, 1910.

MESSRS. BARBER AND ATKINS.

GENTS,—Re 5s. sent for your last show, as you have had your show, I cannot see quite that you want your money back. If you have held it under our rules, and induced some of our members to support you by making entries, and if any have done so they would be breaking the rules. Kindly send me a schedule and catalogue, and if none of our members have shown, then I might suggest to you that the 5s. sent should go to making you members of the Union for the coming year, as you say you might join this coming year.

J. RAYNES, Sec. C.B.U.

If you cannot trust either our society or your own members, Mr. Raynes, please don't expect confidence from them in return. In answer to this letter, our secretary wrote (more than a fortnight ago) to say we refused entries from C.B.U. members, and that we had decided not to join the C.B.U., and would he kindly return the 5s. To this we can get no answer. This is our last application, Mr. Raynes. We are determined to have the deposit returned at any cost, and if you require a catalogue for proof of any support from your members, please pay the 4d. for it, the same as other people, and you can have one. We don't feel inclined to allow you any further credit by sending you a catalogue free, you have quite sufficient now belonging to us. If this is a sample of the work carried on by this great Cage Bird Union, no wonder we hear and read so much about it, and we feel we are certainly well advised in not joining its ranks.

Some Notable Birds at the Crystal Palace Show.

By WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S.

This article is not intended to cover the whole of the Palace "aristocracy," but merely to describe the six species figured on our plate by Mr. Goodchild.

HUNSTEIN'S MAGNIFICENT BIRD OF PARADISE: Though not figured on our plate, we cannot well pass this magnificent specimen without some notice, though described and illustrated in December last. But the bird has marvellously improved since, and during the course of the show treated many fortunate observers to characteristic attitudinizing and displaying. It was most interesting to see the straw-coloured hood at the back of the neck raised almost perpendicularly and the wings dropped with every feather quivering—a sight long to be remembered—and the rich colouring was displayed in a manner not to be realised by those who have only seen it so far in the normal attitude. Well did it merit its title of Magnificent. The silkiness of its plumage and richness and purity of colouring have increased—it is also much steadier than when last exhibited.

The Stella Lory.

Words fail one to describe the gorgeous tropical colouring of this lovely species. The body colouring is glowing carmine and crimson, a violet-purple crown adorns the top of the head, the wings and tail, rich, dark grass-green, and the beak, legs, and feet, orange-yellow. It is a native of New Guinea, and with this species must ever be associated the name of Mr. Walter Goodfellow, who collected and brought over the group which now adorn the aviaries of Mr. E. J. Brook, of Ecclefechan, whose fine series of rare Lories and Lorikeets surpasses even that at the London Zoo. The specimen herein described came from Mr. Brook's collection. The longest tail feathers are 10½ inches and are flexible, the bird having the power to curl them up and straighten them out again in almost any direction at will. There is also another species, the Fair Lory, very similar to the above in general colouration, of which Mr. Brook also possesses a good series. Mr. Millsum is to be congratulated on this acquisition, of which any aviculturist might well be proud.

Levaillant's Barbet.

The quaint markings of this rare and interesting species (only two specimens of which have ever reached this country alive) are clearly shown in Mr. Goodchild's characteristic drawing. With this before us, the only description necessary is to say that the mottlings consist of white, pale yellow, dull red, and lustrous black. Since a recent London show, this specimen has passed into the hands of Mr. S. Beaty. The bird is now quite tame for a Barbet and in beautiful condition. If not as gorgeous as some of its tropical rivals, it is a handsome and striking species, of much interest and full of character. Barbets must not be trusted with birds other than those which are larger and stronger than themselves.

The Indian Pitta.

As will be seen from the drawing on our plate, this is another quaint species, something like a Quail on stilts. It is an interesting and beautiful bird, principal colouration: head, dark brownish-black; upper eye streak pale fawn colour; lower face and throat pure white; back and wings bluish-green, relieved with black and also a white wing bar; the under-surface is pale reddish-rufous, with the centre of abdomen and central region glowing scarlet; the tail is but rudimentary. This species is very quarrelsome and pugnacious unless it has plenty of space, and even then it should be kept under observation, though most of his enormities are reserved for his own species. According to Jordan this species throughout the whole of India feeds chiefly on various coleopterous insects, and in captivity it should have a liberal supply of live food. Its mode of progression on the ground is by hopping. The specimen here described was exhibited by Mr. C. Cushney, and was in excellent condition.

The Brown-winged Blue Grosbeak.

A fine outstanding species, of pleasing contour for a Grosbeak, of subdued colouring, yet how beautifully the brown and dull blue harmonise; all plainness is lost and a really beautiful bird is the result. Mr. Goodchild's drawing fully indicates its "reachy" carriage, and conveys a good idea of the colour areas. The body colouring is dull blue, with wings of various shades of brown. It is to be hoped that the fortunate owner of the pair, Mrs. E. Galloway, will be able to give them breeding quarters for the summer months, as she has an undoubted pair. Mixed seeds, green food, live food of some kind, such fruit as they will take, and also a little soft food if they will eat same will fully meet the needs of this fine species. The common Blue Grosbeak (Guiraca cyanea) was bred by Mr. W. E. Teschemaker in one of his outdoor aviaries last year; so why not the Brown-winged?

The Hooded Siskin.

If this lovely bird only came over in larger numbers and reached our shores in a little more robust condition, it would soon become everybody's bird, for of all the birds that graced the benches of the National Show surely this charming little species would merit such a title. It is beautiful indeed in its striking silky garment of fiery orange and black. It is a seed-eater and it is said to mate freely (in Italy, at any rate) with the Canary, producing very beautiful hybrids. Those interested in hybrid breeding would do well to keep this charming little fellow in view, as the possible progenitor of numerous rare and beautiful hybrids. It is also a songster of more than average merit. The sexes are distinct as to plumage, the female is brown with patches of orange-red on the breast and three on each wing; the rump and upper tail coverts are also of the same hue. Mr. H. D. Astley was the first to introduce this species to English aviculture—he met with it during a stay abroad, and in Trinidad he saw many charming Mules that had been bred between it and the Wild Canary. Diet: Canary, millet, rape, crushed oats, lettuce seed, and spray millet. Spray millet they are very fond of, and fresh, clean green-food must be liberally supplied, especially blighty foliage. The specimen herein described was exhibited by Mr. C. T. Maxwell, and staged in his usual faultless style.

The Cape Sparrow.

A very fine specimen of this well-known species was staged in exquisite condition by Mr. L. J. Arrighi, and we do not remember to have seen one so richly coloured and well marked previously. The drawing clearly indicates the sharp but pleasing contrasts of its colour. The facial markings, top of head and pectoral patch are deep black and pure white, the remainder of under surface is whitish, while the upper surface consists of brown and rich chestnut-brown; beak blackish; legs and feet reddish-flesh colour. It is an interesting species, both for cage or aviary, its striking colouration, though not brilliant, attracts notice at once, and there are few birds of more attractive appearance—however gorgeous apparelled—than the Cape or Crescent Sparrow. Mr. Seth Smith had young of this species hatched out, but not fully reared, in his aviaries in 1901. In contour it is a replica of Passer domesticus but differs materially in disposition, for it is amiable in the aviary and a desirable inmate. It has no song, but neither has it a noisy chirp or chatter, but is really a well-conducted and handsome fellow. The female, though very similar to the male, lacks all intensity of colour, has no white in her plumage, the light areas being very pale dusky brown.

The Cage Bird Union Annual Meeting.

"Out of Order": An Extraordinary Fiasco.

The Council Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Cage Bird Union was held at the Crystal Palace in the Electric Theatre on Saturday, February 5th. The Council met at four o'clock. Mr. S. Hadwin (Liverpool) in the chair.

The chief business at this Council meeting was in connection with Mr. G. W. Macpartling's appeal against the decision of the District No. 1 (Newcastle) Committee. Mr. Macpartling, it will be remembered, exhibited two birds in the Mule classes at the recent Newcastle and Wallsend shows, which, he declared, were undoubted light Mules, as he had bred them himself. These birds were wrong-classed at the former show and awarded prizes at the latter, the reason for the wrong-classing being (it was stated) that the birds were Canaries. The case came before the District Committee, and it was agreed by them and Mr. Macpartling to submit the birds to Dr. Galloway for an unbiased opinion as to their identity. Dr. Galloway gave it as his opinion that the birds were Canaries, and the committee accordingly decided against Mr. Macpartling. The business of the Council was, therefore, to hear the appeal of that gentleman, who had previously deposited ten shillings with the Union for the purpose.

Mr. RAMSDEN asked if Mr. Macpartling had agreed to let the birds go to Dr. Galloway, because, if he had, then the decision of Dr. Galloway, as the referee accepted by the two parties, should be, in fact must be, legally regarded as final, so that the whole appeal should now be ruled out of court.

Mr. MACPARTLING: I agreed to the birds going to Dr. Galloway, but I did not for one moment think that his decision would be final. If I had refused to let them go, the case would have gone against me at once, and with my honour at stake, as it is, I could not risk doing this. I declare emphatically that the birds were bred by me. The manner of their breeding has never been made public, for the simple reason that I have never been given the opportunity of saying how I bred them; and I submit that now that I have appealed to the Council of the Cage Bird Union, I have a right to be heard.

The Council afterwards inspected the birds, and gave it as their practically unanimous opinion that they were Canaries. They therefore agreed to uphold the decision of the District No. 1 Committee, though they wanted it understood that they did not wish to cast any reflection on Mr. Macpartling, believing that he had made a mistake.

The Council next considered a question of Mr. Ramsden's. He had been asked, he said, in what class a Mule should be shown, which was dark but for four white feathers in the tail. A certain exhibitor had shown such a bird as a light Mule, winning a prize with it; had shown it in a dark Mule class, winning here also; and had shown it in the A.O.V. Mule class, where it was wrong-classed. The question, therefore, was: What is its proper class?

Mr. HADWIN said that that eminent authority, Mr. J. Williams, had said that any Mule which had light plumage about it, if it were only a white speck on the head, was a light Mule.

Mr. POPE (Plymouth) said he was always of that opinion, and thought most shows were conducted on that understanding.

Mr. D. A. S. LONGDEN (Swansea) said that in a case where three classes were provided—a light, a dark, and an A.O.V.—a bird with light feathers in its tail, but dark otherwise, should certainly, he thought, be exhibited in the A.O.V. class. But where only two classes were provided, he was of opinion the bird should be shown in the class for dark Mules.

The Council decided that a bird possessing light feathers in its tail, but which was dark otherwise, should be shown in the A.O.V. class, when there were three classes, and in the light Mule class when only two classes appeared in the schedule.

With the consideration of several minor matters, the Council meeting was declared ended.

The Delegates' Meeting.

The delegates' meeting, which was timed to begin at 4.30 p.m., did not begin until nearly six o'clock, when Mr. Hadwin presided. Only fourteen delegates attended.

Before retiring, which he had to do, he explained, because he had so many matters to attend to, Mr. Ramsden said he had been asked to draw the attention of the delegates to the fact that according to the rules of the Union, the whole of the notices of motion appearing on the agenda were out of order. He would, however, leave it with the meeting to decide upon the matter.

Mr. RAYNES, the secretary, explained that in the first place, although he had sent a letter to every one of the affiliated societies asking them, among other things, to let him have any proposal they might have for alterations or additions to rules, they had failed to comply with rule 26 in the matter of sending him such proposals two calendar months before the general meeting; and, in the second place, when he did get their proposals he himself was unable to comply with the provision of Rule 26 that the proposals must be sent to secretaries of all affiliated societies six weeks before the general meeting. So what, he asked, was he to do?

The rule referred to reads as follows:—

> 26.—Notice in writing of any proposed alteration and of any proposed new rule, shall be sent by prepaid letter post addressed to the general secretary two calendar months before, and to the secretaries of every affiliated society six weeks before the Annual Meeting of the Delegates.

Mr. J. W. DEWHURST: I submit that the whole of the agenda is out of order. If secretaries of societies sent you these notices of motion after the time stated in Rule 26, your duty, as the secretary of the Union, was to have replied stating that you could not accept them. Besides, do I understand you to say that every delegate has been sent a copy of these notices? because I have not had one, and so have not had a chance of submitting them to the society which I represent. Moreover, don't you think a copy of the report and balance-sheet ought to have been sent to the societies?

The CHAIRMAN: They have been sent, I believe.

Mr. DEWHURST: No, they have not been sent; at least, my society have not seen them.

The CHAIRMAN: Rule 26 only refers to new rules and proposed alterations to rules. The ordinary business, such as the passing of the report and balance-sheet, we are quite in order in discussing. Seeing that the books do not close until January 31st, it was quite impossible for the balance-sheet to be submitted to societies.

At this point in the proceedings it was remembered that the minutes of the last annual general meeting had not been read. When the secretary had read these they were accepted, on the motion of Mr. J. A. Tyler (Leicester), seconded by Mr. W. W. Freestone (Norwich).

The report was next considered. It read as follows:—

> At the last annual meeting of delegates, held at the Crystal Palace, the general rules were discussed, and altered to such an extent that it was found necessary to refer the alterations to the Union's solicitor before having them reprinted. Mr. J. W. Ramsden again kindly undertook to supply 5,000 copies free of cost to the Union. These have been printed and sent to all affiliated societies, and I trust every member has had a copy of them.
> The C.B.U., the Yorkshire Union, and the London Federation have agreed to recognise and uphold each other's disqualifications, etc. I still regret that no further arrangement has been made with the Y.U. and C.B.U. to bring them both into one fold, but I hope it will come in the near future. The compensation scheme, discussed last year, has had the Council's attention. The result will be found in the rule books. This was found to be a difficult matter to deal with owing to possible fraud, and the Council thought they would guard against it by only allowing compensation to or from shows, and where the railway company admit their liability. It has not met with the support the Executive Council wished, only eight members contributing to it. I hope more will join during the coming year.
> The medal competition is not very keen in some districts, but now that we have got one specially designed for the Union, the Executive Council would like to see more go in for it. Members must compete in their own districts except Lancashire and Cheshire, as per rule.
> Several cases of breaking the rules have been reported in various districts, chiefly members showing at non-affiliated or non-licensed shows, or expelled members showing their birds in other people's names; and the cases have been, or are being, dealt with by the district committees. The Executive Council think it the duty of every member to report (with proof) to the secretary of the district those who break the rules, and if this was done it would soon be stamped out.
> One exhibitor, not a member of any affiliated society, was disqualified at a show by the judge for alleged staining of his exhibits. The District Committee tried the case, and suspended him until February, 1911, and suggested that secretaries of societies should not take entries from any of the family.
> I would like to ask all members who receive schedules from societies to see if the show is advertised under C.B.U. rules, and if the show rules are inserted, and refer to the Press for confirmation before making their entries and warn their fellow members and exhibitors. I should also be glad if delegates would see that the secretaries' and delegates' names and addresses, also their affiliation fees (which are now due), and applications for show dates, are sent to the Union secretary as early as possible in order to prevent disappointment and delay in fixing up the dates of shows.
> I enclose a copy of the balance-sheet subject to slight alterations.
> The number of affiliated societies is 150—a decrease of about 20. The number of licenses is 50, against 73 last year. The affiliated societies are less in consequence of the London Federation taking a many. The others not rejoining are scattered about the country, some having no open show owing to lack of funds. The licensed shows, who have cage birds only, rather than be compelled to affiliate according to rule, dropped it altogether. The expenses are lower considerably. The balance in hand is £35 10s. 11d., showing a loss of about £7 on the year's working.—J. RAYNES, Sec.

In reference to the compensation scheme, the CHAIRMAN stated that it was, in his opinion, the best thing that had been put before societies. It would do away with the necessity of the coercive rule (No. 17), and when once in working order it would be quite sufficient in itself to make it worth one's while belonging to the Union.

Mr. DEWHURST said he noticed that the report credited the London Federation with taking away a lot of the societies from the Union's roll of affiliated societies. He would like to point out that the Federation only governed the members' classes at London shows, and had nothing to do with the open classes, so that it could not possibly clash with the C.B.U. Besides, it was understood that in regard to the open classes the C.B.U. rules would over-ride any others.

It was afterwards found that the majority of the societies, which were thought to have seceded from the Union on account of their having joined the London Federation, did not hold open shows during the past season, and therefore had no need to belong to the Union.

It was asked if something had not been said about an amalgamation of the Federation with the Union.

Mr. RAYNES replied in the negative. The Federation had agreed, he said, to uphold the Union's disqualifications and suspensions, and the Union the Federation's, but there was no suggestion that they should amalgamate in any way.

A DELEGATE: Why should we uphold the Federation's disqualifications, etc.?

Mr. RAYNES: To cause a friendly feeling between the two bodies, I presume; at least, we hope so.

The report was adopted, on the motion of Mr. Pope, seconded by Mr. Longden.

On the question of the balance-sheet, some considerable discussion arose over the item "Assistant-Secretary's salary, £3 13s. 6d.," which it was ultimately agreed should be deleted from the balance-sheet. Mr. J. Raynes (the secretary) stated that he would consider whether or not he should resign his position. He saw no reason why, as he had done the same amount of work that Mr. G. W. F. Lythgoe did before him, he should not receive the same salary.

The balance-sheet as amended was passed, on the motion of Mr. Pope, seconded by Mr. Kelly (Sheffield).

The next business was the election of a president and secretary. The Secretary said only two nominations were to hand, viz., Mr. Bladon (Manchester) and himself, they having held the respective positions during the past year. He presumed they would be re-elected.

Several of the delegates at this point objected that neither they nor their societies had received a nomination form, and on Mr. Raynes assuring the meeting that they had all been posted, Mr. DEWHURST said he wanted to know the date on which the forms were sent out, as he would certainly "go for" the post-office on the point. Mr. Raynes promised to forward the date on to the enquirer.

Mr. LONGDEN thought that the best thing to do would be to send out fresh nomination forms to all affiliated societies, and he would move that such be done.—Mr. MACPARTLING seconded, and the proposition was carried practically unanimously.

The original question then came up for discussion again, as to whether the notices of motion on the agenda were in order, and, if not, whether the delegates would be doing the right thing in dealing with them.

Mr. WELLINGS proposed, though his proposition apparently found no seconder, "that we do not entertain any of these suggested alterations to rules."

Mr. LONGDEN: In the letter that I received from the secretary on December 25th, I was asked to let him have any suggestions that I might wish to make. I made some suggestions which duly appeared on the agenda; and I claim that I have a perfect right to have them discussed. And, after all, they are only suggestions as to alterations of rules.

Mr. TYLER: That circular (of December 23rd) was out of order.

Mr. LONGDEN: Then, with all due respect to our secretary, I submit that he was out of order in sending it out.

Mr. WOOLHOUSE (Dulwich) then moved the adjournment of the meeting, which Mr. DEWHURST seconded.

The CHAIRMAN thought this would be a very unwise proceeding in view of the expenses entailed and the needlessness of an adjournment as regarded one or two of the items on the agenda, but on its being put to the vote the motion for the adjournment was carried almost unanimously.

The next and last business of the meeting was, therefore, to decide upon the time and place of the next meeting. It was ultimately agreed to hold it at the Palace Show, 1911, although Whitsuntide was pressed as regards the time of meeting. On the proposition of Mr. Tyler, seconded by Mr. J. H. de Maillet (Birmingham), Leicester "nearly had it" as regards the place of meeting. Mr. Wellings was of the opinion that if the delegates stopped there much longer (they were very cold and hungry), they would not be able to meet at all. (Laughter.) A vote of thanks to the chairman brought the meeting to a close.

THE CINNAMON CANARY CLUB.

The annual general meeting was held at the Crystal Palace on February 5th. Present: Messrs. Dormer and Riding (Rishton), Hayes (Waterfoot), Hill (Manchester), J. Wones (Norwich), and the hon. secretary, R. J. Pretty. Mr. J. Wones, in the absence of the president, took the chair. The minutes of the last annual meeting were read and confirmed. Mr. Dormer called attention to the resolution proposed last year, which made it imperative that a fresh judge should officiate at each patronage show. This, Mr. Dormer contended, was a misunderstanding. The resolution was intended to apply to club shows only. The club was not in a position to dictate to every society who ran a show as to whom they should appoint as judge. He would like to see the matter rectified. After some considerable discussion, Mr. Heyes moved, "That the resolution moved by Mr. Hargreaves at the last general meeting of 1909 be rescinded." Mr. Dormer seconded, and it was unanimously agreed to. Mr. Dormer then moved, "That a judge shall not adjudicate at more than one club show in three years." Mr. Riding seconded, and it was carried.

The notices of motion proposed at the Manchester meeting were then dealt with. No. 1. "That the club's novice rule read the same as that of the Cage Bird Union." Mr. Dormer moved that the club's Rule 19 be rescinded, and that of the C.B.U. be inserted in its place. Mr. Heys seconded, and was agreed to nem. con. Mr. Hill then moved that the motion No. 3 be added to that rule, "That a novice's points be counted throughout the show season." Mr. Riding seconded, and, after some discussion, it was unanimously carried. No. 2 Motion. The provision of a trophy. Mr. Riding proposed "That a trophy be provided for, and a subscription list be opened." Mr. Hill seconded, and it was agreed to. The suggestions as to how this trophy should be competed for were then discussed, and Mr. Hill moved, "That this trophy be competed for at all patronage and club shows, the exhibitor's three highest birds to count for points as follows: First 5 points, second prize 4 points, third 3 points, fourth 2 points, vhc. 1 point. To be won three times, not necessarily in succession. A medal to be given to the winner each year." Mr. Riding seconded it, and it was unanimously agreed to.

Mr. Riding moved, "That the subscription be reduced to 3s." After some discussion it was generally agreed that such a course would not be advisable at this juncture; thereon Mr. Riding withdrew his motion. Mr. Riding suggested that the rules of the club be revised by a sub-committee. After a discussion it was agreed to leave the matter to the secretary, who shall give notice of same to all the members when sending out the voting papers. The applications for the club show were then dealt with, there being only two applications, viz., Liverpool and Nottingham. It was agreed to accept Nottingham's application. There was no other course open owing to the last club show being held at Manchester, and the club's rule provides that the district must vary each year. The secretary was instructed to write to the Liverpool secretaries and thank them for their generous offer, and regretting that under the conditions they could not accept. The business being concluded, Mr. Riding moved a vote of thanks to Mr. Wones for presiding, which Mr. Dormer seconded, and the meeting terminated.—R. J. PRETTY, Hon. Sec.

THE BRITISH ROLLER CANARY CLUB.

The annual general meeting of the members was held in the King's Room of the Crystal Palace on February 5th. Mr. F. A. Lester presided, and there were also present Messrs. J. Lyons, A. Chilcott, F. J. Randall, G. Mooney, J. Gostling, R. Kremner, F. E. Fisher, A. Percival, J. C. Schluter, T. H. Williams, R. White, F. Barnett, F. Harvey, A. Neugebauer, F. Brown, F. King, C. Roehl, A. Gloeckner, and W. Norris (secretary). The first business after confirmation of the minutes was the presentation of the balance-sheet, which showed a balance in hand, after meeting all liabilities, of upwards of £18. The chairman congratulated the members on the satisfactory nature of the finances, and said he thought that for a society of only nine or ten years' standing, it was the best balance-sheet he had ever seen. They had spent £14 on the young bird competition, and on the medals account, £12 odd. No other society in England, he thought, spent so much as that in these directions. The balance-sheet was then adopted. The following new members were elected: Messrs. W. Watson, H. Cox, Twigg, Clupp, and Sterner. A lengthy discussion next ensued relative to the conditions under which the novice portion of the young bird competition should be carried out. Mr. Schluter said they had made a stipulation that a novice was one who had not won more than two prizes at any show. He thought that having made that stipulation they should see that it was carried out; they did not want the rule at all if anyone was to be allowed to go on as he liked. The discussion was joined in by the chairman, Messrs. Gostling, Percival, and others, and ultimately it was decided that a novice, after winning two first prizes, should pass out of the novice section, carrying his points with him, to count in the novice competition. Mr. H. R. B. Tweed (president) and the whole of the officers, the secretary announced, had been re-elected, but Mr. Norris complained of the few voting papers returned in proportion to the membership. There were 144 sent out and only 38 returned. On the suggestion of one of the country members, the following names were added to the list of vice-presidents: Messrs. Percival, Lyons, Willows, Netherwood, Massey, Schluter, Randall, Waring, and Lester. A long and animated discussion then ensued upon the subject of rings for young bird competition. Mr. Percival, it appeared, had written asking that rings should be supplied to the P.R.C.C. at about cost price. That letter was submitted to the committee, and they had decided that they must adhere to the existing conditions. Some miscarriage of a telegram to Mr. Percival from Mr. Lester appears to have occurred, and consequently the deputation from the Provincial R.C.C., with relation to ring competitions, was not present. After much conversation, during which it transpired that there had been a misunderstanding all round on the point of eligibility by purchasers of B.R.C.C. rings, to compete in the young bird competition, it was pointed out that the P.R.C.C. members clearly had in their minds that they could not win in that competition under the present B.R.C.C. rule, and had come to the conclusion that it was useless purchasing rings, and belonging to the B.R.C.C., if they could not gain the benefits it was professed to confer. It was ultimately agreed that all purchasers of B.R.C.C. rings, either directly through Mr. F. Norris, or indirectly through their secretaries, be allowed to compete at the B.R.C.C. young bird competition for 1910 and 1911, which is run out of profits on the rings, and that the rings remain at the same price as last year. Votes of thanks to the B.R.C.C., the chairman, and secretary closed the proceedings.

A Presentation to Mr. Tyson.

The annual meeting of the C.C.C. was held in the Board Room at the Crystal Palace on Feb. 5th. Mr. R. Rhodes presided, and others present were Mrs. Litchfield, Miss Cooper, Messrs. Heath, Ryder, Hoar, Braund, Shepherd, Turner, Crisp, Broad, Ley, Lazarus, Barnett, Dobson, Robson, Tyson, Franz, Sadd, Horton, Mugford, Peters, Dickinson, and J. S. Clarke, hon. sec.

The Secretary's Report.

Mr. Clarke announced that the voting for president had resulted in a unanimous vote for Mr. Rhodes. Speaking of the work of the club, he, after twelve months, appreciated what Mr. Tyson had done during the seven years he held office. One thing he strongly complained about: 36 members had not paid their subscriptions. He had written them three times, spent 9s. in postage, and wasted his time for nothing. The least a fancier could do as a common act of courtesy was to drop a postcard saying he did not wish to continue membership. The balance-sheet showed £2 15s. 11d. in hand, but there were liabilities of £8 9s. He had not worked the special prize fund so hard as he might have done; therefore, he hoped they would have a whip round and wipe out the deficiency. As to paying out specials, he had not paid out because he thought the year would end up with a deficiency, and he did not wish to give anyone preferential treatment. He hoped to get off the few specials left by Monday next. Those who had received them had written expressing their appreciation and surprise at the splendid value. He concluded by giving the results of the voting published in CAGE BIRDS last week, and made a strong appeal to the members to help him all they could in advancing the interests of the club.

Mr. Ley asked how many members had paid.—Mr. Clarke: 101; we have 120 on the books.

Mr. Ley: Then we have an income of £25, and the Committee must see to it in allotting specials that we don't overrun that amount.—The Chairman: We must not forget the expenses.—Mr. Clarke: I have not charged the club one penny for expenses during the year.—Mr. Tyson: From the balance-sheet it is clear the club has given away more than its income warranted.—On the motion of Mr. Crisp, seconded by Mr. Mugford, the balance-sheet was adopted.

Mr. Ley's Scheme.

Mr. Ley, in bringing forward his scheme to increase the interest in the Crest Fancy, said what he proposed was that the C.C.C. should ask societies wishing for the Crested Canary Club's patronage to provide fifteen classes at a first-class show and eight at a minor one. That for the eight classes the society should pay the C.C.C. 20s., and they would guarantee the whole of the Crest section, for larger shows, 2s. 6d. extra for each class over eight. During 1909 the C.C.C. had supported 12 shows with 113 classes, the loss upon which was £12 1s., which averaged 2s. 1½d. per class. He gave the classification which he thought would best suit the needs of the club (this has already appeared in CAGE BIRDS). This classification he was certain would be a success; members and outsiders would be anxious to show, and societies would be eager to get the C.C.C. patronage. One thing would have to be guarded against; they could not allow a society to select some class or classes which would fill and leave the others to the C.C.C. The club must have all or none. There must be none reserved, or they might involve themselves in habilities they could not meet. If the scheme was tried he was sure it would result in a big increase of interest being shown in the variety; it would boom the breed as nothing else ever had done, and bring it more to the front than it had been for many years.

The Chairman: Mr. Ley has put his scheme before us in a very clear and concise manner, and it is now before you for discussion.

Mr. Heath suggested that a sub-committee of two should consider the scheme and report to committee.

The Chairman: We must not shelve it. We must adopt the scheme or not. Details may be gone into later.

Mr. Clarke said he was in favour of the scheme, or of anything which would make the Crested Canary more popular. He thought, however, that what was done would have to be done carefully. They must not make it too common. The C.C.C.'s support should be something worth having, something to be fought for. As to the 15 class shows, he thought there should be two—one North and one South. The weak spot in the scheme was the half prize money if less than eight entries. If they did it at all they should guarantee full prize money, or else neither societies nor exhibitors would know what they were to get. They must also consider the specials, and not victimise a man by letting him win 2s. 6d. for best Crest, and then take away 5s. for best C.-B., if he should happen to have won it.

Mr. Tyson said it was never intended to rob a man of any special he had won. It had been mentioned that the C.C.C. gave its support when only two classes were provided. That was not so. It had been four for some time now. Something certainly needed doing to bring the variety to the front again. The Palace authorities had not applied for the C.C.C. support, and the result should be a lesson to other societies showing them that even the Palace could not ride rough shod over the C.C.C. Referring to the scheme, he thought only the 15 class shows should have the Challenge Bowls, and that there should be only one such show.

Mr. Crisp then moved, and Mr. Broad seconded, that Mr. Ley's scheme, subject to amendment if necessary, should be tried for one year. This was carried.

Mr. Tyson: If we guarantee eight classes I don't think we should give specials as well.

Mr. Ley said he had thought that question well out, and he could not see why they should not give specials as before. He was certain the scheme would pay its way and no liability be incurred. If they were afraid then let a few of them guarantee the scheme, and let the specials stay. He did not think they would lose 1s., but if they lost £5 what did it matter if they could only pay their way and make Crests come to the front? Something must be done or else both Crests and the C.C.C. would vanish altogether.

Mr. Crisp proposed and Mr. Franz seconded, that they support one 15 class show and eight with eight classes.

In reply to a question, Mr. Clarke said that last season they supported 10 shows, and 10 others had to be taken in for the Roberts' Cup Competition. This cup had not added to the prestige of the C.C.C., and it would be a good thing when it was won outright. It cost the club each year 31s. 6d. for medals, so that by the time it was won the club would have paid out far more than its face value.

Messrs. Rhodes and Ley, at this point, said they would jointly guarantee Mr. Ley's scheme for the first year—the show to have 15 classes, and eight others eight classes each, full prize money to be paid, no matter how many entries.

Cups and Specials.

After some further considerable discussion, it was agreed that the scheme should be submitted to a sub-committee, consisting of Messrs. Rhodes, Ley, Heath, Robson and Tyson, with the hon. sec., to deal with all the details not only of the scheme, but also of the specials and cup, but as an instruction to them it was decided that three days should elapse between the close of one scheme show and the opening of another.

Specials Competition.

Some doubt having arisen as to how the Club's specials should be won, it was decided that one bird could take two specials if eligible. Mr. Ley suggested they should give more encouragement to old birds. It was not fair to give everything to young birds. A man sent six or eight old birds to a show, but only one or two youngsters. He thought a points competition would increase entries. Messrs. Crisp and Tyson pointed out that the rules would not allow points competitions.—Mr. Peters suggested the splitting of the guinea specials.

Presentation to Mr. J. Tyson.

Mr. Rhodes, on rising to present Mr. Tyson with a solid silver tea-kettle, said nothing he had ever done as Chairman of the C.C.C. had ever given him so much pleasure as the act he was about to perform. When Mr. Tyson resigned the secretaryship last year it was at once felt that his great work for the club should be recognised. A subscription was started, and the result they saw in the handsome article on the table. He was pleased to say that a very large proportion of the members had subscribed, and also some non-members. One thing he was sure would please Mr. Tyson, and that was the large number of small subscribers. The work of the C.C.C. demanded the efforts of a good business man, a man of resource and energy, one who could grasp all the points of a subject and put it clearly before his committee. Mr. Tyson had put in years of good hard work, how much none but himself could say, neither did they know of the pleasures he had to deny himself, so as to find time for the work of the club. He asked Mr. Tyson to accept their gift in the kindly spirit in which it was given, and he (the Chairman) hoped that although no longer secretary, Mr. Tyson would give the C.C.C. his valued services, that he would live for many years to work for the club on its committee, and that their gift would remind him in the years to come of the manner in which they appreciated and valued his earnest endeavours on behalf of the club for so many years.

Mr. Tyson: I need hardly say with what great pleasure I accept your generous gift, and how sincerely I thank you for the same. The work which I did for the C.C.C. as secretary I did gladly; it was a work of pleasure, and my only object in carrying it out was the same which animates me in all my Fancy work. I desire to leave the Fancy better than I found it. I need hardly say that I have the welfare of the C.C.C. very much at heart, and I will do all I can for it in the time which my business and other duties allow me. Your gift is far beyond the value of my services, and I thank you most heartily.

New Members.

Messrs. Pickard, Roach, Bartlett, and Mrs. L. M. Thynne were elected as members.

Cleaning the Slate.

Mr. Heath suggested a whip round to wipe off the deficit.—Mr. Crisp, whilst willing to give his mite towards such a fund, thought they should make a levy on all the members. In the C.C.C. as in other clubs it always fell upon the few to make up for the laxity of the many.—The Chairman said unfortunately, whilst agreeing with the truth of Mr. Crisp's remarks, he was afraid they had no power to make a levy. Messrs. Rhodes and Ley gave 10s. each, and the following 5s. each—Messrs. Heath, Turner, Shepherd, Robson, Crisp, Mugford, Broad, Barnett, Dobson, Lazarus, Ryder, Franz and Hoar.

The meeting closed with the usual votes of thanks to the Hon. Sec., the Auditors, and the Chairman, all of whom suitably replied.

The Young Naturalist.

Prizes of 1s. and two of 6d. each will be given weekly for the best three anecdotes about birds written on postcards. Competitors must be under sixteen years of age, and state whence stories are taken. Two stars indicate the Winning Contribution; one star the runners up.

* Was it Artful?

One day father caught a little Tit. Thinking it would be very interesting to keep it for some time he put it into a large cage by an open window. About an hour after he discovered the bird lying flat on its back with its feet up in the air. On going to let the bird free, to his amazement it sprang to its feet and flew away. I think it was very clever of the little bird.—Sent by R. Lockley (age 13), 4, Driffold Villas, Church Road, Sutton Coldfield.

 The Pretty Robin.

Have you seen the Robin?
Pretty little bird,
Perched on the garden fence,
How he may be heard!

Listen to his music,
Hear him sweetly sing.
Is he not a darling,
Pretty little thing?

Robin never leaves us
All the winter long,
When the snow is falling,
We may hear his song.

Copied and sent by John Ernest Williams (age 8), Lancashire House, Cerrig y Druidion, near Corwen.

*Plovers versus Pheasant.

While going along a road between Kirby Malzeard and Masham, a gentleman recently noticed some Plovers screaming and flying around wildly. He afterwards saw three of them fighting a cock Pheasant. Each bird flew down in turn, and attacked the Pheasant, which had to keep dodging the blows. Ultimately the Pheasant had to go away from the vicinity of the Plovers' nests of young.—Sent by H. F. Stubbs (age 15), High Street, Askern.

An extra show was held at headquarters, the Sycamore Hotel, on Jan. 29th. We added 2d. per bird out of the society's funds, but owing to inclement weather we had only a small entry of 32 birds. Most of these, however, were of very good quality, the judge having no easy task in [illegible]ging the awards. Mr. S. Wilcock (of Eccleshill) [illegible]ged, and gave entire satisfaction all round.

NORTHERN YORKSHIRE C.C.

Annual pair show held on Jan. 26th, at Lockhart's Cafe, Grainger Street, in conjunction with the Northern B.B.M. and F.B.C. Mr. J. Maddison judged. There were not so many birds present as were expected, but this was owing altogether to the severe weather we experienced at that time.

I see we shall have to have our old friend, Jimmy, through from Bradford again next season to teach us the lesson over again how to get the soap out. A hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Maddison was carried. The winner of the points special is Mr. T. B. Tomlinson, 82 points; 2, Mr. E. Atkinson, 51; 3, Mr. R. Tindale, 46. Annual general meeting is fixed for Feb. 16th; a good attendance is requested; distribution of cups, etc.—T. C. CRAWHALL, Sec.

TORONTO (Canada).

The 17th annual show of the Toronto C.B.S. was held on Dec. 18 at the King Edward Hotel, where some very excellent birds were to be seen. The arrangements were admirably carried out by the secretary, Mr. H. S. Tibbs, to whom the society owes much of its success. The schedule comprised 90 classes, and a total entry of 351 exhibits was received. The judges were: Messrs. G. Wheeler and H. Hislop (Belgians and Scotch Fancies), R. Harvey (Norwich), Dr. A. Boultbee (Yorkshires and singing competition), W. H. Urry and J. Mackenzie (Crests and Lancashires), W. Brockbank (Lizards, Border Fancies, Germans, etc.), and J. Goggins (Displays). The show committee and stewards, consisting of Messrs. J. Mackenzie, W. H. Urry, J. M. Downer, C. J. Fox, H. W. Kerihen, E. W. Reede, H. Downer, Scott, King, Ryan, and Law, are a band of capital workers, so that everything went off well and with a swing. The judges' awards appeared to give every satisfaction.

BRADFORD WEST C.B.A.

The last of a series of shows was held at the club room (Red Lion Hotel) to decide who should be winners of the extensive cups and medals, etc. The competition has been very keen throughout, many noted winners being staged. One feature of the show was a silver medal given by Mr. W. A. Cowgill for most entries, which caused competition and made the show a success. This was won by Mr. S. Hunter. Mr. J. Townend (Bradford) judged, and had no light task, but the awards gave entire satisfaction. Mr. R. Croft won special for best bird. The following are the prize winners for the combined shows, and the prizes will be distributed at our annual tea and social:—Champion section: 1st, Mr. T. Wood; 2nd, W. Crabtree; 3rd, F. Wallbank, C. Ross, 4th most points. Novice Section: 1st, A. Bennett; 2nd, H. Graham; 3rd, W. Helliwell; 4th, F. Western. The president also gave four prizes for those members who gained most points at the four shows with four highest birds at each. The following are the winners: 1st, A. Bennett; 2nd, H. Graham; 3rd, T. Wood; 4th, W. Helliwell. Mr. H. Graham wins the Sunderland cup and medal for starred birds.

CARDIGAN (Tivyside).

Although the Tivyside F.A. did not issue so large a schedule as usual for its show on February 2nd the entry came up fairly well, whilst the quality was quite the best we have ever seen at Cardigan. The cage birds were as usual staged in the County Chamber of the Town Hall, and their needs were looked after by a staff of enthusiastic stewards. Most of the specials were confined to members, but the special for the best British bird was open. It was that for the best colour-fed bird given by Mr. Sandiford. Mr. Portman was the most successful exhibitor, and is to be complimented not only upon the quality of his team, but also upon the manner in which he staged them. The British birds were much above the average, and competition was very keen indeed. Mr. G. H. Matthias, the chairman, gave the committee a splendid example of how the work should be carried out, and they followed his lead well, whilst Mr. Portman and his assistant, Mr. Evans, were most energetic and courteous in the discharge of the duties appertaining to the secretariat. Mr. C. A. House judged.

The Crystal Palace Show Scores a Great Success.

The National Cage Bird Exhibition, held February 4, 5, 7 and 8, attracted a crowd of bird-lovers and a splendid entry of birds. Everything and everybody had a "good time"—even the losers!

Comparisons NOT Odious.

It was the opinion of many that the fifty-first Great National Cage Bird Show would suffer—as a sort of anti-climax—by comparison with the wonderful exhibition which marked "the year of Jubilee." But all such fears proved absolutely groundless. The show under notice suffered very, very little indeed by comparison with its epoch-making predecessor. There was the same old crowd of fanciers and bird-lovers thronging the aisles, the same old enthusiasm strongly in evidence, and the management was favoured with a truly splendid entry of birds, a total of 2,273 exhibits, huge enough in all conscience and suffering little even when contrasted with the record entry of 1909. Further, the wonderfully high and level quality of the exhibits was admitted on all hands. There was not a class in the show but well repaid inspection.

The great disappointment was unquestionably the absence of the Crests, these valuable and extraordinary looking (from the point of view of the visitor) birds being always a decided attraction. And we heard the Roller Canary men deploring the fall in their own particular stock, so to speak. But here the "tale of woe" ends. All other sections were representative of the best of the various breeds and specles, and in some cases—the Yorkshires, to wit, and the Greens, Borders, and Hybrids—the display was truly magnificent, affording the huge throng of visitors a real and highly-appreciative treat. Another great attraction proved to be the stalls of the various food, cage, and appliance makers, who patronised the show so liberally, and who found their business perspicacity in doing so rewarded by a record trade. A full account of this interesting and instructive feature of the show will be found in our columns next week.

Always the Same.

The management was once again of that superlatively excellent character which has come to be associated with the Palace Show under the management of Mr. J. W. Ramsden. That "prince of show managers" was in his very best form, and everything went with a swing from start to finish, and without a hitch of any kind. The birds were unpacked promptly, and at the close repacked and despatched homewards in record time, while the feeding and staging arrangements were as perfect as long experience can make them. Mr. Ramsden had a splendid staff of workers at the back of him, many members of the London and Provincial O.S. (under whose auspices the Palace Shows are held), loyally rendering him untiring service. Nor must we forget a word of praise for Messrs. Small and Grutchfield, the veteran "feeders," who for over 40 years have looked after the birds' commissariat, and who, like good port, improve with age. The seeds used were supplied by Messrs. Jas. Carter and Co., the noted bird-seed specialists, and the insectivorous food, yolk of egg by Messrs. Trower and Co., whose products are widely known and npreciated by bird-keepers. In a quiet but none-the-less effective manner, too, Mrs. Ramsden, and Mr. W. H. Ramsden, junr., rendered valuable assistance. On the Sunday Messrs. T. Heath and G. Crabb, came along to give Mr. Ramsden a "hand" with the feeding along with Mr. J. W. Norris (secretary of the Roller C.C.), who gave special attention to the Roller Canaries. Among those who rendered yeoman service in the conduct of the show, and put in long hours cheerfully "for the good of the cause," we noticed that ever-smiling and courteous enthusiast, Mr. G. Crabb, and Messrs. G. H. Couzens, Brooks, J. Dobson, W. Gilbert, T. Heath, J. Hodder, Law, J. Oldaker, R. J. Pretty, F. J. Day, J. F. Graves, J. Hazell, F. Lathleiff, F. S. Matthes, and G. Mortlock. They can congratulate themselves upon putting up an exhibition in every respect worthy of the traditions attaching to the great Crystal Palace shows.

The judges on this occasion were Messrs. H. W. Battye (Yorks), H. Broadley (Yorks, novice), T. Brown (Scots and Belg.), H. T. Camps (Parrots), J. F. Dewar (Hybrids), J. Dobson (Cinns., etc.), F. Finn (Foreign), who deputised for Mr. Russell Humphrys, unable through business pressure to attend; G. Gardner (novice and limit), T. Heath (Norwich and Greens), F. W. Lester (Rollers), W. Mundell (Yorks and Greens), J. Robson (Borders, etc.), A. Silver (Brit.), W. Swaysland (Brit.), and G. E. Weston (Brit.). They were favoured with a good light most of the time judging was in progress, though intervals of gloom alternated with the brighter periods. There was the usual trouble with some of the specimens, which seemed hardly to be recovered from the journey to the show, and it is usually these which, when looking fit and well later in the day, give rise to comment on the awards. But taking the classes all through, we must say that we heard very little serious criticism of the judges' decisions.

The Money-Box.

The sales were grand, totalling close on £270. The majority of these in the Canary section were Norwich, a proof that the old-time favourites have not lost their position. Among these were Mr. T. Irons' highly commended Yellow cock, £5 10s., and Messrs Adnitt and Driver's 4th prize Yellow, £5. But the top price for this variety was paid for Mr. J. Coulson's first prize Buff, which was claimed at £7 10s. A rattling good hen, shown by Mr. H. T. Gardner went for £4; it secured first prize in its class of 24, beating many well-known winners. No very high price was paid for Yorkshires. Mr. L. Hodgson's hen fetched £5 10s., and Mr. Simpson's Green £5 5s.; these headed the list. In the British bird section Mr. Hannay's Goldfinch, catalogued at 4 guineas, found a new owner, although unplaced by the judge. The second prize Starling was quickly picked up at 35s., and Mr. Maxwell's noted Magpie will have a change of scene, some compassionate admirer having paid the modest sum of 3 guineas for it. The White Linnet journeys North, the popular Dr. Galloway from Aberdeen having taken a fancy to it. Many Foreign birds found new homes. The visitors to the Palace appear to take a great interest in these lovely-coloured birds. The majority of the sales throughout were good average stock at prices ranging from £1 to £3, the Palace still holding its place as a market for good-class birds at reasonable prices. The purchasers, too, included such notabilities as Lord and Lady Decies, the Archdeacon of Westminster, the Hon. Mrs. Morrison, Lady Miles, and the Rev. Mr. Miller, of Brighton.

A full account of the stalls at the Palace, and the names of bird-lovers who signed our "Visitors' Book," will be given in our next issue, pressure on space caused by the lengthy show report necessitating them being held over.

So keen was the competition, said Mr. J. W. Ramsden, who had charge of the sales office, that people were sending him blank cheques to be filled up. Crowds patronised the office at times, and the officials were hard put to it to satisfy the longings of the enthusiastic would-be buyers.

The Last Round.

The champion Norwich Plainheads section was adjudicated upon by Mr. Thos. Heath, and was, as usual, the centre of attraction for a large number of fanciers. It is at the Palace that the last round in the season's battle is fought between many competitors at other shows during the season. This was the case on this occasion, and there were some reversals of positions occupied at former shows. But several new faces were seen South for the first time, and as not infrequently happens, some of the old winners went down. Wales and Scotland scored heavily in the Clears, and, indeed, the "Celtic fringe" was very much in evidence. From Bonnie Scotland came that grand unflighted clear yellow which won so handsomely over the old birds, and over all the sections, as the best Norwich, and occasioned by its victory more than one query: "Ought an unflighted bird to win in a class where old birds compete, where there is a special class in the schedule for unflighted birds?" The point is of interest to the Fancy at large, but not one for us to decide. Mr. G. Mitchell's unflighted clear yellow is certainly a grand one, and a credit to Scotland. Mr. Sheldon's buffs were much admired, and so were Mr. Midgley's winning ticked and unflighted yellows—grand bodied birds.

In taking a general survey of this section, one point was to us most apparent. Attention will have to be devoted to head properties. Many beautiful bodied birds were entirely spoilt in outline by their heads, some of which were small, narrow, and pinched over beak. A small head set on a thin neck makes things look altogether out of proportion. A Norwich is nothing first-class unless it is finished off by a bold neck and head. That the fault was prevalent in many cases at the Palace, there can be no denying, and the sooner it is remedied the better it will be for the Norwich Plainhead Fancy.

Beauty Long Drawn Out.

To the slim and graceful beauties of the land of the White Rose once again belongs the credit of heading the breed totals at the great bird carnival of the year; 335 Yorkshires faced the judges at Sydenham on Friday last, and a bonny lot they were. The section opened with twenty-nine Clear Yellows, and so keen and close was the competition that another set of winners could easily have been found amongst the birds which were outside of the money. Messrs. Ambler's crack, staged at the bottom of the class, came out on top, and a real clever win it was. This charmer is of most excellent shape, has a coat like unto silk, and stands like a soldier. Mr. Elsmore's winning Buff stood clean away from anything else in the class so far as quality of feather was concerned, and none of its opponents could give it points in style, even if they were perhaps just a shade finer drawn. It was a good win, and we congratulate this enthusiastic young Western fancier upon his success—we believe his first amongst the champions at the Palace. A bird which we liked very much indeed in this class was Mr. Helliwell's; given a bit more tail it would have run the Western crack close. Ticked Yellows were only just over a dozen, but there was no disputing the fact that the leading quartetto were genis, each and all, and a very tight thing it must have been between them. Style, shape, length, and feather, it was all there, and had either of the four won, no one could have grumbled. Ticked Buffs were a very hot lot indeed, and it was only just a little extra bit of finish that pulled the Sandy Lane champion home. Messrs. Myers and Lumb's representative is described in the one word—lovely. The Unevenly-marked class contained some of the finest we have ever seen—real grand Yorkshire birds with plenty of length, style, and nerve. Messrs. Ogden Bros. got home with a real beauty of a Yellow. The class of the section was the unflighteds; thirty-four they mustered, and a real grand quality lot they were. Fitting it was that the strongest class should also supply the best bird in the section, which it did in Messrs. Ambler's Yellow—a worthy mate, indeed, to the open class Yellow. It was just an exemplification of the old adage, "Nothing beats the old ones, except the young ones." Many there are who consider the old Yellow invincible, but he was beaten, and without any doubt, by this charming youngster from the same stable. Those old antagonists, Messrs. Shackleton and Bailey, fought out the finish for the leading position in Yellow hens, and it was a near thing between them. In the Buffs, however, the genial Jimmy completely out-distanced Mr. Shackleton, but he had not a lot to spare over Mr. Crisp's lovely hen. Had the latter just a trifle more colour in her complexion she would have beaten the Yorkshire lassie. Cinnamon Ticks were disappointing in numbers, but the quality was good, and competition very close. Mr. Towers put down a strong team, and was the most successful competitor, but the special for the best fell to Messrs. Ogden's charming Buff.

The novices made a good show both in numbers and quality, and many of their exhibits could have held their own in the open section. The chief failing was lack of condition, and more than one most excellent bird went down from this cause. There was no denying the claims of Mr. Fowle's Yellow; it is, indeed, a beauty, and on the judging morning it showed off its beautiful proportions to advantage, but it had not a great deal to spare in the fight with Mr. Clark's representative, which is a bird of most lovely quality. Very smart and stylish and of lovely feather was Mr. Fielden's winning Buff. The Marked class was not so full of quality, but the Unflighteds were splendid, and here, as in the champion section, was found the best of the bunch—a most charming thigh-ticked Yellow, shown by Mr. Thomas. Mr. Barber's representative suffered through not being quite so well put down. Mr. Atkins led the way amongst the Yellow hens, and won the special for the second best.

Never Before.

Never before have we seen such lovely classes of Greens at the Crystal Palace. Larger numbers certainly have been staged in the big glass house, but never before have the classes contained such type and quality as they did last Friday. Colour also shows great improvement, and there were very few birds staged which exhibited either bronzing or smokiness, yet only a few years ago one scarcely ever came across a Buff unless it possessed one or the other of these failings. Mr. Clayton was the most successful exhibitor in the classes for the Yorkshire type of bird, winning first and second besides other honours in two out of the four classes with most lovely specimens. His foul marked Yellow, which won the special, is indeed a remarkably fine bird, and a real good Yorkie in every way, whilst his pair of Buffs were really wonderful. Mr. Pickup staged two charming Yellows, and we heard one old admirer of the breed tell Mr. Mundell that he considered Mr. Pickup's winner the finest Green he had ever seen. Unfortunately for Mr. Pickup, Mr. Mundell did not agree, and thus Mr. Clayton got the special. This gentleman is a well-known judge, and he was loud in his praises of the winning Yellow. Had he only been judging, eh! Mr. Pickup? Mr. Abbott's leader in the Buff Foul class was a rare long stylish bird, whilst his colour was indeed beautiful. We heard one of the judges say that since the memorable Palace disqualifications, the Greens had mended their ways, and now grew their feathers like other breeds. If the Yorkshire Greens were good, the Norwich were better. When one considers that only a year or two back many of the so-called Norwich Greens were birds which were too big and clumsy to be styled Yorkshire Greens, and were then put into a box cage and shown in the Norwich classes, the advance which has been made seems little short of marvellous, for at the Palace this week were to be seen Norwich Greens which, so far as type is concerned, were good enough to hold their own with their lighter breed brethren in the Norwich classes proper. The most striking feature of the section was the wonderful team put down by Mr. Deacon. This gentleman did exceedingly well, but he deserved all that he won, even if not a bit more. His trio of Yellows were greatly admired, and they are indeed a triumph of the breeder's art. Mr. Harrison staged some fine big birds of rare colour, and their size and colour, combined with beautiful quality, pulled them through. They were hardly so short in wings and tails as Mr. Deacon's team. Mr. Hawkes staged a good stamp of bird in the Buffs, and won very nicely. That Greens are advancing was clearly shown by the quality to be seen here, but we wondered on Friday why neither in the Yorkshire section nor the Norwich neu classes were provided.

The "Wee Gems" in Force.

The nine classes for Borders drew a fine entry, and southern fanciers had a grand opportunity of comparing birds from all parts of the country. The birds were, generally speaking, a nice level lot, although many of them appeared to incline rather too much to the Norwich type. These were all, however, of exceptional quality, and were no doubt entered on that account, as condition plays such an important part in the exhibition bird. But, still, type should stand first, and some of them were a long way from the standards of the Border Clubs. The Yellow cocks were a grand lot, Mr. J. S. Wilson's crack attracting a lot of attention. The Greens were grand, the colour of some of them being simply dazzling. So good were the three leading birds that any of them might easily have changed places. The even-marks were the only disappointing class, five birds only facing the judge. Of these Mr. G. Meekley's beauty, which secured second, was nearest the ideal markings. There were several fine birds in the uneven class, which could have easily swelled the even class (where they were badly wanted) if one mark besides evens was allowed; some such rule would fill the class and greatly assist the breeders of evens, and make the variety more popular.

Lively Times.

Things were lively in the champion Cinnamon section, and Mr. W. Dormer and Mrs. Deacon had quite a field day so far as the prizes were concerned. So sustained was the battle between them, and so nearly even, that, could they but have seen it waging they might have felt as though they were waging a real warfare.

The Yellows were an exceedingly nice class, purity and depth of colour being very pronounced. There was great improvement in point of uniformity and soundness in this respect. Dark—shall we say black? —striping was conspicuous by its general absence, and the same remark applies to light throats. There were not many with "crumpled horns" to be seen. Speaking of striping, one feels constrained to ask: "Is the goal aimed at a bird of solid cinnamon colour, with no striping or ribbing at all? Or is it intended that there shall be striping, but of a deeper cinnamon hue, to give distinction?" The question is pertinent at this juncture. All in all, the Cinnies were a grand lot, in point of colour and quality, and type also was more pronounced on the Norwich ideal than ever before. The only loophole for a little grumble was to be found in the head properties of some of the birds. A Cinnamon without a hold, well-burnished head is, we were going to say, like a ship without a rudder; at any rate, it is minus one of its best qualities. And yet more than one otherwise beautiful bird was sadly lacking in this respect.

A Mixture.

The Lancashire section was not a large one, the two classes mustering only fifteen entries between them; but the quality was all that one could desire. The grand Coppy of Mr. G. Fitton came in for a good deal of attention To visitors the size and substance alone of these grand birds were sufficient to command notice. The Plainheads were less numerous than the Coppies, but were all, without exception, birds of wonderful merit. Size, length, and head properties were all there.

The Lizards were not numerous, twenty only facing the judge, but evidently the cream of the Lizard fancy had drifted Sydenham way, for seldom have we seen birds so full of work and of such sound ground colour as was here represented. Mr. J. Dewsnap's two cracks were much admired. We believe the broken capped bird was admired more than the clear gold. He is a very taking specimen, shapely, tightly feathered, and simply packed with work, a real topper.

The Scotch Fancies and Belgians were noticeable more for their singular appearance than for their fancy qualities, which were quite unknown to the average visitor. Mr. J. Pringle (Selkirk) annexed most of the cards in the Scotch Fancy classes, and Capt. Philp most of those in the Belgians. The class for 1909 bred Belgians was well filled compared with the others, fourteen birds making a bold appearance.

The Dutch Frill class was only moderately filled. Mr. C. I. Young, of Frome, and Mr. W. J. Minty, of the same town, shared chief honours between them. All these birds were of extraordinary size, and simply packed with feathers of good length; the back mantle of one or two of them being exceedingly full and graceful. Unless we are mistaken, some of the leaders were at the Palace last season, so that unless the youngsters have been left at home, no cracks have been produced since then.

The limit classes contained some remarkably cheap birds, and plenty of them. There were as many as 140 odd birds in four classes. The Yorkshire class contained exhibits quite equal to those seen in open general competition at many country shows. Norwich were large classes, and the quality good; several bargains were quickly taken advantage of. Many were the "sold" tickets to be seen on the cages in these classes.

An Attenuated Choir.

The Roller classes were not filled so well as in previous years. The cause of this may be easily found in the fact that the Roller shows in the country are greatly on the increase, so Roller fanciers have the opportunity to show their birds nearer home. Nevertheless, the birds that were shown came up to the standard of former years, and everybody appeared to be satisfied with the judging.

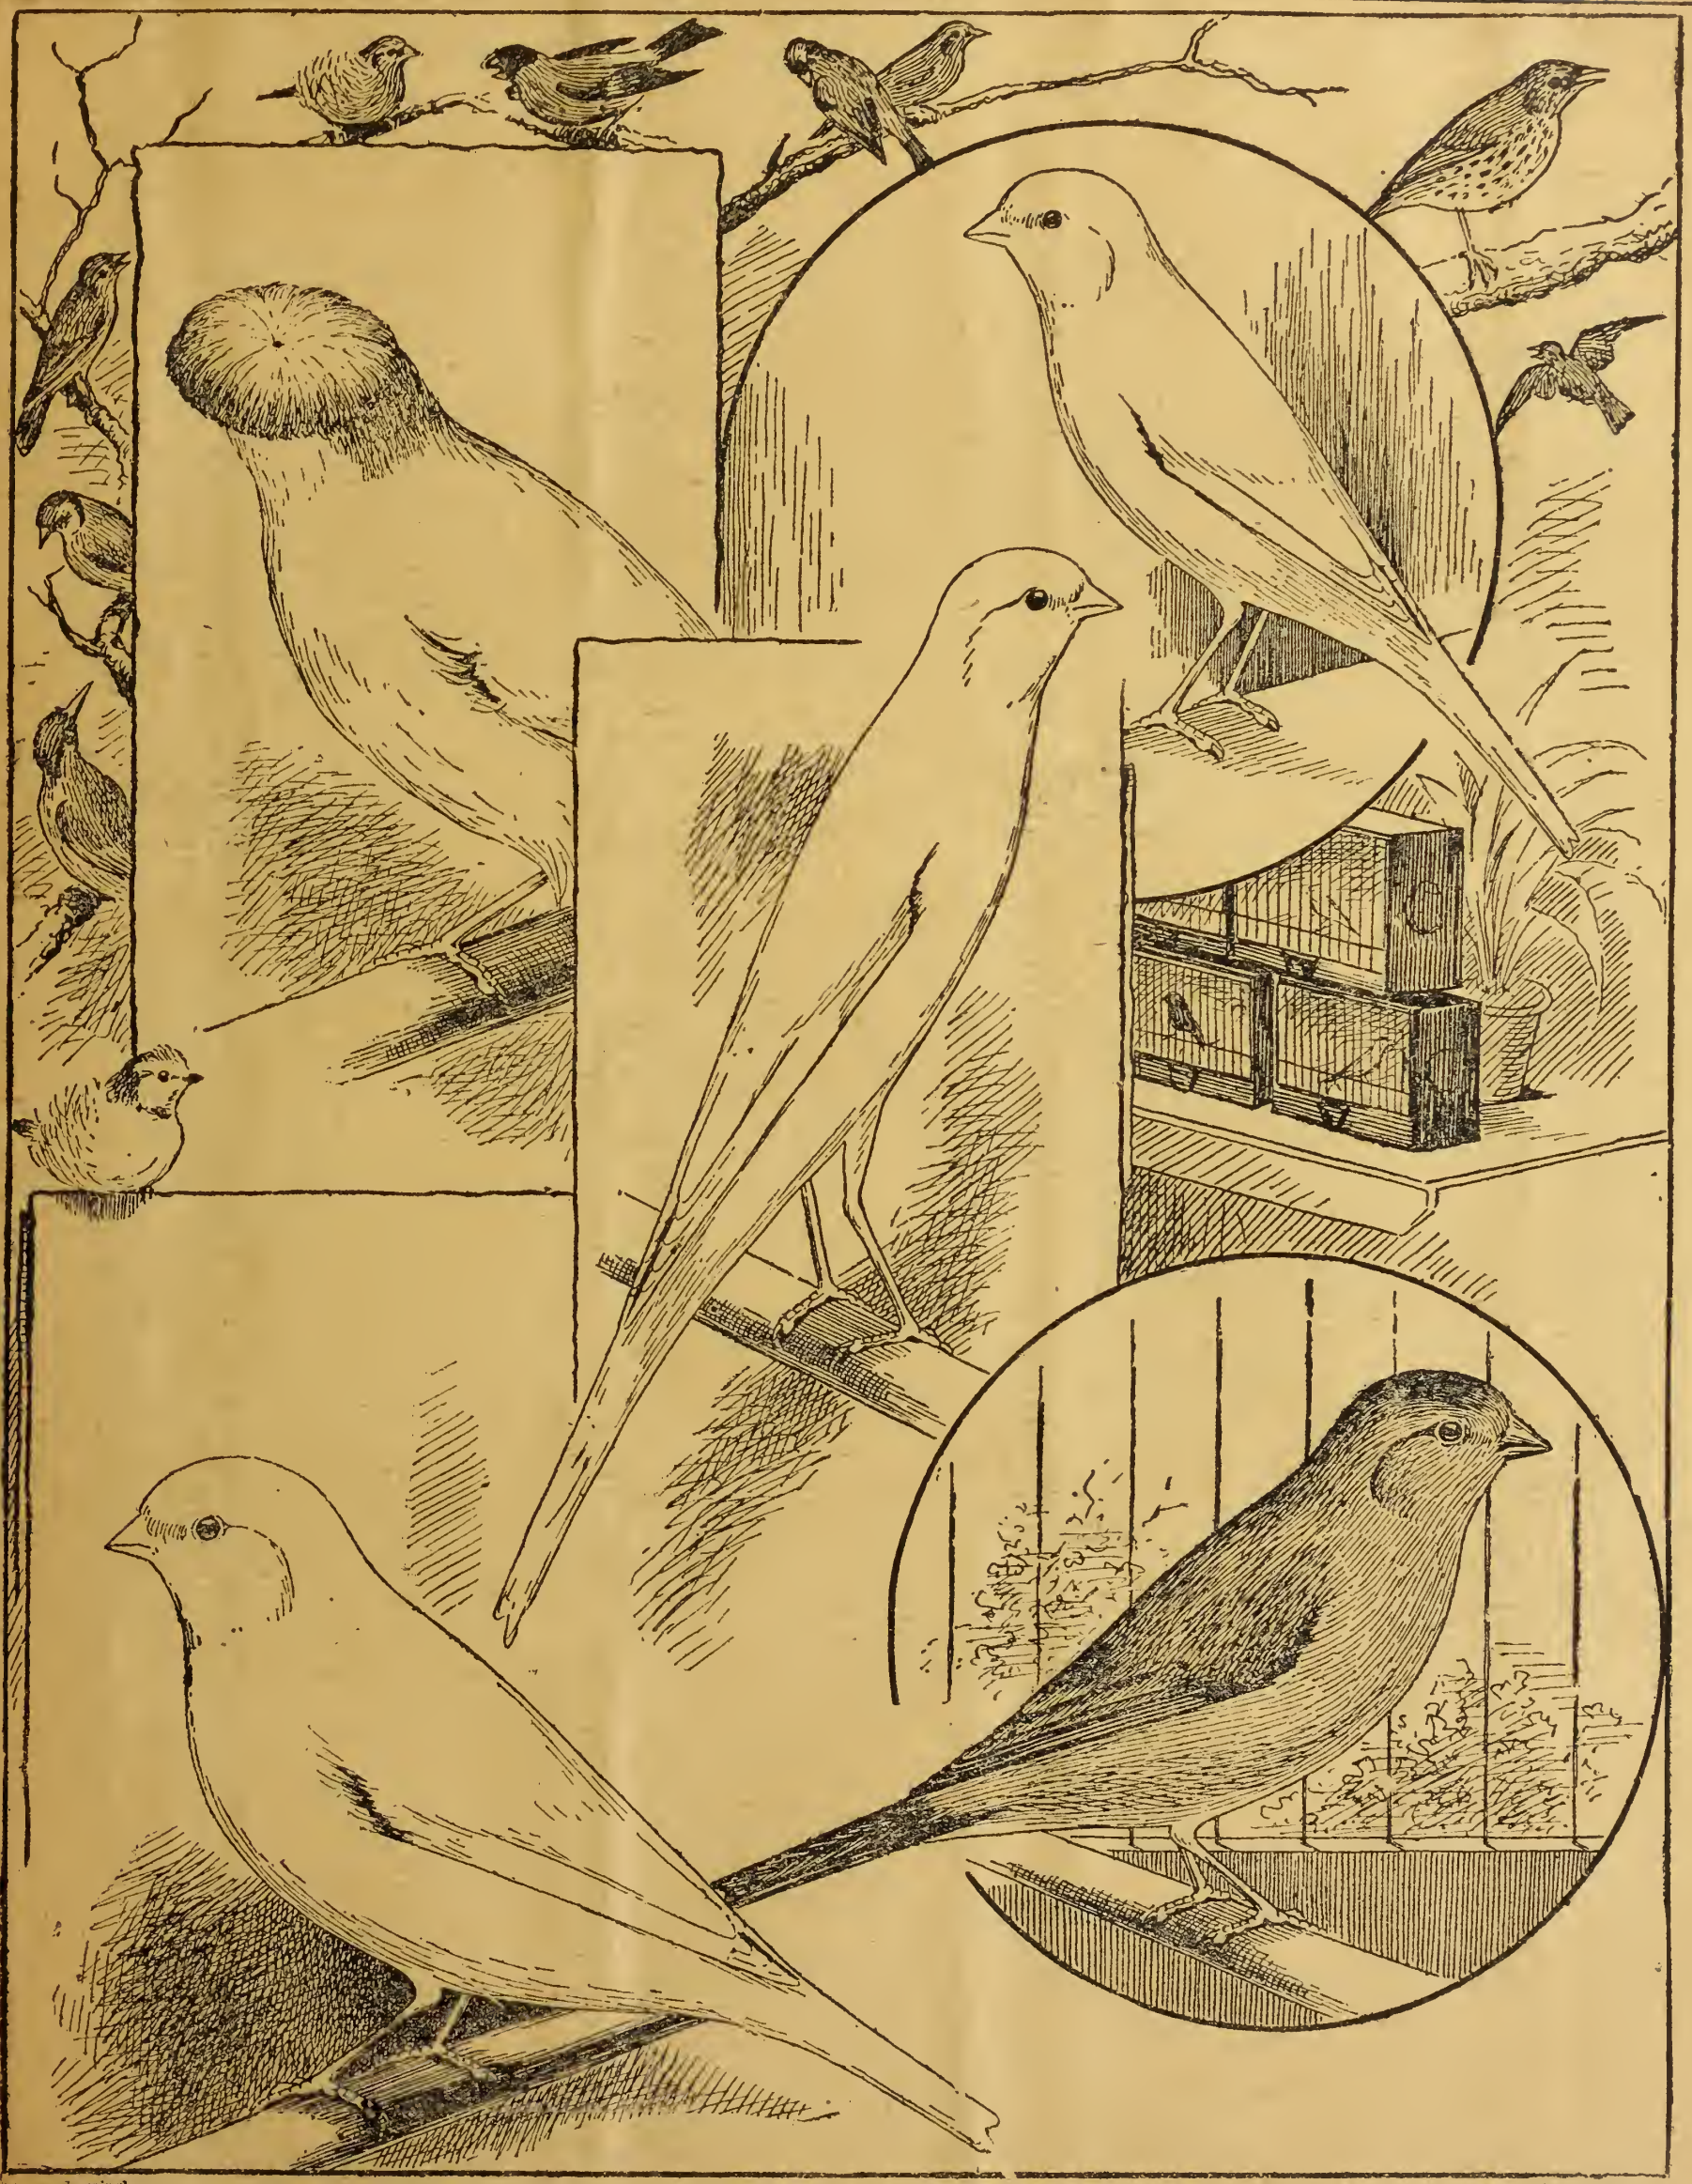
A Point for Novices.

The Norwich Plainhead classes in the novice section contained a few good birds, but a large number of what the experienced breeder would call just "so-so." This did not arise from any particular failing in point of quality of feather or of colour, for both were present to the full in the majority of instances; neither did it occur through lack of washing or staging, cause of accomplishment. Type, too, was well represented, in so far as body was concerned. The real discrepancy was in head properties, and although there was distinct evidence of the same failing in the open champion classes, it was not so pronounced as in this the novice section. We heard more than one experienced and critical fancier lamenting the failure of so many of the Norwich in head properties, a lament in which we join. It must not be forgotten that there is something in a Norwich besides colour and silkiness of feather. There is outline, more frequently alluded to as type, and the beauty of this is more or less spoilt by a snipy head, a wedge-shaped skull, or a little head.

The Crests and Crest-breds were few in the novice section, but one or two good ones were staged. In the A.O.V. class there was the usual admixture of Canaries, Mules, Hybrids, and what not; but a smart cinnamon secured the premier verdict. As a whole, the entries were not so numerous in some parts of the section as we have seen than in past years.

Among the "Freaks."

The Hybrids secured a magnificent entry, and were very ably handled by that veteran Edinboro' fancier, "Jimmy" Dewar. Careful scrutiny failed to reveal any real cause for criticism, and it is a fact that we never caught a single grumbler airing his grievance around this section. We had no absolute novelties—not even a bird whose parentage could be disputed—but rarities were here in plenty. The special for best bird fell to the most beautiful specimen shown by Dr. Galloway (Aberdeen), the clear yellow Siskin-Canary. Other birds "admired of all beholders" were the clear Linnet shown by Mr. Duncan (which is really very little behind the Siskin in point of merit) the winning Canary-Bullfinch bred and exhibited by Mrs. Askham, the Greenie-Bullie of Mr. Edmund's, and the Jonque dark Linnet-Canary sent all the way from Perth by Mr. D. Brown. What a wonderful array of Canary-Bullies—12 in a class of 13 entries. A staggerer, surely, for the sceptical! The thirteenth was the notorious black Goldie Hybrid—a lucky number this time, for it brought heaps of visitors to fondly imagine they were gazing upon a "black Canary," and this ebony freak soon seduced a couple of bright sovereigns from the pocket of someone, who came, saw, and coveted it. Maybe, the proverbial "bad luck" attaching to the number will loose itself upon the revenend gentleman who purchased "Blackie"; let's hope it's nothing more tempertrying than a moult into normal plumage.



The Hardy Hardbills.

The British section had an entry such as any show might be proud to receive, but, while many classes were "bumpers," there were certain streaky places not easy to explain. Why, for instance, there should be but nine Twites, seeing that a class had been specially arranged for them, is somewhat puzzling. The Siskins, too, although the class held a few birds up to "championship" form, were not strong numerically. The Chaffinches did not impress us, either, for the winners, though real good birds, did not carry that fascinating bloom—or polish, call it what you will—which we have seen to perfection on past Palace performers of the "pink-ing" prepensity (ahem!). The Bullfinches were a glorious lot, and the winner—the bird we liked so much when standing 4th last year with some flight feathers missing—captured the special over the first ten hardbill classes for its owner, Mr F. Jones (Wrexham). The Goldfinches mustered strongly, and were a nice, level lot, though we are of opinion that there was none amongst them equal to the "champions" of five or six years ago. Mr. Herbert's winner, however, is a bonny, good-coloured Finch. Mr. T. W. Richards (from gallant little Wales) achieved the feat of annexing three out of the six money prizes. The Linnets we consider the finest all-round lot seen for many a year, many really grand birds having to be content with the humble "codding card." The winner, "Pride of Cumberland" (Mr. G. Wilson), we think an outstanding bird, chock full of good points and possessed of exceptional size. One or two exhibitors appeared to have been indulging in pleasant dreams of the first-prize card their Linnets were bound to secure. And they seemed to find the awakening too much to be borne with undisturbed equanimity; so they squealed some, as the Yankees say. The Lesser Redpoll class was headed by a real champion in Mr. Marley's Gateshead, Leicester, etc., winner, a rare good stamp of bird. Mr. Longden's noted 14-year-old Bramble scored 2nd, and ran the winner (Mr. Prior's) a close race, though obviously getting a trifle slack and tired through weight of years.

A Yellowhammer Sensation.

The Greenfinches and Hawfinches were fine classes, while the Yellowhammers were excellent, and provided a sensation in addition, two of them, belonging to Mr. E. Gale and Mr. G. Marlin, being disqualified by the judge, the offence alleged being the trimming of the V-shaped head-markings. Needless to say, the two birds attracted considerable attention. In the Blackbird class Mr. R. J. Howe (Wellingboro') put down a wonder, a superb-coloured bird, catalogued at a modest £1,000; it won somewhat easily. A noted Thrush from the Border again secured for Mr. J. W. Bruce (Coldstream) the leading honour in its class. The Albino class showed us a lovely assortment of "freaks," but only one absolute novelty, an almost white Reed Bunting, exhibited in faultless plumage by Mrs. C. E. Croker (Leominster), winning 2nd prize and the special for best ladies' British bird. The insectivorous classes introduced us to the best Britisher in the show, a delightful Grasshopper Warbler, put down in faultless style by Mr. S. H. Mays, being unanimously voted by the judges to this position. It is the best example of its species we have had the pleasure of seeing. A two-barred Crossbill (not in colour) was exhibited by Messrs. J. and R. Lewis. Mr. Maxwell's magnificent Great Grey Shrike accounted for the large insectivorous class. The British classes were judged by Messrs. A. Silver, W. Swaysland, and G. E. Weston, with Mr J. F. Dewar taking the Bullfinches, and except in the inevitable "odd instance" their awards seemed to be favourably received.

BEAUTY UNADORNED.

The foreign bird section was no whit behind its predecessors in the rarity, variety and general excellence of the exhibits, but numbers showed a slight falling off. The cause of this is not, we think, very difficult to find. First and foremost, five days is too long a period for delicate, fragile and costly exotic species, whatever it may be for other sections of the show, and so, while the number of foreign bird keepers is on the increase, entries, if anythiug, are slightly retrogressive. We are of the opinion that it is not a waning interest, but conditions somewbat as indicated that are responsible for the non-growth of the foreign bird section. Nevertheless, the show was a great success, and it goes without saying that the management was as usual of the very best, and that the National Show, as in past years, again witnessed a "gathering of the clans" of bird keepers from far and near. Each successive exhibition brings forth its fresh wonders, and once again we have to notice several species of rare birds being exhibited for the first time, most of which are fully noted elsewhere in this issue. We may mention in passing the following:—Stella Lory and Mrs. Johnstone's Lorrikects, both exhibited by Mr. O. Millsum; brown-winged Blue Grosbeaks, Mrs. Galloway; and a Glossy Starling, exhibited by Mr. S. M. Townsend; this last we were unable to recognise, but it is certainly not an ordiuary Green, Glossy Starling. Of species which are exhibited for the second or third time, or after a long interval, there were quite a number, notable among which are the following: Golden-shouldered Parrakeets (Mr. Millsum), Le Vaillaint's Barbet (Mr. Beaty), Great-billed Flycatcher (Mr. Maxwell), Hunstein's Bird of Paradise (Mr. Millsum). There were also quite a number of others. The section was a success in that there was not a class but what contained much beauty and something of interest, and the aisles of this section were patronised as much as if not more than any others in the show. The Parrot classes, 122 to 124, were judged by Mr. Camps, and the others 125 to 131, by Mr. F. Finn. There were 88 entries divided over 10 classes, giving an average of nine per class.

The Norwich Section.

Judge: T. Heath.

NOR. CL. YELL. (11): 1, two spls, Mitchell, very close and compact in feather, unflig., level wing carriage, short flights and tail, grand chest, neat head, clean at thighs and chest, good one; 2, Baker, rich col., beautifully burnished, lovely texture of feather, hardly so compact in flights perhaps, but very silky, grand shape and good head; 3, Kilby, beautiful feather, little loose on secondaries which fall wide on occasion, level in col., neat head, nice and chubby in body; 4, Jeffs, not quite so even in col., fine back, wee trifle soiled at tips of flights, grand neck and head, good one; vhc, Richardson, out a wee bit in neck feather, lovely quality of feather, which, it appeared to us, would have fitted closer if better washed; hc, Gill and Pethick, soft feather, full neck, not quite so compact as some above it; c, spl, Tweddle, grand quality bird, just a little weak in head. CL. BUFF (14): 1, two spls H. W. Sheldon, close as wax in feather, grand neck, deep and rich undercolour, very clean at waist and thighs, close at chest, neat if trifle weak head, good back and wing covering, if he went across the perch a little more would be a stormer; 2, Taylor, even richer in col. though not quite so much neat, good in neck and head, very soft silky feather, not quite so large as winner, yet a grand one; 3, Tweddle, nice wing carriage, soft bloomy feather, grand back and very fine undercolour; 4, H. W. Sheldon, hotter in col. than 1st, hardly so close or compact in feather or so well frosted, level wings, neat head; vhc, spl, Gill and Pethick, thinner in body and weak in head, lovely feather texture, grand col. and frosting; hc, spl, Kilby, excellent body, rich underneath, full chest, well burnished; c, Hopkins, on the small side, close as wax, rich in undercolour and profusely mealed; No. 16, Kilby, bird of lovely quality, grand head and neck, nice shape of body, we liked much; No. 18, Baker, ditto, not quite the equal of some in col., but a good one. TKD. ETC. YELL. (15): 1, Midgley, topper all ever, save perhaps a little inclination to weakness at head and neck, in proportion to body, grand feather for a yell., fed to perfection; 2, Wilcock, another charming bird, tkd. on neck, full of col., short in body, very fine head, neck and back, beautifully burnished, clean at chest and thighs; 3, Irons, lovely quality, short body, neat skull, very clean at chest, waist, and thighs, just a little too much daylight under for a top-sawyer; 4, Admitt and Driver, tkd. on rump, grand silky feather and rich col., a trifle thin in body, and long in barrel and flights; vhc, Gill and Pethick, blaze of col., grand back, silky feather, bold chest, nice carriage and head, we liked even better than 4th; hc, Irons, chubby body, good head and silky feather, claimed at catalogue price and cheap; c, Houghton, good col., silky feather, but a wee bit slack in flights and rump; No. 31, Baker, tkd. on neck, grand quality and col.; No. 29, Tristem and Taylor, tkd. on wing and both eyes, bird of grand quality of feather, head, type, and a blaze of col. BUFF (16): 1, Coulson, grandly burnished head, rare level back, rich col. under, just the faintest shade of length of shaft, lovely carriage and style, topping quality; 2, Baker, tkd. on wing, lovely bird, rare head, short wings, and tail, wide clean chest, rich undercolour, beautiful gauze, has a nasty habit of showing fight in the cage as if from teasing; 3, Tristem and Taylor, grand-bodied bird, beautiful level back, noble chest, well filled in at neck, one of those that get well across perch, we liked much; 4, Beardall and Walker, variegs., good col. and type, just a trifle browsy feather, neat head, very fine carriage; vhc, Gill and Petbick, perfection for shape and quality, but we suppose too small for present-day requirements, lovely little bird all through; hc, Taylor, wing mkd., splendid feather; c, Baker, variegs., lovely depth of col., needs just a little more substance. UNFLIG. YELL. (21): 1, spl, Midgley, grand short-bodied bird, with flights and tail to match, great depth of chest, plenty of deep rich col., very close in feather, just a wee shade weak in head and neck; 2 Irons, plenty of col., well and lovelly fed, grand quality, fine front, neat head, well across the perch, crosses wings occasionally, and just a wee bit too much daylight under, but will make a very good one; 3, Baker, lovely quality, deep col., rare chest, nice head and neck, may be just a trifle long in barrel and shaft, but wants some stopping; 4, Wilcock very beautiful feather, short flights and tail, rich level col., clean chest and thighs, correct carriage, might have a little better head; vhc, Gill and Pethick, grand-coloured bird, very shapely, but just a trifle on the small side; vhc, Mitchell, splendid silky close feather, fitting it as tightly as a tailor-made suit, might be deeper in chest perhaps; hc, Midgley, grand quality and col., just a shade upright; hc, Baker, wing tkd., stands well, very silky, wee bit open in neck, probably from washing; c, Gibbs, full of quality. BUFF (21): 1, H. W. Sheldon, feather like silk, rich underneath, lovely bloom, close-fitting wings, splendid back and wing covering, very full neck, neat head, sweet bird all through; 2, Richardson, typical, little open on chest, nice head, deep and rich undercolour, well across, inclined to droop its tail a trifle; 3, Tristem and Taylor, very similar to the winner in all respects, only a little deeper in undercolour, a gem in every sense, and must have pressed winners close; 4, Baker, again very similar, hardly so full in head perhaps, but very neat, lovely quality, deep rich undercolour; vhc, Hodder, typical, not quite so rich in colour as some, and just a little narrow at head, but a very fine bird; vhc, Gill and Pethick, very fine shape, good head, clean chest, takes its perches correctly, well across; hc, Irons, very soft and silky in feather, shows just a trifle frill; hc, Gibbs, grand quality, but a little too upright; c, Beardall and Walker, good body, short flights, gets up off the perch a bit, grand head and neck, rare undercolour. YELL. HENS (17): 1, Gill and Pethick, bonny shape, nearly as much col. as some of the cocks, level back, grand carriage, good head and neck, well-carried wings, beautiful quality; 2, Taylor, full of quality, rare shape of body, clean chest, short flights and tail, very level col., wee trifle weak in head; 3, Sheldon, grand-headed hen, short and thick-set, just a wee trifle loose in wing carriage, bold chest, rich quality, plenty of col.; 4, Admitt and Driver, soft silky feather, short body, little up off perch, but a grand hen in most respects; vhc, Bishop, rich col., nice type, neat head, short neck, magnificent quality; hc, Christian, full of col., just a trifle long in flights and tail; c, Irons, beautiful feather, rather high up off the perch, grand col. BUFF (24): 1, Gardner, very close and bloomy in feather, but weak in head and long in tail; 2, H. W. Sheldon, chubby body, rich as a cock in undercolour, good head and neck, full chest, very nicely mealed; 3, Davidson, close and compact in feather, rich undercolour, should have liked to have seen closer wing covering, again a wee bit weak in neck; 4, Baker, one of the right sort for quality, grand body, rich col., grand carriage, might be fuller in head; vhc, Lloyd, variegs., good shape, rich quality and col., nice hen; vhc, Lee, stout in body, silky in feather, fails in head only; hc, Taylor, grand hen in all respects, close as wax, rich in undercolour and meal; hc, Hirst, typical, nice col., saddle mkd.; c, Kilby, a little gem for quality, rare type, beautiful back, neck and chest; c, Folwell, quality, shape and carriage, very neat.

The Yorkshire Section.

Judge: H. W. Battye.

YELL. (29): 1, Ambler, sweet head, grand neck and shoulders, wings and tail well braced, tapers well from shoulders to tail, nicely-rounded chest, beautiful silky feather, rich bright level colour, plenty of nerve and style, a real topping Yorkshire; 2, Bailey, hardly so full in head, but after that a gem, close-fitting, well-set shoulders, nice clean run over the back, grand flights, well-piped tail, stands well up to his work, and has heaps of quality; 3, Binns, grand length, beautifully slim, splendid length of leg, soft and fine in feather, plenty of nerve, hardly so neat in front; 4, Cruise, beautiful shape, style, and length, neat in wings and tail, wanted just a bit more burnishing; vbc, Rennie, plenty of length, rare shape, tapers well away from shoulders to vent, grandly feathered, and handles well, but not quite so fine in tail; Dyson, clinking good bird of lovely shape and style, nice col. and feather, seemed to be feeling the cold; bc, Shackleton, Chippendale; c, Hodgson, Halliday, and Chittenden. BUFF (19): 1, Elsmore, a real picture for position and quality of feather, as he stood on the perch he looked just as though he was one solid piece of highly-polished wax or marble, lovely head, neat, well-set shoulders, tightly-braced wings and tail, and as steady as an old soldier; 2, Ambler, more length than winner, but lacked his beautiful finish, capital head, reach, and back, grand wings and tail, and stood up to his work in rare form; 3, Helliwell, very fine in feather, grandly-shaped body which is carried to perfection, very neat and compact in wings and tail, given a shade more length of tail would be a real knock-out; 4, Shackleton, built on rather stouter lines, but for feather and style one of the best, splendid head and neck, rare wings and tail; vhc, Hartley, splendid length, shape, and style, capital wings and tail, hardly so clean in front; hc, Thornton and Bower; c, Gibbs. TKD. YELL. (14): 1, Bailey, very sweet thigh tkd., neat shapely head, grand neck, fine close-fitting shoulders, wings and tail very closely braced, cut well away from shoulders to vent, full of quality and style; 2, Binns, another real gem of a thigh tkd., very finely drawn, gets well up on leg, carries himself like a guardsman, and is as tight in feather as a Java; 3, Dyson, wing tkd., rather larger but beautifully shaped, and very flue and silky in feather, nice head and neck, grand back and wings, capital style, inclined to spread tail at times; 4, Shackleton, thigh tkd., we liked immensely, wonderful quality and style, very neat head, grand flights and tail, well drawn out, and stands superbly; vhc, Wood, long, stylish, good quality, wing tkd., capital shape, but is hardly so clever with his wings; hc, Gibbs; c, Cruise. TKD. BUFF (23): 1, hc, spl best hc, Bailey, cheek tkd., grand head and neck, nice straight back, splendid wings and tail, very close and silky in feather, stands well up and shows plenty of nerve; 2, Myers and Lumb, thigh tkd., magnificent feather which fitted like a glove, and shone like a piece of satin, beautiful shape and style, handles well, a real champion Yorkshire; 3, L. Hodgson, neck tkd., again most beautiful quality of feather, very neat wings and tail, grand head, neck and back, very showy, but needs just a wee bit more length; 4, Radley, grand head, neck, and back, splendid wings, capital quality, plenty of style, gets well upon his legs; vhc, spl best vhc, Thornton and Bower, very sweet thigh tkd., capital shape, style and feather, hardly so tightly braced in flights; hc, Hawes Bros., H. Hodgson; c, Dyson.

Judge: W. Mundell.

UNEVEN-MKD. (16): 1, 4, Ogden Bros., cheek, wing, and tail mkd. yell., neat head, nice length of neck, well placed shoulders, wings and tail tightly braced, rare shape and carriage, and beautiful feather; 4th, cheek and wing mkd. buff, somewhat more stoutly moulded, rare quality of feather and nice shape; 2, Robertshaw, eye and wing mkd. buff, not so much col. as the leader, but wonderfully fine and close in feather, neat head, beautiful neck and shoulders, grand back, wings and tail; 3, Thornton and Bower, very neat three-pointed yell., a quality Yorkio right through, grandly moulded, well cut away, plenty of style, one that is not easy to find fault with; vhc, Mabey, cheek and wing mkd., splendid col. and feather, great length and style, plenty of leg, and knows how to use it; hc, spl best hc, Crabtree, very smart and shapely, good quality of feather; c, Towers. UNFLIG. (34): 1, spl best Yorks., and champion diploma, Ambler, one of the finest yellows ever put on a show beneb, beautifully moulded head, grand shaped neck, neat, well-set shoulders, wings and tail, very closely set, rich col., beautiful silky close-fitting coat, rare style and nerve; 2, hc, Binns, very sweet buff, feathered like a Java, grand shape and position, nice clean run from shoulders to tail, gets well up on his legs and shows for all he is worth, a bonny bird; 3, Crabtree, very smart, nicely finished tkd. yell., long, slim, and finely drawn rigbt through, beautiful feather, rare style and nerve; 4, Bailey, very long slim yell., beautiful head and neck, grand back, wings and tail, gets well up on leg and stands splendidly, rare feather; 4, vhc, spl best vhc, Armstrong, two lovely quality buffs, both grandly modelled, running clean and taperingly from shoulders to tail, rare heads and backs, lovely wings and tails, close and fine in feather, plenty of leg, grand style and position, and both handle remarkably well; vhc, Radley, neck tkd. buff, one of the best that ever grasped a perch, not a feather out of place, neat head and shoulders, rare wiugs and tail, plenty of nerve, and gets well up to his work; hc, Richmond; c, Shackleton, Parrott. HENS, YELL. (26): 1, spl, Shackleton, thigh tkd., magnificent shape and style, sweet head, grand neck and back, tightly braced wings and tail, nice tapering body, splendid legs, full of quality; 2, 4, Bailey, finely drawn cl., grand length and style, beautiful feather, nice col., sweet head, very compact wings and tail, in rare form; 4th, wing and rump tkd., grandly modelled, very fine and close in feather, rare head, neck, and shoulders, a charming hen; 3, vhc, Rennie, cl., not so rich in col., but all there in shape, length, style, and feather, a really smart and typical Yorkshire lass; vhc, another grandly shaped high quality lassie, but she was nervous and shy, and objected to our handling her; vhc, Taylor, very neat and natty varieg., grand feather, capital wings and tail, handles well; hc, Hodgson, Smith; c, Ogden Bros. (2). BUFF (19): 1, Bailey, grizzle necked, grand head and neck, beautiful shoulders, neat and compact in wings and tail, lovely feather, and full of style; 2, Crisp, long, shapely hen, wonderfully fine and close in feather, full of nerve and style, very slowy, grand back, wings, and tail, given just a bit more warmth of col. and she would be bad to get past; 3, Ogden Bros., neck and wing tkd., beautiful col. and feather, neat head, grand neck and shoulders, very closely packed wings and tail, splendid position; 4, Dykes, capital shape and length, nice head and back, good wings and tail, hardly so fine in front; vhc, Rennie, very sweet head and wing mkd., rare shape and quality, full of nerve and style, a grand hen; hc, Mrs. Gill; c, Bishop. CINN. TKD. YELL. (11): 1, 2, vhc, spl best vhc, Towers, head, eye, and wing mkd., grand head, neck and back, close well-fitting shoulders and wings, fine well-piped tail, rare quality, plenty of style; 2nd, eye, cheek, and wing mkd., grand length, style and feather, built on stouter lines; vhc, beavily mkd., on the large side, but full of style, nice shapo and lovely feather; 3, Ogden Bros., head, cheek, and saddle mkd., grand length, beautiful shape, cut well away from shoulder to walst, stands well up on a good pair of legs, and shows plenty of nerve; 4, O'Reilly, head, eye, and wing mkd., not so much length but beautifully modelled, grand quality of feather, nice col., plenty of nerve and gets well into position when handled; hc, Jowett; c, Richmond. BUFF (9): 1, spl best in section, Ogden Bros., eye, cheek, and wing mkd., splendid length, beautiful feather, neat head and shoulders, good clean front, nice level back, well finished wings and tail, and stands up to his work like a soldier; 2, Towers, eye, neck and wing mkd., grand shape and feather, rare wings and tail, full of stylo and quality; 3, Dykes, head, eye, and wing mkd., not so much col., but grandly shaped and beautifully feathered, rare position; 4, c, Richmond, eye, cheek, and wing, beautiful quality of feather, nice col., stands well upon perch, but is hardly so finely drawn; vhc, Hawes Bros., eye and wing mkd., lovely shape, style and feather, pale in col.; hc, spl, Bentley. HENS, YELL. (12): 1, vhc, Richmond, cheek and wiug mkd., long finely drawn body, neat head, grand back and shoulders, neat wings and tail, lovely col. and quality, full of style; vhc, cheek, neck, and wing mkd., lovely feather, shape, and style, not so much length; 2, c, Towers, head, eye, and wing mkd., hardly so neat in head, capital neck, shoulders, and back, well braced wings and tail, capital shape and style, and grandly feathered; 3, Myers and Lumb, eye, neck, and wing mkd., a sweet little hen, lovely col., feather, shape, and style, we liked much, and had she just a shado more length she would be a gem; 4, hc, Jowett, eye and wing mkd., grand shape and style, rich bright col., beautifully feathered and nice position. BUFF (8): 1, vhc, Towers, eye, cheek, and wing mkd., capital col. and feather, very stylish, but inclined to embonpoint; 2, Bentley, rather heavily mkd., grand shape and style, beautiful feather; 4, Morgan, neat and stylish, good feather and shape, not so much nerve; hc, Rennie, a most peculiar example of colouring, cinnamon-mkd. on wing, and green-mkd. on neck; what would the theorists on colour breeding say of this, we wonder?

The Green Section.

Judge: W. Mundell.

YORKS. YELL. (15): 1, 2, Pickup, two beauties, wonderful type, the winner especially, could hold his own for type in Yorkshire classes, neat heads, grand shoulders and backs, great length of side, splendid wings and tail, lovely clear rich grassy col., beautiful feather, both very smart and stylish, and shown in the pink of form; 3, Simpson, splendid sound col., grand back, wings, and tail, very nice quality of feather, grand nerve and style, not so neat in head; 4, hc, Atherton, capital shape of body, well cut away, gets well up on leg, very nice col., also a shade flat in head; vhc, spl best vhc, Nimmo, grand long-sided stylish bird of beautiful col., good shoulders and wings, spreads tail a bit; c, Clayton. BUFF (13): 1, 2, Clayton, two gems, full of rich grassy col., nicely mealed without showing any brouziness or smokiness, nice shapely heads, neat shoulders and wings, capital backs, well-piped tails, rare style and nerve, full of quality and beautifully shown; 3, 4, Nimmo, splendid col., grand shape and length, plenty of style and nerve, nice heads and backs, neat tails; 4th, not quite so clever with his wings; vhc, Robinson, capital shape and style, nice head, back, wings and tail, hardly so clear in col. on back and wings; hc, spl best hc, c, Rowlands. FOUL YELL. (12): 1, 2, 4, spl best bird in section, Clayton, a splendid trio, shown in the highest form and reflecting great credit upon their owner, 1st pied in flight, 2nd pied in tail, 4th pied vent and tail, all the three very smart and neat in head, close and compact in shoulders, nice level backs, well braced wings and tails, show plenty of side, very close and fine in body feather, yet well up on their legs, have splendid rich grassy col., and in a word are good Yorkshire and good Greens; 3, Rowlands pied head, neck, wings, and tail, capital Yorkshire shape, beautiful col. and quality, holds himself well and shows plenty of nerve and style; vhc, Atherton, pied tail, nice shaped, good-coloured, well-feathered body, not quite so clever with his wings; hc, Pickup; c, Simpson. BUFF (13): 1, Abbott, pied neck, wing, and tail, long, fine, racy bird full of nerve and style, lovely col. and quality, in grand form; 2, Pickup, grand-coloured, nice-feathered bird, stands well, built on rather stouter lines; 3, Rowlands, rare rich green col., splendid feather and style, neat head and shoulders, capital wings and tail, in nice form; 4, c, Clayton, not quite so grassy in col., lovely shape and style, capital feather; vhc, hc, Gore, pied, wing, tail, and thighs, two nice shapely, bright-coloured, well-feathered stylish birds.

Judge: T. Heath.

NOR. YELL. (17): 1, 2, 3, Deacon, a wonderful team of good, deep-chested, broad-shouldered birds of lovely feather, splendid rich grassy col., nice heads, rare style, 1st the soundest in col., 2nd running a little pale on thigh, and 3rd on throat, all shown in splendid form; 4, Hawkes, another rare-shaped bird of splendid quality, hardly so bright in col., but very sound and level; vhc, Murray, big bouncing bird of good shape and col., not so fine in feather; hc, Christian; c, Walker. BUFF (15): 1, Hawkes, beautiful rich col., close, fine, silky feather, grand head, chest, and shoulders, good cobby body, nicely finished throughout; 2, Lawson, big bouncing bird of good col., nice head, capital feather, not quite so cobby or deep in chest; 3, vbc, Deacon, graud shape and col., lovely quality of feather, hardly so large but very typical, 3rd runs just a shade light at throat; 4, Mrs. Harrison, capital shape, col., and feather, nice head, wings, and tail, just a bit higher on legs; hc, Mrs. Walker; c, Isaac. The Cinnamon Section.

Judge: J. Dobson.

CINN. YELL. (13): 1, two spls, 2, Dormer, couple of real gems for depth of true Cinn. col., 2nd perhaps the best throated bird of the two, 1st magnificent tone of col., lustrous to a degree, both real Norwich type, 2nd the chubbier, but 1st purest in col., a credit to the exhibitor; 3, Mrs. Deacon, larger, if anything, rich tone of cinn. colour, but the striping inclined to be too dark in proportion; 4, Brown Bros., very lustrous and pure in col., very hot fed, not quite so good in head, perhaps, but a gem all the same; staged to concert pitch; vbc, Benson, stout in body, and grand in head, hardly so silky or lustrous; hc, spl, Mrs. Reeves, pure and lustrous, not quite so chubby; c, Keyes, fine pure col, again; spl, No. 472, Medlin, rich and lustrous. BUFF (13): 1, Dormer, grand stout body, pure body col., close and silky, bloomy feather, rich tone, just a wee bit off at throat, and might have a trifle heavier skull for body, but for all that a gem of a bird; 2, 3, Mrs. Deacon, really topping cinnies, both very thick-set, former deepest tone of colour, latter best skull, very pure, lustrous, and lovely mealing; 4, hc, Dormer, 4th very rich in col., so much so that some expressed doubts, but it is a buff, grand cinn. col., good body, hardly so silky; vhc, spl, Brown Bros., lovely col. and bloom, fails a wee bit in skull, but pure in col; c, Pretty, very nice col., good head. UNFLIG. (11): 1, Riding, yell., good and sound col., nice and uniform, very fine bead for a baby; 2, Dormer, grand headed buff bird, lustrous, pure, not enough framework to make a big one; 3, Hill, lustrous yell., pure in col., needs more skull and bigger frame, very fine in col.; 4, Ewen and Anderson, yell., just lacks stoutness of head, nice rich col., good body and lustrous; vhc, Dormer, rattling fine bodied buff, will make up into a good one; hc, c, Mrs. Deacon, both yell. of grand col., the latter the stouter of the two HENS (12): 1, 4, Mrs. Deacon, both yells., short in body, pure in col. and lustrous, leader the sounder of the two; 2, Riding, also a yell., very little to choose in all points between this and the winner, 2nd was a trifle pale at throat; 3, Dormer, yell., lovely pure col., a wee trifle weak in head; vhc, Brown Bros., buff, grand body, nice col.; hc, Rae, yell., silky feather and lustrous, very weak in bead; c, Hill, yell., stout body, weak in bead.

The Champion A.O.V. Class.

Judge: Geo. Gardner.

A.O.V. CAN. (11): 1, Kiesel, the White Canary, a source of not a little heckling of the judge, a pure white Yorks., having been bred, the owner assured us, from two Yorkshires. It was shown very clean; it is rare on the show benches. The bird fulfils all the requirements of an A.O.V. class, for although in reality a Yorkshire, it is neither a buff nor a yell., and consequently is outside the scope of Yorkshire classification; 2, Helliwell, evenly mkd. yell. Yorks., rather heavy eyes, nice type, good quality feather, rich col.; 3, Dormer, 4-pointed buff Nor., lightly streaked eyes, good quality, very fine shape; 4, Adnitt and Driver, another 4-pointed buff Nor., with pea eye-marks, grand shape and quality; vhc, Bexson, foul-mkd. Cinn.; hc, Oldaker, ditto; c, Gibbs.

The Novice Norwich Section.

Judge: H. W. Battye.

NOR. CL. YELL. (12): 1, sp, Thomas, grand bodied hird, rich in quality of feather, nice head, full neck, short flights and tail, very level and pleasing in tone of colour; 2, Mitchell, more upright in carriage, not quite so deep in chest as winner, but rare quality of feather and lovely col.; 3, Goodman, shorter body than 2nd, beautiful tone of feather, rare col., short wings and tail, very fine chest; 4, Ball, little longer in flights, not quite so nicely covered on wing butts, topping quality and good col.; vhc, Mrs. Litchfield, fine feathered bird of nice col., but unfortunately a little open in tail carriage; hc, Hitchings, rare texture of feather, but scarcely chubby enough; c, Welch, stout body, rich quality. BUFF (14): 1, Hills, grand type, sparkling top, with lovely under-colour, soft shimmeriug feather, well-covered wing butts, fine back and waist; 2, Espley, close and silky in feather, full of rich under-colour, well posted, rare type, good one; 3, Gardner, very short in body, flights and tail, neat head, plenty of quality and lustrous colour, taking birds; 4, Stockwin, just a wee bit more free in feather, A1 thighs, and a trifle long in shaft, but a classy bird as to quality and colour; vhc, Billington, hoxy feathered, very shiny, might he found valuable for double huffing, with a full col.-bred hen; hc, Goodman, short in hody, bloomy feather, nice type, charming hird; c, Ball, good shape and feather quality, just a wee trifle free. TKD., ETC., YELL. (13): 1, Miss Flemons, very compact in feather, rich col., glossy feather, inclining to run out in length of body and wing, but a sweet bird in most respects; 2, Lathlieff, tkd. on neck, rich quality feather, rattling col. and level, very shapely hody, nice carriage; 3, Billington, just a wee trifle longer in body and shaft, hut neat head and well-filled neck, rich col., topping quality of feather; 4, Inch, varieg., just a little bit thin in body and spare in build, hut lovely quality and deep rich col.; vhc, Welch, grand col. and quality again; hc, Berry and Mitchell, varieg., of the col. and stamp that proves invaluable in the breeding cage; c, Hitchings, cap and wing mkd., chubby hody, nice head, plenty of beautiful feather. BUFF (14): 1, sp, Tose, bonny bird, possessing rich, close feather, level back, good wing covering, nice under-colour and bloom; 2, 3, Isom, former capped hird, rich undercolour, scarcely so bloomy as 1st, hut grand quality, inclined to a trifle of slackness at thighs; 3rd, very fine shape of body, very bloomy feather, good chest, scarcely so rich in col. as 2nd, hut a fine one; 4, Botell, tkd. on head, beautiful depth of col., fine shape, hardly so gauzy on feather, perhaps; vhc, Mrs. Espley, typical, very nice frosting on feather over good undercolour, fine head properties; hc, Berry and Mitchell, varieg., good body and quality, excellent stock bird; c, sp, Welch, grand feather, nice undercolour. HENS (24): 1, Thomas, tkd. huff, short and chubby in build, rare quality feather, smart hen, a little more attention to toilet would have improved it; 2, Heywood, tk. winged yell., not the deepest in col., but good head, full chest without fatness, short body flights and tail, fine carriage, rare quality, claimed by one who knows a thing or two; 3, Handley and Son, varieg. huff, grand shape aud quality, a bird that pleased us much in most respects; 4, Mrs. Litchfield, yell., lovely silky feather, might be a little fuller perhaps in head, most attractive col.; vhc, Burgess, a sweet bird for feather properties; hc, Lack, yell., grand quality of feather, nice col.; c, Isom, rattling varieg., of the best texture of feather, of the right quality. UNFLIG. (31): 1, Handley and Son, buff, chesty, good carriage, soft and silky in feather, rich in undercolour, charming stamp of bird, shown to advantage; 2, Lack, bonny yell., with level, well-filled back, grand wing covering, rich col. all through, very silky in feather, fine chest, short wings and tail; 3, Espley, buff, teeming with quality, rich in undercolour and bloom, a gem; 4, Tose, yell., rattling type, plenty of front, nice head, rich col., silky feather, very promising; ex. 4, Heywood, buff, topping quality of feather, showing well for type, rich undercolour, well-set wings, short body and tail; vhc, Espley, yell., good chest, col. and quality, fails just a wee trifle in head properties; hc, Isom, short and typical, grand col., nice one; hc, Tose, rich quality yell., might have a little more substance perhaps; c, Read, buff, full of quality, good col. and frosting, will improve; c, Billington, bird of promise when developed.

The Novice Crests.

Judge: J. Dobson.

CRESTS (9): 1, sp, Mrs. Litchfield, griz. crest buff, very fine bird, beautiful tone of feather, nicely entred, full crest, lays well, uniform back, good frontal, sides, droop and density; 2, Lomax, varieg. dark Crest, fine-bodied bird, good frontal to crest, with rare droop, dense and long in crest feather; 3, Jemhy and Bellman, cl. hody, dark crest, neat, nice centre and frontal; 4, Moore, wing-mkd. dark Crest of substance, both of body and crest, latter fine frontal, droop and shape, very good bird; vhc, Lomax, cl. hody, dark Crest, neat centre and frontal, fails only at sides of crest; hc, Pickard, good-hodied bird, with some density of crest feather, the weak point being in crest formation; c, Turner, varieg., good in body, not quite so nice in formation of crest and frontal. C.-B. (8): 1, Mrs. Litchfield, lightly tkd. buff, with noble head, deep in cushion, wide at entrance, dense in clothing of head, and long in turn back, rattling body; 2, Lomax, varieg., uot quite so wide in skull as winner, but dense and long in head feather, very good bird all round; 3, Moore, nearly green, nicely shaped head, fine length and width of head feather, rare body; 4, Mrs. Reeves, nicely cushioned skull, head feather dense and long, with good body properties; vhc, Mrs. Litchfield, saddle-mkd. buff, lovely quality of feather which was peach-like in softness, nice wide head; hc, Lomax, varieg., wide bead, scarcely so dense or long as some of the leaders.

The Novice Yorkshires.

Judge: H. Broadley.

NOVICE YELL. (16): 1, Fowle, long, finely-drawn bird of rare quality and style, a smart typical Yorkie which knows how to show himself; 2, Clark, very compact, close-fitting silky feather, nicely tapered body, neat head, grand wings and tail, beautifully shown; 3, Blount, really good-shaped Yorkie, grand quality and style, but gone in neck; 4, Murrell, neat, shapely bird of good style, nice length, rather uneven in col., and not quite so well shown; vhc, Bullough, had this bird been well washed it would undoubtedly have stood much higher, it is of beautiful shape and quality, and handles well; hc, spl, Barber; c, Picard. BUFF (20): 1, Fielden, wing tkd., a gem, lovely quality of feather, neat head, grand shoulders, wings, and tail, full of nerve and handles well; 2, Bullough, very nice shapely bird, neat head and shoulders, capital feather and style, rather short in tail; 3, Stout, very smart, stylish, neat-bodied wing tkd., beautiful feather, gets well up to his work; 4, Douglas, grand-shaped bird of capital feather and style, wins Ramsden's pepper special; vhc, Allum Bros., very neat, well shaped, nicely feathered body, capital nerve; hc, Lingley; c, Glover. Williams, 23 points; hc, Hestling, 22 points; c, F. Wilsdon, 21 points. In this class there were a number of birds with the finest songs of a Roller, hut unfortunately they did not open at the time they were judged. ROLLERS, BRED 1909 (14): 1, Cole, holl. roll 6, holl. bell 3, bass 3, schockel 4, flute notes 2, water glucke 2, deep water tour 2, schwirre 1, gen. eff. 5, faults: 1 off hard schwirre, 1 sharp bell, 26 points, splendid well-bred bird, free songster; 2, H. J. Williams, holl. roll 6, bass roll 6, bass roll 3, schockel 4, flute notes 3, water glucke 3, bell roll 2, gen. eff. 3, 24 points, nice soft songster; 3, Fisher, holl. roll 7, holl. bell 3, bass 4, schockel 4, gen. eff. 4, 22 points, very nice hird, but did not seem to sing all his tours when judged; 4, H. E. Willows, holl. roll 7, holl. bell 3, bass roll 3, schockel 4, deep water tour 2, bell tour 2, gen. eff. 3, 1 off for hard aufzug, 1 for hard schwirre, 22 points, nice hird, but frequently spoilt himself repeating his faults in song; vhc, Stokes, 21 points; hc, Fisher, 21 points, this bird would undoubtedly have come higher in points had he been better trained, he would go half through his song and then amuse himself with his ring; c, Massey and Ridings, 19 points, there was nothing striking in the song, but still a good sounding bird. LIMIT £2 (19): 1, Schluter; 2, Whittaker; 3, 4, R. Kremner; vhc, Merrick; vhc, Hesling; hc, Whittaker; c, Wilsden. NOVICE, BRED 1909: 1, Tomlinson, holl. roll 7, bass roll 3, schockel 4, flute notes 2, water glucke 3, bell roll 2, gen. eff. 5, 26 points, nice free songster without any faults; 2, Kelynack, holl. roll 7, holl. bell 2, bass roll 2, schockel 4, glucke 3, flute notes 2, deep water tour 2, gen. eff. 3, 1 off hard aufzug, 24 points, very well hred bird, who went through his song in good style; 3, Tomlinson, holl. roll 7, bass roll 3, schockel 4, flute note 2, water glucke 2, bell roll 2, gen. eff. 5, 1 off hard aufzug, 24 points, another good sweet songster; 4, Smith, holl. roll 7, bass 3, schockel 4, flute 2, water glucke 2, gen. eff. 4, 22 points, nice bird with scarcely any faults; vhc, Harker, 22 points; hc, Rhodes, 20 points; c, Smith, 20 points. We noticed several other birds that would have obtained prize money had they opened at the time they were judged.

The Limit Classes.

Judge: Geo. Gardner.

NOR. CK. (30/-) (50): 1, Gilbert, varieg. buff, very short and thick set, lovely undercolour and frosting, quickly claimed; 2, Payne and Son, yell., unflig., fine flowing feather, good wing carriage, neat head, nice one, also claimed as soon as the show opened; 3, Jeffs, cl. buff, bonny type, grand quality, soon found a purchaser; 4, Tweddle, rich col. yell., good body; ex. 4, Kilby, varieg. yell., cobby shape, fine quality; ex. 4, Mrs. Dormer, fine silky feather, nice shape; vhc, Malcolm, Taylor, Ramsden (2), Johnson, Bertie, Barrett, Bellinger; hc, Spinner, Howard and Son, Wilmot, Lawson, Bellinger (3); Ramsden's sp, Adnitt and Driver. HEN (35): 1, Jeffs, buff, short and chubby, rare quality, good head, sold at once; 2, Ramsden, varieg. yell., lovely col., silky feather, found a purchaser quickly; 3, Irous, varieg. buff, short and thick set, cheap; 4, Adnitt and Driver, yell., lovely feather, good body; ex. 4, Gilbert, varieg. yell., small but shapely; vhc, Smith, Bodder, Lawson, Miles and Son, Thompson, Tampkins, Bateman, Gentle; hc, Wright and Son, Ramsden, Bellinger.

YORKS. (30/-) (32): 1, Fawcett, Cinn. tkd. yell., nice length, grand quality, well up on leg, promptly claimed; 2, Hodgson, yell., lovely feather, nice position, neat head; 3, Jowett, level back, good style, well on leg; 4, Lingley, fine, stylish yell., little thin in neck, but grand pose; ex. 4, Amblers, stylish, fine feather; vhc, Wood, Forse and Son, Fawcett, Amblers; hc, Bullen, Myers and Lumb, Richmond (2), Green, Chippendale, Parrott. A.O.V. CAN. OR MULE (30/-) (29): 1, Dormer, yell. Cinn., level rich col., sound all through; 2, Maxwell, good col. Siskin-Can.; 3, Harries, Lancs. P.H., nice head; 4, Hill, Cinn., good size and feather; ex. 4, Rukin, hot col. Gold-Liz.; vhc, Dawson, Taylor, Jones, Hunter; hc, Casemore, Bevan, Lamb, Spencer, Gemmell.

Judge: J. Dobson.

CRESTS (£3) (12): 1, Greenwood and Burson, nearly green hen, fine flowing crest, good body, dirt cheap at catalogue price, 25/-; 2, Lazarus, neat Crest, good length of feather, nice body; 3, Fitton, very cheap, full of quality; 4, Mrs. Crow; vhc, Mrs. Litchfield; hc, Smith; c, Oldfield. C.-B. (30/-) (13): 1, Mrs. Crow, good-headed bird, long in head feather, nice body; 2, Thompson, ditto, close up; 3, Rowe and Richards, also nice skull and turns back well; 4, Bishop; vhc, Harrison; hc, Thompson; c, Gilbert.

Judge: J. F. Dewar.

CL., EVEN-MKD., ETC. (12): 1, four spls, Dr. Galloway, the noted cl. yell. Siskin-Cm., a perfect gem, very shapely and silky in plumage, shows the cross beautifully, takes special for best in the section, and merits the distinction; 2, Duncan, the noted cl. Linnet-Mule, another masterpiece of the breeder's art, very large and shapely, perfect condition, feathered like glass, exceptionally good in col., hard luck to run up against the winner, which it presses very hard; 3, Arrighi, eye tkd. Goldie, very nice, stylish, well-made Mule, beautiful col. and bloom, in rare order; 4, Archer, cl. buff Greenfinch, good size and shape, nice quality feather, excellent Mule, could be improved with another moult, lacks a tail feather or two to-day; vhc, he, Coffey, real big and good six-pointed Goldie, fine col. and condition; hc, spl, Bond, the old champion cl. Goldie, looking simply grand when we saw him, beauty for size, shape and col., has one claw missing, but seemed unaccountably low down in list, possibly not looking his best when judged; c, Christian, another very shapely cl. Linnet, a hot class, this. No. 1383, Bond "wrong class," lightly variegated. Siskin, hard lines, could have scored in its correct class. VARIEG., ETC., GOLDIE (18): 1, Arrighi, buff, mkd. wing, eyes and tail, charming condition, nice col., well built, shapely, showy bird; 2, Lamb, very close up, fine, big, lightly mkd. Mule, wonderful col. and condition, put down in taking style; 3, Collins, almost six-pointed, fine substance and shape, lovely texture of feather, tight as a drum, good col. and bloom; 4, Duncan, very lightly mkd., shade smaller than leaders, but a perfect gem for col. and wax-like condition of plumage, grand Mule, some expressed a preference for it for higher honours; vhc, Bond, very big, fine Mule, but coarse in feather; vhc, Howe, another bird of fine substance and quality; hc, Dawson; c, Edwards, two smart Mules, as also is No. 1406 (Arnold). VARIEG. ETC., LINNET OR GREENIE (12): 1, Duncan, nearly cl. Greenfinch, had one or two very lightly grizpatches, a beautiful bird, exquisite feather, well built, steady and stylish, wins in a canter; 2, Collins, very pretty, lightly mkd. Linnet, grand size and shape, in the pink of condition; 3, Leigbton, very big, variegated. Greenfinch, good col., rare quality, grand condition; 4, hc, Lees, two very smart, light variegated. Linuets, leader well-known winner, in splendid form, well worthy of its place here; vhc, Ewen and Anderson, exceptionally rich col. variegated. Greenie, fine size and shape; c, Longden. DK. YELL. GOLDIE (13): 1, Duncan, clinker, great size, beautiful rich col. all over, finely mkd., rare blazo and polish; 2, Arrighi, another beauty, grand size and build, very rich in col., but not quite so intense as winners, fine face and markings generally; 3, Lawrence, perhaps hardly so big as the leaders, but equal in condition and polish, splendid col. and markings, real fine Mule: 4, Marlin, great size and substance, grand stamp of bird, unfortunately is "brassy" in col., which lets him down now; vhc, Jones, fine, stylish Mule, deep, rich col., close on 4th; hc, spl, Gill; c, Longden; Nos. 1425, 1426 (Wilson) "wrong class," both buffs; No. 1424 (Brown), also "w.c.," being a variegated. bird. DK. BUFF (12): 1, Bald, grand fellow, great size, beautifully feathered, deep and brilliant in col., very fine head and blaze, grand wings, wins well; 2, Francis, one of the very few awards in this section which we could not endorse, a grand bird for size, shape, col. and markings, but with a most distinct white break (blb) under the beak, which should (in our humble opinion) have brought it a "wrong class" ticket; 3, Arrighi real bonny bird, very good col., but a trifle duller, fine size and shape, splendid condition and markings; 4, Gill, good one for size, splendid bright col., nice blaze and wings, well put down; vhc, Sellars, splendid col. and condition, very nice Mule; hc, Longden, good build, nice face and col.; c, Jones. DK. GREENIE (13): 1, Somerfield, truly a grand one, wonderful depth of col., beautifully polished, shines like satin, extra large, grand head, carries itself in rare style, the pick of a grand class; 2, Coffey, loses a mere shade in col., in every other point a magnificent specimen, and gives winner a hard race home; 3, Arrighi, yet another clinker, very cobby in build, rich and sound in col., polished like plate glass; 4, Longden, one of the biggest and best cinnamon-feathered examples seen for many a long day, most attractive bird, fine tone of col.; vhc, Bond, very bold, nice col.; hc, Jones; c, Ackland. DK. LINNET (18): 1, Brown, a marvellous jonque, one of the best for col., size and substance ever seen down South, hard to find fault with, well upholds its great Scottish reputation; 2, Wilson, buff, tremendous size, grand head and chest, very sound in col. and nicely mkd., in the pink of condition, a good second; 3, Dring and Morton, the South-country champion jonque, and a bonny bird, too, bas not the exceptional "physique" of the winner, but is of splendid size, brimful of col. and in plumage that shines like silk, beaten, but not disgraced; 4, Colton and Dawn, another exceptionally smart bird, excellent size and shape, sound, deep col; vhc, Jones, beaten in size, equal to most in col. and polish; hc, Coffey, big winner, we thought hardly looked at its best; vhc, c, Butler, two grand Mules, leader good at all points, but a bit "broken" in neck feather; hc, Edwards, fine style and col. DK. SISKIN, REDPOLL OR TWITE (20): 1, Shellam, fine jonque Siskin, grand substance and shape, good cap and wings, well mkd. all over, nice sound col., soon claimed at 85/-; 2, MacDougall, rattling good buff 'Twite, splendid size and shape, steady, fine style, deep, sound col., well pencilled, attractive condition; 3, Roberts, very bonny Redpoll, grand size, col. and markings, A1 condition, soon found a new owner at 25/-; 4, Longden, another beautiful Siskin, trifle paler than leader, but very little separates them at other points, really nice Mule; vhc, Smith, slashing big Twite, good col., trifle slack in feather when we saw him; vhc, Crabb, also a fine Siskin, grand shape, markings and condition, close up; hc, Marsden and Muir; c, Coffey, Livingstone and Sharp, one of the strongest classes in the section. A.O.V. CAN. HYB. (13): Twelve of them, marvellous to relate, Canary-Bullfinches! 1, 4, hc, Mrs. Askham, the winner is depicted on our coloured plate this week, everybody acknowledged him as the best of a wonderful lot, though he was hard pressed by the second, he has great size, rare depth of col. and quality to perfection, while his markings are grandly defined, a real champion of his kind, the 4th is also a marvel for col., markings and size, but has a pied tail, we thought he could have stepped up to 3rd; hc, is a hen of great size and substance; 2, 3, Boad, leader another champion, ran winner closely, great size, rare col. and polish, beautifully mkd., staged in a condition which does credit to its owner, 3rd another very big, bold, good coloured specimen, but with some feathers knocked out over the beak, which made its win over the 4th somewhat lucky; vhc, Chillingworth, big, smart bird, fine head and front, good sound col.; c, Lawrence, also very good all round; c, Mrs. Moore, the "sensational" black Goldie-Can. Mule, very pretty, was claimed at £2. A.V. BULL, HYB. (23): 1, Edmunds, remarkably good Greenie-Bullie, very massive, beautifully feathered, like wax, full of col., grand head, staged in A1 form, rightly tops a hot class; 2, Shellam, exceptionally big, thick-set Goldie-Bullie, brilliant blaze and breast, fascinating bird, "cocks" his tail in true Bullie fashion, a good second, though seemed inclined to go a little "soft" when we were taking notes; 3, Arrighi, beautifully coloured and feathered Linnet-Bullie, a regular "swell," just a shade small; 4, Mrs. Winnard, another Goldie-B., loses in substance, but a really astonishing col., very brilliant and clear on blazo and breast; vhc, Walsh, fine, big stylish Greenie-B., loses in quality and col.; vhc, spl, Snedden, another really charming Goldie-B., we preferred to 4th in everything but col.; vhc, Collins, grand Greenie-B., but duller in col., especially on the head; hc, Colton and Dawn, Lamb; c, Coffey, Fysh, Johnstone, the latter a Redpoll-B., catalogued as a cock, but we venture to think it a hen. A.O.V. HYB. (17): 1, Arrighi, really beautiful Greenie-Goldie, grand size and shape, lovely col. and markings, exceptionally large, rich blaze, a gem; 2, Barclay, charming jonque Redpoll-Greenie, good size and shape, exquisite quality and col., A1 condition; 3, Coffey, very good Bramble-Chaffinch, fine col., markings and polish; 4, Lamb, the noted Redpoll-Goldie, wee gem, charming condition, fine col. and markings, we should have jumped him up a notch higher; vhc, Collins, fine big Redpoll-Goldie; vhc, Gilbert, another exceptionally big Goldie-Greenie, grand fellow all round, close on winners' heels; hc, Martin; hc, Hutchison; c, Walsh; c, Tonks.

The British Bird Section.

Judge: J. F. Dewar.

BULLFINCH (41): 1, spl, F. Jones, exceptionally fine house-moulted bird, grand type, true Britisher, magnificent colour throughout, tight as wax in feather and polished like plate-glass, very steady and stylish, put down in faultless condition; 2, Woods, also h.-m., shade smaller, but beats winner in cap (we never saw a better capped bird), and is equal in colour, rich, solid breast, lovely back and bars, carries a fascinating bloom, though hardly so boxy in feather as the winner, still, it is hard to find fault with either, they are both gems; 3, Mrs. Frostick, h.-m., grand type, very cobby and stylish, fine cap, beautiful condition, not quite the warmth of breast colour as leaders, bonny bird, though we noted with surprise a missing claw; 4, Malcolmson, field-moulted, trifle small, but the true "John Bull" type and rare good colour and quality, very well-behaved and tight in feather; ex 4, Thomson, the noted Scottish champion, h.-m., and a topper for shape, col., bloom, a wee bit pinched in cap, may-be, yet we liked him for 3rd place; ex 4, vhc, Archer, two lovely birds, the former very cobby, good head and back, solid, rich breast, had hurt its foot slightly when we took our notes; vhc, Hinds, all there for type and colour, bit ragged at edge of cap; vhc, Jupe, grand bird, fine cap and breast, very hot, clean colour; vhc, Belcher, stylish, grand cap, well polished all over, little light in centre of breast; hc, Holloway, Marley, Nott; c, Vart, all birds well above the average in merit. Some grand ones had to stand cardless. Absent, 1565, 1567, 1578, 1579. BULLIE HEN (16): 1, Watson, the Scottish National winner, bonny damsel, grandly built, bold cap, fine tone of colour, rare bloom; 2, Bald, another very fine hen, lovely cap and breast, rich colour, polished to perfection; 3, vhc, Howe, not quite so shapely as leaders, but fine birds for colour and bloom, leader has a grand head; 4, Clarke, a size smaller, beautiful tone of colour, grand condition; hc, spl., Mrs. Frostick, very steady, shapely, good coloured bird; c, Belcher, exceptionally good quality; No. 1593, Hoyle, a fine hen, but looking queer. Absent, 1594.

Judge: G. E. Weston.

GOLDFINCH (47): 1, vhc, c, Herbert, winds up a successful season in fine style, a bonny Finch, excelling in colour and quality, feathered like box, perfect buttons, etc., beautifully tanned, has a very expansive and rich blaze, which, however, is not exactly correct in cut, being somewhat rounded underneath, a lovely bird, however, and wants a world of beating; two latter birds also good ones; 2, 3, ex 4, Richards, splendid trio, former has a magnificent blaze, very wide, rich, and well cut, good shaped body, perfect mkgs., but a little too white in ground colour, in simply beautiful condition, we understand is last year's winner, now become a "Welsh champion," 3rd not quite so cobby in type, nice tone of chestnut, clearly defined buttons, expansive, clean-cut blaze, which is very brilliant and rich in colour, ex 4 another grand all-round Goldie, splendid tan, big, rich-coloured, well mkd. bird, all three a credit to their owner for condition and perfection of plumage; 4, Gill, the most expansive and squarest-cut blaze in class, in fact a truly grand stamp of Finch all over, but very nervous and will not keep off the wires, had frayed tail, may do better after another moult; ex 4, McMinns Bros. nice bird, pressed 4th very hard, good blaze, well cut, rich tone of colour, plenty of body chestnut, steady and stylish, put down in good trim; vhc, hc, Andrews, two beauties, very shapely and smart, grand blazes, shine like silk; vhc, Hoyle, fine wide blaze, bit short underneath, charming condition; vhc, Mortlock, very big face, grand colour and polish, is, if anything, a wee bit too much clouded in whites; hc, Carrier, fine deep blaze, trifle narrow; hc, Harris, grand stamp of bird, fails colour, top blaze; hc, McGregor and Boyd, fine colour, shade coarse in feather; c, Maxwell, marvellous blaze, strangely loose in body feather; c, Raper, lovely condition; absent, 1621. LINNET (37): 1, hc, Wilson, "Pride of Cumberland," well-known in the North, one of the biggest Linnets ever seen, grand Norwich type, steady, takes the perches beautifully and shows to perfection, lovely colour considering his great size, and splendidly pencilled, bonny bird, we liked immensely, though he certainly might be better staged, the cage comparing very unfavourably with those adopted by south country exhibitors; 2, McArdle and Stewart, we take to be the Scottish National winner, slimmer in build compared to winner, lovely nutty colour, with beautiful sheen on top, very sound all over and full of work, steady and stylish to a degree; 3, Maxwell, the Horticultural Hall winner, charming Linnet, big, very shapely, tight as wax in feather, exceptionally sound and rich in colour, grandly pencilled, close up, but is developing a habit of "twisting" its head; 4, Prior, carries more "work" than any bird in the class, is wonderfully rich in colour and highly polished, and extra large and bold in build, unfortunately has a centre toe-nail missing, or might have compassed the downfall even of the winner; ex 4, Coffey, remarkable bird for depth of colour, bloom, and profusion of pencilling, bit short of "weight"; ex 4, Marley, well-known winner (2nd Horticultural Hall, 1st Gateshead, Leicester, etc.), and a lovely bird for soundness of colour and markings, very shapely and stylish, loses a little in bloom and size, some thought could have moved up a notch; vhc, Arrighi, extra big, nice colour, well mkd., trifle coarser in feather; vhc, Gale, lovely bird for size, shape, colour, and polish, very stylish, bit plainer at front; vhc, Longden, beauty, good size and shape, full of work, inclined to be unsteady; vhc, Malcolmson, very stylish, shapely bird, well marked, somewhat dull in coat; hc, Mays, grand carriage, nice bird; hc, Harris, good and heavily pencilled, but rough at neck; hc, Erskine, bonny build and condition, bit plain; c, Dunn, cage is too small; c, Spinks. No. 1685 (Miss Byerley), good, but very nervous and unsteady. CHAFFINCH (22): 1, Reid, very big, stoutly-built bird, rare head and chest, splendidly contrasted in colour, steady, grand carriage, bit dull in plumage, which nearly lost it first place; 2, Lawrence, not quite so hold, but better polished, grandly proportioned, steady, stylish, full of colour, grand wings, close race; 3, Henderson, real big taking bird, full of colour, grand shape and style, beaten in head, staged in lovely condition; 4, Mays, grandly polished and marked, trifle smaller than leaders, very steady, splendid carriage and shape, good wings; vhc, McVay, grand colour and markings, good size, bit pinched at back of skull; vhc, Coffey, very shapely, stylish, and polished, not quite so well-contrasted in colour; vhc, Longden, lovely quality, good colour and markings, bit too free yet, wants calming down; hc, Prior; hc, Bacon; c, Simpson. LESSER REDPOLL (20): 1, Marley, field-moulted, a champion, grand thick-set little fellow, stylish carriage, splendid colour and markings, wonderful big, shapely bib, in the pink of condition; 2, Mrs. Clark, house-moulted, gem for colour and condition, carries lovely bloom, very fine, shapely, well-mkd. bird; 3, Belcher, f.-m., another grand coloured, well-built 'poll, with an enormous bib, in excellent condition; 4, Hoyle, h.-m., splendid size and markings, full of quality and colour, put down in good trim; vhc, McGorum, very fine h.-m. bird, close on 4th; vhc, Marlin, excellent f.-m. specimen; hc, Prior, Coffey; c, Bell and Fisher. TWITE (9): 1, Prior, fine size, grand head and chest, lovely pencilling all over, very rich, sound colour, shines like satin, quickly snapped up at 20s.; 2, 4, Coffey, leader beauty for size, shape, and colour, very well mkd., not quite so close in feather, 4th smaller, but equal to any for pencilling and condition; 3, Hunter, paler in colour, rare size and shape, very well mkd.; vhc, Howe; hc, Walsh; c, Marley. SISKIN (19): 1, Cameron, very big, bold bird, with an exceptionally large bib, good head and wings, nice colour; 2, Bald, another wonderfully big bird, non-fed, nice quality, has likewise a splendid bib, should moult a topper; 3, Hoyle, smaller, loses in bib, best colour and condition in class (fed), a little gem; 4, A. Smith, also colour-fed, very nice shape and quality, in fine condition; vhc, Coffey, very shapely, grand quality; vhc, hc, McGregor and Boyd, splendid flank lacing, grand condition, bit narrow in skull; hc, Marley; c, Mrs. Clark. Absent, 1714, 1759. BRAMBLE (23): 1, Prior, raking big bird, lovely head and chest, very stylish, grand breast colour, extending well down flanks, very clean-cut hood, good back mkgs., bit short of lacing at flanks, magnificent condition, a youngster which should have a future; 2, Longden, the 14-year-old wonder, marvellous colour and spangling, lovely quality and bloom, but getting a bit "stiff-jointed" and does not show himself so sprightly as of yore, what a record he has put up!; 3, Wilson, exceptionally big, hot coloured Bramble, finely spangled, but surely shown in most unsuitable cage and with the perches places too high up for the bird to move in comfort; 4, Osborne Bros., trifle smaller, well built, magnificent colour, shines like silk, fine hood and back, well laced, shown in A1 form; vhc, spl, Coffey, very fine bird, about the best spangling in class, rare style and shape, unfortunately has feather out of tail right hand side; vhc, Carter, another beauty, wonderful shape and style, very finely mkd.; hc, Howe, very good, trifle smaller; hc, Beaty, fine type, fails in back spangling only; c, Barclay, nice hen. No. 1772 (Longden), grand bird, but minus a claw. Absent, 1761, 1766, 1768.

Judge: A. Silver.

GREENFINCH (25) A good class, both in quantity and quality, several really fine birds being out of the cards: 1, 4, Bald, former medium size, good cl. col., nice wing bars and tail, lovely shape, latter smaller Finch, but fine col., both in first-class condition and very steady; 2, R. J. Howe, grand quality of feather, fine, bold carriage, rich wing bars and tail, massive head, lovely tint of green, must have pressed hard; 3, Tonks, beaten in size only, nice conditioned Finch, beautifully sound col., very steady; vhc, Marley, Coffey, both large, shapely birds, in excellent feather; hc, Pickles, fine, large bird, in nice order, Prior we liked much, full of condition, shade small; c, Livingstone and Sharp, good-bodied bird, in capital trim. HAWFINCH (16), a grand class, and not a duffer in it: 1, Beaty, his noted winner, a monster for size, grand coloured, massive head and cheeks, capital wing bars, very large bib, cols. throughout well defined, fine chest, stands well; 2, Poole, very hot col., one of medium size, very forward, bill almost full of col., nice thumb-shaped bib, grand bird all round, wee shade smaller than leader; 3, Blackie, nice shape, but lighter of build, stands well on perches, good head and wing bars, fine polish on plumage; 4, Bull, small bird, but very hot col., excellent bib, fine square head, very steady; vhc, Marley, lovely bird, fine carriage, good col.; hc, spl, Ford, fine body, rather narrow head, perhaps, claimed at £2; c, Acland, another topping bird. YELLOWHAMMER (19), real good class, most of the exhibits of very high merit. Nos. 1826, Gale, and 1838, Marlin, both good birds, were marked "disqualified," as their head markings failed to satisfy the judge's eagle eye, who was, we heard, aided by a strong magnifying glass: 1, Prior (non-fed), an old winner now, very cl. lemon-yell., perfect head marks, rich body col., and very distinct markings, carries a wonderful bloom; 2, Mrs. Frostick, a good 2nd, splendid head and cheek marks, shows plenty of yell. on throat and under parts, in rare condition, first time shown, we heard; 3, Axe, excellent 'Ammer, plenty of size, hardly so well defined head marks, very steady, in perfect feather; 4, Russell, wee shade smaller, rich in yellows, dense head marks, very steady, nice silky plumage; vhc, Marley, an old champion, in rare condition, but beaten to-day; vhc, Wills, nice one, not quite so distinct in markings; hc, Mays, medium-sized, rich yell.; c, Coffey, finely mkd., very steady, short of few tail feathers. A.O.S. BUNTING, a well-mixed class: 1, Beaty, well-known winner, Cornbunting, marvel for size and richness of plumage, mkd. to perfection, very steady, and carries a wonderful bloom; 2, 4, Frances, lovely Lapland Bunting, and a Cornbunting respectively, former well up in black on head and throat, good size, perfect feather, well shown, latter nice sized bird, but beaten in col. and pencillings, very steady, perfect feather; 3, W. B. Frostick, tamest Snowbunting we have seen for a long time, very white for a cage-moulted bird, and as steady as could be, nice size, and shows himself well; vhc, Rowe and Richards, real fine Cirl Bunting, good black throat, and rich yellow markings, hard lines, some thought might have been 4th; hc, Coffey, bonny Reedbunting, lovely head and throat; c, Lowne, another good Snowbunting; No. 1841, rare col. Reedbunting. BLACKBIRD (12): 1, vhc, Howe, former old champion, very rich bill and eye cere, hot-fed, lovely condition, very shapely, give him a better cage Mr. H., he is well worth it, vhc slimmer built, good black throughout, nice carriage; 2, Sketchley, another really fine Blackie, jet black, splendid shape, excellent crown, bill and eye cere, perfect feather, polished like satin; 3, Davidson, rare size, good shape, hardly as rich in bill, perhaps, well conditioned, steady, in fine feather; 4, Prior, lovely shape, good black throughout, slightly paler eye cere, very promising bird; hc, Wildsmith and Hawkins, nice, shapely Blackie, in perfect feather; c, Lee, lovely crocus bill, wee shade small, SONG THRUSH (13): 1, Bruce, Thrush, rare size and shape, very distinctly and beautifully spotted breast, lovely col.; 2, Wildsmith and Hawkins, another beauty, well spotted, right down flanks, rich throat, very shapely and steady; 3, Middleton, good stylish bird, but not quite so distinctly spotted as the leaders, excellent col., very tame, and best-staged in class; 4, c, R. J. Howe, former fine, rich col., nice shape and size, good quality of feather, plenty of markings; vhc, spl, Fletcher, very tame, nice markings, sang to us when taking our notes; hc, Askew, capital size and col., well spotted. STARLING (13): 1, 3, Wildsmith and Hawkins, leader bonny big bird, grand purple and green metallic sheen, all over, well spotted, 3rd also an excellent specimen, hardly as bold as winner, but both fine specimens; 2, R. J. Howe, wee shade smaller, very showy, well spotted, lustrous plumage of green and purple, very forward; 4, Jones, well spotted, very bold bird, fine, snakey head; vhc, hc, Lean and Son, two promising specimens, well spotted, and lustrous; c, Grice, lovely size, and in nice fettle. MAGPIE, CHOUGH, ETC. (7): 1, 2, Maxwell, well-known pair, Chough leading, as usual, wonderful lustrous plumage and rich red bill and legs, wins well, "Mag" also looks very fit, beautiful metallic sheen on flights and tail, clear whites, worth its place; 3, Ewen and Anderson, bonny Jay, fine blue wing markings, lovely rich body col., whites very close, in faultless condition; 4, Bond Bros., good Chough, paler in legs and bill, and smaller than the winner, looks a trifle overworked; vhc, Kilbury Bros., Jay, another neat specimen, but out-classed to-day; hc, Miss Lewis, Chough, very steady, and in excellent trim; c, Boyd, another fine Chough.

Judge: W. Swaysland.

PIED OR RARE FEATHERED (13), a splendid variety class, containing choice specimens, some of which might have gone up but for missing claws: 1, P. Walsh, Silver Starling, very interesting bird, silvery col. and shows spangling well, seemed a bit "queer" first day of show; 2, spl. best lady's bird, Mrs. Croker, almost white Reedbunting, lightly tkd. on body, few dark feathers in flights and tail, in beautiful condition, very rare, must have pressed winner hard; 3, Johnson Bros., White Sparrow, faintly mkd. head and back, and tip of tail, quite tame, unfortunately looking very "soft" when we saw it; 4, Smith, very pretty jonque cinnamon Greenfinch, nice size, perfect feather, fine condition, wants just a little more steadying; vhc, Lamb, an old friend, gone down a peg, sweet little cinnamon Redpoll, bonny little chap; hc, Porri, nice white Sparrow, in topping order, minus a claw or might have stood higher; absent, Lord Decies' "Buff" Blackbird; No. 1902, very nice white Linnet, claimed. HEN, HARDBILL (13): 1, Beaty, Hawfinch, rare size, capital shape, well defined markings, grand col., nicely shown, large bib; 2, Law, Bramble, rare quality and col., and shows well, very steady bird, in perfect plumage; 3, Bald, Greenfinch, typical shape, good quality feather, on the small side; 4, vhc, Mrs. Clark, 4th rich col. Twite, nice size, beautifully polished, very steady, latter bonny Siskin, dense thigh marks, very shapely bird; hc, Goodall, Crossbill, in lovely order and, nicely shown; c, Prior, well-conditioned Hawfinch. NIGHTINGALE OR BLACKCAP (9), well mixed, five Blackcaps, and four 'Gales: 1, Briscoe and Son, topping 'Gale, perfect in feather, full of bloom, good col. back, rich rump and tail, well staged; 2, 4, Puck, both clinking Blackcaps, lovely caps, beautifully polished, steady, and as tight as wax, 2nd trifle the larger, otherwise little to choose, both shown to perfection; 3, Lean and Sons, very steady 'Gale, rich back, smaller than winner, perfect in feather, and in nice condition; vhc, Borman, 'Gale, capital col., in perfect feather, very shapely; hc, Miss Hopwood, Blackcap, fine, silky plumage; c, Mays, another Blackcap, of excellent quality. LARK OR PIPIT (11), Skylarks were well represented, no less than five out of the eleven exhibits being of this species: 1, King, capital, upstanding Skylark, good, broad chest, rich back, nice cl. markings, fine size, shows up crest well, and was singing during judging, we heard; 2, R. J. Howe, Treepiplt, splendidly mkd., warm col. on back, grand size, very steady, full of bloom; 3, Erskine, Shorelark, in rare condition, steady as a rock, fine black markings, but a trifle pale in yell. (cage-moulted); 4, McVay, another large Skylark, good size, paler than winner, will improve, and be steadier after another moult; vhc, Paton, Skylark, fine size and pencillings; hc, Hawes, Shorelark, nicely mkd., but looked "thick and out of condition" when we saw it; c, Lowne, grand Treepiplt, in good feather. INSECTIV., RES., SMALL (8): 1, Mays, magnificent Treecreeper, well defined marks, snow-white throat, rich col. throughout, very tame and quite happy in his baize-lined cage; 2, Frostick, sweet Jenny Wren, looking quite at home in its ivy-clad cage, perfect in feather and condition, this bird was 3rd, we understand, at this show last year; 3, Mrs. Frostick, Lesser Spotted Woodpecker, well shown, in a barklined cage, with rustic perch, a bonny little bird, good cl. markings, and red cap, looked quite at ease; 4, Merrin, rich col. Bearded Tit, nice size, well mkd., very tame, might perhaps be more suitably staged; vhc, Lowne, another grand Bearded Tit, not quite so bright in plumage, but very artistically staged. DITTO MIGRATORY (6): 1, and three spls, beautiful Grasshopper Warbler, grand in markings and col., perfect well polished plumage, credit to its owner to have kept it so well during the winter months; 2, 3, Maxwell, both well-known winners, former his noted champion Black Redstart, grand specimen, in lovely condition, and steady as a rock, latter one of the finest Yellow Wagtails seen in captivity, col.-fed to perfection, both shown in tip-top style; 4, Puck, very choice Greater Whitethroat, very tame, cl. white throat, perfect feather, nicely shown; Lewis and Son, rare two-barred Crossbill an interesting exhibit, unnoticed. A.O.S. INSECTIV. LARGE (8): 1, Maxwell, splendid Great Grey Shrike ("Butcher Bird"), cl. white throat, and nice grey back, well defined eye marks, perfect feather, large bird, well staged; 2, Crockatt, very fine Waxwing, bright wax tips to flights and tail, fine body col., very stylish, stands well; 3, Hoyle, nice red-backed Shrike, bird not often seen on the show bench, perfect feather, lovely col., interesting exhibit; 4, Lawson, nice tame Redwing, well spotted breast, fine red flanks, cl. eye marks, put down in topping order; vhc, Wilson, large Misselthrush, nicely spotted, very steady; hc, Davidson, another good Waxwing, but smaller and not so well col. as 2nd; c, Wade, Misselthrush, in very fine trim. LIMIT CLASS (17), 20/-, FINCH: 1, Todd, really good Hawfinch, fine, big head, rich chestnut cheeks and cap, lovely bib, quickly claimed, a bargain; 2, W. B. Frostick, a hot-coloured Bullie, good ebony cap, grand wing bars, nice and steady, white rump; 3, Prior, fine col. Crossbill, nice size, interesting exhibit; 4, Leech, good Goldie, lovely blaze, well tanned and buttoned, very steady; vhc, Francis, Maxwell, pretty blue Grosbeak, very taking bird; he, Watson, Acland, Bramble and Linnet, respectively, in nice order; c, Kilbury Bros., Belcher, both Hawlinches.

The Foreign Bird Section.

Judge: H. T. Camps, F.Z.S.

BUDGERIGARS, LOVEBIRDS, ETC. (5): The feature of this class was the exquisite colour and condition of Mr. Townsend's Blue-crowned Hanging Parrakeet, certainly the richest coloured specimen ever staged: 1, S. M. Townsend; 2, R. G. P. Nelson; 4, R. J. Watts; all Blue-crowned Hanging Parrakeets, all good and fit specimens, with the first prize winner a long way ahead; 2, F. Howe, Black-cheeked Lovebirds, very tight, good col., very nicely staged. PARRAKEETS, LORIES, ETC. (12): A strong class, containing many uncommon and beautiful exhibits, two of which (the Stella Lory and Mrs. Johnstone's Lorrikeet), made their bow to the public for the first time. All the specimens of these two species up to the present are in the hands of two or three aviculturists; 1, 2, 4, Millsum, Stella Lory (4 sps) Mrs. Johnstone's Lorrikeet and Golden-shouldered Parrakeet, in the order given, the latter in the opinion of some might well have been third; by the time Saturday evening was reached the first two were evidently feeling the weather conditions. A hybrid Parrakeet (which, of course, had to be marked w.c.), was entered in this class as an Adelaide Parrakeet. It is evidently a hybrid between a Pennant and either a Red Rosella or Yellow-rumped Parrakeet: 1, a grand species, clad in glowing crimson and green, with a patch of purple-blue on the crown, very gorgeous; 2, another beautiful species, but not so brilliant, clad in green, scaled with crescentic yell. mkg. on the under surface, and washed with red on the forehead, sides of face and throat; 4, equally beautiful and uncommon, described in a recent issue; 3, Hawkins, Bourke's Parrakeet, an exquisite exhibit of beautiful soft colouring, composed principally of soft browns and pinks; vhc, Baxby, Pennant's Parrakeets, very richly coloured and very tight; he, Bennett, King Parrakeet, fine col. and condition; c, Meadows, Barnard's Parrakeets, beautiful pair, very tight and silken; r, C. Cooper, Rosella Parrakeet. Also exhibited: Swainson's Lorrikeet, Red-rump Parrakeet, elegant Grass Parrakeet (a beautiful exhibit in lovely condition, but we understand has a hind claw missing), very seldom imported, very uncommon exhibit. PARROTS, MACAWS, ETC. (13): 1, Beaty, Hawk-headed Caique, very tame, in perfect condition, not a feather out of order, grand bird all over; 2, Rev. Raynor, Meyer's Parrot, looking as well as ever—it must be at least 12 years old—very tight and silken; 3, Stubbings, very fine blue and yellow Macaw, Mrs. Bury, Grey Parrot, in very excellent feather and well mkd.; vhc, Hawkins, very good Black-headed Caique, nicely shown; he, Smith, grand Eclectus Parrot, a gorgeous exhibit, well shown; c, Miss Bland, very nice Senegal Parrakeet. Mr. L. W. Hawkins exhibited a true pair of grand Eclectus Parrots, hard luck in being cardless.

Judge: F. Finn, F.Z.S.

AVADAVATS, WAXBILLS, ETC. (12): Always an interesting class—there are really many beautiful species among the common (freely imported) species: 1, 2, F. Howe, Diamond Sparrows and St. Helena Waxbills, as given, tight as wax, very beautifully staged; 3, Beaty, well-marked Nutmeg Finches, good third, very pretty; 4, Townsend, exquisite pair of Golden-breasted Waxbills much admired; vhc, Meadows, again Golden-breasted Waxbills, close up to former; he, Miss M. Gibbons, good Diamond Sparrow, very natty; c, Ford and Son, White Javas, very fine size and col. Also exhibited Parson Finches, Grey Java Sparrows, and a pair of Zebra Waxbills, which reared 10 young last breeding season. A.O.S. WAXBILLS, GRASSFINCHES, ETC. (11): A strong class, all the exhibits being in most excellent condition, and some of great beauty. The notabilities, in our opinion, were the tri-coloured Parrot Finches and the Black-cheeked Waxbill; the latter might well have been placed higher some thought. Tri-coloured Parrot Finches were exhibited by Mr. L. W. Hawkins some three or four years ago, and also previously appeared on the show bench, but they only come to hand at rare intervals: 1, he, C. T. Maxwell, Violet-eared and Black-cheeked Waxbill, as given, exquisite colouration, very tight and silken; 2, F. Howe, Melba Finch, very rich in col., in faultless condition; 3, O. Millsum, Tri-coloured Parrot Finches, rare and beautiful, but less attractive in our opinion than the common species; 4, vhc, Dr. Hetley very fine pairs of Bicheno and Gouldian Finches; c, Ford and Son, good Paradise Whydah. Also exhibited good specimens of Painted, Parrot, and Red-beaded Finches. GROSBEAKS, ETC. (8): A small but interesting class, containing a very rare exhibit, viz., the Brown-winged Blue Grosbeak, very similar to the common, all-blue species, save that the wings are ruddy brown. Another species not often seen on the show bench is the Cape Sparrow, also handsome and attractive. It was very hard lines that Mr. Maxwell's fine pair of Painted Finches got into the wrong class; in the preceding class they would certainly have caught the judge's eye: 1, Mrs. E. Galloway, Brown-winged Blue Grosbeaks, a unique exhibit, now making, we believe, their first bow to the British public; 2, Maxwell, Hooded Siskin, very tight, like silk, well shown; 3, Frostick; 4, Arrighi, Cape Sparrow, one of the finest and cleanest marked specimens we have seen; vhc, Botting, White-throated Finches, in finest condition; he, Reed, good Virginian Nightingale. TANAGERS (7): A class of gorgeous beauty, and almost each entry unique. All have been described several times in our pages: 1, Maxwell, Rufous-throated Blue Tanager, exquisite, flawless; 2, Pickles, Black-throated Tanager, marvel of refulgent colouration, beyond description; 3, Harrison, Maroon Tanagers, after several years on the show bench, looking better than ever; 4, Townsend, Magpie Tanager, well-known exhibit, very tight; vhc, Beaty, very fine Tri-colour Tanager; he, Watts, good Archbishop Tanager. SUGAR BIRDS, ETC. (6): Not so numerous as usual, and nothing new, but there was an array of gorgeous plumage. The first and second prize winners must have been difficult indeed to separate; it must have been "touch and go" between the two. Both were simply superlative as regards their respective species. Finer specimens have never been exhibited, and we presume Mr. Harrison's Black-headed Sugar Bird secured premier honours as being slightly the rarer of the two: 1, Harrison, Black-headed Sugar Bird, exquisite bird, glistening like silk; 2, Townsend, Yellow-winged Sugar Bird, flawless, a richer coloured specimen we have never seen; 3, Maxwell, another very fine Black-headed Sugar Bird; 4, Puck, Gold-fronted Green Bulbul, very tight, but not so intense in col. as some we have seen; vhc, Millsum, Black-headed Sugar Bird, well shown. A.O.S. SMALL (8): The classes reserved for "any other species" are always full of interest, for here often are gathered together many novelties and varieties, and very frequently each entry is of a different species. This class was certainly not behind its reputation. Many views were expressed as to the first prize winner and its proper class, some maintaining that it was larger than the King Bird of Paradise (which was scheduled limit), others considering it came just within the limit; at any rate, the judge, it was considered, did quite right in judging the bird on its merits. Some well-known bird should be chosen to define the two classes, so as to make the dividing line between as clear as possible; for example—"A.S. not larger than and including the Brazilian Hanguest"; 1, Beaty, Le Vaillant's Barbet rare and unique exhibit, which has only once previously appeared on the show bench; 2, Maxwell, Great-billed Flycatcher, another unique exhibit, which has much improved as to depth of col. and condition since it made its first appearance at the Horticultural Hall in December last. It is blue on the upper surface and yellow beneath, washed with rufous-orange on the centre of breast and abdomen; 3, Townsend, White-capped Redstart, beautiful and uncommon exhibit, typical Redstart as to demeanour, etc.; 4, vhc, Harrison, Silver-eared Mesias and Blue-winged Siva, in faultless condition; these birds have been in Mr. Harrison's possession, we heard, since about 1902, and certainly look good for many more years yet; he, Lewis, very fine pair of Chinese Painted Quails; c, Miss Lewis, Pekin Robin, grand colour and condition. A.O.S. LARGE (7): A feature of this class was the manner in which the birds and numbers got mixed, and consequently some of the visitors went away under the impression that the Pied Mynah was the Pitta, the Blue-checked Barbet the Orange Hanguest, and vice-versa; such happenings are certainly regrettable. This class was the centre of attraction to the public owing to the Ilunstein's Bird of Paradise, which was deeper in hue, more steady, and displayed itself in many quaint attitudes, occasionally erecting the straw-coloured ruff at the back of its neck and dropping the wings simultaneously. Mr. Townsend exhibited a beautiful Glossy Starling, very similar to the Green, but with the refulgent plumage of a bronzy hue: 1, Millsum, Hunstein's magnificent Bird of Paradise, very tight and silken, much improved since its first bow to the British public; 2, Cushney, Indian Pitta, quite one of the best we have seen, lovely colour and condition; 3, Maxwell, Lanceolated Jay, an interesting exhibit, very steady and tight; 4, Townsend, Bronze Glossy Starling, rare and unique exhibit, in faultless condition; vhc, Cushney, Pied Mynah, well-known species, but seldom seen on the show bench; he, c, Puck, Blue-cheeked Barbet and Orange Hanguest, both interesting and well shown.

Judge: A. Silver.

FOREIGN GOLD OR BULLFINCH (12): 1, Howie, a noted Scottish warrior, winner of many prizes this season and looking very fit indeed, good size, nice bold head, big, rich blaze, fine tan and markings, nice all-round specimen; 2, Hoyle, grand Bullie, very wide, rich-coloured breast, good back and bars, nice bold shapely cap, tight, lustrous plumage, well worth its place, was soon claimed; 3, he, McGurk, two more good Goldies, 3rd a bird of fine type, stylish, very good in col., nice head, expansive, rich blaze, which, however, is inclined to be a trifle coarse; 4, Stamford, another "class" Bullie, rare body and col., lovely condition, good bold head, but the cap runs a trifle narrow at the back; vhc, Hutchison, romping, big, fine-coloured Goldie, not quite so correct in blaze as leaders; c, Arrighi, really beautiful Goldie, grand size, col., and markings, fine blaze, very intense in col., would have made the winner gallop, but had knocked out some tail and flight feathers, wretched luck, Mr. A.

The Cages.

The collection of cages is always of great interest to visitors to the Palace. The fancier can generally find something to note, and the general public like to examine carefully the different styles and sizes used. There was nothing very new or startling among the exhibits this year, the most noticeable being the drying cages, of which there were two, each good in its way. H. W. Battye judged.

SHOW CAGES (27): The majority suitable for Finches and Buntings: 1, 2, vhc, R. A. Newley (Stockwell), beautifully finished Thrush cage, with detachable front, the wires running back an inch or so to allow a better view of the inmate; food and water vessels were placed inside, the one for water being partly covered to prevent splashing; 2nd, very smart, roomy Norwich cage, the perches nicely arranged, beautifully finished in his usual style. Another exhibit of Mr. Newley's was described as a "suggested improved Norwich show cage, the improvement consisting of a reduction of about one and half inches in the height. This reduction has a remarkable effect on the appearance of the cage, but one can hardly express an opinion upon it without seeing a full-sized Norwich inside. The maker is of the opinion it gives the bird a smarter appearance, and seems to enhance its size; 3, Mullins and Co. (Norwich), neatly made cage, suitable for small British or Mules; 4, vhc, he, T. F. Reece (Bristol), several good exhibits, 4, a very light, handy Yorkshire cage; vhc, a cage with a detachable top for the same variety, full size, certainly very useful for training purposes, being taken to pieces and thoroughly cleaned; he, Thrush cage; he, T. Yates, very fine cage, a roomy affair for large Britishers; vhc, c, J. A. Reece (Bristol), fine Thrush cage, and good one for Finches, a beautifully made light and handy cage, shown by Mr. F. Collins (Camborne), was passed by the judges; there was nothing in the class, some thought, better made or better finished. BREEDING CAGES (10): Always a source of interest to visitors. There were no new departures from existing types: 1, Mullins and Co., for cage described as a "Yorkshire Double"; the centre was a fixture, so that one could not use the cage as a flight, and it had neither draw-board nor turn-rail, and in the opinion of some the perches were fixed too high for Yorkshires; 2, vhc, Newley, similar cage with a turn-rail, moving partition and low perches; 3, Neville (Sidcup), folding cage, very useful to fanciers somewhat short of room; the price is not excessive, considering its usefulness; he, Reece, very handy single breeder, with part partitioned off for a nursery, quickly claimed at catalogue price, 5s. A.O.V. CAGE (8): Only a small entry, but very interesting, it contained two drying cages which attracted a good deal of attention: 1, Stelling and Son (Peckham), very fine (brass) Parrot's cage on a stand; 2, A. Wilson (Glasgow), very simple affair, described as a "perfect drying cage, consisting of one box upon another, the lower one containing a lamp and the upper acting as a cage; between these is fixed a sand tray, which when damped keeps air nice and moist; the size exhibited would only be suitable for about one pair; of course, the cage could be made as large as required; 3, vhc, Newley, good and useful 42-in. Mule-breeding cage and stock cage; 4, Mrs. A. E. Reeves, drying cage, simple, and should be effective; a hot-water tank is placed at the bottom, a drying space immediately above it, and when the birds are sufficiently recovered to perch they are placed in the top apartment.

IRVINE, N.B.

Irvine and Dist. O.S. held their first annual grand open show, in the new Drill Hall, East-road, on February 5th. Office bearers: Secretaries, Messrs. Allan Black, jun., and James Borland, jun.; the managing committee includes many of the best-known breeders and fanciers in Ayrshire. The show for a first venture, was certainly a grand success. The Drill Hall is large, and roomy, with plenty of well diffused light. Norwich, Borders, and British birds were a grand lot, many noted champions being staged. Scotch Fancies were not a large class, but the quality all round was quite equal to that of many larger shows we have visited, and the exhibits were well staged. There was a nice class of Borders. The cage bird section was one of the chief attractions. The secretaries, Allan Black, jun. and James Borland, jun. carried out their duties with conspicuous ability, and were ably supported by a hard-working committee. Ex-Provost Borland worked very hard. The cage birds were arranged across the end of the hall, where they got the best of light, and all the exhibits were easy to see, and handle. Immediately the judging was finished, the hall became crowded. Through the columns of CAGE BIRDS, the management desire us to thank all who supported the show with such a grand entry, and hope next year they will be able to exceed the numbers—about 780 entries. The cage birds were judged by Mr. A. Chalmers (Kirkintilloch), whose awards seemed to give satisfaction. Of the management of the show we cannot speak too highly. Irvine fanciers are a warm-hearted lot, and each one had done his utmost to make their first show a signal success.

The Critique.

NANTWICH.

The 49th annual show of the Nantwich fanciers took place on Feb. 4th and 5th, in the Town Hall. This old-established fixture—one of the oldest in the kingdom—is now but a shadow of its former self, so far as the cage bird section is concerned. What fine exhibitions we have seen here in past years: the Norwich classes alone used to make a very good collection. But now, with only one class there are but ten of the chubby ones on view. The same remarks apply to the Yorkshires—just one class which contained half a score. But the "long slim 'uns" were never bred so extensively locally as the Norwich; this neighbourhood used to be quite a stronghold for the latter variety. We advise the society to extend the classification, likewise the prize money, and bring both up-to-date. We see no reason why if the society brings this section to present-day requirements, next year—the Jubilee show—should not be one of the best. Nearly half the classes were unfortunately cancelled, but what remained contained some capital exhibits. Most of the classes saw some well-known winners, and several of them "tacked" another win to their credit. This section, as usual, was nicely staged on the platform, and the exhibits received every attention in the hands of capable and experienced fanciers. Mr. F. Powell again held the secretarial reins, and a better man for the post it would indeed be hard to find, he having everything at his fingers' ends, and he is courteous to everybody. Mr. J. N. Harrison made the awards.

NOR. (10): 1, vhc, Windsor and Sons, uneven Buff, surely mistake, narrow in head and body, long in barrel and tail, and no substance; 2, hc, Victor Williams, unflig. cl. buff, grand shape and quality, deep in chest, nice short tail; 3, r, Crimes, very fine cap-mkd. buff, grand type, rare quality, well cleaned out, Tamworth, Crewe, etc., winner, some thought an easy 1st.; r, wing-tkd. yell., good size and shape, nice head, rare quality. YORKS. (10): 1, hc, Richmond, well-known Cinn. mkd. yell., grand length and shape, very stylish; 2, 3, r, Victor Williams, yell. leading, fine, long stylish bird, will up on legs, good shoulders, neat waist; 3, cl., unflighted buff, splendid shape, style, and quality, Bristol (1909 bred) Cup winner; r, tkd. buff, lovely quality; vhc, Windsor and Sons. CAN. A.O.V.: Cancelled. MULE AV.: Cancelled. LINNET, ETC. (12): 1, hc (2), Robinson, Goldie, nice size and shape, fine width of face, rich blaze, good back and chest col., capital bars; 2, r, Joynson and Davies, Linnet, capital shape, rich, nutty body col., profusion of pencilling on breast, good wings and condition; r, rare good Goldie; 3, vhc, Taviner, bit richer in blaze than 1st, grand moons, good shape and size; vhc, Windsor and Sons. BULLFINCH: Cancelled: A.O.S. BRIT.: 1, 2, 3, Victor Williams, noted Chough leading, grand depth of col. in legs and bill, sound body col., in the best of trim; 2, Waxwing, capital size and shape, lovely wing tippings, followed by grand Magpie, nice size, perfectly cut, very pure in col.; r, Joynson and Davies, nice Hawfinch; vhc, Windsor and Son, Taviner; hc, Sutton. FOR. AND SELL. (12/6): Cancelled. (7/6) (7): 1, 2, vhc, he, Windsor and Sons; 3, Brotherhood; r, Sutton; vhc, Beddington. (5/-) (7): 1, Brotherhood; 2, hc, Sutton; 3, r, Windsor and Sons; vhc, Windsor and Sons.

DOVER AND DIS. P.P.R. AND C.B.S

A very successful members' show was held in the Barton Road Boys' School on Feb. 10th. To help wipe out deficit on last year a fee of 3d. per exhibit going to the society, which resulted in 72 entries, bringing in 18s. to the funds. The following is a list of awards. Mr. G. Sanderson judged.

YORKS. CK. (7): 1, C. Lockett; 2, 3, Austen; 4, vhc, Reeve; hc, c, Rayner. HENS (15): Grand class, not a bad one among them: 1, Reeve; 2, vhc, Rayner; 3, Hendry; 4, Lockett; hc, Abbott; c, Austen. YORKS (1909 (8): 1, Austen; 2, 4, vhc, Leaver; 3, hc, c, Rayner. NOR. (6): 1, 2, 3, 4, Brown; vhc, c, Langley. BRIT. Austen with 27 points.—ABBOTT AND AUSTEN, Hon. Secs.

BANBURY.

This fixture, held on February 1st, had a moderate classification for cage birds, and of these the Britishers were by far the best; in fact, the class made a most beautiful group. The arrangements were excellent, and the secretaries, Messrs. Hazlewood and Nelson, deserve every support in their endeavours to maintain this time-honoured fixture. Mr. T. J. Ambrose judged.

NOR. (7): 1, vhc, Harrison, yell., nice shape and feather, good col.; 2, Bull, buff, nice head and feather, good col.; 3, Edwards, yell., nice shape, beaten only in quality; r, Dale; hc, Lewin. CANARY BREEDERS are invited to send to SPRATT'S for Free Sample Box of Foods and a Book on Cage Bird Rearing.

With the advance of the fancy, the old-fashioned method of rearing on Egg and Bread-crumbs is gone, as well as the waste of time in preparing.

COD LIVER OIL

which contains, in correct proportions, the necessary albuminoids, carbo-hydrates, fats and salts so essential to the building up of a strong and vigorous framework,

AND THE COST IS LESS. PRICES (Post paid): 12-oz. Tin, 9d. 3½-lb. Bag, 1/9; 7-lb. Bag, 3/2.

Here's Evidence!

Mr. J. H. RICHARD writes

"The yellow green Border depicted on the front page has been rather a successful winner on the show bench, as in the season 1908 his wins were as follows: 1st and two medals at Swansea, 1st at Llanelly, 2nd at the Welsh National and Carmarthen, finishing up by coming in 3rd at the Crystal Palace. This season he has been even more successful than last, winning 1st and two medals at Swansea, including the B.F.C.C. medal for best Border in show. 1st L.C.B.A., 2nd at Morriston, 3rd Felinfoel.

"I attribute my success chiefly to belonging to a good society and I may say we have an excellent one at Swansea, a society I should advise everyone to join, especially round here. Another factor in my success has been my mode of feeding, and any fancier who has had bad luck I advise them to try my method, as I had to finish breeding half way last season (a rare complaint, I must admit), as I could not find room for all the young birds. Here is my feed which I used throughout the breeding season: Seeds, the best plain canaryseed I can obtain, take two cups full of Spratt's Cod Liver Oil Food, sprinkling with mawseed, a pinch of each German rape, sugar, and salt, mix all together in a dry state first, then mix it to a crumbly state with boiling water, allowing it to cool before giving it to them. Mind not to give it in a soppy state. Eggs, I never used one last season. In winter I restrict it to every alternate day, allowing them a mixture of maw, gold of pleasure, rape and linseed, which seems to keep them in wonderful health. Any fancier who should give the above diet a trial will, I am sure, find it an excellent one."

Spratt's RED COLOUR FOOD

PRODUCES A RICH AND DEEP COLOUR.

1-lb. Packet, 1/9, Post paid; also in Tins, 8d., 1/3 and 2/10, Post paid. Special quotations for larger quantities. Write for name of nearest Agent and Free Samples of the above Foods

We are not responsible for the statements made in advertisements, nor of the bona-fides of either buyers or sellers In all transactions the adoption of our Deposit System should be insistedupon.

IMPORTANT.

SEND THE FULL COMMISSION.—If the full commission does not accompany the deposit, the vendor will not be notified of its receipt until the amount deficient, plus the extra postage incurred, has been paid to us.

HOW TO REMIT.—Under no circumstances will Cheques or Post-dated Money Orders be accepted as deposits. Uncrossed Postal Orders must be sent and the numbers taken for safety.

RULES.

1.—PROCEDURE.—The intending purchaser should send to this office the amount of the purchase (our deposit fee included), and at the same time he should communicate with the seller, stating what it is he requires sent on approval. We acknowledge receipt of the deposit to both parties. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vendor, and must write same clearly and distinctly.

2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. If a sale has been effected, we hand the amount deposited to the seller. If a sale has not been effected, we return the amount to the depositor. The transaction must be conducted by the parties themselves. We merely hold the deposit.

3.—AMOUNT OF COMMISSION.—The fee is 6d. for each £1, or fraction of £1, and it must be sent at same time as the deposit.

4.—IMPORTANT POINTS.—The depositor must decide within forty-eight hours of the receipt of the goods whether he will keep or return the same, unless, that is, some other period of approval (of which we must be advised) is agreed upon by both parties. The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods. If the goods are not returned within the said forty-eight hours, we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period. And should the seller fail within three days to notify us of the receipt of his goods back again, the transaction will be treated as ended, and the deposit be returned to the depositor.

5.—A SATISFACTORY PURCHASE.—When a transaction has been completed to the satisfaction of both depositor and seller, both parties must at once return the deposit receipts as a guarantee of its completion. The depositor must at the same time instruct us to pay over the deposit to the seller.

6.—GOODS ALREADY SOLD.—If the goods are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or, if for any other reason he declines to do business, he must at once return the deposit note to us. Failing its receipt, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the sender after the expiration of three days.

8.—GOODS IN TRANSIT.—Goods in transit are at the seller's risk, and any damage or loss sustained on the journey must be borne by the seller. But goods not approved of must be properly packed and returned by the same means as were used in sending the same.

9.—PAYMENT OF CARRIAGE.—The payment of carriage must be a matter for arrangement between the vendor and depositor. We do not undertake to settle disputes affecting questions of carriage. But in the absence of other arrangements the purchaser is liable for the carriage of the goods, and if the goods are sent on approval and returned, each party pays the carriage one way.

IMPORTANT NOTE. Two or more Advertisements coming from the same advertiser, even if sent in different names, are reckoned together, and, after the first Sixteen words, are charged at two words a penny, but no single advertisement, even if accompanied by others, will be charged at less than the minimum price, viz., Sixpence.

Headlines or Footlines 6d., 9d., 1/-, 1/6 according to size.

Small prepaid advertisements of a general nature and not connected in any way with the Cage Bird Trade are inserted at the rate of ½d. per word throughout. Minimum 12 words 6d.

Advertisements must in all cases bear the bona fide name and address of the advertiser, and no advertisement will be inserted if addressed to a receiving office, or similar place of call.

Postal Orders must be sent as far as possible. All moneys should be made payable to F. CARL.

The Proprietor reserves the right to refuse any advertisement, or to cancel any advertisement ordered for a series, at any time, without assigning any reason for so doing.

I Want to Impress upon You

the stubborn fact that I possess one of the most remarkable collections of Plainheaded Norwich ever seen, both in quantity and quality. Exhibition specimens, cocks or hens, 10/6, 15/-, 20/- up. State requirements fully and have on approval, that is the only way to be convinced. All are more than good value, but neither talk nor this advertisement will prove it. The merit must be seen and compared according to price.

NOTE FOLLOWING:—

Plainheaded Norwich Cocks.—Clear Yellow, 6/6, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, 30/-, upwards. Clear Buff, 6/-, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, upwards. Ticked or Variegated, 5/6, 6/-, 6/6, 7/6, 10/6,12/6, 15/-, 20/- upwards.

Plainheaded Norwich Hens.—Clear Yellow, 3/6, 4/-, 4/6, 5/-, 7/6, 10/6, 15/-, 20/-, 30/-. Clear Buff, 3/-, 4/-, 5/-, 7/6, 10/6, 15/-, 20/-. Ticked or Variegated, 2/6, 3/6, 4/-, 5/-, 7/6, 10/6, 15/-. Pairs Norwich Plainheads Matched for Breeding, 7/6, 8/6, 9/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, 30/- upwards. Travelling Cages, 3d. extra.

Just compare the above prices with others, to say nothing of quality, but there is no guesswork here; it is not a game of chance, as with some, who, although they give themselves names, only have an idea of the value by the price other dealers charge them. Hence, don't expect the best bird at the highest price; yet all are Best Value—that is my great point. For testimonials see my last week's advertisement on page 128, or call and inspect thousands here.

Various Canaries.

ONLY A FEW EXAMPLES, BUT WORTH NOTICE.

For others see page 128 last week's "C.B."

Live to Supply the World at Large, etc.

3, Saxby Road, Green St. Green, Orpington. Feb. 10th, 1910.—Received birds this morning. I am quite pleased with them. Had I been able to choose them myself, I could not have selected two better for my purpose. I wish you may live long to supply the world at large with birds. Hy. White to W. Rudd.

Sang Most Heartily.

16, Lea Bridge, Clapton, London, N.E. February 9th, 1910.—Received bird, and am very pleased with it. On opening the cage the bird flew on the table and sang most heartily, none the worse for journey. I think I have a great bargain, and now know where to recommend any friend. A. Wooly to W. Rudd.

7/6 Birds Valued at 15/- or 20/-.

7, Gracedieu Road, Waterford. February 12th, 1910.—Last Saturday Sergt. Chambers received two cocks, one Yorkshire and one Norwich. The Norwich was for me, and has given every satisfaction. I was with Sergt. Chambers this afternoon, and he also says he is very well satisfied. The both birds have been very much admired, and I may say there is not their equal in Waterford. All who have seen them have priced them at 15/- to a £1, and hardly believe they were only 7/6. A. H., to W. Rudd.

Worth Double.

Commercial Road, Paddock Wood, Kent. February 9th, 1910,—The Canary arrived safely this morning, and gives me every satisfaction. It is a beauty, worth double the money I paid for it. E. W. R. Hall to W. Rudd.

Oak Villa, Methuen Road, Bexley Heath, Kent. February 10th, 1910,—Cage arrived on 9th, and birds on morning of 10th. I am highly satisfied with both cage and birds. J. Dare to W. Rudd.

Well Pleased With Her.

273 Allison Street, Crosshill, Glasgow. February 9th, 1910.—Received bird quite safe yesterday morning. I am well pleased with her. Many thanks for such prompt attention. T. H. Malcolme to W. Rudd.

Singing Grand.

52, Westfield Road, Smethwick. February 7th, 1910,—I have received Roller all right, and he is singing grand. Thanking you very much for sending me such a bird at the price. C. Collett to W. Rudd.

Good Value.

Down Thomas, near Plymouth. February 7th, 1910. I am glad to say I have received the birds safely, and am well pleased with them. They are good value for the money. F. J. Cole to W. Rudd.

Wish Every Success.

1, Webster Street, Derby. February 12th, 1910,—The birds to hand, and I am very pleased indeed with them. I wish you every success in your business. J. Ross to W. Rudd.

THE LAST WORD IN GENUINE BARGAINS

and offered from the largest collection in the world. Go and inspect all others, I care not where, then come to mine; that will at once set all doubts or speculations on one side, as I can always stand by all I state, and if an appointment is made there will be no excuses "Not at Home," etc.

PLEASE LOOK CAREFULLY THROUGH THESE BARGAIN PRICES:—

My special matched pairs of prize-bred Norwich Plainheads at 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, and 20/-; Crested ditto, 15/-, 20/-, 25/-, and 30/-; Yorkshires, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, and 20/-; Lancashires, 25/-, 30/-, 40/-; Cinnamons, 8/6, 9/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-; Lizards, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-; Border Fancies, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6.

To Beginners.

If you cannot afford a big price, send for a pair of my correctly matched Norwich at 8/6 or 9/6; and now note this.—In most cases where you send for pairs at this price, you are sent two buffs, often both marked birds—this is where you do not get what is required—well, I send you one marked, and one clear, one buff, and the other yellow. Travelling cage 3d. extra. Then for 8/6 I will send you a Double Breeding Cage, fitted with everything complete, for an immediate start. Total for Birds and Cage 12/3 for 8/6 birds, or 13/3 for 9/6 birds. But I would strongly recommend you to have my Cage No. 100; it has sand drawers, and is fitted with sanitary furniture throughout, and the price is only 5/-.

"32, Bassom-road, Darlington.—Bird to hand. I like the song wonderfully well, and thank you for your prompt delivery and attention to my instructions.—H. Hutchison." Send all orders to Varney, Stratford, London.

COMMON SENSE

Will tell you that unless my birds were as represented publicity would do me harm instead of good. It stands to reason that there must be something special about my Leipzig Rollers, otherwise I certainly could not go on selling them year after year like I do. I have repeatedly said in these columns that my Rollers are better and cheaper than any others on the market, and to prove this I ask all intending purchasers to test one against any other sold on similar conditions. I am largest retailer of Rollers in United Kingdom, and on Feb. 3rd alone sent out 73 consignments containing nearly 200 German Canaries. This is a fact that can easily be verified, as I hold signature of Midland Railway Company for these parcels. I now have over 1,000 (one thousand) Leipzig Rollers, all in full song, day and gaslight, with long hollow and double rolls, sweet, silvery trills, water bubble runs, soft roulades, piccolo trills, bell, harp, gong, flute and Nightingale notes, etc., etc., and every one guaranteed free from chipping, chopping, or other harsh notes whatever, price, 7/- and 8/- each; special Bandmaster or Schoolmasters, 10/- each. I also have a grand lot genuine Seifert contest Rollers at 12/6 and 15/- each. These are guaranteed genuine Seifert blood, and excel in the deep bass and hollow bell rolls, etc., and their song is a cascade of ever-flowing melody. I also have 20 pure "Gluck" Rollers, fit to win contests in keenest competition immediately, price 20/-, 25/-, 30/-, and 40/- each. Genuine Glock hens, related to above, 4/- each. I beg to draw attention of connoisseurs to these Gluck Rollers, as they are, without doubt, the finest parcel of birds ever exported from Germany. Leipzig Roller hens, 6/- each, 2 5/-; ordinary loud, free singing Hartz cocks, every bird in full, loud free song, 5/- each, 7 31/6; Hartz hens, 2/- each, 3/6 couple. Special Roller singing cabinets, with folding doors and loose fronts, made especially for my Rollers, 2/6 each; ordinary singing box cages 1/-, 1/3, and 1/6 each. Please note every Canary is sent on a full week's trial at my risk, either on receipt of cash or CAGE BIRDS deposit system, on the distinct understanding that unless birds give you fullest satisfaction, and realise your every expectation, you only have to return it, and back comes the whole of your money, promptly and cheerfully, without question or comment. Read following unsolicited letters, with which I give full name and address, also date, so that sceptics may make any enquiries they think proper:—"Parkfield Gardens, Worcester, Feb. 6. Sir,—Rollers arrived safe and sound, and are doing well. Both cocks started singing same day. Shall be pleased to recommend you as opportunity occurs. Yours, Wm. Hurlston." "Ivy Bush Hotel, Pontardawe, Feb. 6th. Sir,—Pleased to inform you that contest Roller arrived safe, and am highly pleased with same. Yours, Wm. Rapsey." "King-street, Kilkenny, Feb. 5th. Sir,—Bandmaster arrived in splendid condition. I am thoroughly pleased with him; he is an excellent songster, just the bird I wanted. Thanking you for kind and prompt attention. Yours, M. McGrath." "28, Fleet-street, West Keyham, Devonport, Feb. 5th. Sir,—Rollers arrived safe, and I am well pleased with them. You will hear from me again. Yours, W. King." "12, Grange Villa, Co. Durham, Feb. 5th. Sir,—Contest Roller arrived safe, and started singing soon as unpacked, and has sung ever since. He is a beauty. Yours, W. Corker." "17, Nantyhar, Cymmer, Feb. 5th. Sir,—Received Leipzig Roller safe, and am very well pleased with him. He sang as soon as he arrived at station, and was singing all the way home, as my daughter was carrying him. He is best I ever heard, and anyone can come and see him. Yours, J. Matthews." "16, Timothy Row, Cwmbach, Feb. 4th. Sir,—Received birds safe. Thanks for sending such a fine songster, quite pleased with it. Yours, Arthur Williams." "Rose Cottage, Barnam, Perthshire, Feb. 3rd. Sir,—Roller arrived safely in 43 degrees of frost none the worse. He is singing beautifully both day and gaslight. Thanking you for nice bird. Yours, C. Morgan, Postman." "11, Cecil Street, Limerick. Sir,—It is time I thanked you for sending such a really fine Roller. He is a splendid bird, and I must say I never got such value before. He is admired by everyone who sees him. Please send following: Yours G. Maulers." "Windermere, Cargate Avenue, Aldershot, Feb. 2nd. Sir,—I am pleased to say Roller sent is entirely to my satisfaction, and sings nearly all day. Yours, A. Harrington." "Chatham, Feb. 1st. Sir,—Roller arrived safe. I am very pleased with him. I have had a lot of birds, but this one takes the cake. He has been singing ever since he was unpacked. Yours, G. Neve." When you take into consideration the above letters are written by persons, who apart from business transactions, are entire strangers to me, it will at once be seen that my statements are not empty clap-trap, but sound, stubborn facts, and the birds are what I claim for them, absolutely the best on the market. I am sole importer of Hans Webers' Leipzig Rollers. Every cock bird is stamped on wing, "Hans Weber," and no other dealer in England can sell you one feather of this strain unless he first purchases it from me. All birds safely and warmly packed with food for 48 hours, free of extra charge, and sent on seven clear days' trial at my risk, during whole time; cash or deposit system of CAGE BIRDS, whichever you prefer. Kindly note carriage on one to three birds costs 6d. only to any part of kingdom. See British Bird column for further advt.

IT'S TRUE.

If you want birds of good quality you must be sure to place your order with a genuine reliable breeder, trainer, and dealer, who offers you the most advantageous terms. I have so thoroughly studied the requirements of the Fancy, that I can guarantee to give you every satisfaction with high-class birds at reasonable prices. Let me send you the birds you require, carriage paid to your address, at my sole risk, on seven clear days' approval, you will then be convinced that for style and quality, combined with cheapness, I stand unsurpassable. This is easily proved by the thousands of unsolicited testimonials I have from time to time published in this journal, yet those published only represent a few of the many received daily from delighted customers in all parts of the world. The following are a few taken at random from those received this month, and I offer £50 if every one received is not genuine and unsolicited: Torry, Aberdeen, 7/2/10.—I got the bird all right; he is singing well, and is such a beautiful bird.—J. Turvet to Miss Storey. Fair View, Farnham, 7/2/10.—Received birds quite safe in good condition; please accept best thanks for such beautiful birds. They are much better than I expected for money. Shall certainly send to you again.—E. Chandler to Miss Storey. Spike Island, Queenstown, 9/2/10.—Receiver Roller all correct, and am well satisfied with him. Have instructed Editor to forward you amount. He is such a capital songster.—F. Chapman, Sergt. R.G.A., to Miss Storey. 104, Bohemia-rd., St. Leonards, 9/2/10.—Bird arrived safe; we are pleased with him. Thanking you for sending such a beauty.—C. Coleman to Miss Storey. 4, Tying-ter., Llandudno.—Birds arrived safely, very pleased with them, singing grand.—D. Roberts to Miss Storey. Gracious-st., Whitticsca, 11/2/10.—Received Canaries this morning; well satisfied with them; they are very good birds, especially at the price.—J. Negus to Miss Storey. King-st., Ilkeston, 11/2/10.—Received birds in splendid condition; am highly satisfied; much better than anticipated for the money. Thanks for your straightforward dealings.—A. Wheatley to Miss Storey. 10, Linstling-row, Cwmbach, 11/2/10.—Received birds in good health, quite pleased with them; thanks for sending such nice songsters.—A. Williams to Miss Storey. Newlands Farm, Alfreton, 7/2/10.—Bird arrived safe and sound; I am much pleased with it being such a fine bird.—G. Seabridge to Miss Storey. 501, Lordship-lane, Dulwich, S.E., 7/2/10.—Received bird all right; am very pleased with it; I could not wish for a better.—A. Phillips to Miss Storey. Glaspart House, Ffarrfach, 9/2/10.—Bird received from you gives me every satisfaction; he sings first thing in the morning until last thing at night; wishing you every success.—J. Richards to Miss Storey. 17, Harcourt-st., Darlington, 9/2/10.—Bird arrived safe, in perfect condition, and gives every satisfaction; thanks for sending such a nice songster.—J. Rolls to Miss Storey. 22, Nook-st., Frizington, 10/2/10.—Birds arrived safe; I am fully satisfied with your fair treatment.—F. Pidd to Miss Storey. Church Hill, Swanage, 11/2/10.—Received birds quite safe in excellent condition; am very pleased with them.—F. Tatchell to Miss Storey. I could fill the whole of this paper with such letters from delighted customers, but the above samples will convince you that the name Storey stands for quality. The quality of my birds defies competition. Note the following prices. But you must see the quality, it will astound you. Genuine trained St. Andreasberg Rollers, cocks, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6; a few contest songsters, 15/-, 20/-, 25/-; hens, 2/6, 3/6; Hartz Rollers, loud free songsters, cocks, 5/3, 5/9, 6/3, 6/9; matched pairs, 7/6, 8/6, 9/6; Yorkshire cocks, 6/6, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6; Yorkshire hens, 3/6, 4/6, 5/6; matched breeding pairs, 8/6, 9/6, 10/6, 12/6; Norwich cocks and hens or matched pairs same prices as Yorkshires; neat travelling cages, 3d. each extra; full illustrated price list of birds and cages, 1d. for postage. YORKSHIRES.

"FIRST AND SPECIAL BEST IN SHOW."

Read following from "Cattwood Aviaries, Belper, January 31st, 1910. Sir,—Pleased to say buff Yorkshire cock safe to hand. Arrived in splendid condition, and consider him a perfect gem. Followed instructions given in your letter, and pleased to say he was benched in the pink on Saturday, 29th, winning 1st prize and special, special best Canary in show (stood clear out in his class), and am perfectly sure you have given me far better value in this bird than the cash I sent you, and to prove how I appreciate your honourable treatment, shall recommend you to all fanciers I know. G. Elkins to L. Dykes. Another from 12, Sboro Street, Campbeltown, January 25th, 1910,—Just a line to let you know I got the bird all right, and I showed him, and he got 1st here at Campbeltown Open Show. John McLean to L. Dykes.

I hold scores of similar testimonials from present-day winning exhibitors, of winners sold and winners bred from stock birds I supplied them with. Further comment unnecessary, but if you want "show birds" or "stock to breed winners," Dykes' Reliable strain is what you require.

Champion, long, stylish yellow Yorkshire cocks, at 6/-, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/- each; extra good buff cocks, at 5/-, 6/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/- each, all on full song, and for length, style and quality, cannot be beaten at higher prices. Grand racy, tight-feathered hens, yellows, at 4/-, 5/-, 6/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6; buffs at 3/6, 4/6, 6/6, 8/6, 10/6; pairs, properly and carefully matched, to breed own winners, from 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, 25/-, 30/- per pair; in clears, ticked, green-marked, cinnamon-marked, and a few even-marked, colour-fed or natural colour, all guaranteed cold rooms bred and kept. Travelling cages 3d. extra.

Also some champion pairs of cobby Norwich, and large Crests and Crest-bred, at reasonable prices. Easy payments arranged, and birds sent off at once to any bona-fide fancier. All on seven days' approval at my risk, and safe delivery guaranteed any distance. State wants to the old, reliable breeder, exhibitor and judge, with a life's practical experience, who has won considerably over 200 cash prizes (including over 50 1sts), three challenge cups, and numerous specials for best birds, etc., etc., during the present season, at all leading shows (see reports), who breeds his own winners, and can therefore give you the best satisfaction. Inspection invited at any time; new season's price list post free on receipt of post card.

including gold medal, £3 cup (won outright), etc. This record was obtained by Miss Niall at this year's Christchurch and Ashburton shows, with a combined entry of 16 birds only. Miss N——, forwarding me catalogues for reference, writes: "All these exhibits were bred from your stock, or supplied by you direct." Such testimony of inherent quality for show and stock far outweighs references to own winners kept for own exhibition uses rather than for sale. Not being a regular exhibitor all birds I possess (except own breeders) are for absolute and immediate sale. Personally selected and unrelated pairs. 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/- upwards; single birds proportionately; few exhibition specimens, 26/- upwards. 250 specimens in all Yorkshire varieties now ready and fit. All cold-room bred, reared, and kept. All on approval, cash or deposit. Full season's price list sent on receipt of stamp for reply: Jonas Knight (30 years breeder of Yorkshires only), Allerton, Bradford, Yorkshire.

THE MARKED YORKSHIRE KINGS,

Having again won the Cinnamon Marked Y.C.C. competition, making it the fourth time in succession, also National Green Marked Y.C.C. 10-guineas trophy, now that the show season is over we are compelled to part with some of the above winners, as it is impossible for us to breed with them all, as we have over 40 first prize winners in the keenest competition. Now is the chance to get the best living at reasonable prices. Please note, these are all our own breeding with the exception of one, so buy direct from the breeder. It is acknowledged that our strain throughout the British Isles produce winners yearly. During the last four years we have won more competitions than all other Yorkshire fanciers put together, including the highest honours at Crystal Palace; also, we won more 1st at Jubilee Crystal Palace Show than any other exhibitor, including champion diploma for best bird. Another victory at Crystal Palace, 1910, 2 firsts, 3 thirds, and fourth. Those who want to be successful on the show bench, try our properly-matched pair from 15/-, guaranteed to breed winners. All birds sent on approval. Deposit with Editor. Stamp for particulars: Ogden Bros., Dudley Hill, Bradford.

GEO. & ALBERT BROWN

LONDON'S PREMIER BIRD SELLERS.

Have sold during past twelve days 68 cocks and 84 hens, and no wholesale; every one retail. Offers this week typical Yorkshire cocks, buffs, 7/6; yellow, 8/6; variegated, 8/6; long, racy birds, in acme of condition; hens, in perfect trim, 3/-, 4/-, 5/- each. All birds are guaranteed their sex and health. Do not be misled with the cheap, narrow-bodied, Dutch birds being sold at below the original bird's price; our advice to intending purchasers is, pay the price and save being disappointed.

69, & 71, SCLATER ST., BETHNAL GREEN RD, LONDON, E.

SHACKLETON'S YORKSHIRES.

I have some real clinkers still for sale, either for show or stock, absolutely the best value in the Fancy. See reports leading shows; stamp for particulars.—Melrose House, Lytton-rd., Bradford.

STRATFORD AND E. LONDON F.S. AND ILFORD F. AND F.S.

The members of these societies, the former of which is the premier London Society, had a gala night on Feb. 10, at the Workmen's Hall, Romford Road, Stratford, where there was a record gathering from all parts on the occasion of the distribution of the challenge cups, rose bowls, silver medals, prize money, and some 60 specials to the successful exhibitors at the recent combined show. The presentation was made by Mr. J. Smith, who is chairman of both societies. The large club-room in which the gathering took place looked like a veritable silversmith's establishment, the large collection of challenge cups and bowls (10 in number), medals, etc., being on view. The chairman, after apologising for the absence of the president, Mr. T. H. Harrison, and congratulating the members upon the successful result of the recent experiment of a combined show, called upon the secretary, Mr. W. Maxey, the veteran mouse fancier, to report the financial result, which (as is not always the case) proved to be a most satisfactory one. Members of the Stratford Society are reminded that the annual meeting will be held at headquarters on 24th February, at 8 p.m.—W. Maxey, hon. sec.

ULSTER O.A,

Annual meeting held in Clarence-place Hall on February 4th, Mr. Bamford (the president) in the chair. The balance-sheet, on the proposition of Mr. Barclay, seconded by Mr. Cumming, was adopted as read. As the funds in hands and at bank are not as large as is desirable. After some discussion and suggestions it was decided to hold a ballot this year on much the same lines as the last held some ten or twelve years ago. The details are to be gone into by the committee at a special meeting. All present promised a singing bird and cage. The election of office-bearers for 1910 resulted as follows:—President, Mr. Bawford; secretary and treasurer, Robert Trimble; committee, Messrs. Neill, Ronaldson, Carson, Coates, Teasey, Gray, Barclay, Connell, Stewart, Cumming, Fleming, and Lavery; trustees, Messrs. Connell and Cummings; auditors, Messrs. Barclay and Coates. The names of suitable judges were also adopted and placed in order of votes. Mr. Barclay suggested that we have a specialist judge for Mules and British birds this year, and offered to pay half fee. Two other members also offered to subscribe. Those present considered the offer very fair, and it was agreed unanimously to have a specialist judge for the British and Mule sections, and it is hoped fanciers will give us a bumper entry. It was decided to have our show on the usual date, viz., the first Friday and Saturday in December, and all present felt that it would be one of the best ever held by the association.—Robert Trimble, Sec.

FORFAR AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

Annual general meeting held on 15th Jan., in the Granite Bar, Castle Street, Mr. J. Stevenson (pres.) in the chair. The balance sheet showed a balance in hand of £11 18s. 2d., which was considered very satisfactory, and promised well for the future success of the society. The following were elected for 1910: Patrons, Earl of Strathmore, Mrs. Gray, Miss Lawson, Admiral Drummond, Col. Cardyne, Capt. Cheape, J. B. Don, Esq.; hon. president, Mr. J. Scott; hon. vice-presidents, Provost Moffat, D. Johnston, G. Middleton, W. Ferguson, A. McKay, J. Aberdein; pres., Mr. J. Bowman; vice-pres., Mr. J. Stevenson; sec. and treas., W. Grewar, 20, North Street; auditors, Messrs. J. Stevenson, and D. Lawson; committee, Messrs. G. Shepherd, G. Nicoll, J. Campbell, J. Fyfe, James Grewar, John Grewar, P. Taylor, W. Brown, C. Kennedy, J. Laird, D. Kydd, P. Falconer, and H. Bowman. It was agreed to hold an open show this year. Mr. J. Bowman offered a cup for competition; the announcement was received with the greatest enthusiasm, and Mr. Bowman was heartily thanked. A large and enthusiastic meeting was brought to a close with a vote of thanks to the retiring pres. and the new pres.—Ordinary monthly meeting was held on Feb. 5th, in the Granite Bar, Mr. J. Bowman (pres.), in the chair. It was agreed to hold our open show on 22nd October; the classification and judges were left over meantime. Messrs. Bowman and W. Grewar offered to guarantee two classes for Greens; which was accepted. We intend to offer a liberal classification, good prize money, and a host of valuable specials. We hope fanciers will remember us, and they can rest assured we on our part will do our utmost to give satisfaction.—W. Grewar, sec and treas.

CODNOR PARK AND DIS. C.B.S.

Third meeting held on February 12th at headquarters, Portland Arms, when it was arranged to hold a stock pair show of Canaries. Mule and Hy. d pairs on February 26th, 1910. The show will open to visitors from 8 p.m., free.—J. H. Mitchell, Hon. Sec.

LEIGH AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

Fifth annual party held on Feb. 5th, at headquarters, Railway Hotel, when a large number of fanciers sat down to a good knife-and-fork tea provided by Mrs. Lawson. After tea Mr. P .Hart (hon. sec.), took the chair. Mr. J. W. Cleminson (Preston) gave a grand lecture on his experiences with the Norwich, which was greatly enjoyed. He put everything so plainly that some of our friends who were not fanciers joined the society afterwards. After the lecture a very enjoyable musical evening was spent.

CINNAMON-MARKED YORKS. C.C.

Committee meeting held on January 15th, in the Church Schools, Great Horton, Mr. J. Hartley (vice-president) in the chair. It was decided to join with the other specialists clubs and the Yorkshire Union in having a united social and prize distribution in March, the following sub-committee being appointed: Messrs. Ogden, Chittenden, Towers, and Garnett. A number of subscriptions being still unpaid, the secretaries will be pleased if the members will forward same at their earliest convenience, so as to enable them to get the accounts into shape for the annual general meeting. The following are the winners of the various competitions subject to corrections:—Open Competition: 1st, Ogden Bros., 183 points; 2nd, H. H. Towers, 174; 3rd, A. Cooper, 167; 4th, A. Jowett, 95. Cage Birds Competition: 1st, T. Bentley, 79; 2nd, P. Drake and Son, 39; 3rd, A. Wright and Son, 13. Novice Competition: 1st, W. Richmond (Harrogate), 121; 2nd, E. Clegg, 87; 3rd, F. Gelder, 62; 4th, S. B. Grayshon, 55; 5th, E. Grange, 32.—Garnett and Towers, Hon. Secs.

YORKSHIRE PRIZE DISTRIBUTION COMMITTEE.

The above-named committee met on February 12th at the Market Tavern, Mr. D. Sunderland occupying the chair. Final arrangements were made for the great prize distribution on March 5th, which promises to be a splendid success, and the committee are desirous that all who can possibly do so, will be present at the dinner in order to give our guests on this occasion a right royal Yorkshire welcome. I might just mention, for the benefit of those who do not already know, that the dinner will be held at the Market Tavern on March 5th, at four o'clock, price 1s. 6d. per head. All desirous of attending should notify the secretary to that effect, not later than February 26th to avoid disappointment. A sub-committee was appointed to arrange the programme for the social, consisting of Messrs. D. Sunderland, J. Greaves, and H. Hill. The toast list was arranged, and a resolution passed, that the secretaries of each specialist society meet at 2.30 to unpack and arrange the prizes. All the artistes who were approved of at the last meeting have accepted the invitation, and the musical portion of the evening, with such talent behind it, will be a treat. Yorkshiremen, don't forget the date of this event.—H. Hill, Sec., 15, Settle-terrace, Thornton-lane, Bradford.

YORKSHIRE UNION OF C.B.S.

The Council met on February 12th, at the Market Tavern, Bradford, Mr. R. Halliday (president) in the chair. A very important item of business was considered, arising out of certain accusations brought by Messrs. H. Kaye and F. Firth before the last Council meeting, before whom they had been brought for borrowing and lending birds. The evidence of the men who were implicated in the charges was taken separately, and after an investigation which lasted over three hours, the Council returned the following verdict: "That the accusations made against Messrs. A. Radley, J. Helliwell, Hobson Lodge, Harry Lodge, A. Kilner, L. Dyson, W. Wadsworth, A, Haigh, and M. Peel, all of Skelmanthorpe (Huddersfield), could not be substantiated by the accusers, in the evidence placed before the Council, and that these gentlemen be exonerated from all blame." The cases of the Messrs. H. Kaye and F. Firth and also of Mr. S. Jenkinson (who admitted having lent and borrowed birds for exhibition purposes) were taken separately, and the following sentences were passed by the Council: F. Firth and S. Jenkinson to be suspended sine die during the pleasure of the Council, and H. Kaye to be expelled from the Union. The secretary was also instructed to inform the secretaries of the London Federation of C.B.S. and the Cage Bird Union with regard to the Council's suspension of these men from further exhibiting. Mr. F. Firth having tied for the 12th novice gold medal, it was proposed to award the medal to Mr. S. Haigh. The new rules, alterations, and additions, were submitted to the Council, prior to their being printed on the ballot papers; these will be sent out by post during the course of the next fortnight, and it is hoped societies will discuss them before they are returned to the scrutineers, thereby stimulating interest in the annual ballot, and ensuring a better return of voting papers than has hitherto been the case. I should esteem it a favour if all members who have changed their address, and not notified me to that effect, will do so at once to ensure their getting the ballot papers. Several items of new business were thoroughly discussed by the Council, and these will no doubt be beneficial to members. The printing of the ballot papers was given to Mr. L. Hodgson (Bradford). I should like to draw the attention of all advertisers in the Union's Handbook, who have not yet paid for their advertisements, that the financial year of the Union is nearing its end, and I shall be pleased to receive same at their earliest convenience.—H. Hill, Secretary, 15, Settle Terrace, Thornton Lane, Bradford.

REVIEW OF SCHEDULE.

ROUND THE STALLS AT THE PALACE SHOW.

The pagoda-like stall of Messrs. Jas. Carter and Co. (the King's seedsmen, High Holborn, London, W.C.) is a well-known sight to visitors to the Crystal Palace show—one of the first things to meet the eye, in fact, as you enter the showroom. And there are few visitors who miss inspecting the feast of seeds which "Good Old Carter" spreads for them. The reputation for quality which this firm enjoys is world-wide, and the exhibits afford fanciers an object lesson as to what the best of seeds should look like—a lesson which naturally they are not slow to take. This year Messrs. Carter had on view particularly choice samples of Spanish Canary, summer rape, and hemp seeds, and were kept busy booking orders for these and their other specialities, including their celebrated grit sand, and teazle, maw, niger, and other seeds. Carter's packet foods, too, were in great demand, for they are made up to meet the fanciers' requirements. These goods, and Carter's packet Parrot food (a fine blend), can be obtained at all seed stores. For upwards of 20 years Messrs. Carter have supplied the seeds for feeding the exhibits at the Palace show. Their reputation for reliable flower and vegetable seeds, too, is equalled by very few firms in the world, and certainly excelled by none.

Messrs. Fox and Lewis, Ltd., Granville House, Arundel Street, Strand, London, W.C., who have recently come right into the front rank as a firm which supplies seeds and foods of the very choicest character, had a most striking exhibit near the main entrance. Their stands were distinguished by the many convenient packet mixtures (such as Canary, Linnet, Finch, etc.), put up ready for immediate use—mixtures which inspection showed were obviously compounded by those who knew precisely the kind of seed-blends that different birds require, a point in which packet foods do not always shine. Thus Fox and Lewis' special mixtures have acquired a big vogue amongst bird-keepers who desire to feed their pets correctly and at the same time avoid the trouble and time which are taken up by the mixing of the various seeds at home. The loose seeds (in bulk), of which Messrs. Fox and Lewis had a really splendid display, also attracted a great deal of attention. Their best Spanish Canary seed is "great" in every sense of the word, and the hemp, teazle, summer rape, niger, sunflower, maw, etc., hard to equal, while distinguishing features were their uniformly well-ripened character and absolute freedom from dust. This firm also supplies a high-grade Parrot mixture, ants' eggs, thistle, dandelion, and similar seeds, bird medicines, etc. Their egg and biscuit food will be well-known to our readers. Messrs. Fox and Lewis have had a tremendous run upon this indispensable article, and it has undoubtedly "come to stay." It is now known as "Eggbiskt," and is being put up in two strengths—50 per cent. egg and the same of biscuit, for rearing the young birds during the first week of existence, and 25 per cent. egg to 75 per cent. of biscuit, for use afterwards, and upon all other occasions when an egg-food is needed. The 25 per cent. strength is sold at half the price of the 50 per cent. strength, and the innovation is being greatly appreciated. Messrs. Fox and Lewis experienced an exceedingly brisk time.

The stall of Messrs. Hyde and Co., Ltd. (Lilford Road, Camberwell, S.E.), was very pleasingly set out with the firm's noted specialities, chief amongst these being the packet foods, which have achieved such world-wide fame and made the name "Hyde" known to practically everyone who keeps a pet bird. Their "aesthetic seed mixture" has a reputation of long years' standing as a splendid food for domestic songsters, one that will keep them in health and song the year round, if now and again varied with a little of Hyde's noted "Hartz Mountain Bread" and a sprig or two of green food, with, of course, a regular supply of their "Iron Tonic Grit." Messrs. Hydes also put up a special "Canary Mixture" (free from hemp), and many useful and tried bird medicines, notably their "Lung Drops" (for colds, etc.), and "Tonic Syrup." Other specialities which have met with every success are the "Finch Seed Mixture," "Parrot Food," and "Lark Food," the latter being just the thing to feed Larks, Thrushes and Blackbirds well and economically. All Messrs. Hyde's goods are of the finest quality only, scrupulously clean, and prepared by those who have an intimate knowledge of bird-keeping and the requirements of birds.

The palm for the prettiest and most attention-arresting exhibit in the whole of the trade section must certainly go to the "H.D.S." Syndicate, Ltd., 42, Poultry, London, E.C., for the display which so effectively placed their "Ever-ready Movable Cage Bracket" before the bird-keeping public. It was well conceived from the advertising point of view, and most artistically carried out. The main feature was a representation of a window, and to this one of the "Ever-ready" brackets was attached, with a brass cage suspended from it. The bracket itself is one of those splendidly simple ideas which make us all wonder why on earth we ourselves never thought of it. Moreover, it is so useful and effective that everyone who sees it must needs buy it. Needless to say, the "Ever-ready" sold like the proverbial "hot cakes." By means of this ingenious appliance a cage can be hung at a window without the slightest trouble, and the bird will be entirely out of draughts; then at night (or, of course, any time desired) bracket and cage can be removed in an instant and be refixed at another spot—against a wall, for instance. How this is accomplished readers should find out by ordering an "Ever-ready" bracket; which is an immense advance on the old-fashioned nails and chains, and very cheap (10d. post free) and handsome in appearance.

At the stall of Liverine, Ltd. (Grimsby), very brisk business was the order of the day, Mr. Hendric King, who so capably superintended, being kept continually on the move showing and explaining various goods his firm had on view. And a really splendid display it was that this noted North of England firm put before us. That the requirements of the fancier and his birds are well understood and properly catered for by Messrs. Liverine, Ltd., was convincingly established by an inspection of their stall. Their noted "sing-song" mixture for Canaries, etc., is a most suitable blend of choice, thoroughly screened seeds, one that can be used with every confidence to attain the maximum of health and song. Another exceptionally good line is "Griterine," one of the finest coverings for the cage floor that we have seen, besides containing every element to help the bird grind up its food in the crop, and thus assimilate it perfectly. "Griterine" is truly a health-giving article. Messrs. Liverine also put up a "home-made food" suitable for Larks, Thrushes, Blackbirds, etc., and we heard many favourable comments passed upon it. It is very cheap, though every ingredient is of the finest quality. Egg-bread and egg-flake (made from English farmyard eggs), Parrot food and grit, Parrot tonic, Bean-plume (a grand cleanser for washing birds), Bird Tonic (for asthma, loss of voice, etc.), ants' eggs, dried flies, etc., are a few more of the specialities which, by reason of their excellence, have brought the name of Liverine so prominently before the Fancy.

Inside the show-room, adjacent to the annexe in which were the Roller Canaries, Mr. C. Roehl (400, Edgware-road, London, W.), had a most attractive and complete stand of all the cages (breeding, stock, song, show, etc.) and special goods required by the Roller Canary enthusiasts. He was doing a very brisk business and also found a ready demand for the sweet-voiced Rollers, which are a speciality of his, whether for contests or for home pets, and of which a large number were displayed on the stall, adding greatly to the charm of the show by their brilliant vocalisation. All Mr. Roehl's goods are of the very best quality, and some of the special cages and appliances he had on view are wonderfully ingenious, and quite indispensable to the Roller fancier who desires to succeed in his particular branch of the hobby. Mr. Roehl informed us that he had distributed quite a record number of his special illustrated catalogues, but no doubt he has still a few left should any reader desire one and apply to him for it.

An extremely tasteful display of picture postcards, photographs of the judges, the show, etc., was made by Messrs. Russell and Co. (The Studios, Crystal Palace, London, S.E.), and many were the visitors who carried away mementos of their visit from this stall. Any fancier or reader who failed to secure a picture postcard commemorative of this year's exhibition, can have one on sending three 1d. stamps to Messrs. Russell; or a selection (judges, etc.) at 2d. each card.

A huge stall, containing a magnificent display of cages and general bird-room requisites, was that of Mr. R. A. Newley (24, Stockwell Green, London, S.W.). It attracted a great deal of attention from fanciers and visitors generally, and Mr. Newley informed us that he had had a highly successful time—he believed his orders would prove to exceed by a good round sum the business done at last year's Jubilee Show, which up to now had been his record. He also remarked upon the large number of orders he had received from titled and other distinguished personages, a large number of whom paid a visit to the Palace while the show was in progress. Mr. Newley's goods, however, are of such high quality and finish, and so thoroughly practical, that they never fail to "catch the bird-keeper's eye," who knows a good thing when he sees it as well as anybody. Mr. N. is not content to "mark time." Every year he give us some improvement in his cages, and these are always improvements of value, showing that they are the work of one who is a practical bird-keeper as well as a cage-maker—one who knows precisely what the fancier wants and will appreciate. Hence the interest Mr. Newley's exhibits always arouse, and the big business they lead to. His Canary breeding cage models for 1910 sold "like wild-fire" at 4s. 6d. single pattern, 8s. 6d. double, and 15s. 6d. three-compartment; these are of the highest class, enamelled and completely fitted. Mr. N.'s special muling cage, with a compartment for running the Finch into, and his Finch, Nightingale, Thrush, etc., stock cages were other leading lines. For style and finish all Mr. Newley's goods would be difficult to beat, and they brought him a gold, two silver, and a bronze medal in the show.

Mr. J. W. Ramsden (11, Josephine Avenue, Brixton, S.W.) had on view samples of his world-renowned peppers for the 1910 season, and naturally, in view of the importance of colour in show birds, these were closely inspected by breeders and exhibitors. The general verdict was that this year "R.P." would stand even higher in favour than ever before, if this be possible. Certainly it has never been our lot to inspect a better sample of sweet (tasteless) pepper than that Mr. Ramsden has obtained for the coming season. It is beautifully ground, while its colour is simply marvellous; further, it is, as before, guaranteed absolutely pure and free from all adulterants. It should command a record sale. Mr. Ramsden's hot (Natal) pepper is also a sample of the highest possible quality and colour, and will of a surety stand high in the estimation of those who consider it advisable to blend their sweet pepper with a little of the hot variety.

New-comers to the Palace Show were Messrs. Spillers and Bakers, Ltd. (Cardiff), and their stall made a highly favourable impression, being both tastefully arranged and packed with goods calculated to forcibly appeal to keepers of birds. The attendants in charge (including that well-known London fancier, Mr. E. S. Lugg) had a very busy time explaining the many merits of their firm's specialities, and good business was the result. This firm means to capture the fanciers' trade, if at all possible, by offering mixtures specially put up for the various breeds Their Roller Canary seed mixture is an example of how they propose doing it. It is a grand mixture, and at 3d. the packet should meet with high favour Their wild seed (in packets) is also very good, and other first-class specialities are their Foreign bird, Canary, Finch, Linnet, and Parrot mixtures, Thrush food, Magpie food, Dove food, grit, sand, etc., while they have an "exterminator" for red mite and grey lice which is highly recommended.

Those old and tried servants of the fancier and the Fancy, Messrs. Trower and Company (442, Caledonian-road, London, N.), had a wonderful stand of seeds and foods opposite the main entrance to the show enclosure—a stand which was literally besieged by the visitors, especially on the Saturday, when a large staff of attendants was busily employed from morning to night. Mr. Trower, in a few minutes' conversation we managed to snatch with him, expressed the opinion that all records had been easily left in the rear so far as actual business transactions were concerned—his order book certainly bore a remarkably prosperous look. Messrs. Trowers' goods have been known to the Fancy for many long years, and their reputation is of the highest, while it is always the endeavour of this firm to lessen the labour of the fancier by supplying seed mixtures and foods exactly suited to the needs of the birds he keeps, in just the form and quantities, in fact, that he would mix them in his own house. Messrs. Trower know exactly what the different species of birds, be they Hardbills or Softbills, British or Foreign, require. Their various seed mixtures have a remarkable sale, while "Cecto" has become a household word with keepers of delicate Softbills. A new Lark Food has just been put on the market—a fine recipe. Their "Egg-bisko" is going very strong as an admirable substitute for home-made egg and biscuit; their Finch "Tit-bits" also have a very wide sale. Messrs. Trower had on view a splendid lot of seeds in the bulk, all thoroughly ripened and remarkable for their absolute freedom from dust. The "giant" Spanish Canary was especially good. An astonishing assortment of egg-pans, nest-pans, and other white earthenware goods, completed a display of which Messrs. Trowers had every reason to be proud.

"Cage Bird Hybrids."

READY ON OR ABOUT APRIL 9th.

I have for some considerable time past had under preparation on a scale of unprecedented beauty and completeness the two works named as above. Nothing to equal them can be or will be given to the public at the same price. To instance the thoroughness with which these books have been designed, there will be no less than 16 separate and distinct plates of Mules and Hybrids, and 36 separate and distinct plates of Canaries. No pains or expense will be spared to secure the maximum of result at the minimum of expense to the purchaser.

F. CARL,

154, FLEET STREET, LONDON, E.C.

Mr. P. H. Harris (London, W.C.) desires me to inform you that he has purchased the well-known winning Linnet lately shown under the name of Hopkins and Allsopp, writes Mr. E. Allsopp (Swindon).

Kindly note my change of address from Old Barge House Wharf to Lower King and Queen Wharf, Rotherhithe, London, S.E., writes Mr. H. E. Tringham.

My cinnamon marked yellow, second prize at the Crystal Palace, won for me at the Jubilee Palace Show last year. I am very pleased to have been able to beat it this year with my unsighted yellow.—H. H. Towers (Keighley).

The Cardiff and Dis. C.B.S. annual members' show takes place at Naish's Royal Stores, The Hayes, Cardiff, on February 23rd. Twenty-eight classes are provided, and the judges are Messrs. F. D. Jones, E. J. Banks, and H. G. Ford.

At the last meeting of the Hull Cage Bird Society, writes Mr. Ernest R. Ridley, the hon. secretary, it was unanimously decided to leave the Cage Bird Union, and to run our next open show (fixed November 18th and 19th), without their rules.

Fanciers desiring to join this progressive club, writes Mr. J. H. Willows, hon. secretary of the Midland Roller Canary Club, should send in their names at once, so that they can be included in this year's list of members in the rule-book.

Messrs. W. Mundell (Bradford) and F. Marwood (Thornaby) have been engaged to judge the Canary and British bird sections respectively at our annual open show on October 15th, writes Mr. R. S. Black, hon. secretary, Darlington C. and B.B.F.A.

The Luton Cage Bird Society have decided to extend their radius 20 miles, so I shall be pleased to enrol members; 2s. 6d. There are nine valuable cups in competition. For further information will fanciers please apply to me?—E. Cherry, secretary, 4, Peel Street, Luton.

I must really thank you for the splendid drawing your artist, Mr. Norman, has made of my Border Fancy buff cock bird, 1st at the Crystal Palace. It is correct type and very life-like, and reflects great credit on him. I wish Cage Birds every success.—Wm. Mossie (Annbank Station).

The British Bird Show of the Rochdale O.C. will be held this Saturday, February 19th, when there will be a splendid show of British birds, writes Mr. J. Butterworth, the secretary. We shall be pleased to see old and new fanciers. We have a very grand club room, where good old Cage Birds is taken.

Kindly inform our numerous customers and the readers of Cage Birds (to which we owe all our advertising success), that our address is now 2, Orchard Terrace, George Lane, South Woodford, Essex, where we hope to be favoured with their continued patronage.—The Wholesale Canary Co. (Leyton, N.E.).

May I call special attention to our fixture for April 5th, writes Mr. W. Hodson, hon. secretary, Dulwich and Peckham C.B.S., when Mr. Silver will lecture on the "Protection of British Birdkeepers"? In view of the law case now pending, this should prove of special interest to all lovers and keepers of British birds. We give them all a hearty welcome to this meeting, and we trust they will turn up in full force and, incidentally, help to swell the fund Cage Birds is raising to fight the case.

I have taken over the secretaryship of the Macclesfield and Dis. C.B.S., and all communications respecting the business of the society should be addressed to me, at 23, Garden Street, Macclesfield. And I desire it to be known to readers of Cage Birds that we have now no radius, but an open membership, the subscription for same being 4s. per annum.—H. Wallworth, hon. secretary.

We have paid out all prize money, although we had a loss of about £27 on our last show, writes Messrs. McLucas and James, hon. secretaries, Pontypridd, Pwllgwaun and District F. and F.S. Several matters no doubt accounted for this. We advertised very extensively last year, paid about £11 for judges, and there were a few large shows on the same date as ours. These matters we put down as the chief causes of our loss, and we also considerably extended our classification. In one case, however, the letter containing the prize money was returned, and we could not find the right address, viz., Mr. Sanders (Bristol); no doubt he will apply later. We hope to run another show this year, when we expect to have more success. Please note our change of address to 16, Margaret Street, Hopkinstown, Pontypridd. We wish to return thanks to those exhibitors who kindly sent back a donation towards reducing our deficiency.

OBITUARY.

Mr. J. HOPKINS (Swindon).

It is with deep regret, writes Mr. E. Allsopp (Cardiff), I inform you of the death of my friend and partner, Mr. J. Hopkins, of Swindon, on February 4th, after three weeks of painful illness. For 30 years Mr. Hopkins has been closely associated with the cage-bird Fancy, and he faithfully represented that class of fancier who, by dogged determination, helped to make the Fancy what it is to-day. In his early days, when residing in Lancashire, Scotch Fancies and Cinnamons claimed his attention. Soon after his removal to Swindon, now some 20 years since, Crests were the favoured variety, and with these he enjoyed considerable success. Of late years, however, he had been patiently engaged in building up a strain of Sibs., and by the number of variegated Mules bred each year there can be no doubt that his long experience was serving him well. If Mr. Hopkins had a weakness for any particular kind of bird, it was the Goldfinch, of which species he always had a choice collection. He not only was a keen judge of Goldfinches, but well knew how to cater for them. Always of a quiet, unobtrusive character, he nevertheless was one of those strong and lasting pillars which the Fancy can ill spare. By his sterling qualities he had risen to the high position of a foreman in the locomotive works, and had earned the respect of both his masters and men, a hundred of whom followed him to his last resting place. A sorrowing wife and grown-up family are left to mourn a kind and loving husband and father.

Mr. J. G. MOAKES (South Normanton).

It is with the deepest regret, writes Mr. J. Driver (South Normanton), that I have to inform you of the death of one of our esteemed fanciers in the person of Mr. J. G. Moakes, of South Normanton, Alfreton, who passed away on February 15th from consumption, at the age of 32 years. He leaves a widow and three little children.

Mr. A. THORPE (Harrogate).

It is with deep regret, writes Mr. George Henry Barnwell, hon. secretary, Harrogate C.B.S., that I have to mention that we have lost one of our most respected members—Mr. Arthur Thorpe, at the early age of 32. He was of a most kind and genial disposition, and a man who possessed a real genuine fancier spirit. His Fancy was the Yorkshire Canary, and he officiated as judge on one or two occasions at our members' shows, at which he gave every satisfaction. He was laid to rest on February 12th, and was followed to the cemetery by members of the society, who also sent a beautiful floral tribute. He was very highly respected by his fellow men, who turned up in a good number to pay their last respects to their dear friend.

Members are particularly requested to let secretary have their entry forms in early for the show of British birds, Canary and Hybrid pairs, to be held on February 24th, at "Earl of Wakefield," Katherine Road, East Ham, writes Mr. H. Rutter, hon. secretary of the East Ham F.S. All exhibits must be staged by 8 p.m. sharp. A silver spoon will be given for best pair, and a silver spoon for best British. On March 1st, Mr. C. W. Mead will at headquarters show members "how to make a cage," and it is hoped there will be a good muster of members. The cage will be sold for the benefit of the club.

Having received an invitation from the Rev. G. Hall-Wallis, Pastor of Park Chapel, the society's headquarters, to partake in a service specially organised for bird fanciers next Sunday evening, February 20th, writes Mr. H. Hill, hon. secretary of the Bradford East O.S., we are desirous of extending this invitation to any of our fellow fanciers who would like to participate in this service. The society decided at its last meeting to make the event an annual affair, and this being the first one of its kind we should like a representative gathering. The pastor is well known as a speaker in Bradford, and his subject will be "Birds." Sacred solos will be sung by Mrs. Wilson Laycock (soprano), and the service all through promises to be a bright and instructive event. The service will commence at 6 o'clock. I feel sure that every fancier who takes an interest in this kind of work at all will try and extend to us the help we so urgently require. Kindly note directions: Park Chapel, New Cross Street, West Bowling.

The Preparation of Goldfinches and Bullfinches for Hybrid Breeding.

By Albert Burtenshaw.

I hope these notes may afford my readers some slight information that will be of benefit to them. I think the subject a most interesting one, and a most trying one too. The ups and downs that one comes in contact with are very trying, and many give up the hobby and pleasure of bird breeding on their account. The first thing one wants to possess is patience; without it, it is useless, in fact, to make a start.

Treatment during Winter.

I will first give you what I think a good system of treatment for the Finches through the winter months. There are many methods, but the one I have found the most useful is to let the Finches be together as soon as they are clean moulted. By your so doing they get on good terms with each other. Let them remain until the second week in April. Then part them in the same cage with a sliding wire partition.

In the choice of a Goldfinch (cage-moulted or fresh-caught), it little matters which of the two you have; I prefer the latter when it is steady—a nice large bird with good markings.

As to the hen Bullfinch, I do not like the short round birds, as I have not found them equal to the long sided ones, that stand well up on the perch and are not always crouching. I like the birds not too thick across the breast, but nice and long.

When feeding your birds, see what seeds each one takes the most kind of, and use your own judgment as to the supply of staple foods. I have found the following most suitable for the Goldfinches:—Get a good supply of wild seeds, such as thistle-heads, hard-heads, plantain, dock, hemp, Canary, rape, teazle, and a few sunflower seeds. For the Bullfinch hen supply sunflower seeds, dock, plaintain, privet berries, blackberries, ants' eggs, and in the springtime give twigs (with buds on) cut from the willow, poplar, or any fruit tree that is well budded. The latter always do the Bullfinch good, as it is naturally a bud eater.

Preparing Cages for the Nesting.

The cages should be as large as possible; the larger the better. They should have big doors to them (the birds want a lot of room), and, as stated above, moveable partitions to be used in the usual way, when you require to part the Goldfinch off at night times. The bottom of the cage should should be covered over with moss up to the level of the lowest perches, which should be about 4ins. off the sand-tray. Take all other perches out, so as to keep the hen low down. About the middle of April is time to do so.

Place up in one corner some twigs cut from the hedgerow to form a bush, also a vessel containing some sharp grit. And some old brick mortar is a suitable thing for them. Also place in the bush a flower pot filled with mould, and shape the top like a nest, sticking a few small twigs around it. Hang on the front of the cage some cocoanut fibre, or pieces of an old door-mat, which answers the same purpose. Some Bullies build, though the majority do not, preferring to drop their eggs from the perch.

The Use of Canaries.

Should you get any eggs, place them under a Canary hen that you know is to be trusted, and let your Bullie hen sit on some dummy eggs, as the species cannot be trusted. I have, however, had Bullie hens that have sat their full time, and as well as any Canary; and, moreover, without being shaded from the sight of people moving about.

It is a good plan to keep the hens that you get eggs from, as you can rely upon them the following year. My experience has been that those you do not get eggs from are the same the next year; and I give them their liberty out of the bird-room window. In conclusion, let me advise you to give your Finches plenty of green food (fresh every day), such as chickweed (when ripe), and groundsel. This is most important, as if you are unable to do so your chances of success will be few.

A Study in Yorkshire Canaries.

By F. Armstrong.

Written Round Our Recent Coloured Plate.

My next experiment was to mate a heavily-marked yellow cock to an eye-ticked buff. My object was to breed unevenly-marked birds. The hen, I know, was from a good unevenly-marked strain. The result was a clear yellow, an unevenly-marked yellow, and an eye-ticked buff, all brim full of colour.

The Most Successful Means.

Again, with the same object in view, I paired a green wing-ticked one-eighth Belgian cock (the amount of Belgian I am certain of, as I bred it myself), to a rich-coloured yellow hen (clear) (winner of 3rd prize at the Crystal Palace). Result: Two unevenly-marked buff cocks and a yellow cinnamon cap-marked hen. One of the former is my old champion unevenly-marked buff cock bird, 1st at Crystal Palace Jubilee Show. The other became the property of a prominent Northern Y.C.C. exhibitor, and also had the honour of being portrayed in the pages of CAGE BIRDS. I give the two methods by means of which I have been successful in producing really good unevenly-marked birds, and which I sincerely believe by far the most rapid means of producing them, because as you are well aware, the cinnamon-marked Yorkshire is more likely to breed uneven-marks, as the marking is more fixed. You may lose a little in depth of colour, but you will gain in finer feather. My bird won Ramsden's colour food medal twice out of three times of competing, thus proving he had not lost much, even in colour. If my memory serves me correctly, all the chief winners in N.G.M.Y.C.C. competition this season, with about one exception, were birds bred from cinnamon marks on one side or the other, or from those containing cinnamon blood.

I must impress upon my readers that this is to a great extent pedigree-breeding. You must know your strain. Haphazard mating in most cases leads to failure and disappointment.

Very much the same method must be adopted in the case of cinnamon-marked Yorkshire breeding. To establish a strain of cinnamon marks, you should pair marked cocks to clear pink-eyed hens (or at most only slightly ticked) and vice-versa. If you pair two marked birds, I am afraid you will get more heavily-variegated youngsters than you bargain for. I consider the type of this variety very much behind that of the dark-eyed Yorkshire, although it is improving somewhat. Here is a good chance for someone to introduce the Belgian to get the type and swagger so attractive to the eye of a judge. I should suggest obtaining a good-sized clear yellow quarter Yorkshire-Belgian, as clean in the front as possible, mating this with a thick-necked cinnamon-marked hen (buff), with good head properties. Then in a few years' time the exhibitor will require some beating on the show bench.

A Fairly Difficult Job.

The breeding of the ideal Yorkshire, that is, the evenly-marked bird, will be found fairly difficult at first. We have no reliable strain to draw from, as is the case with the Border Fancy. Still, I think it is possible, by working on the lines of the Border Fancy, to build up a reliable strain. For example, select a good, typical, wing-marked yellow cock and a buff eye-marked hen. These technical marks must be as near perfect as possible. The eyes must be as near like spectacles as possible and the markings on the wings evenly balanced. The tail markings might also be considered as well if one is desirous of obtaining six-pointed birds. I think it would be very unwise to pair birds with similar markings, as was pointed out in regard to unevenly marked birds, as we may only produce heavily-marked birds, which we all desire to avoid. To fix these properly, I am afraid we should have to resort to inbreeding to a certain extent. If two or three fanciers were imbued with this fascinating idea, they might exchange after a time, and somewhat obviate the necessity of inbreeding to the same extent.

If this article should be the means of inspiring more of my fellow-fanciers to build up a strain of good marked birds, I shall feel well satisfied. In conclusion, I feel I cannot let this opportunity pass without saying how indebted the fanciers of the marked bird (especially the green-marked) are to W. H. Shackleton, Esq., for his generosity and support, his kindly interest in the breeding and exhibiting of the variety.

The Rosy Pastor: King of the Starlings.

By F. FINN, B.A., F.Z.S.

I do not think anyone who has had much opportunity of studying the Starling family will disagree with me when I venture to confer the title "King of the Starlings" on the Rosy Pastor (Pastor roseus), for this bird stands out among its relatives so distinctly as to compel everyone's attention. For one thing it has a plumage absolutely unique in the bird world, a pink body, set off by metallic-black head, wings and tail, and it is one of the only two Starlings which have long crests, the other one being the Black-crested or Brahminy Mynah (Temenuchus pagodarum), also a very beautiful bird.

As in the Starling family generally, there is very little sex difference in Rosy Pastors, and it needs close observation of a pair to distinguish the cock from the hen. I strongly suspect that the majority of birds imported are cocks, for a gentleman who has observed the bird's wild in India, told me that he always found a flock contained only a few of the pink and black specimens among a lot of immature ones, and yet one sees cages full of full-coloured birds in the Calcutta market. As hen birds often colour up later in life than cocks, it is probable that the majority of these are of the latter sex.

Changes of Attire.

In its first plumage the Rosy Pastor is astonishingly like our Starling at the corresponding stage, both being plain drab birds with no hint of their future colouring, while the Pastor's crest is absolutely wanting in the young bird. In fact, one needs to look at the beak which in the Pastor is distinctly curved in profile, while the Starling's is particularly straight, in order to distinguish the two birds at this stage. Even when it has attained its adult jet-and-rose attire, the Rosy Pastor does not retain it all the year, for in winter the plumage becomes obscured by drab tippings to the feathers, which naturally spoil the contrast.

A variety, by the way, was once obtained on the Continent, which had the head pink; it must have been a most lovely bird. In captivity, unfortunately, the Rosy Pastor almost invariably loses its beauty of plumage, both here and in India. In the latter country, the pink parts of the plumage become very much clouded with black, so as to present a smutty appearance; one I once had, however, turned an extreme glossy black, nearly all over, and looked very well. I may mention it had been fed on the usual satoo or coarse pea-meal, like several companions, so that this change was the more remarkable. In England I have not noticed this tendency to blacken in the plumage of the Rosy Pastor, but the pink tint disappears altogether, the light parts of the plumage becoming a sort of cream-colour.

Renovation of Complexion.

I have only seen one specimen whose complexion had not assumed this sallow tint, and that was a lovely bird which used to be shown by, I believe, a lady aviculturist; its plumage was of the true pink, only paler than a wild bird's would be. This may have been simply an exceptional specimen, like a Crossbill they had at the Zoo some time back, which re-assumed its red colour after moulting, though its companions did not. At any rate, it was exceptional in not showing winter plumage.

I have often thought, however, that special feeding during the moult might keep the Rosy Pastor in full colour. The ordinary red colour-feed ought to be of some use, and if people object to this, one might get good results by feeding the moulting bird entirely on natural food, fruit—especially mulberries, and any other berries obtainable, and live insects.

The bird is well worth taking some trouble over; but I may mention that turning it out in a large aviary will not keep the colour, for those the Zoo had under these conditions lost it all the same.

A Rollicking Republican.

In one way the title of "king" is most inappropriate to this bird, for no species has less idea of living in regal solitude and state; he is a true republican, always in flocks, even at the breeding season, always bubbling over with good humour, yet always squabbling. India is the chief winter home of the bird, though I never happened to meet with it wild there myself; but its address in the breeding season is quite uncertain, being anywhere between Italy and the Indian frontier.

In the case of an invasion of this kind, which happened in the Verona district in 1875, it was noted that the "first eggs were laid about June 17th; by July 10th the young were fledged; and by the 14th all had taken their departure!" This invasion followed that of swarms of locusts, and the presence of these insects seems to be what chiefly determines the movements of this bird, which has been known for centuries as their special enemy, though it is also, if anything, more omnivorous than other Starlings, eating fruit and even grain freely.

In England.

This lovely bird strays to England almost every year, where it is readily received in any Starling club to which it applies for admission; lively as Starlings are, they must seem slow-coaches to this very exuberant bird, which is bursting with energy, and constantly utters its awful song. I know no bird but the Seychelles Bulbul which sings so much and so badly! Sooner or later, however, the British bird collector gathers it in; at least he does so very often, but some imported ones I turned out some years ago in St. James's Park never seemed to be brought to book, so probably many do escape.

In aviculture the Rosy Pastor is fairly common, and proves easy to feed, and hardy in respect of climate; but no one has bred it as yet, though I have seen it pair. In view of the sociable habits of the birds, I should expect several pairs to be more likely to nest than one; and a mule between this species and its near relative, the Starling, ought to be a very handsome bird, and to do some winning—we have not had soft-bill mules for so many years.

The Young Naturalist.

Prizes of 1s. and two of 6d. each will be given weekly for the best three anecdotes about birds written on postcards. Competitors must be under sixteen years of age, and state whence stories are taken. Two stars indicate the Winning Contribution; one star the runners up.

*Faithful Parents.

A nest containing four young Linnets was found by some children, who took them home for the purpose of rearing and taming them. The old birds followed the children to their home. The nest was placed in a cage in the middle of the room. The old birds came through the window and boldly entered the cage and fed their young. When evening came they actually perched upon the cage regardless of the noise made by the children.—Sent by William Parnham (age 15), 120, Bromfield Place, Park Lane, Old Basford, Nottingham.

*A Homing Budgie.

My brother had a pair of pretty Budgerigars given to him. The cock was a very tame bird, thanks to a lot of talking to and playing with, and the hen was nearly as tame. Last summer they contrived to open the door of their cage and the cock flew out of the window. My sister, going into the room, found the hen still in the cage, and shut the door. We thought the cock was lost for ever, but at night we put a night-light on the table, and left the window open, drawing down the blind as far as the opening. In the night, a loud chirping was heard, and on going into the room we found him sitting on the night-light saucer.—Sent by E. A. Cathcart (age 15), Wentworth House, Salford Road, Ainsdale, Lancs.

A Nest of Young.

A little bird once built a nest,
Of moss, and hay, and hair,
And then she laid two speckled eggs,
And covered them with care.
Two little birds were hatched in time,—
So small, so bare, so weak;
The father fed them every day
With insects from his beak.
At last the little birds were fledged,
And strong enough to fly;
And then they spread their little wings,
And bade their nest good-bye.

Worms in Birds: Their Origin, Classification & Treatment.

By G. YATES, M.R.C.V.S.

Parasitology is a section of pathology which as it has become more fully understood, has been found to include disorders which until somewhat recent date were attributed to those of a physical nature. Investigation into hitherto obscure diseases has resulted in the discovery of minute parasites; this more particularly so in those inhabiting the digestive tract, many of these being ultra-visible or not discernible by the naked eye. Whilst microscopical aid has proved their presence in the ingesta or in the mucous membrane lining the intestines, the effects produced by the presence of these parasites have been accepted as the actual cause, whereas in reality they are but the effect produced by the invaders.

The deleterious effects produced upon their hosts have been considered by many to have been brought about, not so much by the agency of the parasites themselves, but by their products, which were looked upon as simulating toxins as produced by bacteria. This idea has by most scientists been discarded. The damage resulting to the hosts from their presence depends upon the particular species of parasite present; e.g., some of the most harmful maintain their existence by the abstraction of blood from their hosts, bringing about a condition of anæmia or bloodlessness, and reducing the animal into a weakened and exhausted condition, resulting in death. Others, due to their presence in large numbers, frequently occlude the lumen of the gut by obstructing the passage of food. Owing to irritation brought about, diarrhœa (resulting in loss of body heat, consequent loss of flesh, and death from exhaustion) follows the infestation of many animals from intestinal worms.

The cestodes (one of the sub-divisions of the entozoa previously mentioned) are of vast importance, and are known more familiarly as the tapeworms. They are particularly common in birds, and are characterised by having bodies quite flat, constituted by numbers of segments, varying with the particular type of tapeworm. These are joined end on end, and preceded by a small head, which would not be readily recognised by a novice. Sometimes the head is armed with hooks. Others are unarmed, but provided with suckers for attachment. The head is followed by a thin neck, made up of very narrow segments, which appear as simple lines or striæ. These become wider as they progress, and become broader and wider at the further end. The worms possess no true digestive apparatus. Sexually each segment is independent, being provided with both male and female reproductive organs; in other words, they are hermaphrodite.

The hinder segments contain the ova, and when mature become detached from the rest and become expelled with the excrement. The ova reaching a suitable medium become taken in by other birds, and so the cycle goes on.

Two divisions of the tapeworm are met with, but here we shall only deal with one, viz., the taina. This passes through as many as five successive and distinct stages of existence in its progress from the ovum or egg to the mature segment. These stages are as follows:—I.—Tapeworm or strobile, having the characters already described, inhabiting the intestinal canal. II.—Detached ripe segment (proglottis) being a flat white segment generally found on the freshly passed excreta or in its near vicinity, progressing with a worm-like motion; it is indeed a receptacle for numerous ova which become taken in by its host either with food or water, and is ready for further development, providing it gains access to a suitable host, or otherwise it perishes. III.—The ovum, due to the action of the digestive juices, is liberated from its segment in the stomach or intestines, and soon batches out into an embryo or proscolex, furnished with hooks for maintaining its hold upon its new surroundings. IV.—Proscolex; this embryo sets about burrowing into the tissue of its host, and here it develops into the scolex. And V.—Scolex; here it becomes embedded in the tissue or organ of its new host, and develops into a cystic organism developing again within this cyst or sac several heads all attached to the wall of the cyst, and suspended in a fluid of a milky or mucilaginous nature; here the cyst increases in size to the disadvantage of the surrounding tissue. The heads here do not develop sexual organs nor do they present any of the features of the mature tapeworm. This is only one phase of its peculiar double existence, requiring two hosts for its ultimate maturity. On gaining access to another host adapted to entertain this particular parasite in its mature form, the neck becomes by degrees elongated, and segmentation takes place, indicated at first by fine lines behind the head, until the sexually mature parasites are formed. The worm is now mature, and ripened segments from time to time drop off to be evacuated, and so it repeats its previous metamorphoses.

Birds harbour the tœnioe or tapeworms in great variety, but up to the present the relation of the cystic form to that of the mature parasite has not at present been made very clear.

The species of the tœnioe have been found inhabiting the intestines of birds. There is great difficulty in distinguishing one species from another, the usual mode of differentiating them being by the number of hooks which each possesses. The difficulty arises from the fact that these hooks are never constant in number; they are at times shed so that there is very little opportunity for placing them on a proper basis. At times so many birds are affected that it occurs in the nature of an epizootic. For practical purposes it will not be necessary to detail here to the reader the synonyms used in their classification, as the symptoms they produce, and the treatment to be adopted do not vary in the individual cases. They most of them have a double phase of existence, presenting a cystic form in some kind of animal life, prior to gaining accession to the intestines of birds; e.g., some are found as cysts in the earthworm, small molluscs, or snails, so that it will be clearly understood how readily birds may become infested, and the commonest tœnia proglottina when taken in by a bird in its cystic form can become so fully developed as to possess four segments in a few days. This shows how readily birds may become the habitat of these dangerous and harmful parasites. Their presence is accountable for many varied symptoms. Birds lose their appetite, lose flesh, are inclined to mope, and separate themselves from their fellows, and hide their heads under their wings; the plumage loses its lustre and becomes erect, and the movements languid; diarrhœa, often of a fœtid nature, occurs, and brain symptoms intervene; attacks of vertigo, epileptiform seizures, convulsions, and occasionally fits all occur. Diagnosis can only be made with certainty by the discovery of the proglottides or segments of the worm in the excreta.

There has been recorded in the Veterinary Journal, xxii., page 121, an interesting case of tapeworm infestation in a Parrot, recorded by a German observer, who found in the intestines such a multitude of tapeworms as to completely distend these organs to almost bursting point, and on immersing the whole mass in water there were found to exist several thousands of these parasites.

The nematoids or round worms are of particular importance as infesting the intestines of birds; they are also more popularly named whip worms, and are to be found in birds of almost every known species. One genus, Heterakis, is found in large numbers, and of most frequent occurrence in this position being very large and easily recognisable by their rounded shape and pointed ends. Another genus syngamus inhabits the air passages of many varieties of birds, causing death by the irritation they produce in these situations.

By GAVIN ALSTON.

Another cause of disappointment to exhibitors is that their exhibit may happen to be in a restless mood at the very time it is being judged. It is most aggravating if you are looking on and see your bird behave in this way. How you wish it would just settle down when the judge takes it up. But no; and it has to take a back seat. Other birds not nearly so good seem on their very best behaviour at this critical moment, and "up" they go. Perhaps the judge comes back to have a look round the show after lunch, and your bird is steady now. He thinks it might have been well up but for the bad look he got of it. Now the cause of this restlessness is generally that your bird was not feeling "at home" in the show cage, which was so different from its every-day cage.

What you should do is to keep the bird in a cage, the facsimile of the show cage, for a day or two before the show, so that it will be thoroughly used to it. Some birds are so easily upset, that you have to accustom them continuously to the show cage, or they will not behave well when put into it. When you have to keep a bird regularly in so small a cage, you must have the cage always scrupulously clean and the bottom covered with white sawdust or husks, as a bird loses any chance of winning if it becomes dirty. Of course, it can be washed before the show, but I am of opinion, and I have heard others say so too, that a British bird, if properly kept, should never need washing. If they are allowed the bath, and take to it, say, twice a week, it is all the washing they should require.

Stage Your Birds Properly.

But however good a bird may be, if it is not properly staged it is very much handicapped in competition, especially in these days when the staging of British birds has become a fine art. Many fanciers make their own show cages, but in the majority of cases one does better to try to save money elsewhere and buy the cages ready made. Home-made cages are often too heavy, and many are not the right proportions, and tend to prejudice the judge's opinion of your bird. Let the show cage be light and well finished, with sliding front, and the wires as wide as possible considering the size of the bird.

The cages are usually enamelled black outside with the wires the same colour as the background. There are differences of opinion regarding the colours which show off to best advantage the different species. White is a very trying colour, and should never be used unless in the case of a cage for a Blackbird or Chough. Pale blue or pale green is too faint and washy-looking. Deep blue is sometimes used, but is too oppressive. Black may do in a strong light, but is not suitable for a dark winter day. Holly green is a favourite with some fanciers, and suits some species well, but it is rather a cheerless colour. Medium green is what is mostly used, and it suits all the British seed-eaters; it is neither too light nor too dark, and is a colour the eye can comfortably rest on. Emerald is a beautiful enamel when newly put on, but the brand I used faded very soon. Kingston green "medal brand" enamel is a fast colour and the one I consider best for show cages. Apply it with a camel's hair brush, and keep the surface horizontal till it hardens.

A well-finished show cage does not make a good bird, but it adds greatly to the appearance of one. Do not have anything about your show cages that may tend to create a suspicion among fanciers. Do everything honestly and above-board. Have a nice light case to put your cages in; four make a handy number to carry.

Let your entries be in before the close time of the time fixed. Remember, the secretary will be very busy. Don't expect too much at the show and any success will bring all the greater pleasure. Take your defeats like a man and never call anybody's exhibit a poor bird that beats yours, it would be no credit to your own. Give your birds tepid water to drink when they return from a show, even though they have no cards; they may do better next time. Finally, attention mixed with a little brains is the secret of success.

Wild Bird Notes

Ospreys in the South.

A few Ospreys have been recorded in the south during the past month. These are probably young birds moving from the breeding haunts in the north. It is probable that these birds were never numerous at any time in England. A few nesting sites were known, chiefly in the Eastern counties, during the eighteenth century, but no doubt at an earlier period they were more plentiful, as an Act passed in 1566 includes the Osprey among the birds to be destroyed.

The Throstle's Song.

In North Staffordshire "Throstle" is still in general use, people hardly knowing what is meant by a Thrush. A curious interpretation of this bird's song is current here. "Do you know what the Throstle says?" a North Staffordshire potter or collier will ask. He says, "Plee a wick, plee a wick, plee a wick" (i.e. play a week—play meaning here to take a holiday, compulsory or otherwise)—and really the words are not a bad representation of the triple phrase with which a Thrush begins a song.

An Error of Judgment.

A few years ago, says a writer in a weekly paper, I was fishing the Bela, in Westmoreland, and a friend, Mr. Webster, jun., of Bentham Hall, was about half a mile ahead of me, fly-fishing up stream. Nearly opposite Bentham Hall a narrow footpath plank lay across the river, and when he came up to it my friend found a Kingfisher with its beak firmly fixed in the plank. He extricated the bird with some difficulty, and when I came up it looked at the point of death. But it recovered, and there was no injury to its beak whatever. How long it had been held fast in the position in which it was found it is impossible to say—probably many hours. It is not difficult to understand how such an accident occurred. Kingfishers never fly high—rarely above a few feet from the surface of the water. They go up and down stream in a direct line and at a great speed. This bird had evidently intended to fly over or under the plank, and dashed its beak against it instead.

In the Courts.

Not Bird Stealing but "D. and D."

At the South Western Police Court before the Hon. John de Grey, on Monday, February 7th, Alfred Jefferies (26), of Wandsworth, was charged with stealing on Saturday from a shop at 257, York Road, Battersea, a tame Goldfinch and cage, value 12s. 6d., the property of G. S. Goodridge, and further with assaulting L. W. Jones, a grocer's assistant, Battersea.

Lucy Goodridge, prosecutor's wife, said that between five and six o'clock on Saturday prisoner called at the shop and asked for a Lark. She showed him one, and also some Linneis. Prisoner looked at some Goldfinches. As she turned her back he took a Goldfinch out of a cage, and ran out of the shop. Witness said prisoner ran into a lavatory close by, and as he came out she asked him for the bird. He said he did not remember anything about it.

Mr. de Grey: Was he drunk?—Witness: Three parts.—Prisoner: Did I ask the constable outside the shop to search me?—Witness: There wasn't a policeman there.—If I put the bird in my pocket it stands to reason that there would be some feathers found there?—I saw the bird in your hand.

Arthur Potter, a book sorter, said he went into prosecutor's shop to buy some water pots on Saturday evening, and saw a man looking at some Goldfinches. As Mrs. Goodridge turned round he saw the man pull his hand out of a cage and run out of the shop.—Mr. de Grey: Did you see anything in his hand?—Witness: No.—Did you see anything in the cage before?—Yes, a bird.

L. W. Jones said he saw Mrs. Goodridge run out of the shop. She beckoned to him, and in consequence of what she said he went into the lavatory and asked prisoner for the bird. For two or three minutes he made no reply, and then he said, "I've not seen any bird; the woman must have been mad." Prisoner took off his coat and waved him arms about, striking witness on the shoulder and knocking him down.—Prisoner: I don't remember seeing the fellow.

Detective Bell said that about 10.30 p.m. on Saturday he arrested prisoner. Prisoner said: "O, yes, I'm Alfred Jefferies. You have come, have you. I was in the shop to buy the bird, but I'm not going to tell you who took it, or where it is. I ran out of the shop, and the young lady chased me. A man stopped me, and I knocked him over, as I'm a boxer. They stopped me, and the policeman came up and took my name and address. I'm not surprised you have come here." After he had dressed himself, prisoner was taken to Lavender Hill Station, where he was identified by the witnesses. The bird had not been found.—Prisoner said he did not touch the bird, nor did he strike Jones.

Mr. de Grey said there was not enough evidence to satisfy him that prisoner stole the bird while he was in drink. He let the bird out of the cage, which he (Mr. de Grey) deemed a disorderly action. He would be fined 5s. for being drunk and disorderly, and 10s. for assaulting Mr. Jones, or in default five days imprisonment in each case, the terms to run consecutively.

GLASGOW & W. OF SCOTLAND B.C.

The following are the office-bearers for 1910 of the Glasgow and West of Scotland N.M.B. and F.B.C.: President, Mr. J. L. Burnett; Vice-President, Mr. F. Bowman; Secretary and Treasurer, Robt. Watson, 97, Wellpark-street, Glasgow; Committee, Messrs. F. Taylor, A. Sloan, J. Brown, G. Stewart, J. Ferguson, J. Crawford, T. Erskine, M. Donaghy, J. McLeod, R. B. Jarvie, A. Smith, A. Edwards, J. McLay, C. Martin, and G. McCulloch; Finance Committee, Messrs. J. Ferguson, and E. Barren; Auditors, Messrs. A. Henderson and R. V. Raine.—R. WATSON, Sec.

GREENOCK, PORT GLASGOW AND GOUROCK O.C.

Annual general meeting held Feb. 8, in the Co-operative Halls, Port Glasgow, Mr. D. Brown in the chair. The following officers were elected: President, Mr. S. McKay; Vice-Presidents, Messrs. J. Smith, W. L. Stewart, W. Boyle, and W. Carswell; Treasurer, Mr. W. D. Adair; Committee, Messrs. T. Kennedy, D. Mallory, D. Brown, W. McDermaid, S. Gilmour, G. Hemphill, J. Gemmell, and A. Smith; Auditors, Messrs. W. Boyle and W. Carswell; Assist. Sec., Mr. J. Napier.—J. FORRESTER, Sec., Clune Brae Head, Port Glasgow.

BRECHIN C.B.S.

Smoking concert held January 26th, Mr. Stirling in the chair, when a most enjoyable evening was spent. The programme was got up by Mr. Davidson, the assistant secretary. Every member had to take a part. The society are very pleased to know they are in a most flourishing condition, which speaks volumes for our worthy secretary, Mr. G. Mitchell, a noted Norwich breeder, who has made a name for himself on the show bench with birds of his own breeding. He has shown at all the principal shows in Scotland, and one of his unflighted yellows has made what I think constitutes a Scottish record, namely, that out of eleven shows he has nine 1sts and two 2nds.—YELLOW GREEN.

Club Reports.

BRADFORD WEST O.B.A.

The following is a list of our officers for 1910: President, Mr. W. A. Cowgill; Vice-Presidents, Messrs. T. Wood, C. Whitley, G. Wellock, and E. Kemp; Treasurer, Mr. W. Crabtree; Trustees, Messrs. W. A. Cowgill and R. Carr; Auditors, Messrs. T. W. Mountain and J. Clark; Delegates, Messrs. W. Crabtree, A. Cooper, and F. Western; Committee, Messrs. A. Bennett, F. Wallbank, A. Whitley, T. W. Mountain, G. A. Bennett, and A. Craven; Secretary, F. Western, 57, Fenton-street, Princeville, Bradford; Assist. Sec., Mr. J. M. Stirk. Club-rooms, Red Lion Hotel, Four Lane Ends, Bradford. Meetings are held every second Saturday in month. Subscription, 1s. entrance fee and 6d. per month.—F. WESTERN, Sec.

EDMONTON F.A.

Annual meeting held at headquarters on January 26th, Mr. C. Sorrell presiding. The balance-sheet showed a favourable balance of over £3. The cups and specials won at the annual show were presented to the winners by Mr. G. Gardner, whose kindly advice and suitable comments were highly appreciated. Election of officers resulted as follows:—President, Dr. Corner; vice-presidents, Messrs. Broomhead, Bowater, and G. Gardner; chairman, Mr. C. Sorrell; hon. treasurer, Mr. Harris; hon. secretary, J. S. Jackson; assistant secretary, Mr. A. Burgess; supported by a strong committee of sixteen members. The society is open to all England, and particularly needs cage bird members. Please write hon. secretary at 60, Willoughby Lane, Tottenham. To commemorate the 33 years of grand service rendered to the society by Mr. Burgess as hon. secretary, a challenge cup is to be bought and named "The Burgess Cup."—J. S. JACKSON, hon. secretary.

ARDWICK AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

Annual general meeting held January 18, at headquarters, Onward Hall, Ashton Sea Road, Ardwick, Manchester, when there was a good attendance. Mr. R. B. Fryer presided. After passing of balance-sheet, which showed a balance of £4 5s. 6d. on our first year's working, the election of officers for 1910 took place, the result was: President, Mr. J. Coulson; vice-presidents, Messrs. J. H. Aspinall, W. Robinson, H. Boothman, W. Downing, J. Hughes, R. B. Fryer, and R. Dewhirst; treasurer, Mr. J. Thorneley; secretary, Mr. J. Spencer; committee, Messrs. G. Simpson, G. Felton, R. Booth, J. Valantine, T. Hudson, J. Annison, and F. Parker; auditors, Messrs. A. E. Long, and W. H. Fulcher. We are arranging a very attractive programme for the year, which will include lectures, table shows, wash-demonstrations, amateur judging competitions, etc. I should esteem it a pleasure to hear from fanciers wishing to become members. Subscription 4s. per annum.—J. SPENCER, Hon. Sec.

WEST LONDON F.A.

Monthly meeting held at Bush Hotel, February 3rd, a good number of members being present. Various items of business concerning the pair show to be held on February 17th were dealt with, and it was decided to let all classes and rules stand as last season, except that entries be accepted until 8 p.m., a good list of contributions to the special prize fund being forthcoming. The Secretary then asked Mr. J. Turner, in the absence of Mr. Tyson, to give us the promised lecture on "Crests," which he did in an able manner, dealing with every item in turn, from purchasing to "keeping," "breeding," and "rearing," and his answers to all questions were particularly pleasing. Questions concerning the merits of Norwich Plainheads in contrast with Crests, and the introduction of Lancashire blood, with a view to improving the variety, caused quite a heated debate. At a late hour the meeting closed with a most hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Turner and the chairman. Will members and fanciers kindly note that Mr. J. Robson has promised to lecture at our next meeting, to be held at Bush Hotel, on March 3rd, when it is hoped everyone will attend.—J. DEWHURST, Hon. Sec.

BARTON C. AND B.B.C.

At the annual meeting the old officers were re-elected, with Mr. R. Small as vice-chairman, and we start the year with a balance of £1 11s. 9d. in hand and prospects of a better year and more members, as I hear there are several fanciers in Barton who have purchased Canaries. Our table show of pairs will be held in the large club room, Red Lion Hotel, at our next meeting on March 2, and we shall be pleased to see new members. Entry forms are ready. Fanciers wishing to join I shall be pleased to hear from, if they will please reply to this, and I will send them a card and entry form. The special prizes were given out to the members, who gained most points last year. G. T. Beach received Mr. Hutchinson's medal for most points, also medal for most points in young birds, given by Mr. Pepper (Hull), and a pipe given by Mr. Jordon for most entries at the annual show. R. Small received medal given by Mr. Calam (Hull) for second most points, and tobacco pouch for second most entries given by Mr. J. Hall; also half-stone Canary seed, given by Mr. B. Hollings (Hull) for third most points in young birds. E. C. Dunn received umbrella, given by Mr. Moore, for second most points in young birds; G. Pettitt half-stone Canary seed, given by Mr. Hollings for third most points, also ladies' purse for third most entries. The members thank all who have so kindly helped them in the past year.—E. C. DUNN, Hon. Sec., George Street, Barton-on-Humber.

NOTTINGHAM AND NOTTS O.S.

Very successful meeting, held at the Mechanics' Hall on February 2nd, 21 members and friends attending. After the usual business a table show of stock pairs for Crests, also Norwich Plainheads, was held. Entries numbered 12, and some very nice birds were shown. In the Crest section Mr. Ed. Wolfe took the premier honour, followed closely by Mr. James Renshaw, who captured the 2nd and 3rd awards. Mr. Renshaw also won the 5s., one year's subscription to the society, presented by Mr. George C. Ley, to a non-member gaining 1st, 2nd, or 3rd prize—and he was duly elected. The Norwich section was well represented, and the judge had some difficulty in separating the specimens. The result was that Mr. George Hill secured 1st and 2nd awards, followed by Mr. Barnes, a good 3rd. Mr. T. Barker judged, and his awards met with general satisfaction. The addition of two new members to the society is considered very satisfactory, and we purpose having another table show at the next meeting on March 2nd (confined to a radius of 20 miles of Nottingham), when we hope to have the pleasure of enrolling other fanciers amongst our members. Mr. Ley kindly offers 5s., one year's subscription to the society, to be won by a non-member gaining 1st, 2nd, or 3rd prize. Schedule, A.V. British Hardbill.—C. E. WILKINSON, Hon. Sec.

MIDLAND ROLLER C.C.

Annual meeting held at headquarters, on Jan. 27, when Mr. Max Jacquemin presided over a good attendance. The balance-sheet was presented and adopted, showing a balance in treasurer's hands of £6 8s. 6½d., which we considered highly satisfactory. The retiring officers were thanked for their work. The election of officers for the present year resulted in all the "old officials being sent back unopposed," with the addition of Mr. Bingham and Mr. Turner to the committee. At our next meeting to be held Feb. 24, we are having a judging competition, which should prove most interesting and instructive. It is hoped members will turn up in good numbers and bring any interested fancier friends with them. Two new members were elected. J. H. WILLOWS, Hon. Sec.

READING AND DIS. C.B.S.

Usual monthly meeting held at Palmer Hall, on Feb. 2, there being a good attendance. The first business was to propose eight new members by the Secretary, making 60 altogether since the show. On the introduction of the Chairman, Mr. Lewin, of Oxford, favoured us with a splendid lecture on the Norwich Plainhead. As several of the members had brought their own birds, Mr. Lewin used them as his illustrations. Mating and breeding, selection, exhibition points, what to aim at, and what to avoid, were all touched on, and the fancier-like way in which the lecturer gave the novices advice was heartily appreciated. A good discussion ensued, in which most of the members took part, and at the finish a very hearty vote of thanks was given to Mr. Lewin. He had brought with him a specimen of the original wild Canary, and the members were greatly interested in comparing it with the lovely specimens on the table. This was without doubt one of the best and most popular lectures ever given to our members, and we shall remember it with great pleasure. The Secretary announced that on March 2nd Mr. Maisey (Aldermaston) would give us a lecture on British birds and Hybrids, and if it is heard a record meeting will result.—W. H. PYEE, Hon. Sec.

WALLSEND AND MID-TYNE C.B.A

General meeting, held February 9th. The question as to whether we hold an open show was discussed at length. It was decided that, owing to bad times (by so much unemployment on Tyneside) we dispense with the open show, and only hold a members' show, on the usual date, November 11th and 12th. We hope it will be the means of bringing a lot of the local fanciers into our society, as our radius for membership is confined to ten miles. The election of a secretary (left over from annual meeting) was the next item. Mr. Richardson resigned his post owing to pressure of business, and also because he wished that the old (an experienced) secretary, Mr. Evans, could be prevailed upon to accept the position. Mr. Evans kindly assented, and accepted the post. We intend trying our best to become the leading society of the North. The officers are as follows: President, Matthew Murray, Esq.; chairman, Mr. J. M. Macdonald; vice-chairman; Mr. T. Robson; secretary, Mr. J. R. Evans; assistant secretary, Mr. G. Greenwell; treasurer, Mr. F. Reeves; auditors, Messrs. J. Hyslop, and W. Cockburn; committee, Messrs. W. Ronald, W. Allison, H. McColl, P. Dixon, J. Evans, J. Grainger, D. Hembrough, J. R. Reed, T. W. Lumsden, C. W. Wilson, W. McGinn, W. J. Richardson.—G. GREENWELL, Assist. Sec.

CITY AND SUBURBAN A.C.B.

Adjourned annual general meeting held at headquarters, 69, Paddington-street, on January 26th, A. W. Curtis in the chair. Following upon the confirmation of the minutes, the Chairman gave an account of the progress towards recovery of Mr. A. C. Burp. Mr. T. Veo was elected a member. Letters were read from Messrs. K. Horsey, H. Bawes, B. Thompson, H. E. Tringham, T. Heath, J. Robson, and H. Bell. Letters of regret were directed to be conveyed to Messrs. H. Hawes and E. Horsey upon their resignations. Permission was sanctioned for the payment of the yearly subscription to the London Federation. The dates for the following shows were agreed upon, similar to that of last year, viz., British and Foreign, March 12th; Y.B.S., July 2nd; Annual, November 18th and 19th. The amendments to the rules were then taken.—Mr. F. Wyse to ordinary Rule 2, not accepted; and show Rule 8, not accepted. By V. Wynn, Show Rule 8 accepted, and Show Rule 11 accepted. But Mr. C. Prior gave notice that at the proper time at the end of the year, Show Rule 11 be wholly deleted. A new rule by Mr. C. Prior carried. In view of Show Rule 17 not being in strict accordance with the law of the land, it was unanimously agreed to delete the latter part. A list of fixtures drawn up for the current year was agreed upon. A vote of thanks to the Chairman closed the meeting.—V. WYNN, Hon. Sec.

SHIPLEY O.S.

Annual social and prize distribution held on Feb. 1, and proved a great success. An excellent supper was provided at headquarters by Mr. and Mrs. Smith, to which a good number of members and friends did full justice. At the after proceedings it was expected that Dr. Freeman Hatch, Vice-President, would be present to present the prizes, but, unfortunately, he was unable to attend. The Chairman, Mr. A. Tillotson, was also unfortunately absent owing to a family bereavement. Mr. H. H. Towers was elected to the chair. The prizes were presented by our friend, Mr. J. Chippendale (Idle), who had a few well-chosen words to say to each recipient. He commented upon the great enthusiasm shown by the members, and complimented them on the evident good feeling which prevailed. He said they were fortunate in having such an excellent secretary in Mr. H. Martin, as this meant an excellent society, and he hoped that he would long continue to hold the position. During the evening a capital programme was given, the talent being of a very high order. We were very fortunate in having Mr. Walter Mason, of the Leeds College of Music, whose renderings of "Thora" and the "Bedouin Love Song" were greatly appreciated. It is expected Mr. Mason will appear at the great prize distribution in connection with the Yorkshire Union, and any who have not heard him should take this opportunity of such a treat. Mr. P. Cordingly's songs were also greatly enjoyed. Mr. Slingsby was heard to advantage. Mr. Clement Botterworth scored great successes, as also Mr. Earnshaw's parody on the "Lassie from Lancashire," and "One of the Boys." Mr. A. Ackroyd made a most efficient accompanist. Votes of thanks were given to Mr. Chippendale and to the artistes, upon the proposition of Mr. R. Garnett, seconded by Mr. Brown. The cup was much in evidence during the remainder of the evening, which was one of the most successful ever held. Mr. H. Martin won the cup with 100 points. The following were recipients of cash prizes with the respective points: Mr. H. H. Towers, 83 points; Mr. H. Long, 71; Mr. E. Grange, 63; Mr. A. Tillotson, 49; Mr. W. Batty, 46; Mr. L. Crossland, 45; Mr. H. Hirad-haw, 42.—J. ROBINSON, Assist. Sec.

NATIONAL BRITISH BIRD AND MULE CLUB.

Annual General Meeting.

The annual general meeting of the National British Bird and Mule Club was held in the Boardroom, at the Crystal Palace, on February 5th. The members present were:—Messrs. C. Cooper, F. Wyse, G. Morton, H. J. Hawes, G. Thurley, A. J. A. Marley, P. Carter, H. J. Hireson, C. R. Tyson, J. Owen, W. Swaysland, W. J. Plumbridge, G. Acland. A. C. Askew, W. H. Vale, J. Robson, R. A. Newley, G. Crabb, J. P. Carr, J. Frostick, C. T. Maxwell, J. Dewhurst, D. A. S. Longden, and H. Norman. Mr. Robson occupied the chair.

Mr. Plumbridge read the secretaries' report of the year's work, which is as follows:—

When reviewing the affairs of the year now gone by, only one or two things seem to stand out prominently, and when these have been dealt with we must fall back and sum up the whole year's work as one of untiring zeal and earnest endeavour on the part of the officers and committee to keep the club up to the high water-mark which, I am sure you will agree with us, has already been attained.

The greater part of this year, as you know full well, has been taken up by the two separate cases of stained birds. Here it is that we, as secretaries, must express our admiration for the thoroughly open-minded way in which the committee tackled these serious cases. It did one good to hear the different arguments brought forward, thrashed out, and carefully weighed before any final judgment was given, and I am sure you will say it was a very just verdict. The result of this wretched affair is now common property, and we trust that it may be the club's good fortune never to have such cases again, but that all members and fanciers will play the game fair and above board, knowing that a faked bird never has been or could be a credit to its owner.

Our club show, held in conjunction with the L.C.B.A., at Westminster, was not in point of numbers a very great success, although medals, cups, and good prize money were given, a tempting enough bait, but the response was very much below our expectation. We are quite at a loss to account for this, unless it is that exhibitors are a bit afraid of those who are known to the Fancy as deck-sweepers.

This year, we are proud to say, we have given for competition, in all parts of the country, forty-three medals, besides several others given by members of the club for special objects. The competition for these, Mr. Carr tells me, has been well sustained, and our medals are more keenly contested for now than ever. This is a good sign, showing greater life amongst our members. The club has decided this year, and in the future, to engrave the winner's name on all medals won by them, thus enhancing their value. Another good move is the interchanging of medals with Canada, which we trust will extend to other countries in the near future. We believe by this means we shall establish a greater feeling of brotherhood amongst the Fancy all over the world. We have also sent two medals for competition to the ever-green Ireland. The secretary writes that they proved a great success, the competition being very keen. Thus, you see, we are endeavouring to live up to our title, "National," in every sense of the word.

Our membership keeps steadily increasing. This year three resignations have been received, while we have 18 new members elected. The only thing which spoils this increase in numbers, Mr. T. B. Trower gives me to understand, is a sad tale of "non-payers," whose names will be brought before your new committee for them to decide what course shall be taken in respect to them. I trust all members who read these lines and are indebted to the club, will give Mr. Trower the great pleasure ere long of being able to send them their receipts.

A blow has been struck at our hobby by putting into force the Wild Bird Act. How far this will affect us it is yet too early to say. We have consulted our hon. solicitor, who considers it will be wise for us as a club to give our support to the fund which is being raised to appeal against the decision given in the recent prosecution. We wish every success to the fund, and with this end in view, our club has had much pleasure in subscribing two guineas.

You will have the pleasure of hearing, we think, a very satisfactory report from Mr. Trower, our excellent treasurer. He is a well-tried and highly successful official.

We cannot speak too highly of all the kindness of Mr. Percy Nicholls (the hon. solicitor), who has given a great deal of his valuable time and experience in advising us in several matters of importance, for which we would tender him our most hearty thanks.

We are again greatly indebted to the Fancy Press for the ready and willing way in which they have always helped us in publishing notices and reports of our meetings, saving us much time and expense by so doing.

We must not go further without expressing our thanks to Messrs. Cooper and Silver, our auditors, and all officers and committee for their untiring labours for the welfare of the club. The past year we have had record attendances, the business of the club having been carried on by full meetings. To our esteemed chairman, Mr. Robson—who, we feel, fairly holds the breath of the club in his hands—to him every one of us would lift our glass, wishing him a long life and still greater success in the position.

It is with sincere regret we have to report the inability of Mr. Ramsden to accept the condition of our rules; therefore we were unable this year to give our patronage and support to the Palace Show.

May the year before us find officers, committee, and members all working together to make the club prosper, so enabling us to extend our patronage and help to all and every society who desires it. Thus we shall hold a position in the bird world second to none.

The balance-sheet was presented, and showed a balance in hand of £12 10s. 5d. Mr. Trower, the efficient treasurer, drew the attention of the meeting to the large amount due to the club by way of subscriptions still outstanding, and hoped that those members who had overlooked the matter would send on to him at an early date. The list of medal winners was presented, and some discussion respecting the counting of the points took place. Eventually, Mr. Cooper moved an alteration to Rule 17, which matter was, in the end, referred to the committee. The voting papers for the new committee sent to the secretaries by Mr. P. Nicholls, the scrutineer, resulted as follows:—London Committee: C. Cooper, A. Askew, J. Dewhurst, R. A. Newley, F. Wyse, A. Silver, J. Dobson, G. E. Weston, G. Thurling, G. Crabb, A. J. Marley, J. Boot, R. L. Crisp, and W. Francis. Provincial: H. Norman, W. Swaysland, A. P. Hurst, W. T. Plumbridge, D. Beatty, and J. Dewar.

Four new members were elected. Votes of thanks to the hon. solicitor, treasurer, secretaries, chairman, and committee concluded the proceedings. (The winners of the cups and medals were announced in our last issue.)

HULL C.B.S.

Very successful meeting held on Feb. 7, Mr. G. W. Oliver in the chair. Three new members were elected. It was unanimously decided to leave the Cage Bird Union. The secretary received a very handsome gold medal in recognition of his valuable services during 1909, which was the record year both as regards number of entries at the open show and balance in hand at the end.—E. R. RIDLEY, hon. sec.

WOOD GREEN F.F.A.

Monthly meeting held at headquarters on February 8th, Mr. W. G. Bruce presiding. As our next will be the general meeting, the preliminaries were arranged. Notice of any alterations of rules, and other matters for the benefit of the members were gone into. The present secretary gave notice that, owing to business pressure he would not seek re-election, and Mr. W. G. Bruce, our chairman, has consented to stand for the office. Mr. Bruce is a thorough business man, and a fancier, and the society will not suffer by the change. Forty members were present, and one new member elected.—T. CALLEGARI, sec.

PROVINCIAL ROLLER C.C.

Special meeting held on Feb. 12th, at Swan Hotel, Fountain Street, Manchester, Mr. A. Foulds in the chair. The meeting was called to reconsider the question of rings. A very fair number of members were in attendance, and after a lengthy discussion it was decided to rescind the minute: "That the P.R.C.C. provide rings of their own," passed at the previous meeting, and that for the present we have B.R.C.C. rings. On behalf of ten British Roller C.C. members, the secretary was asked to write to Mr. Norris suggesting that some northern fancier be elected to assist in judging at the next B.R.C.C. shows. Three new members were admitted.—ANDREW PERCIVAL, hon. sec.

CHESTER C.B.F.A.

Monthly meeting held at Nags Head Cocoa House, on Feb. 1st, Mr. Bracegirdle in the chair. The hon. auditor, Mr. E. Richards, reported that the accounts and the balance sheet were correct and in order, and his report was accepted. The nomination of president and officers was then proceeded with. The secretary intimated that R. A. Yerburgh, Esq., M.P., had signified his willingness to stand as president, and his acceptance of the office met with unanimous approval. Messrs. J. Crane, E. Lloyd, S. Whitlow, and T. Wright were elected vice-presidents; committee, Messrs. J. Bracegirdle, F. Brown, W. Crane, H. T. Gardner, D. Jones, and E. Richards. The hon. secretary and the treasurer, Messrs. Swindley and Stovin, were re-elected. The secretary will be pleased to hear from any fancier wishing to join.—J. SWINDLEY, hon. sec.

LONGTON AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

Annual meeting held at the Castle Inn on Feb. 1st. The officers for 1910 are as follows: Chairman, Mr. C. Birks; vice-chairman, Mr. J. Davis; treasurer, Mr. J. Edwards; auditors, Messrs. Bowley and Leadbeater. Owing to Mr. E. Tams resigning the secretaryship, Messrs. A. Hallam and W. Lovatt were elected joint secs. The balance sheet was read and showed a balance of £4 2s. 4d. in hand. It was proposed and seconded that we hold a table show at the next meeting on March 1st, and to have the following classes:—Norwich, Yorks, Goldfinch, Linnet, Hybrid, pair, and A.O.V., British class, one each. Mr. Leadbeater gave two specials, Mr. E. Tams 2, and Mr. J. Edwards a silver medal. Proposed and carried that Mr. J. Edwards judge. Also decided to hold open show on Oct. 8th. Eight new members were elected, viz., Messrs. Stocker, Smith, Holland, Bowers, Barker, Goodfellow, Goostry, and Hewitt.—HALLAM and LOVATT, hon. secs.

SHEFFIELD C.B.S.

Monthly meeting held Feb. 3 in the Wentworth Cafe, Mr. A. Bradshaw (President) in the chair. Our Secretaries announced they had been successful in securing Messrs. Mundell and Vardy as judges for our open show. The business of the evening was a show of matched pairs for breeding and a washing competition. There was a poor show of birds, only four pairs of Norwich and two of Yorkshires putting in an appearance. In Norwich, Mr. Porter was 1st and 2nd, Mr. Booth 3rd and 4th. In Yorkshires, A. Hobson 1st, J. Woolhouse 2nd. Mr. Tow, who was to have judged, could not be present, so Mr. Lindsay officiated. The washing competition was lagging for want of entries, so Messrs. H. Lindsay and J. Woolhouse volunteered to wash a bird each. We trust some of the novices got a little enlightenment from seeing the birds washed. While the birds were drying, our Secretary read the report of business for the annual meeting of C.B.U., and our delegate was instructed to vote for Mr. Longden's motion, "That any exhibitor not being a member of the C.B.U., be debarred from showing at Union shows, Crystal Palace excepted," providing our motion dealing with the alteration of Rule 22 does not pass." It was also moved that if the C.B.U. decide to run an open show for Union members only, it take all responsibility. Next meeting is to be a question night by ballot. Now, friends, come prepared to take part, and so make the meeting interesting. Messrs. S. Jackson and J. W. Thompson were elected new members.—J. WOOLHOUSE.

CITY OF BRADFORD O.S.

Annual dinner and social held at the Market Tavern, on February 8th, drawing together a company of 60 ladies and fanciers. We sat down to a splendid eight-course dinner. Dinner over, our chairman, Mr. W. Wharton, presided for the evening's entertainment. The ball opened with a waltz; then Miss Leach gave a song in fine style. Next lancers, then a couple of songs by Mr. Watson. Next a schottische, and then Mr. Furquhar gave a couple of songs. Then another waltz. The secretary gave a brief outline of last year's work and balance sheet, and proposed a vote of thanks to the ladies for their services in the refreshment room of the old show. Then we had a treat in store by the Misses Ogleby's duet. This was followed by another dance, and the interval. Miss Leach, Mr. Watson, and Mr. Farquhar gave us more songs, and Mr. F. Hammond proposed a vote of thanks to the artistes, which was seconded by Mr. F. Lindbrook, and carried unanimously. Messrs. J. Clark and J. Smith were efficient M.C.'s. This was one of the pleasantest evenings the society has ever had.—F. RHODES, sec.

YORKSHIRE C.C. OF SCOTLAND.

Annual general meeting held on January 25th, in Duncan's Restaurant, 71, London Street, Glasgow, there being a large turnout of members. The secretary's report and balance-sheet showed a very satisfactory state of affairs, the income for the season being £9 3s. 10d., and the expenditure £7 4s. 4d., leaving a balance in hand of £1 19s. 6d. The winners for the season were: Challenge Bowl and gold medal, J. B. Paterson (Ayr); gold medal for runner-up, Alex. Girvan (Ayr); third, Dr. C. Syson (Glasgow); and fourth, W. H. MacDougall (Fort William). The winners of silver medals for most points at each show were: J. B. Paterson, Dr. Syson, Alex. Girvan, D. F. Webster, W. H. McDougall, R. D. Braidy, and G. McRobbie. The election of office bearers for season 1910 was as follows: President, Mr. R. B. Gibb; vice-presidents, J. B. Paterson and T. Penman; secretary and treasurer, F. Bowman, 5, Parkview, Tollcross, Glasgow; committee, Messrs. T. Forrest, C. Martin, J. C. Sinclair, W. Hyndford, A. Robertson, and Dr. C. Syson (Glasgow), A. M. Baird (Paisley), W. Shewan (Fraserburgh), W. H. MacDougall (Fort-William), and J. McLellan (Renfrew); auditors and scrutineers, Messrs. E. Barron and D. F. Webster. It was decided to hold a pairs show at next meeting, the two classes to be yellow cock—buff hen, buff cock—yellow hen. Judge, Mr. J. B. Paterson. The meeting then considered the advisability of electing club judges at all shows accepting the patronage of the club, but as the hour was getting late it was decided to leave this to next meeting. A hearty vote of thanks to the retiring office bearers, also to the chairman, Mr. R. B. Gibb, brought the meeting to a close.—F. BOWMAN, Hon. Sec.

FALKIRK (Good Intent) C.B.A.

Monthly meeting held in the Oddfellows Hall on Jan. 29th, Mr. J. Hunter presiding. There was a good turn out of members, and some new fanciers were added to the roll. The principal business was the nomination of judges, whose election will take place at next meeting on Feb. 26.—W. CLUBB, sec.

GLASGOW & W. OF SCOTLAND B.C.

The annual "smoker" was held on Feb. 1st in the Bank Restaurant, Queen Street, Glasgow. Mr. R. A. Brown occupied the chair, supported by Messrs. J. McLay, M. Craig, and T. Tod. A very enjoyable evening was spent, the songs rendered being of exceptional merit, which the company present did not fail to appreciate. The chairman fairly excelled himself, his anecdotes being the feature of the evening. The meeting came to a close all too soon, the "smoker" being voted by everyone the most successful the club has yet held.—F. BOWMAN, sec.

MIDLAND COUNTIES Y.C.C.

The competition in connection with the club came to an end with the club show held in connection with the City of Birmingham members' show. Throughout the season the members have shown a laudable competitive spirit, and the ultimate winners of both champion and novice sections were in doubt right up to the finish. Appended is the table showing how members stand. Champion: Williams 81, Wells 78, Millincamp 61, Bishop 34, Raybould 26, Harris 24, Paddock 18, Hawley 19, Burke 8, Allen 7, Sutton 6, Mole 4, Evans 3, Steventon 1. INVERNESS O.A.

Annual general meeting held in the Mission Hall, Dempter Gardens, on February 2. In the absence of our esteemed president, Mr. G. Mackenzie, owing to family bereavement, Mr. G. Dorward took the chair. The balance sheet showed an income of £98 7s. 10d., and an expenditure of £98 7s. 7d. The election of office bearers:—President, Mr. G. MacKenzie; vice-president, Mr. Dorward; secretary and treasurer, Mr. A. Urquhart, 86, Telford Road; assistant secretary, Mr. Sutherland, 15, Wells Street. A large committee of management was also appointed. The next annual show was fixed to be held on November 23rd. The usual vote of thanks closed a most harmonious meeting.—A. URQUHART, sec.

FALKIRK AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

Usual monthly meeting held in Oddfellows Hall, the president, Mr. Dickson, presiding. It was agreed to hold annual show in the Oddfellows Hall. The secretary read a letter from the Editor of CAGE BIRDS, asking the members' support in the appeal case, a good sum being contributed from the members present. Amendments to rules were tabled to be decided at next meeting, and fixing of classes for annual show. The judges for the annual show were selected, but are yet to be written to. One new member was admitted. We had a table show of Norwich, some really good birds being brought forward. The awards were placed by Mr. R. Bennie, who gave every satisfaction. Results: 1, Simpson; 2, 3, 5, Millar and Eadie; 4, vhc, Hamilton and Wallace.—R. HAMILTON, sec.

ATTERCLIFFE AND DIST. C.B.S.

A very successful dinner was held at the Horse and Jockey Hotel on Feb. 10. The usual business of the meeting, which included the drawing up of an attractive programme of lectures, shows, etc., for the year, was speedily got through, thanks to previous work by the committee. The members and friends then set to work to appease their appetites with the good fare kindly provided by our worthy treasurer and host, Mr. H. Justice and Mr. I. J. Granger. I must here say a word of praise also to Mrs. Justice and the staff of helpers. When all had satisfied their hunger, the president, Mr. L. Havenhand, made a presentation to Mr. Justice; this took the form of a framed enlargement of himself (Mr. Justice). The speaker thanked Mr. Justice (whom he referred to as one of the society's first members) for his many kindnesses. It really does seem that there is no end to his generosity. In reply, Mr. Justice said he was delighted with the memento, and should prize it highly. He then produced a silver cup, which he formally presented to the society, saying he hoped it would make competition keener among members, and would long remain in the society's possession. This elicited a round of well-merited applause. The president thanked him for the handsome gift. Mr. W. Richardson (sec.) supported in his usual kindly and whole-hearted manner, and reiterated Mr. Havenhand's intentions of "trying his best for the cup." Mr. E. Johnson (vice-president) thanked Mr. G. Browning (Rotherham) and Mr. H. Taylor (Darnall) for their presence. He also thanked them in the name of the society for the services they had rendered. In this he coupled the names of Mr. F. Gregory (Ecclesfield) and Mr. Bagnall (Rotherham). Mr. Welbon supporting, said he hoped we should have them amongst us on many future occasions. Mr. Browning, in reply, said he was pleased to see the members, and had never seen the room look so nice. Mr. Taylor similarly replied. His section (Norwich), he said, showed a decided improvement on previous years. The most difficult yet most essential point to both obtain and retain in Norwich was good heads. Mr. Perry also thanked Mr. Justice for his generosity. I think the society is to be congratulated on having such a treasurer, such a president, and last, but not least, such a hearty feeling of goodwill among its members.—A DINER.

GOSSIP FROM THE PALACE SHOW.

Envious Eyes.

Perhaps the most handled bird, and probably the most admired Canary, in the show was the magnificent unflighted, yellow Yorkshire cock, exhibited by Messrs. Ambler (of Morecambe). On every day and at every hour one could see a knot of enthusiasts discussing his merits. This charmer was staged not far from Mr. G. Mitchell's fine yellow Norwich, and at times the gangway near these birds was quite blocked with admirers If one wanted to see any prominent Norwich or Yorkshire breeder upon business, it was only necessary to wander to this particular corner.

A Path of Roses.

Some fanciers struggle on for years and never attain dizzy heights in the Fancy. Among these cannot be counted Mr. W. Binns, of Blackpool, for in his third season with five exhibits in the Yorkshire section he secured two seconds, one third, and a h.c. card, and all among the champions. They were all birds of exceptional merit, and put down in A1 condition.

The South in Luck.

London has secured another Border enthusiast in the person of Mr. J. McGuffie (of Carlisle), who has taken up his abode in the suburbs. He intends putting up a goodly number of pairs during the coming season, so possibly his name will be added to the list of exhibitors at the London shows next winter. "The more the merrier." He was deeply interested in the show, and one of the readiest to give a bird credit for all the good points he possessed.

From the Granite City.

No visitor enjoys a show more than Dr. Galloway, from Aberdeen. He is a bird student as well as a bird exhibitor. The sex of an Albino, the age of a Britisher, or the parentage of a clear Mule, are all of deep interest to him. His albino yellow Bunting (clear yellow) was much admired, and the Doctor informed us that he has to be always careful to see that this bird has a good light in which to find its food and water, as, being a particularly bright pink-eyed specimen, it is somewhat weak in sight.

CRISIS IN THE AFFAIRS OF THE CAGE BIRD UNION.

There seems every indication that the Cage Bird Union is on the verge of a very serious crisis in its history. Following upon the fiasco at the recent annual general meeting (when the proceedings were shown to be "out of order") comes news that those two powerful South country organisations, the London and Provincial O.S., and the London C.B.A., are considering the advisability of seceding from the C.B.U. ranks. Hull C.B.S. has already resigned; and further resignations in the North are, we learn, imminent. We also hear of a proposal to form a Union for the West-country societies, and a Union for Lancashire societies (on the lines of the Yorkshire Union of C.B.S.) which will be found mooted on page 176 this week. Further, just as we go to press we are informed that Mr. W. A. Bladon (the present chairman) refuses to permit his name to go out as chairman for the coming year. Will the Cage Bird Union weather the storm, we wonder?

On a Good Thing.

One of the "plums" of the show was picked up by Mr. F. Tibbs (Battersea), this being a grand yellow Yorkshire hen of lovely type, destined to be a mate for a buff cock, hailing from the same aviary as the yellow champion of the show. May Mr. Tibbs breed some to beat both parents!

Size Takes a Back Seat.

Type and quality were the keynote among the Yorkshires, many big 'uns being left out in the cold. It is doubtful if anything over standard length came out on top. One country visitor (on his first jaunt to the Palace), was much surprised at this, and we verily believe expected to see some extending tho rule to about eight inches. Wasn't he surprised! "Type and quality; type and quality," he muttered; "I shall dream of it!"

The Jonques Score.

Border Fancy lovers had plenty for their money, and many a little discussion took place round this section. It is very doubtful if a better class of yellow cocks was ever seen at the Glass House; they were certainly ahead of the buffs for type and finish.

A Taste for Lancashires.

One old lady stood for some time in front of the first prize Lancashire, evidently admiring its massive proportions. At length she ventured to ask our artist if it sang. Some twenty minutes later he found her still in the same spot. "He hasn't sung yet," she murmured. "Do you know if he is for sale?" "Oh, yes," H.N. replied. "He is catalogued at £50, but I daresay the owner might take a bit less if you were to write to him." "Thank you," she replied, "but I won't trouble."

Enthusiasts.

Pa. Mundell and Harry Battye revelled in the Yorkshires. They judged them on the Friday, compared them again after luncheon, went through them on the Saturday, and discussed them once more on the Monday. When at last they had to reluctantly tear themselves away, a big slice of sunshine and mirth went out of the show. How they love a good Yorkie!

In Happier Circumstances.

One of the buyers of birds was Dr. Kellett, the medical gentleman who, with his wife, was involved in the recent terrible railway disaster at Stoat's nest, where a cage containing Canaries which they were taking home was smashed, though the birds themselves (like their owners) fortunately escaped injury.

A Fine Record.

The foreign Goldfinch which secured the first prize for Mr. A. J. Howie (Dunfermline), has a record this season of 11 firsts and 2 seconds out of thirteen visits to various shows, including wins over those Goldies to which, in turn, the bird played "second fiddle."

To Tickle the Yankees.

One of the features of the show was a huge glass case containing many scores of stuffed birds, artistically set up to illustrate the well-known legend, "The Death of Cock Robin." This exhibit attracted much attention, and we hear was sold at the price marked on it (£20) to go to New York to be used as a side-show in the Bowery. The case was the property of Mr. Lawrence, a well-known builder of Sydenham.

A Coveted Goldfinch.

An admirer of British Goldfinches paid £4 4s. (catalogue price) for the bird exhibited by Mr. J. Hannay (Maxwelltown), which stood unnoticed in its class, the cage-label having been marked "soft" by the judge when making his awards.

A Matter of Opinion.

There was much discussion over the "bibs" possessed by some of the Lesser Redpolls. Certainly we have never seen larger bibs than those exhibited by three or four of the birds in this class. Some of the "knowing ones" cast dubious glances at them, but unfortunately differed considerably in opinion as to which "might be" all right, and which "might be" all wrong.

THE FUND TO DEFEND THE BRITISH BIRD FANCY

The sixth list of subscriptions received by Mr. G. Crabb up to Wednesday evening last is as follows: The City and Suburban A.C.B., £1 1s.; Wimbledon C.B.S., 12s. 6d.; Douglas and Isle of Man C.B.S., 10s. 6d.; per Mr. W. E. Marriott, from the fanciers of Chesterfield, 8s. 6d.; Yarmouth Perseverance B.B.S., 8s. 6d.; Lincoln C.B.S., 7s. 1d.; Long Eaton C.B.S., 5s.; Larne C.B.A. Committee, 5s.; Oldham C.B.S., 5s.; Huddersfield O.S., 5s.; Edinburgh Eastern O.S., 3s. 6d.; Hebden Bridge and Calder Valley O.S., 3s. 3d.; Wallsend and Mid-Tyne C.B.A., 3s.; Stockport B.F.A., 2s. 6d.; Hetton-le-Hole C.B.S., 2s. 6d.; T. E. Miles (Norwich), 2s. 6d.; W. Perkins (London, S.E.), 2s. 6d.; Stockport Dealers (per the Stockport B.F.A.), 2s.; Mr. T. H. Inman (Bradford), 2s.; F. J. Fiddes (Montrose), 1s. 6d.; C. Haskin (Blyth), 1s.; D. Carstairs (Perth), 1s.; C. Croall (Perth), 6d.; J. Robertson (Perth), 6d.; Mr. A. Richardson (York), 6s.; and Mr. W. Hall (Harrogate), 3s. 6d. These amounts total £6 5s. 10d., and, together with the amounts already acknowledged bring the aggregate subscriptions received up to £48 5s. 3d.

This is a fund being established to enable an appeal to be made to the High Court of Justice, against a decision arrived at by Mr. Biron (the magistrate sitting at the Old Street, London, Police Court), at the instance of the R.S.P.C.A., that no person may be in possession of a recently-taken British bird if that said bird is included in the list of protected species for the district in which the said person resides. Whether the bird was legally taken in a district wherein it is not protected they contend does not affect the case. The society recently brought a test case (Preston and Flowers), and the extreme seriousness of the aforesaid decision will be at once apparent. It means that in protected districts (and they comprise practically all the thickly-populated areas and towns in the British Isles) everyone who keeps a newly-taken British bird, and every dealer who exposes one for sale, can be prosecuted and fined.

We, however, have it on high legal authority that if this decision of Mr. Biron be taken to the High Courts there is every likelihood of it being set aside, and in response to a request, have opened a fund to enable this course to be adopted, and the legal aspect of the question to be adequately thrashed out, as the defendants in this test case have not the means to carry the matter further, the estimated cost being from £50 to £60.

Sympathisers should send their contributions at once, addressed to Mr. George Crabb, c.o. the Editor, CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C., and state clearly in their letter that it is intended as a donation towards the "Preston and Flowers Defence Fund." Mr. Crabb is the well-known gentleman who for so many years was chairman of the London and Provincial O.S., and has very kindly consented to act as treasurer.

I was much struck with the case of Messrs. Preston and Flowers. I think it high time that steps were taken to protect both the catcher and the dealer. I suggest that there should be formed a society for that purpose. I firmly believe there are scores of readers, especially catchers and dealers, who would be only too pleased to pay a yearly subscription to such an association. I think that if an association of this kind could be formed it would be a splendid thing to protect the dealer and catcher from having his birds illegally taken, as is often the case. The W.B.P.S. is all very well to a certain extent, but I think they often carry things a little too far. We British will soon be ground down as the Russians are.—A FANCIER (Gorleston).

NOTE.—If an answer is required concerning the proper mating, etc. of Norwich, Yorkshires, Crests, Cinnamons, Greens, Borders, Lizards, Scotch or any other variety of the Canary family, we shall, should the querist desire us to do so, be pleased to submit his question for answer to some leading specialist of the day on the variety concerned.

CANARY QUERIES.

About Breeding.

"Birdi."Unless done for some special object, it is not advisable to in-breed so closely as father and daughter. An occasional mating of this kind will have practically no ill effect at all if the parents themselves have not been previously in-bred. Still, when no particular object is in view, it is always best to avoid mating such close relations. The hen you refer to, with thick scaly legs and feet, will probable never see her third year again; it is doubtless some distance behind her. Whether she would be any use for breeding depends solely upon her health and stamina. If quite brisk and lively, and showing no signs of decay, she would probably breed more or less successfully, but, on the whole, I should prefer to tempt fortune with a younger specimen. If the aviary is in a tolerably quiet place, free from constant disturbances, you would doubtless succeed all right in breeding by hanging a nest-box in it. Most hens prefer the nest rather high up in these cage aviaries. Note that I say a nest-box. I think you would find the ordinary square wooden box more suitable in such a position than a nest pan. Now is just about the time to begin to feed up the birds. You would do well to get our new CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL, for information on this point.

Another Trio.

A. J. H.—(1) It is not very often I imagine that birds are too fat for showing, so long as they are in good health, and have plenty of life and vivacity. But when they are, you can only limit the diet to stated quantities, as referred to in several replies the last two weeks, when the ordinary course of a plain canary seed diet, with plenty of green food, and unlimited space for exercise, so to speak, fails to bring about the desired result. (2) It depends upon what you have for rape, whether it is too relaxing for the winter months. Personally, I have yet to discover that good summer rape, properly stored and mellowed, is at all relaxing. On the contrary, I have frequently increased it in the diet of birds for no other purpose than to correct a too relaxed condition, and the result has generally been O.K. But some of the seed now sold as German rape, or summer rape, is undoubtedly very relaxing, but I neither use it largely nor advise others to do so. (3) From what you say about this hen, I do not advise you to rely upon her as a foster mother, or you will probably find you have built upon a very rotten foundation. By-the-bye, you say you do not want to breed anything off her, but I presume you know that in order to utilise her services as a foster mother, it is essential to mate her, in order to get her to go to nest in the natural course.

Various Elementaries.

Spivinix.—I cannot see your object in wanting to place feeding perches one inch apart at the same level as the feeding holes. Do you mean placing the perches at a distance of one inch from the feeding holes? If so, they would do very nicely at that distance, and about the same level, or the perch very slightly below the level of the feeding hole, is also about the correct thing. But to have two perches at only an inch apart must be quite unnecessary, and I cannot see what use you have for them unless your cages are exceedingly small. I prefer seed hoppers of the trough shape, if I might so term it, with a piece of glass for the front and wooden cover on top. They are usually supplied this shape, though not always with glass front, on the breeding cages you buy ready-made. If the glass vessels you use are of the bottle shape—that is, with cover-over top—they are as good as any you can get for preventing waste of seed. Those named above are also excellent for economy. The best form of economy, however, is not to supply elaborate seed mixtures, but to give different seeds separately. So long as the water is pure and fresh it is not of vital importance whether you supply soft water or hard water for drinking, though the latter is certainly seriously contaminated with impurities from leads, storage cisterns, etc. Soft water is the best to supply for bathing purposes. You must give a few more particulars about the symptoms of the cock. Probably there is little, if anything, the matter. Give him a pinch of Epsom salts in water for a day or two, and if not better write again, and say how you feed and treat him.

The Reason Why.

Pixie.—It is quite possible for the feeding to seriously affect the quality of the Roller's song. In your case, however, unless I was quite certain to the contrary, I should feel inclined to suspect it was of the wrong sex. Feed on a mixture of two parts canary to one part summer rape as a staple. Twice a week give a pinch of a mixture of equal parts hemp, black rape, inga, and broken sunflower seeds, and on two other days each week for the next month give a morsel of bread and milk, sprinkled with soft sugar and a pinch of gold of pleasure seed strewn over it. Stop giving apple now, and give instead a little greenstuff four times a week, but see that it is quite free from frost and wet. Mix as much chlorate of potash as will cover a sixpence in a small teaspoonful of honey, reduce to a soft paste with biscuit powder, and give a piece the size of a small pea every second day as long as it lasts. Stick it on the end of his perch for him to peck off. See that he is quite free from draught. The feather picking is probably due to his being pestered with red mites. Examine cage very carefully, and if any are found thoroughly eradicate them, by means frequently repeated in detail in this column.

Pants and Wheezes.

Mrs. Scott.—I suspect the bird has got over the first flush of youth, and is now taking life easy. Still, it should not pant and wheeze, but as it still sings so well there cannot be much very serious the matter. It is quite likely he got a chill in the moult, or otherwise he is probably now exposed to draughts, or sudden extremes of heat and cold, or impure air. Attend to this matter; see that draughts are totally avoided; that the temperature is fairly equable, and do not allow the cage to hang near or above burning lights in the evenings. Feed the same as advised to "Pixie," but there is no need for you to give the honey compound. You can get the gold of pleasure seed at any dealer's in birds' food, but see that you get the proper article—a small brown-coloured seed, about the size of maw seed. This is necessary, as some seed retailers seem rather hazy about this seed, and I have myself been supplied with both yellow mustard and red millet when asking for gold of pleasure. In the drinking water give six drops of syrup of rhubarb, and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence for three consecutive days, and after that give twenty drops of whisky, six of oxymel of squills, and two of eucalyptus oil, well shaken together, two days in every three for a week, and every second day for another week afterwards, if necessary.

Bad Behaviour.

Tonic.—Your bird is probably in a very bad way, and I can only advise you in general terms, as you have omitted all mention of your feeding and general management. You should keep him in a box cage, that is, one with wire in the front only. Also see that it is hung in a comfortable and equable position, not necessarily very warm, but where there is as little fluctuation as possible, and quite out of the way of the heat and fumes of burning lights in the evenings. See that the cage is kept perfectly free from insect pests. If, as I imagine, you place a vessel inside its cage for it to bathe, you should discontinue this, and get a bath made to hang on the open doorway, and thus avoid unnecessarily alarming the bird. You may then offer it a bath three times a week in mild weather, but only do so providing it does not appear any worse after bathing. Feed on a mixture of three parts canary to one part summer rape as a staple. Every second day for the next fortnight give half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with two drops of cod liver oil emulsion well mixed in it, and on two other days each week give half a teaspoonful of a mixture of hemp, inga, teazle, millet, and black rape in equal parts. On each of the remaining days give a spray of watercress, or any other green food available. In the drinking water give six drops of syrup of rhubarb, and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence every second day for a week, and during the next week give six drops of tincture of gentian and four of aromatic sulphuric acid every second day. Keep the cage floor well strewn with clean, gritty sand.

Colds and Losing Feathers.

E.A.E.—It is certainly the great fluctuations of the living room that is the cause of the bird's condition. If you arrange to have the cages hung in a position which is quite free from draught, and yet is well away from the fire or any lights burning in the evenings, so as to be as free as possible from fluctuations, you had far better take them into a cold room with no fire at all. This I think would be your best course, but see that the room is free from draughts and damp, and choose a time when the weather is mild to make the change. Do not attempt to force them into moult thoroughly, or you will only make matters worse. Feed as advised to "Hilda," but give half a teaspoonful per bird of hemp on the days between the sponge cake. Give six drops of tincture of gentian and four of tincture of steel every second day until the moulting stops, and on the alternate days give twenty drops of whiskey, five each of oxymel of squills, paregoric, Ipecacuanha wine, and two of eucalyptus oil, well shaken together, in two tablespoonfuls of drinking water. Continue the latter for a fortnight, or until the wheezing stops. You would be well advised not to mate any of those which show the wheezing in such a pronounced form as you mention, and do not attempt to mate any until about a month after the moulting is quite stopped. With luck you may get them ready by the middle of April.

A Removal, etc.

Frank Hambrook.—The change from a noisy room to a quiet one should be wholly beneficial, and if the two rooms are practically of the same average temperature you could make the change any time without any fear of harmful results, and in any case it would be best to move them before any are mated. A slight difference in average temperature on either side would be of no importance, but if the room you wish to move them to is considerably colder than the one they are in now, you had better wait until April, when the weather is more settled and milder, before moving them. Similarly, if it is very much warmer you should either wait awhile, or take any possible steps to bring it down to something nearly approaching the one now occupied by the birds, or you will run a risk of throwing them into moult still more deeply. I do not quite understand what you mean by saying the feathers are turning a trifle white. If you will write again and explain matters, I will do my best to help you. What colour are they? How long have you had them? Are they colour-fed? Is it the body of the feather or merely the tips of webs that fade? Have the cages been recently white-washed with whiting that rubs off? As regards the moulting, so far from being a good thing for them at this season, it is evidence of something being wrong with the management. Keep them quite out of reach of draughts, and allow no sudden extreme of heat or cold where they are kept. Feed on a staple of three parts canary to one part summer rape. Every second day give a half-teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake, with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion well mixed in it, and sprinkled with a pinch of gold of pleasure seed. On the alternate days give a pinch of hemp and a morsel of ripe banana. In the drinking water give six drops of tincture of gentian and four of tincture of steel every second day until the feathers cease dropping out.

The Only Way.

Hilda.—If there is a considerable difference in the temperature of the two rooms, this is undoubtedly the cause of its condition. The reason he was not so last winter is simply due to the fact that he had not been exposed to these conditions so long then, and was also a year younger to resist adverse influences. Would it not be possible to let him remain at night in the room where he is kept by day? This would be the best thing you could do, and he should not be too near the fire, where the fluctuations of heat are greatest. Keep him in a box cage, and do not hang him in the window at all, nor expose to any draughts at any time. Feed on a mixture of three parts Canary to one part summer rape as staple. Every second day give half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion well mixed in it, and sprinkled with gold of pleasure seed. On the alternate days give a few grains of hemp, and a morsel of ripe banana. In the drinking water give six drops of tincture of gentian and four of tincture of steel two days in every three for a week, and every second day afterwards until the feathers cease dropping. He will not come in full song until the moulting is quite cured.

A Duet.

Caledonia.—(1) You are probably keeping the Roller in an unsuitable position. See that its cage is well away from the heat and fumes of burning lights in the evenings, that it is perfectly free from draughts, and in a position not too near a fire, where the fluctuations between day and night temperature will be as little as possible. Keep it quite free from mites, and nicely strewn with clean gritty sand regularly. In addition to the staple diet give a morsel of bread and milk sprinkled with soft sugar, and a pinch of gold of pleasure seed strewn over it twice a week for the next fortnight. On two other days give a few grains of hemp and inga, and on each of the other days a spray of green food. In the drinking water give twenty drops of whiskey, ten of glycerine, and one of eucalyptus oil, well shaken together, for three consecutive days, and afterwards six drops of tincture of gentian and four of aromatic sulphuric acid every second day for a week. (2) Feed the Norwich the same as above for a month, and stop all other foods. Also see that the same precautions are adopted as regards its position. In the drinking water give six drops of syrup of rhubarb and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence for three days, and afterwards twenty drops of whiskey, five each of oxymel of squills and paregoric, and two of eucalyptus oil every second day for a week, or longer as may appear necessary.

Dizzy Roller.

U.C.W.C.—You are both feeding and keeping the bird incorrectly, and this is doubtless the chief cause of its illness, but as the attacks seem to be periodic, I should suspect that something which perhaps passes the window at these intervals causes a shock to the bird. You should not allow him to hang in the window, as it is quite impossible to prevent extremes of heat and cold in such a position, and very nearly so to prevent draughts. A box cage, and a position further in the room where it is nice and bright and fairly equable, is far preferable. It is also probably in an overfed condition, and the attacks are, I suspect, of an apoplectic nature, induced probably by some kind of shock. Feed it for the next month on a diet of plain Canary seed only as a staple. Twice a week give half a teaspoonful of summer rape separately, and on each of the remaining days a fair-sized spray of watercress, or any other green stuff that may be obtainable in good condition. When green stuff cannot be obtained, a morsel of banana, or orange, or a grape with the skin broken, may be given instead; but green food is to be preferred. Stop all other dainties. In the drinking water give a pinch of Epsom salts for two or three days, and afterwards four drops each of tincture of gentian, and dilute sulphuric acid every second day for a week.

Not Proven.

Melange.—It is almost impossible to forecast the result of any particular mating without being quite certain of the full pedigree of the birds for some distance backwards, on account of cinnamon blood being so widely diffused amongst the variety nowadays. Yours is a case in point. The first mating you mention of a pure cinnamon hen with a pure clear Yellow cock shows clearly in the result that the supposed clear Yellow cock was not "pure," but had cinnamon blood in him, although he may not have shown a trace of cinnamon colour. Had you examined him closely you would have found he was pink-eyed, showing his cinnamon relationship. In the second case also you will doubtless discover the cock was a clear-bodied pink-eyed bird. Had the cocks in question been quite free from cinnamon blood, you would not have produced any cinnamon-coloured youngsters at all. It depends solely upon the strength of the cinnamon blood in these cocks whether the cinnamon-marked is likely to be a cock or not. In the circumstances it may be quite possible for it to be a cock. If it proves so, I should advise you to mate it with a clear-bodied pink-eyed Yellow hen well over standard length in preference to a Buff. The result of the foul Green cock and cinnamon-marked hen will be Green and Green-marked, and probably an occasional cinnamon and cinnamon-marked.

Premature Efforts.

W. Wilson.—Your attempts at breeding are too premature for any success to attend them. You cannot do better than read and digest the remarks about mating in the book sent you, by which you will see that you ought not, in any ordinary circumstances, to have mated the birds for nearly two months, and also that it is quite useless putting birds together if they are not ready for mating. From what you say about the hen, I am afraid she is very far off being ready for mating, and it will be all you can do to get her into good condition by the proper time. Separate them at once, and very carefully examine your cages to be sure they are quite free from red mites, and, if not, deal with them in such a way as to thoroughly rid the cages of them before the breeding season arrives. Feed the hen on a mixture of three parts Canary to one part summer rape seed. Every second day for a fortnight give a morsel of bread sopped in milk and sprinkled with soft sugar, and a pinch of gold of pleasure seed, and on the alternate days a pinch of a mixture of equal parts hemp and inga. Give a spray of watercress or other green food three times a week. In the drinking water give six drops of syrup of rhubarb and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence every second day for a week, and during the next week give six drops of tincture of gentian and four of aromatic sulphuric acid every second day. After the first fortnight drop the medicines, and bread and milk, and give half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake, or egg food, every third day; the same quantity of a mixture of equal parts hemp, inga, gold of pleasure, and sesame seeds every second day, but missing the days when the egg food is due to be given, and a little green food, including a leaf of dandelion, on each of the alternate days.

Brevities.

Mate for Yorkshire Green (Kirkdale).—Another green, a good sound-coloured self buff green, as sound as possible on throat and at vent, is the best mate for breeding good greens. If possible, get a hen quite free from any taint of cinnamon blood, and it will also be an advantage if the cock complies with the same condition.

Mating (Greenie).—As you do not know more about the parentage of the foul green cock, you could not do better than mate him with the clear yellow hen, on the stray chance of his being the offspring of a cinnamon cock, in which case, assuming there is no cinnamon blood in the hen, you will be almost certain of producing green-marked and cinnamon-marked, and clean-bodied, pink-eyed young. All the young showing cinnamon colour will invariably be hens.

The Fabled White (F.I.A.T.).—The only way in which you can hope to get as near as possible to colour negation short of a pure freak of Nature turning up to help you backwards or forwards is to mate only those birds as pale in colour as possible, and with a complete absence of any dark or smoky-hued underflue when you blow up the feathers around the base of the tail, flanks, etc. Place absolutely no reliance upon such fables as rearing them on biscuit and milk as a short cut to get light-coloured birds. If it were not so the path of light Mule breeders would be easy.

Various (Amateur).—If your object is to get the best possible quality of song, you should get a Roller hen to mate with him, but if you wish to produce a better looking bird than the pure Roller, and do not mind losing a little in quality of song, you would do well to mate him with a Yorkshire hen. Whichever you choose, the young will have to be educated or trained. But teaching with a pipe or whistle is apt to prove worse than useless unless the operator is exceptionally clever. It will be better to depend upon letting them have the company of one or two thoroughly good singing Roller cocks. The hen may be an old one. In any case I should not place high hopes on her performance this season.

When Ready (T.B.).—It depends to a certain extent upon the breed of the birds when youngsters hatched in August are ready for breeding. Left to their own inclinations probably nearly all would commence breeding by the following April. But with large breeds, such as Lancashires, Crests, etc., this is not desirable, and the best course would be not to mate them before May and only take one nest from them in the first season. Small breeds, such as Rollers or Borders, might be mated at the usual time—the end of March or beginning of April. For others, about the middle of April would be a suitable time, and of the medium-sized breeds two nests the first year should be the limit.

What Difference? (Novice).—There is none. A Norwich Canary and Norwich Plainbead is one and the same breed. The latter term is rather a useless relic of former times. Fifteen or twenty years ago when controversy raged hot and long about the type and naming of the Crest, there were many who favoured retaining two types of Crest and Crestbred—large and small, the small to retain the name of Norwich Crest and Cresthred, as the prefix Norwich was very commonly used for Crests. In those days it was more necessary to use the term Plainhead to distinguish the Norwich as we now have it from the Crestbred. But as the prefix Norwich was dropped from the name of the Crest and Crestbred, there is really no necessity now to retain the term Plainhead.

Order of the Bath (Novice Bath).—Healthy vigorous birds which dry themselves quickly and do not appear to suffer from any chill afterwards, may be allowed to bathe every day all the year round if they so desire. Those that seem to be adversely affected or sit huddled up after bathing, should only be allowed to bathe once or twice a week, and that on nice mild days, in winter, increasing the frequency as the weather gets warmer, until they, too are allowed the bath daily in summer. The best way to supply a bath is to have a proper bath cage to hang on the open doorway of the living cage, when the bird can pass in and bathe and return to his living cage to dry himself. Baths can also be bought to hang on the open doorway after the manner of a seed hopper. Next to these, you can get a small china bath to go inside the cage and stand on the floor.

Lancashire with Cold (Arthur A. Llewellyn).—Keep it in a comfortable place, away from all draughts, and feed it as advised to "Pixie." There is no need, however, for you to give the paste of honey, etc. In the drinking water give twenty drops of whisky, six of oxymel of squills, and two of eucalyptus oil, well shaken together, two days in every three for a week, and every second day for another week afterwards, if necessary. If this does not make a great improvement, repeat the treatment for another week, but omit the eucalyptus and add in its place five drops each of paregoric and chlorodyne. If the eyes have not ceased being watery, dissolve as much boric acid as will cover a shilling in a tablespoonful of hot water, add two drops of laudanum, and drop a few drops of this on each eye daily for a few days.

What Mate (Anxious).—As is most usual in asking this question, you give no idea what you aim at producing. But even then Cinnamon blood is so widely disseminated amongst the Yorkshire that unless you knew for a certainty whether the bird in question possessed any Cinnamon blood, it would be practically impossible to give a correct forecast of the result of any suggested mating. If it possesses no taint of Cinnamon blood, and is a good sound colour throughout, a self green hen for breeding pure greens would be a good selection, or a clear buff for green markings and variegation, with an occasional rich coloured clear. If paired to a Cinnamon hen, still assuming it is fincent of Cinnamon blood in itself, the young would be greens and heavily variegated greens, but if it has a slight taint of Cinnamon blood there would probably be a percentage of Cinnamon variegated young, as well as greens.

Canary Seed Sample (G. Dear).—The E sample which was missing last week has now turned up. It is a very nice plump seed, but none too well ripened, and seems to contain a fair amount of extraneous matter. If the bulk is not dusty, it is of very fair quality, being sound and sweet. It would fall between G and F, as reported on last week.

To Breed Greens (H.B.).—Another Green is the best mate for your bird to breed Greens. You should also choose one quite free from any suspicion of foulness in wings or tail, and as sound as possible in colour at the vent. Soundness in colour at throat is, of course, also most desirable, but you should make the above-named points especially indispensable.

Albinistic (J. Pano).—I'm afraid I can only advise you to go on breeding until that freak of Nature—an Albino of each sex—turn up, and then try to perpetuate them by mating together. A really white Canary would be quite of the nature of a freak, and I know of no royal road to produce it. One of the most promising subjects to experiment with which I ever saw was sent to me dead a short time ago. It was almost white, but in reality was an extremely pale washed-out Buff.

A Bad Case (C.B.).—I fear the bird has had a severe chill and is in a bad way, and shall not be surprised if he has managed to "shuffle off this mortal coil" before this answer appears. If he has not, keep him fairly warm; not too much so, but quite free from draughts. Give two drops of a mixture of two parts syrup of buckthorn and one part brandy direct into the beak every hour for three hours. In the drinking water give twenty drops of brandy, six of syrup of rhuharb, and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence for one day, then miss one day, and give the same dose again for one day more. After this give six drops of tincture of gentian and four of aromatic sulphuric acid every second day for a week. If it feeds fairly well, give plain Canary seed and a spray of green food daily only for the next week. But if it does not feed well give a small piece of bread and milk sprinkled with soft sugar daily in addition until it begins to eat seed freely. Report result in a fortnight, and I will advise further.

Baldness in Hen (L.H.D.).—Sorry I mis-read your initials last time. Continue treatment as previously advised, save that instead of giving the bread and milk substituto half a teaspoonful of crushed stale sponge cake twice a week, and each time mix in it three drops of cod liver oil emulsion, and as much of the sulphur and potash mixture as will cover a threepenny-piece, provided this latter does not cause too much looseness, in which case you must give a smaller quantity. Stop giving the salts, etc., in the drinking water, and give instead six drops of tincture of gentian and four of aromatic sulphuric acid every second day for a week, then miss a week, and give it again for another week. In all other respects perscvere with the last advised treatment for another month, by which time you should begin to see new feathers growing freely, if they are going to be reproduced.

Improving Size (H.H.).—You should be able to get plenty of suitable material ready-made by selecting good, large, stout-bodied Crest-bred or Crested cocks—Yellows, if possible; but if these are unobtainable, give preference to ticked or variegated Buffs. Note, I say stout-bodied, as you must not make the mistake of taking a bird with plenty of length to be a large one, as there is a possibility of an undue share of that kind of size being in mere tail feathers. But if you prefer crossing and making your own material, select a Yellow Lancashire Plainhead hen, with as much size as you like in substance of body, and plenty of headgear, but not too typical in other points, such as a short, stiff-tailed specimen. Mate her with a good stout Buff Crest and retain the largest and chubbiest specimens to mate back again to Crests, and discard those that revert most notably to the Lancashire. Keep your eye on Crest properties both in head and body points, and you will soon weed out the undesirable points whilst retaining a good share of the size you desire.

Growth on Wings (H.C.B.).—I rather suspect the irritating effect of red mite attacks is the indirect cause by making the bird pick its wings until a sore has formed. Thoroughly examine cage, probing any likely harbour with a pin, as frequently detailed here, and if any mites are discovered take drastic steps to eradicate them. Allow the bird to bathe freely, and occasionally soak a few quassia chips in the bathing water overnight. Anoint the sore places sparingly twice a week with boracic ointment. Add a pinch of summer rape to its diet every second day, and for the next fortnight give a morsel of bread and milk sprinkled with soft sugar. Give a spray of green food four times a week.

Breeding Border Fancies (Beginner).—You can breed them quite successfully in a room not heated, especially as it abuts on one that is. The great thing is to see the room is free from draughts and dampness, and yet capable of being well ventilated. Sudden fluctuations should he sufficiently safeguarded by the adjoining heated chamber. As you have the birds in a warm room, however, you should defer their removal until April, and choose a time when the weather is milder. You must not mate the birds until after the removal. By using a good hard drying paint or enamel, and giving it time to get quite dry and hard before introducing the bird, it is perfectly safe to paint or enamel the insides of the cages. Plain Canary seed only is the best staple food when birds are not breeding. A pinch of summer rape should be given separately about every second day.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S. M.B.N.H.S., etc.

The Blue Whistling Thrush.

W. R.—This bird is not difficult to cater for; it is as large as a small pigeon, and will need a roomy cage, and once it has got a bit tame should be permitted to take a fly round the room occasionally. A cold room will do to keep it in, but it must not be subject to draught. Diet: Soft food (any good mixture, see advertisements), such fruit as it will take, and live insects—a dozen mealworms per day will not be too much—in the summer give it any insects you can capture. Some give meat, raw beef finely minced. I never have approved a meat diet for birds, but a little will not hurt it, but you can supply any meat scraps you have left from table; mince finely, and put in soft food saucer. A little milk sop will also be acceptable if the bird fanciers it—milk sop will not harm the insectivora. Hope you'll have luck with it; they are a grand species.

Indian Shama.

S. S.—The cock Shama has the head, upper and tail black, with the exception of the rump, which is white—the black of the upper surface is very lustrous and has a bluish sheen; the under surface is rich, shining, chestnut-brown. The female has the colour areas similar, but she is, though a trim and pretty bird, but a washed-out resemblance to her handsome lord. Hens are quite rare in this country, and worth more than the males. Note: The sexes only agree together during the breeding season; at all other periods they must he separated. Several good soft food mixtures are advertised in our pages; for obvious reasons I cannot name any particular food. A good soft food mixture can be made as follows: 2 parts game meal, 1 part each crissel, good ants' eggs (cocoons), and dried flies; well mix, and store in closed tins; it will keep indefinitely in any dry place. For use, take the portion required, and make it crumbly moist with boiling water, a four-pronged fork makes the best mixing tool, and add a good portion of crumbled sponge cake. Live food of some kind must also be given. It will sing a Song.

In Poor Plumage.

W. J. F.—It is not a case of illness. You will have to separate the birds up a little. The Bullbuls ought never to be caged with small birds, and even in an aviary they need watching. For one day put half a teaspoonful of Dinneford's Magnesia to each ounce of the drinking water; give this, say, once a week for a month, and lightly colour the drinking water most days with Parrish's chemical food. If you can induce them to take it, supply a little crumbled sponge cake, moistened with scalding milk, and when cold dust with flowers of sulphur. If they will eat fruit, let them have such as they will take, green food (tender lettuce, when possible), and spray millet ad lib. The birds are picking themselves, and should be broken up into couples till they are in plumage again, and should be kept warm, yet not away from light and air. You should also keep them in the room which has the most equable temperature. The Avadavats should have a cocoanut shell nest, with some hay and moss. Spray the birds with quassia solution (can be procured from our advertisers) to get rid of possible parasites. If these pests are in your cages, you must get rid of them somehow, by baking, scalding, or other means. By the return of the warmer weather the birds should be in presentable condition again, but you must keep a watch, and cage up separately the principal picker. Two good books are "Aviaries and Cages" and "Foreign Birds for Beginners." Note the advertisements, and write the Publisher, CAGE BIRDS.

Brevities.

What Parrot? (Rex).—I regret I am at fault, and cannot name your bird without a little more information. Please describe the head: you simply say small bead. It is probably one of the Conures, which do not, as a rule, talk much. I am keeping your query before me.

Sexing Budgerigars (M.V.).—The cere surrounding the nostrils is blue in the male and dark brown in the female; in plumage they are similar. Yes, they use either a husk or log for incubation purposes; no nest is built, the eggs are laid on either the hare wood of the log or fibre of the husk, the birds first hollowing out the cavity to their liking.

What Bird? ("Anxious to Know").—I am of the opinion your bird is a Long-tailed Grassfinch, the present value of which is about 15s. a pair. If you are acquainted with this species, and the bird is such, then I must ask you to kindly try and describe the undersurface of body a little more minutely, and I will then have another try in our next issue; but I think the name is correctly given. What is the colour of the top of the head?

Pekin Robins (Tyro).—I am afraid I cannot help you. From your description, the birds are evidently all young and in nestling plumage; even when adult the sexual distinctions are not easy to distinguish. When picking from a crowd of adult birds, pick one of the brightest coloured and slimmest built birds, and another rather stouter built, and with the yellow areas and red wing markings less intense than those of the brilliant coloured specimen. Diet: Soft food, ripe fruit, and some live insects.

A Feather Plucker (C. Bland).—It is the bread and milk that is doing the mischief. Cease giving this, and confine the dietary to seed mixture, ripe fruit, nuts, plain biscuit, cuttlefish,; otherwise, treat as already advised. You must persevere. After a bird assumes this babit, it is not readily laid down, and it will probably not he thoroughly right till after the next moult. If it craves after sop, give it plain biscuit or dry toast well moistened with chemical food water.

Budgerigars (P. C.).—You have a bird infected with what is popularly known as "French moult," and I question is you can do much for it; the only thing you can do is to try and give sulphur in some form. Try soaking its seeds all night, rubbing off all superfluous moistnre in a cloth, and then dusting with flowers of sulphur. Try the same method with moistened household bread and plain biscuit; also well colour the drinking water with Parrish's chemical food, and supply a little ripe apple in lieu of green food. As soon as you can obtain it free free from frost, supply grass in flower (seeding grass) ad lib.

What Cockatoo? (Cockney).—Your bird is a trifle large for Goffin's, and I make it out to be Cacatua gymnopis, known as the Bare-eyed Cockatoo, and I incline to the opinion that your bird is of this species. At least, I cannot fix your description to any other. The Blue-eyed is the next nearest, but there are several rather striking features which do not appear in the description you give, but I think I have correctly named it as above. It is worth from 50s. to 60s., according to condition, tameness, etc. I will give the matter further consideration, and if I find occasion to change my opinion will state same in this column next week.

Birds for Indoor Aviary (Mills).—In such an aviary as yours, it is really dangerous to keep Budgerigars with Finches; they might agree perhaps for twelve months, or even more, but sooner or later tragedy would be the record, sometimes the slaughter begins at once. Again, if you wish to breed hybrids, you must not have more than four pairs of birds, and even this is too many, but as you wish to go to the full limit try the following cocks with the same number of hen Canaries:—Alario Finch, St. Helena Seed-Eater, Green and Grey Singing Finches, or failing any of the above, any species of the genus Serinus that happens to be on the market. Hybrids have been bred between the following freely imported species: Grey and Green Singing Finches, Bronze and Magpie Mannikins, Nutmeg Finch, and Bengalese, Ribbon and Red-headed Finches, Indian and African Silverbills, Silverbills and Sharp-tailed Fluches, and many others. You can, if you choose, put in six pairs and take your chance of breeding anything. Merely as a collection, it would accommodate 30 birds not larger than Canaries.

Pekin Robin (Foreign).—See replies to "Dublin" and "Tyro" in this issue.

What Hangnest? (G. W.).—I think your bird is the Black-sided Hangnest (I abeillii), but I will give the matter further consideration, and confirm or otherwise next week.

Value of Grey Parrot (R. C.).—Assuming that the Parrot is in perfect feather, and a well marked bird—silver greys are much appreciated—such a bird as you describe should be worth at least £10 to £15. Some would give even more. At the same time, purchasers for such birds are not found every day, and it really resolves itself into what you can get for it.

Breeding Budgerigars in Cage (T. T.).—My book and my replies have always been very definitely in favour of box type cages for attempting to breed foreign birds in, though I have known instances of their doing so in an all-wire cage, and they will in all probability do so in your "Crystal Palace Aviary." Put a busk in each dome, and keep them where they will be free from draught. Feed, etc., as advised in your book.

What Parrot? (H. G. L.).—(1) It is a Roseate Cockatoo, and should be fed on seed mixture, ripe fruit, plain biscuits, and a few nuts. Also supply cuttlefish, grit, and water regularly. Mixture: Canary and white millet seeds, hemp, oats, paddy rice, maize and sunflower seeds in about equal parts. (2) Budgerigars are not easily tamed; patience and quietness must be your only methods. They are very fond of grass in flower (seeding grass), as soon as this is plentiful feed them with this from your hand. It might help to tame them if you cut the flight feathers of one wing. These birds, as a rule, do not like handling; some of mine come and eat from the hand or from a food pan held in the hand in the aviary, but they resist handling at once. "Budgerigars and Cockatiels," from this office, has a chapter on taming.

Foreign Bird Querists will find in our handbook, "Foreign Birds for Beginners," 1/1, and "Budgerigars and Cockatiels," 6d. post free; a mine of information of use and interest.

Budgerigars Ill and Dying (E. E.).—It seems to me under the circumstances you are doing the best you can. Your mistake has been changing them from one place to another at this season. It is very evident that their present place, though eminently suitable for them once they have been hardened off, is more exposed than the place they previously occupied, and the probability is you may lose them all; however, you can do nothing more than you are doing, and if the worst happens procure another pair from some outdoor aviary the end of March or early April.

Liothrix Nightingale (Dublin).—This is the well-known Pekin Nightingale Robin (Liothrix luteus). I am glad you have not treated it entirely as a seed eater; I should not advise you to let it have much seed, say, a teaspoonful twice a week. Diet: Soft food, ripe fruit ad lib, and some live insects. Their capacity for song is very varied. I have heard and had some good ones, and some very poor ones also. But their beauty, hold and confiding demeanour endear them to all bird-lovers.

Red-crested Cardinal (J. Hardwell).—Supply a seed mixture of canary and white millet in equal parts, and supply a little hemp, sunflower seeds, and oats as extras, also ripe fruit, and a few live insects—two or three mealworms per day will be ample, and in the summer give any beetles, smooth caterpillars, spiders, etc., you can capture. Yes, certainly it can go outside in the summer. It is a hardy species, but you must not hang its cage in a draught. I have a specimen in my outdoor aviary at the present time, which lives out of doors all the year round, and is in the finest health and condition. It has been there seven years, and will probably live several years more yet.

An Aviary for Breeding.

F. Gray.—Make your selection from the Finches and Buntings and you cannot go wrong. Do not include more than one Chaffinch, Bramblefinch, or Yellowhammer, or, at least, a pair of each. And if any prove incorrigibly quarrelsome, remove them at once. A few small Foreigners, such as Saffron, Singing, Parson, Spice, etc. Finches would add colour and variety. Our Mr. Page would oblige with a suitable list. Fix up dead hawthorn, bramble, furze, etc., "bushes," bundles of pea-sticks, and suitable dead (fir, etc.) branches. Live shrubs soon become an unsightly mess. You can try one or two if you like, changing them when necessary—that is, giving them a spell outside. Privet, box, holly, and other evergreens would be very suitable for the purpose. See also the reply given to "Constant Reader" last week.

Feeding Mules.

New Reader.—Mules are very hardy, as a rule. The feeding of all the Canary crosses is carried out on very similar lines. All require a little "richer" seed diet than that usually given a Canary. A good seed mixture at this season of the year is: Canary three parts, teazle two parts, hemp one part, charlock and summer rape half-part each, maw and linseed quarter-part each. In the hot weather reduce the hemp and linseed. Stop them altogether, as a regular thing, during the height of summer, and begin again with them when the moult is nicely advanced. Any of the special Finch or wild-seed mixtures advertised in our columns will make a good and acceptable change, given twice or so a week. A little sunflower seed twice or thrice a week would also be sure to be appreciated; crack it, if necessary. Any of the usual green foods may be given—flowering groundsel (not coarse leaves), chickweed, shepherd's-purse, dandelion, lettuce, watercress, etc. The second and third may be given freely. They are liked exceedingly by all Mules and Hybrids. Your birds should sing "like one o'clock" if fed as advised above.

Linnet-Canary Mules.

Beginner. I rather think I dealt with this the other week, anyway, you might also look up that information given by me in the last few issues. The best mixture for a Linnet now is: Canary and teazle four parts each, summer rape two parts, charlock one part, and linseed one part. Give a good pinch of hemp one day, maw the next, and inga the next. You should gather shepherd's purse, flowering groundsel, chickweed, dandelion, etc., whenever obtainable. All these are very valuable in getting one's birds into high breeding condition. The hen Canary ought not to have the same mixture as the Linnet. Plain Canary seed should be given her, and about a teaspoonful of summer rape on alternate days. When not giving the rape, let her have half a teaspoonful of hemp; alternate the latter with the same quantity of maw and inga mixed (equal parts). This will give variety, and be quite "forcing" enough. A little egg food twice or thrice a week can be commenced about the beginning of March. But be guided by the condition of your Linnet; you don't want the hen to commence laying eggs before he is "rank," or they will of a certainty be clear. His beak will be blue-black, and his song very vigorous and free when he is in right breeding condition.

Managing a Hawfinch.

Big Beak.—I have frequently given particulars of the feeding, etc., of Hawfinches. The principal food is sound, plump, white sunflower seed, or mixed sunflower and safflower. Sunflower seed, which is black, or striped, however, is not bad, by any means; still, I prefer white, myself, whenever obtainable. Give this, and a mealworm or two every day or so, the bird asks for little more, though the sunflower should not be given alone, but have other seeds with it. The mealworms, however, should be given direct from the fingers; they are a great help in keeping (and getting) a bird steady. The bird also appreciates hemp, linseed, Canary, oats, and sometimes a little buckwheat, summer rape, small Indian corn, etc. His powerful beak makes short work of beechmast, suitable nuts (walnuts, etc.), plum and cherry stones, bawthorn, privet, etc., berries, and the like. They appreciate a little young lettuce, watercress, chickweed, shepherd's purse, also ripe apple, pear, etc., occasionally. They make an exception in favour of tender green garden peas, of which they are passionatcly fond, and these are especially good given in the pod. They are fond of a bath, so let him have one whenever the weather is suitable; daily, if possible. The free use of water is the finest possible thing to keep him in good condition.

British Bird Querists should purchase our "British Bird Manual," published in two parts, "Hardbills" and "Softbills," price 1/- each, or in cloth cover together, 2/3 post free.

Show Points of a Greenfinch.

A. P. F.—I certainly think a Greenfinch a fine bird for the beginner to start with. The main exhibition points are size, shape, and colour. Size as laarge as possible; shape very cobby (Norwich) type, with broad, rounded chest, very wide bold head, and thick-set neck; colour, a rich green (fanciers term it "grass-greeu"), with a very pronounced edging of golden yellow to the sides of the tail and the outer flights of the wing. Shepherd's purse, chickweed, knot grass, mouse-ear, plantain, dock, groundsel, charlock (wild mustard), thistleheads, are all liked by the Greenfinch; also sunflower beads, grown in the garden. The seed menu mentioned I consider an admirable one; just the thing, in fact, I would expect from so practical fancier as the writer of that article.

A Tree Creeper.

Miss Stanley.—The Tree Creeper is a highly delicate species, and no one should attempt to keep it who is not well skilled in attending to the wants of tiny insectivorous birds, otherwise it is certain to die. The stock cage should be a large one (say, 24ins. long, by 20 high by 14 wide), and the back and sides must be lined with bark (called "virginian cork" at shops where it is sold), for the bird to run about on. Perches are not necessary, though I generally have one in my own cages. The wire front must be of half-inch gauge, not more, and the best feeding vessels are those which swing in through openings in the front rail of the cage. If the sides and top of the cage are not bark lined (the back must be), they should be lined with a thick material, such as good quality baize (glued on). For food the bird must have an insectivorous mixture of the finest quality (containing plenty of good ants' eggs) prepared in the usual way with finely grated raw carrot or minced greenfood, a little minced hard-boiled egg being frequently added. Live food is essential to the bird's continued well-being—flies, aphides, wasp-grub, small scoured gentles, small (or cut-up) mealworms, live ants' eggs, and the like. Unless you can cater for the bird properly, don't attempt to keepit. Try a species less delicate. If already "well on food," however, a Tree Creeper will survive the winter on a really good insectivorous mixture; mealworms should never be given at all freely once the bird is eating soft-food well.

Brevities.

Identity of Bird (A. A. R.).—The description you give seems to indicate a Reed Bunting, probably a hen. If you find that it lives entirely upon Canary seed, this confirms my view. I don't know of any other seed-eater "in size and shape resembling a Chaffinch," to which your description could apply, though the latter seems very vague, as, for instance, when you say "slatey grey, same colour, I think, as that of a Crow." Are not the Crows in your district black? Or are you referring to the Hooded Crow? In conclusion, can it be an escaped foreign bird?

Answered by FRANK FINN, B.A., F.Z.S.

Management of Peafowl.

D Cutter.—Peafowl should be fed very similarly to poultry; if they are allowed a free run, as is usually the case, they will pick up most of their food in fine weather, and only need some corn every afternoon; but if confined, some green food, and some soft food with an admixture of meat, such as table scraps chopped, should be given also daily, the soft food in the morning and the green meat at midday. As to breeding, you must let them alone; the hen will hide her nest, and must not be interfered with in any way. When she appears with the chicks, keep an eye on the cock, which may be ill-disposed to them. The chicks should have some food such as is given to ordinary chickens, egg and breadcrumbs at first, then chicken meal. They stay with the hen till as big as she is, and she must be allowed free range with them, and not be cooped.

Indian Game.

H. Blackett.—Indian grain is a kind of pea, used out there for feeding horses and sheep, and in the form of satoo, or meal, for soft-bills, as you say. It is, however, not only used for delicate ones, but for soft-bills in general, and fine quality being employed for the most fragile birds. Hardy ones, like Mynahs and Bulbuls are fed simply on a paste of this coarse pea-meal and water. For more delicate birds it is mixed with ghee (clarified butter). I do not see any particular point in using it here, but it could do no harm at any rate, if added to a food. One secret of the Indian fanciers' success is that they give their birds plenty of live insects, especially grasshoppers, the best food for birds of the insectivorous kinds.

Goldfish for Glass.

X. Y. Z.—In a glass 12 inches across you should not have more than two three-inch goldfish, or three two-inch ones; the commonest mistake made in keeping these is overcrowding. Feed on dried ants' eggs, as many as they will eat, everyday; also keep a good spray of watercress, one with roots on it, floating in the bowl; they will feed on this, and it will live some time. When it begins to turn yellow, take it out and replace with fresh. Take out about half the water every day or two, and refill with fresh; every week or so remove fish to another vessel with a little net, and clean out the whole thing. A few water-snails kept in the glass with the fish are good scavengers.

Mule Breeding with Owls.

The Owl's Mistress.—As the Barn Owl has settled down with the Brown Owl, and they both go into the hole in the old chimney together, I should certainly think she was of the opposite sex to the Brown Owl male, and you are probably on the way to a very interesting experiment. You are quite right in not putting your hand in, not only for fear of disturbing her, but you might also be well scratched. Keep an eye also on the male, and remember that the Tawny Owl when breeding is one of the fiercest of birds, though he might be still safe with you. If attacking he would come at the face. Your idea of keeping an extra supply of food outside is quite right; it is natural enough for owls, which often store up a supply when hunting has been good. This is really all you can do. I wish you success, and hope if you have any you will let CAGE BIRDS know.

POST MORTEMS.

Mr. G. Yates, M.R.C.V.S., 525, Caledonian Road, Holloway, London, N., will examine and report upon dead cage birds for a fee of 2s. 6d. each bird; for reply direct, 2s. 6d.; analysis, 21s. Subjects for post mortem examination must be sent packed in a box direct to Mr. Yates, with the fee, this and any accompanying letter being kept from contact with the dead bird. Any bodies sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

G. V. Mower (Cock Budgerigar).—Your bird died in a fit, brought about by haemhorage on the surface of the brain. It was in an overfat condition. You should slightly reduce the diet of remaining birds, and give them a small quantity of glauber salts in their drinking water twice weekly for a time. The double loss is but a coincidence, as there was no evidence whatever of infectivity.

G E. Rathjan.—Replied by post.

GENERAL.

Answered by the Editor.

Cage Bird Union Rules (C. P.).—We do not supply these. You should apply to the Sec. of the Cage Bird Union, Mr. J. Raynes, 9, Richmond Road, Chorlton-cum-Hardy, Manchester.

Birds Dead on Arrival (Reader of "C.B.").—The only legal remedy open to you is to sue the sender through the County Court for the value of the two birds which arrived dead. The railway company, we believe, would be liable to the owner of the birds.

The Yellowhammer Sensation (Manx Novice).—Your letter does not raise any new point, and we think the judge's decision can well be left to speak for itself.

An Article (A. W. Farmer).—We hope to publish the remainder of the article mentioned in our next issue.

Photographs (J. H. Jowett).—Many thanks for the photographs. If you care to send us toned copies we might utilise one or other of them in a future supplement.

Cutting (E. Mayns).—Accept our thanks.

Drawings, etc., of Birds (B. M.).—We are much obliged to you for giving us the opportunity of inspecting your handiwork, which we think interesting and promising.

A Question of Carriage (G. P.).—We can only refer you to Rule 9 (see page 154). We think that the sender would be unable to recover the value of the dog (in any difference) from your friend.

Correspondence.

Will Tame Bullfinches Breed in Captivity?

SIR,—In answer to Mr. P. J. Jamieson in your last week's issue re the breeding of Bullfinches in captivity, yes, with care and luck he should succeed easily enough. I started with a pair caught in February, and had eggs the same year in an outdoor aviary of about 4ft. square. The first nest of eggs were clear; from the second nest I managed to keep two (out of four) for a week, but could not raise them. The next year I tried the same hen with a Linnet—two nests all clear. Then the third year I tried her with a Bramblefinch in a double breeder. He started eating the eggs, and her ladyship was not long learning how to do it as well. I had to leave home early every morning, so had no chance of watching for eggs except on Sundays. I got only one egg, and this was cracked, but I feel certain it was fertile. Let P. J. J. try an ordinary double breeder with the slide out—one about 16in. square each side. For food I gave about equal parts hemp and Canary, with a pinch of linseed and rape for a change; also a few crushed oats. A piece of Yorkshire pudding was always relished by them. Green food of all sorts I gave in season, and fruit in the same way. Cuttings from almost any fruit bushes or trees when budding are soon picked clean; and rose shoots when covered with fly are a treat to them. I used a felt lined nest box, and gave some building materials, but they did not attempt to build a nest.

A. P. NEWTON.

SIR,—In answer to Mr. P. J. Jamieson's letter in CAGE BIRDS of Feb. 12th, re the breeding of Bullfinches in captivity, I may say I had a pair that bred with me two years in succession. The first season I only got one nest of four eggs from them. Last season I got three nests of four eggs each. The first season all eggs were clear. I had better luck with the second season's; I got six young from the three nests, two in each, but I could not rear them any further than a fortnight old. I could not give them the right feeding, so if any one can help in the feeding time, it is quite possible to breed the birds in the aviary. I put a fir tree top in the darkest corner of my garden aviary and put in moss, dried grasses and hair, and let them fly among my Borders, which they never disturbed. They built a neat nest themselves; then the hen sat two days before laying. She laid for four days in succession. The cock took his turn at sitting whenever the hen came off for a pick.

ALEX. BRUCE, jun.

The Disqualified Yellowhammer at the Crystal Palace Show.

SIR,—I see by CAGE BIRDS report of the Palace show that in Class 108, for Yellowhammers, my bird was disqualified for trimming of the V-shaped head markings. The bird's head markings were perfect when he left the Isle of Man of February 2nd, and all wrong when he arrived home on the 9th inst. The top of the V marks have been tampered with on the right side of his head; feathers have been cut or pulled out. It wanted no "glass" or "X rays" to see it. The 'Hammer I consider one of the best head-marked birds I ever saw, and I doubt very much if you have one in England as good. I see I have friends in England, as he was a real good bird, and would hold his own anywhere. I have never trimmed or dyed a bird in my life, nor have I ever seen one done. We are not so well advanced in the Fancy in the Isle of Man as to be able to do that. The Yellowhammer has been judged in the Isle of Man by Mr. Wellings (of Prescot), who, I think, could tell a trimmed bird when he saw one. Will Mr. Wellings let readers know in next week's CAGE BIRDS whether the bird was trimmed when he judged and examined my Yellowhammer. I hope to be able to show at the Palace next year again, all being well.

ERNEST GALE.

SIR,—Regarding the disqualification of my Yellowhammer (number 1838) on the Saturday night, when I saw the catalogue of the Crystal Palace Show, and the result, I at once sent a letter to the manager, Mr. Ramsden, saying that he might retain my Yellowhammer and have it examined by another expert before returning it to me, as I denied any artificial colouring or trimming, and I hoped he would let me know the result. I again wrote Mr. Ramsden, saying that I insisted on his not returning this bird with the rest of my exhibits until he and his committee had got an explanation from Mr. Silver (the judge) as to his reason for disqualifying it, and if he had not had the bird in his hand I insisted on his taking the bird out of the cage and examining it again before coming to a hasty conclusion. This bird has been shown under every well known judge in Scotland, also at the L.C.B.A., and this is the fourth time it has been at the Palace. It has never come home cardless except once (that was from the late City of Glasgow Show) and the present disqualification is the greatest disaster that has befallen it during the five years of exhibiting. I went on to request Mr. Ramsden to send my bird to the authorities of the N.B.B. and M.C., or the Scottish ditto, to see if they could come to the same finding as Mr. Silver, as I emphatically deny either trimming or faking in any shape or form. The result of the above request of mine is that on Friday, the 11th inst, I got a postcard enclosed in a sealed envelope from Mr. Ramsden saying that my bird had been disqualified for having trimmed feathers on the head. He says they are certainly not natural, three judges and myself are quite sure of this. I wrote him again by return of post, requesting him to retain my bird in his possession for a time and pluck from the bird's head the supposed trimmed feathers, and keep the bird in his or any of the other three judges' possession until the feathers grow again, as I can pledge my word that they will grow clear again, for I still emphatically deny any alleged trimming in any shape or form. Since seeing the report in your valuable columns, I may say that Mr. Silver has made a mistake in saying that this bird is trimmed. I have given Mr. Ramsden every power to prove to your readers that my bird was not trimmed, and I am only sorry that he did not avail himself of this power before returning the bird to me (which I received on the 12th inst at about 8 p.m., none the worse for its nine days' holiday). Now, Mr. Editor, I am prepared to return this bird to Mr. Silver if he requests me to do so, for him to pluck the supposed trimmed feathers from its head, and keep it in his possession until they grow again, and let your numerous readers know the result, as I don't like to be accused when not guilty. I may say that I had another postcard from Mr. Ramsden on Monday, the 14th inst, saying that he was returning my bird, and that it had been examined and certified to have cut or damaged feathers on head. I have examined the bird myself since it came home, and have found that its feathers are damaged. But I am willing to allow my bird to undergo the above enquiry to prove that they were not trimmed.

GEORGE MARLIN.

Wanted: A Roller Club for West Hartlepool.

SIR,—I think it would be a good idea if a Roller Club was formed in West Hartlepool for the district. It could include Stockton, Middlesbrough, Darlington, Sunderland, and Newcastle, and the surrounding district. Leeds is the nearest place where there is any Roller singing to be heard, and I think there are plenty of Roller fanciers in this district to form one. I hope to hear from some of them through CAGE BIRDS. ROLLER NOVICE.

A Lizard Canary Club for the Northern Counties.

SIR,—I have been requested by several northern fanciers to take in hand the formation of a Northern Lizard Club for the counties of Northumberland and Durham. I would be very pleased if fanciers who are interested in such a club, and intend joining, would communicate with me at 14, Plantation Road, Pallion, Sunderland, so that steps may be taken to proceed with the formation of the club as soon as possible, in order that something may be done for the variety during the next show season. W. REID.

Cinnamon-Marked Yorkshires at the Palace Show.

SIR,—Your reporter makes a most surprising blunder in reporting the cinnamon-marked Yorkshire classes at the Palace Show. He credits Messrs. Ogden Bros. with winning the special for the best cinnamon-mark with their buff cock, and a special note is made in the introductory remarks. My unflighted yellow cinnamon-marked cock (1st) won the diploma for best bird, and it was most disappointing to see the honour credited to someone else. Kindly correct in your next issue in as prominent a position as possible.

Nantwich Show Report.

SIR,—As a reader of your paper, will you allow me a brief space to offer a protest against the unfairness of the report in your last week's issue? I am just at a loss to determine who is the writer of it—whether it is from the pen of a disappointed exhibitor, or from a brother judge. If the former it is not what I have conceived to be true sportsmanship; if the latter, then it is a most unjustifiable attack on the judgment of the gentleman who acted on this date, and certainly very damaging to the society who engaged him. The suggestion of the writer that some mistake had been made I must dismiss as childish. The very thing the report complains of, viz., the decline of the Fancy at Nantwich Show, it being pointed out that it has been going down for several years—your reporter proposes a very foolish and unbusinesslike way to remedy. If we had a few such tactless men conducting its business the society would soon become extinct. We novices made a good attempt to give the show a lift, and because we carried one or two first prizes over the heads of some of the writer's pets, he takes upon himself to act as a final authority. With respect to the bird, I might say he is rather long in leg, if anything. After admitting this, he has a good round body, good neck, and head in proportion; his condition, above all, could not be beaten, and he is as clean as a pink. To prove the bias of the writer, he does not appear to have had the courage to give the bird one single good point. This, to my mind, rules him out of court as an authority.

[We do not, as a rule, publish comments on show reports, as these, like judges' awards, are expressions of personal opinions. As, however, our reporter's good faith has been challenged, we print the above letter, to give him a chance of replying, if he so wishes.—EDITOR, CAGE BIRDS.]

A Linnet Singing Club for Newsham and District.

SIR,—Kindly allow me to inform readers of CAGE BIRDS that we have started a Linnet singing club at Newsham, and that we shall have a meeting on February 19th at seven o'clock, when members can be enrolled.

Should Blind Mules Win at Shows?

SIR,—Your issue of January 22nd contains a letter respecting blind Mules at Yarm Show. Mr. Houlton apparently does not wish to enter into correspondence with my friend "Tyro (Darlington)." Perhaps Mr. J. C. Barnes, of Sheffield, may give your readers the reason that the same dark Greenfinch Mule was blind at Guisborough Show on New Year's Day? READER.

A New Cage Bird Society for Choppington and District.

SIR,—Owing to the Choppington Club being disbanded at the last meeting at Choppington, a new society is being formed, and the headquarters will be the Social Club, Choppington Station, when the majority of the principal members of the last club will be in attendance. The first meeting will be held on February 26th, at 7 o'clock. All who are interested in the above please attend, and let us have a good set-off and make this society a huge success.

Whose Should the Prize Card be?

SIR,—On reading my CAGE BIRDS, I was greatly surprised at seeing by Mr. Parlett's letter that he did not get his prize card from Bathgate Show last year. I was the purchaser of the Yellowhammer. He accuses me of "stealing" his prize card, but I am glad to say I did not need to steal the card, as I have plenty of my own, and I have a witness (into whose cage I ran the bird at the show) who can prove that the card was left hanging on the cage, and was hanging on it when we left the show to catch our train. I hope this will relieve Mr. Parlett's mind, and I hope he won't be in such a hurry another time in accusing anybody until he has proof as to who is to blame.

A Recipe Wanted for a "Conditioner."

SIR,—In reply to an enquiry in last week's CAGE BIRDS for a recipe for a "conditioner" by a correspondent, Mr. G. P. Morgan, I give below what I think this gentleman requires. The recipe was given in CAGE BIRDS a long time ago by Mr. J. C. Barnes (Sheffield). I usually cut out anything I think likely to be of future use to me, and keep same in a book used for the purpose, with index, so that I can turn up anything required at once. The recipe reads as follows:—"Recipe for a 'conditioner': 1 Pint best port wine, 1lb. honey, 1oz. citrate of iron and ammonia. Heat the wine, add the honey and citrate. Stir well until all is dissolved, let it go cold, then bottle up. It is then ready for use. Make up some soft food and maw seed, add sufficient of the mixture to make it moist, not wet. Dose: Half-teaspoonful per bird every other day."

[Mr. J. Holder, and several other readers, have been kind enough to write on the above subject quoting the same recipe.—Editor.]

The Judging of Roller Canaries.

SIR,—I was surprised to see Mr. Foulds' letter in your last week's issue on the above subject. He says in viewing the judging sheets of the present season, he finds I have frequently deducted points for high schockel, and on referring to the judging standard published in the British Roller Canary Club's rule book, he finds I have no authority to do so. I would ask him to look again at the rules, and he will find ugly interjections in the song; "interjection" which means a word thrown in between others to express some emotion or passion. I think that is sufficient to cover any faults a bird should bring without any need to alter the judging standard. I think the ones who framed the rules have not left any loopholes for Mr. Foulds to pick a bone with them over. He says many birds sing schockel in both a high and low key. I prefer to say they sing it in a low key, and bring it in a high one, and it is in this high one I have penalised birds to the extent of one point. I don't think Mr. Foulds will have heard many fanciers say during this last show season the song of the Roller has been monotonous, for there have been birds out this time with a splendid variety of tours, and not many faults. A bird should be penalised for high schockel as he would for high bell roll.

J. NETHERWOOD.

The Norwich Plainhead in Ireland.

SIR,—As an old hand in the Irish bird Fancy, I must congratulate your paper on its "Notes from Erin." The few paragraphs from week to week are certainly very welcome. Some time ago the writer complained of the Norwich men not showing enough at shows outside Ulster. Well, anyone who has read the reports of Leinster Shows will find that Messrs. Stewart, Thompson, Carson and Barclay showed their champions, and for the few years the Norwich Plainhead Club of Ireland has been in existence, I could only find one Leinster man a member, "How's that, umpire?" Take the recent Sligo Show, which I understand was the largest show held during the season, how many Leinster men showed there? Certainly I give credit to the Cork fanciers, who supported it well, both in the Plainhead and Yorkshire sections. It is easy to write, Why don't the Northern men do this and that, when, as a matter of fact, the Leinster fanciers are all bound up in Dublin, where, as the song says, "If they don't do much they have plenty to say," etc. Now what I want is all parts of Ireland to help at every Irish show next season—pay prize-money prompt (no Kathleen Mavourneen system), and thus let the strong help the weak. Could not the Norwich Plainhead Club have a rung bird competition on similar lines to that of the Yorkshire brethren? This would keep down buying prize-winners from the Lancashire boys; it would test the Norwich or Crest breeders, and would "shove" this particular part of the Fancy forward. Some years ago we had plenty of support, and something worth looking at from Dr. McMath, Messrs. Camp, Isaac Reid, Osborne, Chapman, Dobbin, Powell, Fortune, Waugh, Rowe, and many others, who should awake from their sleep and be ready to breed something good for next show season. I noticed Holywood, Co. Down, are thinking of starting a society. As this place is only a decent walk from the City of Belfast, I have no doubt the fanciers there will help. I spoke one time to an Ulster exhibitor about non-support at a Leinster Show, and he informed me that a lot of trouble arose over retaining special prizes. However, one can't be dead certain, as this occurred years ago; I always got mine without any trouble. In concluding, I wish all Irish fanciers a good breeding season with their birds. As to supporting shows, of this more anon!

SCEPTRE.

Early Norwich Plainheads in Wales.

SIR,—Mr. R. Isaac (Portmadoc), who has for two or three years taken up the Fancy as a hobby, is at present having wonderful luck, having successfully reared three fine strong Norwich Canaries, which are now four weeks old, and are at present on the perches in the aviary amongst the other birds, including Goldfinches, Linnets, Mule, etc., quite a happy family. In the midst of all the twittering and din of the other birds, three more hen Canaries are peacefully sitting in their nest pans, with a total of 13 eggs, which I hope will be a lucky number in this case. Mr. Isaac safeguards the feeding of the youngsters by leaving the gas alight through the night, so that the parent birds are able to feed them at any hour, and I believe that is the secret of the birds being so strong and healthy at this time of the year.

A NOTED WINNING LINNET.

"Pride of Cumberland." Winner of 1st Prize Crystal Palace (1910) Show; 1st and Spl. Carlisle; 1st and two Spls. Whitehaven; 1st and Spl. Cleator Moor; 1st and Spl. Harrington; 1st and Spl. Frizington; 1st and Spl. Egremont, etc. Exhibited by Mr. G. Wilson (Frizington).

Nests of birds, Poultry, etc., should be regularly sprinkled with KEATING'S POWDER, especially when hens are sitting. Don't forget to do this just previous to the eggs hatching, to destroy the Red Mite. It kills all insects, harmless to everything else.

The Preparation of Crests for Exhibition.

SIR,—I think many remarks made by lecturers are most disheartening to the novice, and therefore detrimental to the Fancy, particularly the Crest. I bred a Crest last year and exhibited same seven times, winning four firsts, two seconds, one third, and several specials. I would advise Mr. Wright to ignore the lecturer's remarks he refers to, for I can assure him the only preparation this bird has ever had consists of sponging the Crest just previous to sending away, and yet the formation is perfect. T. GROVES.

How to Arm Nets.

SIR,—The first thing to learn is the way to make the "knock." You begin with a loop of the thread on your needle. I put a nail in the corner of my table, and then put the loop over the nail; your thread is then ready for a start. Take the needle in your right hand, hold the mesh stick in the left, but only hold the stick with your thumb and first finger. Now with your needle and stick you bring the thread on to the top of the stick, pull out tight, and bring your thread round your third finger, and between your first finger, so that you get it on your thumb alongside the nail. Keep your thumb with thread on the stick tight, then bring the thread up to the loop, and pass the needle through the loop in your hand, catching the thread round your little finger. Then let go all except your stick and the thread that is on your little finger. Pull tight, and see that your mesh stick is all right. You now let go of the thread that is round your little finger, and pull tight with your needle. "Quick does it." That is the right way to make a "knock." Now the thread I use is Knox best 35 flax thread. It runs from 5s. to 7s. a pound, from the maker. You can get it at the shops on reels. But anything will do to learn by, even a bit of string. As to the arming of nets. I use strong light stahing thread. I don't like the net made on the arming. I make arming on the nets. I take the top row of net, and put the thread through every mesh. Having done this, I make fast one corner and pull tight. I see that the net hangs square, and I make fast again the other corner. I then count six meshes, and make one half-hitch, and one over the top of that on the line of thread that runs through the top of your net. Go backward and forward about four times. You must have your nets run right out tight to do it. You will find your nets are always square this way, for it is the strongest way. I am a bird-net maker, Mule breeder, and bird-catcher. I have been at it now for this last 15 years. If anyone wants to know anything on Mule-breeding (I am the largest Mule-breeder in this town), I will tell them in CAGE BIRDS, whether Linnet, Goldfinch, Siskin, Bullfinch, or Chaffinch, and Canary Mule, for I have had them. The two latter died when a fortnight old.

The Making of Wire Cage Fronts.

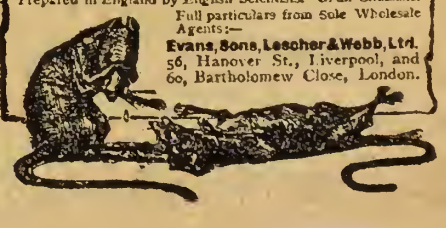
SIR,—After reading Mr. Western's "idea" this week I thought perhaps he would be kind enough to give me a few hints on the making of wire cage fronts and the kind of frame used for same. No doubt they would be welcome to others who would like to make their own fronts. Many thanks for the information I have received from your valuable paper. W. H. WALKER.

Classes for British Hens for Hybrid Breeding.

SIR,—Will you permit me to correct a mistake in your report regarding an exhibit of mine in the British hen class at Irvine Show on February 5th. It describes my third prize bird as a Yellowhammer, while it was a Bramblefinch hen. As the class was scheduled "Any variety British hen suitable for Hybrid breeding," I could not have shown a hen Yellowhammer in it without being disqualified as not complying with the conditions. Your reporter's note on the first prize bird, a Corn Bunting ("many thought wrong class") was to the point. How a British bird judge could justify his selection of a Corn Bunting hen as a Hybrid breeder is what I should be glad to learn.

ANDREW D. DUNCAN.

Prize Money at Dulwich O.S. Show.



SIR,—At Dulwich O.S. Show we entered a Goldfinch, also a Greenfinch-Linnet hybrid, but received a letter stating that hybrid class was cancelled on the day on which entries had to be taken in. The Goldfinch was placed fourth. After a lapse of a month without any letter from the secretaries, we wrote enquiring when prize money was to be paid. Receiving no answer, we wrote again, after three weeks or so, stating that they could keep prize money from Goldfinch, but would they please return the entrance fee for hybrid. In about a month's time we received a latter stating that a postal order for 3s. was enclosed also prize card, but no money order was inside. By return of post we sent the letter back, as received, asking why they had said 3s. was in the letter, as only 1s. 6d. was returnable. This was the last we heard of the matter. Mr. Roberts has given up the showing of British birds in disgust.

A CRISIS IN THE AFFAIRS OF THE CAGE BIRD UNION.

A Metropolitan Sensation.

Two Leading London Societies likely to Secede from the C.B.U.

SIR,—A question having arisen in the committees of the London and Provincial O.S. and London Cage Bird Association as to the advisability of discontinuing membership of the Cage Bird Union, a joint sub-committee was appointed to deal with the matter. This joint committee having met, has decided to recommend their respective societies to withdraw from the C.B.U.

R. L. CRISP, Chairman L.C.B.A.
J. W. RAMSDEN, Chairman L.P.O.S.

Suggested Union of Lancashire Societies.

SIR,— On reading the report of the Cage Bird Union annual meeting, it makes one almost ask, what use is it all? It has usually done nothing (only making a bad name for itself) which the report plainly shows, and now, with others in different parts of the country, I think it about time that something wa done, as the C.B.U. cannot do what it was intended to do. I am well aware of a Lancashire society that has a minute on its books to the effect that all societies in Lancashire be written asking to try to arrange a meeting to form a union such as the Yorkshire Union (which seems to work all right), but it was decided to waive the matter a little to see how the C.B.U. went on at this meeting. Now it is plain to see that there must be a complete reformation of the C.B.U., or else every county try to form its own union to arrange show dates, etc., the same as the Y.U. I hope that some abler pen than mine will take the matter up, as if there could be six to ten societies got together, a good start could be made. For the present (much to my disappointment) owing to holding a prominent position in a large society, I shall have to resort to the use of a nom-de-plume.

LANCASHIRE UNION.

The Cage Bird Union in the North.

SIR,—I have been much interested in reading the correspondence from various fanciers, under the above heading, and am pleased to see that there are five resolutions, viz.: Nos. 5, 7, 8, 10 and 12, that are most important to direct or affiliated members of the C.B.U. to be discussed at the C.B.U. meeting at the Palace. Until December 31st last, I was a member of an affiliated society, but have since then been suspended for one month, by District Council No. 4 of the C.B.U., for showing British birds at Halifax on December 18th 1909. I am not complaining about being suspended, as I expected it, and it does not trouble me in the least. But what I strongly object to is, that my case was discussed at full length in our club room, and with great animosity on the part of the delegate of the C.B.U., who reported the matter, who also happens to be the president of the C.B.S., of which I was a member. This discussion, mind you, took place after report had gone in, and previous to the hearing of my case, and this particular delegate openly declared that he would do his utmost to get me suspended for two years, or one year at least. I complained of this delegate's conduct by letter to the chairman of the meeting of the C.B.U. District Council No. 4 (which I duly attended by invitation), and the facts stated in that letter no doubt influenced them in the light sentence passed upon me (doubtless to save their delegate's face), and in their wishing me to appeal against their judgment. The Tribunal was composed of only four delegates, including the chairman and the delegate reporting the case. In my opinion no prejudiced person should sit on a tribunal; it is unfair and unjust, especially in this case, where he had already stated the penalty he should try to get imposed. One is not at all surprised to see there is so much complaint about the C.B.U., if their officials elsewhere introduce personal animosity when discussing cases of members who have broken a rule. I think I hear someone say, "Serve you right for doing it." I have already said that I expected suspension. Why? because I deliberately broke rule 22, and for the sole object of bringing this rule more forcibly to the notice of the C.B.U. I should like to mention that I put two questions to my judges, as follows: "Why were some members of the C.B.U. allowed to judge at non-licensed shows and other members not allowed to exhibit at same?" and, "Why were non-members of the C.B.U. allowed to judge at shows held under C.B.U. rules?" I failed to get a satisfactory answer. Where is the justice of rule 22? I should also like to point out that I had been an affiliated member of the C.B.U. (before I was supplied with a copy of their rules) nearly three years. This is not right and fair to fanciers. Their attention ought to be called to the rules, particularly 22, before acceptance as members. I quite agree with one of your correspondents that a great number of C.B. societies became affiliated to the C.B.U. not by a majority of their members on the books, but by a majority of members present when the question was put to the meeting. This is a case of the majority being in reality a minority; and this is why I consider the Rochdale G.I. resolution No. 8 unfair, or, at least, it would have been better to have read, "Ballot the members." No doubt a great number of fanciers in this district are hoping that the resolution of Sheffield C.B.S. (No. 5) "that rule 22 be deleted," will be carried, and thus enable them to have the same facilities as non-members. In conclusion, I would like to say that I bear no animosity whatever to the delegates of the C.B.U. who tried my case, and especially to the C.B.U. as a body, as I fully recognise the necessity of a governing body, but on a different basis, or set of rules, than those of the C.B.U.

J. ENGLAND.

SIR,—J. Graham insinuates that Gateshead members who reside in Newcastle have no right to attend the Gateshead meetings, but he appears to have conveniently overlooked the fact that there was at least one fancier there from Sunderland. Of course, Sunderland is only twelve miles distant, whereas Newcastle is a stone's throw. J. Graham appears to be very much upset because some of those obnoxious members voted in opposition to himself. But, again, he conveniently overlooks the fact that most of those who supported him were also Newcastle members. Supposing all the Newcastle members had left the meeting, will he kindly state how many members would have been left besides the chairman and the Sunderland members? J. Graham also appears to have forgotten that the two subjects which he complains of were not introduced by a Newcastle resident. But having been introduced, surely no one but J. Graham will deny that all members (natives or otherwise) had a perfect right to express their opinions on same. There have been many complaints about the small attendance at the Gateshead Society's meetings, but judging by J. Graham's letter, he appears to wish for a continuance of the small attendances. If he wished otherwise he would surely treat members in a more courteous manner when they do attend. If J. Graham cannot do the Gateshead Society any good he ought to refrain from doing it harm by his very evident anxiety to create unpleasantness amongst the members. When he has any grievance let him act like a man and lay it before the meeting. This course would be more creditable to himself and less harmful to the society than resorting to the Fancy Press to attack a fellow member behind his back. At the close of his letter J. G. states they should look at the situation from both sides. What a pity he forgot to do this when writing his letter.

N. D.

SIR,—Kindly grant me space in your columns to inform your correspondent who signs himself "J. Graham" (there is no one bearing this name on the books of the Gateshead Society) that I am quite capable of correctly chronicling the doings of the club I have the honour to represent, and so long as I hold the post of secretary, I shall continue to correctly report the meetings I may be present at. Whether my remarks are indiscreet or uncalled for, or not, they are a faithful record of what transpired, and all Mr. Graham has to do if he thinks I am wrong is to present himself at the next meeting and have things rectified. His remarks about cheques and muzzling certain people are singularly significant of want of good taste. With that I will leave Mr. Graham, although I think I could spell his name correctly in two attempts, and write rats the first time.

GEO. BUCK, Sec. Gateshead C.B.S.

SIR,—It is rather a pity that "Lover of Justice" had not sufficient interest in the welfare of the Newcastle Society as to attend the meeting on January 27th. Perhaps he had got a hint that the fancier on whose behalf he claims to be acting was going to be present, so discreetly kept away. This fancier told the meeting that it was entirely owing to his own neglect that his bird was not found when wanted, and that although Mr. Currah, the show manager, wanted to have the class re-judged, he would not allow this to be done. This fancier also stated that he entirely exonerated the officials from blame in the matter. The meeting unanimously passed a vote of thanks to this fancier for so manfully coming forward in the interests of justice and proving the untruthfulness of the scurrilous charges made by "Lover of Justice," and he received many expressions of sympathy for the injustice done to him by this great lover of justice. "Lover of Justice's" question about the secretary and his books is rather funny. He cannot expect us to believe that he is so very ignorant about them; and does he not know that most of the members unpack, give out the numbers, and stage their own birds? So how can stewards know whether those members have the labels on their cages, in their hands, or in their pockets? Why doesn't "Lover of Justice" try to clear up the charge which was made in your columns a few weeks ago against one of the Newcastle secretaries in connection with the Lister case? If "Lover of Justice" would see to this being done, he would then be doing something towards upholding the reputation of the Newcastle Society, which would be better than trying to drag it in the mud, as he has been doing of late. I see "Twite" is at his old game of slandering his fellow-members. If "Twite" means that the chairman has ever left the chair or meeting before the meeting was ended, or that the chairman has ever made the slightest attempt to coerce any member into his way of thinking, then I say that you, Mr. "Twite," know as well as I do that this is, to put it mildly, quite contrary to truth. Perhaps "Twite" will tell your readers who the gentleman was who at one of the meetings threatened to leave the society if the society left the Union. Of course, that was neither coercion nor intimidation.

A MEMBER.

A New Cage Bird Club for North-West Glasgow.

SIR,—At a well-attended meeting held in the Clarendon Hall, St. George's Cross, Glasgow, on February 4th, for the purpose of starting a new Cage Bird Club for Glasgow, North-Western district, it was unanimously decided that such should be formed, and that the club be called the Glasgow West End Cage Bird Club. The annual subscription to be 4s. The following office bearers were then elected: Honorary president, Mr. Douglas Pearson; president, Mr. A. Miller; vice-presidents, Messrs. H. Jamieson and E. Taylor; auditors, Messrs. A. Crawford and A. E. Bibby. A committee was also appointed, composed of enthusiastic fanciers in the district. We have got the club started with a membership of 44, so we hope all lovers of cage birds will come forward and contribute to making it a great success. Any one wishing particulars of membership, etc., can have same on applying to me.

How to Make and Use Egg-cake.

SIR,—Will some fancier kindly tell me how to make egg-cake, and how to use it? As I am away from home, too, from 5 a.m. to 7 p.m., I should like to know if it would go sour, before night, if being given early in the morning.

F. GEORGE.

Mr. G. H. Chirgwin's Christmas Appeal.

SIR,—On behalf of the above, I forwarded to Mr. Chirgwin one pair of Norwich Plainhead Canaries (acknowledged in CAGE BIRDS, Feb. 5th) for our worthy friend to sell for the benefit of the Variety Artistes' Benevolent Fund, which is deserving of every assistance. Any fanciers who might have a pair they could afford to give, or even a single cock, Mr. Chirgwin would sell the same to the very best advantage, and pass the amount over duly to the V.A.B.F. Mr. Chirgwin's address, so that any donations could be forwarded, or letters, is, "Easedale," Leigham Court Road, Streatham Hill, London, S.W. I hope many more will be willing to assist a good cause.

JOHN H. JOWETT.

A Welsh Fancier's Sad Misfortune.

SIR,—May I be allowed to make an appeal through your valuable paper on behalf of Mr. Harry Wedlock, of Andrews Road, Whitchurch, who, through a serious fire, had about 30 valuable Canaries literally roasted, and all his cages burnt and bird-room gutted? Mr. Wedlock was away from home following his occupation as a driver of the Llandaff Laundry van. His plucky little wife, who was also away from home, arrived in time to see the house on fire, and at a great risk ran up the burning stairs to try to save the birds, but found them all dead, and she narrowly escaped the same fate. I know from past experience that the Cardiff fanciers will respond, and should any other fancier be good enough, I will gladly acknowledge any small sum or gift of odd birds. I have already two pairs promised, and I hope with help to give Harry a good start for the breeding season.

F. P. DYMOND.

Several Letters unavoidably held over.

Under the White Rose.

THE DATE of the Great Amalgamated Social and Prize Distribution has been definitely fixed for March 5th, and all arrangements are well in hand; dinner as before 1s. 6d. per head. Those intending to be there please notify the Union secretary, Mr. H. Hill, 15, Settle Terrace, Thornton Lane, Little Horton, Bradford, not later than Monday, February 28th, or they may be left without dinner; the musical part of the programme is all fixed up, and by special request of the committee who have the matter in hand, Mr. D. Sunderland has again consented to act as chairman for the day. Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Ramsden, and very many other fanciers have accepted the invitation to be present, and will be accorded a hearty Yorkshire welcome, something they won't forget for some considerable time.

ANNUAL Great National Cage Bird Show at the Crystal Palace is now passed. What hopes may have been crushed! And what little may have been realised! It is the ambition of most breeders to produce a Palace winner, and happy is the man who reaches the desired goal. Of course in Yorkshire the Yorkshire bird is predominant, and the first inquiries are :"Who's won in Clear Yallers?" etc. Mr. J. Bailey secured a fair share of honours—3 firsts, 2 seconds, and others. Mr. H. H. Towers in Cinnamon Marks scored 2 firsts and 3 seconds, and Messrs. Ogden Bros. were well in with 2 firsts and three thirds, and Messrs. Amblers with 2 firsts and one second.

AMONGST the novices two or three of the West Riding fanciers scored pretty freely at the Palace. Mr. Joe Thomas had no less than four firsts, Mr. H. Smith had 2 firsts and a second with four birds down, and others were in close attendance. In Yorkshire Greens, Messrs. Pickup, Clayton, and Simpson were able to hold their own, securing a good share of the spoil.

GREAT HORTON Society have arranged their syllabus for members' shows for 1910. The first show is to be held on February 26th, and the last on December 26th. The shows are six in number, and for most points throughout the season a good number of prizes are offered, the first being "The Great Horton O.S. Members' Cup," value 5 guineas, to be won three times before becoming the property of any exhibitor. This cup carries with it a guinea medal for each winner, and the society have to thank Messrs. Hartley for a great share in the getting up of such a valuable trophy. The competition will be pretty keen, and a goodly number will have a dab for it.

BRADFORD CITY O.S. held their annual dinner on Shrove Tuesday, at the Market Tavern, Godwin Street, Bradford, when some 60 odd members and friends with their wives sat down to a splendid repast, provided by the host, Mr. W. H. Mitchell. Dinner over, dance and song reigned supreme. Amongst the "crack" dancers we specially noticed that old veteran fancier, Mr. J. Clark, who led some of the youngsters a hard life during the evening; "first up and last down," appeared to be his motto. Some good talent had been engaged, and time sped all too quickly, so well carried out were the arrangements. During the evening the secretary gave a brief outline of the past year's work, which has been very successful, with a record show; in fact, a record year, which leaves behind it a good bank balance and perfect harmony amongst the members.

NEXT Sunday evening the Bradford East O.S. are having a special service at their headquarters, Park Chapel, New Cross Street, West Bowling, and they invite all fanciers to attend. All parts of the service (except the sermon) are to be undertaken by fanciers or their wives, etc. Mr. Hill, their secretary (and secretary of the Yorks. Union) reads the lesson, and Mrs. Laycock sings the solos.

THE Yorkshire Union Council met on Saturday last, when some very serious business was under consideration, re alleged cases of the lending and borrowing of birds for exhibition, which is strictly against the rules of the Union. Some nine or ten fanciers were thought to be implicated in this affair, which consisted of borrowing and lending birds for exhibition in the Yorkshire Union novice classes, but after hearing a lot of evidence only three were found guilty. These were severely dealt with; one was expelled from the Union, and the other two were suspended, sine die. None of the three appeared before the Council. All implicated hail from the Skelmanthorpe district. Without a douht the Y.U. will have to put a strong hand on this practice, or the novice classes will not fulfil their purpose, and the sentences passed should deter people from this practice; they must eventually be found out.

BRADFORD EAST O.S.

Lecture by Mr. H. W. WALSH.

The lecture which Mr. H. W. Walsh gave before the members of the above society on February 1st was a perfect treat, and was listened to with the keenest of interest by a large number of fanciers. Mr. Walsh said in his opening remarks that the reason he had consented to give a lecture on an important topic was simply to give the novice members of the society the benefit of the experience which he had come into contact with.

Dealing with the room and cages, and the arrangement of the latter, he said that his fancy is to have his room facing south-east, and he likes a good-sized single breeding cage, preferring them enamelled out, rather than whitewashed or distempered. To the beginners he gave the advice to place themselves in the hands of a capable breeder, and he thought that if they only followed the information that was given from time to time they would soon be making headway in the Fancy. The beginner would have to be led according to the success or failure that came his way. Explaining his method of feeding, Mr. Walsh said that he did not think there was anything to beat the old-fashioned egg and bread, along with good sound canary seed, plenty of clean water, and either watercress or lettuce for feeding the stock during breeding time. This was also the time when the fancier had to be on his guard against the hundred and one things that crop up to upset his plans.

When the young are hatched out, the lecturer continued, give the birds every attention, and if you see anything going wrong, try your best to rectify things at once. If I find that the hen seems to be sweating the young, I put a couple of senna leaves into the drinking water for a couple of days, and this generally has the desired effect, as I think it is the bowels that get out of order, and senna, being a mild aperient, soon puts them right again.

Mr. Walsh removes the young ones when they are three weeks old, the best time, in his opinion, being the last thing at night, when just coming dusk. The young ones seem to settle down better when taken away at this time than when taken away during the day. He said, I give the young birds water when I take them away, as I think it is absolute cruelty to keep them off it for five or six weeks, as some fanciers do, and I also believe they are more subject to ailments and disease.

If I see the young birds looking a bit puffy at night, the lecturer said, my first thing the next morning is to hang a bath on for them, and this generally has the effect of brightening them up again. Young birds want special care when they start cracking seed, and I always give them a good supply of crushed seed when I take them away from the parents, as I think this induces them to crack it for themselves sooner. When moulting young birds, I like to put 40 or 50 of them into a certain large flight which I have, taking care to mark them before putting them in, so that I can know them afterwards. My reason for this is that they get rid of the feathers sooner with the exercise, they eat the colour-food better, and they use the bath more frequently, when there are a lot together. When the birds are three parts through the moult, I remove them into separate cages, in order to finish them off, and it is very little bother they cause me when I use this method.

For keeping my birds in show condition, I give them a pinch of egg and biscuit about twice a week, along with a bit of mixed seed, and this I have found very beneficial.

Mr. Walsh then dealt at some length with the so-called red-mite traps, closing with the advice to keep red mite down at all costs. The meeting was then thrown open for discussion, and many questions were put to the lecturer, all of which he answered in fine style. A vote of thanks was proposed by Mr. G. White, and kindly seconded by the President (Mr. E. Suddards), for Mr. Walsh's kindness in giving his lecture. Mr. Walsh suitably responded to same. Will all members and friends take note that the next meeting is on February 22nd, and not February 25th, when Mr. S. Whiting will give his lecture.—H. HILL, Secretary.

QUEEN'S PARK AND DIST. C.B.A

Matched pair show, held at Emmanuel Hall, Harrow Road, W., on Feb. 12. There was a slight falling off in the entries this year, which, however, numbered 95 pairs; last year just over 100 pairs were staged. All classes were well patronised, but the first year novice classes. The feature of the show was the Yorkshire novice class, with 25 pairs, and the Norwich and Yorkshire champion classes. There was a very fair attendance during the evening, and the event bids fair to be a financial success.

Annual table show (of matched pairs for breeding purposes) was held at headquarters on Feb. 2nd. Mr. Ben Mawes judged. The judging competition was won by Mr. J. Ronald. Never before in the history of the society has such an array of splendid stock birds been on view. The Norwich were a magnificent lot, and well worth going away from the fireside on a miserably wet evening to see. Seventeen pairs were adjudicated upon, not a bad pair to be found, and in the Yorkshire Section no fewer than ten pairs were on view, and throughout were a very level lot.

PARTICK AND DISTRICT C.B.C.

First monthly show of breeding pairs was held in the Trades Hall, Anderson Street, on Feb. 4. Entries came up well considering the time of the year, about 50 pairs being staged, and the quality of the exhibits was of the highest order. The Norwich were a grand lot, and should produce some fine youngsters, and the Crests though not very numerous were of capital quality. Mr. J. A. Ferguson judged, and his awards gave every satisfaction. The members had a discussion on the awards, and Mr. Ferguson suitably answered all questions. A hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Ferguson brought a successful show to a close.

CODNOR PARK AND DIS. C.B.S.

First table show held Jan. 29th, when we provided three classes, which brought together a grand lot of birds, a great credit to their owners. Mr. Scothern kindly gave a silver medal for best bird in show, which was won by a fine Bullfinch, belonging to Mr. Mitchell. Mr. W. Harrison judged, his awards giving the greatest satisfaction.

CAN. (11): 1, 3, Simpson; 2, Vertigan. BRIT. (6): 1, 2 spls, Mitchell; 2, Wild; 3, Holmes. AMAT.: 1, 2, Williamson. A meeting was held after judging, when ten more members were enrolled, which brings our total to 20 members. It was arranged to hold our next meeting on Feb. 12th, 7 p.m., when important business will be discussed, arranging a stock pair show for Feb. 26th, also rules. I appeal to fanciers to rally round this newly-formed society, which has every prospect of becoming a strong one. Fanciers from Nottingham districts have the G.R. railway advantage, as Codnor Park stations adjoin the club room.—J. H MITCHELL, hon. sec.

GREENWICH & DEPTFORD C.B.S.

Pair show held in the new headquarters at Cecil Hall, Woolwich Road, E. Greenwich, on Feb. 10th. The members turned up well, and the number of exhibits was nearly double that at last pair show, and reached the total of 41. At this rate of progress, the society looks forward to a good year, and it is a pleasure to note that five gentlemen were elected members. Mr. F. Easterling judged, and after judging, gave a few remarks on the exhibits.

Yorkshires.

BAILEY'S STRAIN

Is bang at the top again, over all other so called champion strains, having won this season the Yorkshire Union 30 guinea challenge trophy, and Naylor's challenge cup, at the Yorkshire shows, with fifty per cent. less entries than nearest competitor; have also won at Y.C.C. competition, Ramsden's challenge cup and Sandiford's challenge cup, only showing at eight shows, and my nearest opponent showing at ten shows, finishing at Pulace with more 1sts than any other fancier in open section. I think this will convince you that the Sandy Lane stud are clear away from all others. Have few pairs same strain as above at 20/-, also few pairs extra quality from 60/- to 80/-; odd hens, either colour, feathered like paint; stamp reply: South View Terrace, Sandy Lane, Allerton, Bradford.

CINNAMON MARKS

We still hold the largest stock of cinnamon marks in England. We have bred, won, and sold more winners during the last ten years than any other breeder of this variety of Yorkshire. These birds being our speciality, we have at present a grand stock of birds for disposal. Clear and marked, either matched in pairs or single birds in the best of condition; single birds from 10/-, pairs from 20/-. Write to us, and state your requirements. Stamp for reply to Victoria-st., Huddersfield.

MALLINSON & SON.

Winning Yorkshires.

Direct from "Mr. Bates, Stoke," strain, which won for him thousands of prizes. I have sold from this strain to Mr. Blackhurst some toppers, and he wou 1st, 2nd, 3rd, 1908, Crystal Palace; also 1sts, 2nds, 3rds at Bolton, Morecambe, etc., this season; also Mr. Banks, Cardiff, won 1sts, 2nds, etc., with this strain supplied by me. Some grand youngsters, same strain and models; cocks, Yellows or Buffs, from 6/-, 7/-, 8/-, 10/-, 12/-, 15/-, 20/-; hens, Yellows or Buffs, 5/-, 6/-, 7/6, 10/-, 12/-; matched pairs, to breed winners, 12/-, 14/-, 16/-, 18/-, 20/- pair. Any I send on approval and guaranteed to please you, as I don't exhibit these myself. Order at once; breeder 25 years.—Sandiford, Canary Breeder and Judge, Prestou, Lancashire.

PARROT PROBLEM

solved. For full proofs send postcard at once for my large book, "Parrot Prattle," now containing 168 pages. This is the most wonderful book ever offered free of all charge to all Parrot fanciers. (This "Parrot Prattle" is registered copyright, and all infringers and imitators will be proceeded against). It contains huudreds of testimonials from all parts with full names and addresses, many interesting facts, and gives valuable advice and hints to all Parrot buyers. Full details of our original system of selling Parrots on four weeks' trial, at our risk, which we were the first to introduce. We sell Parrots of all descriptions on four weeks' trial, at our risk, before settlement. Cheapest and best in the Kingdom, and any Parrot sold by us and not giving full satisfaction, will be exchanged any time within twelve months. Remember we lead and others try to follow. Write to other dealers as well as us, and judge for yourselves. Lists of Parrots for sale and above book post free on receipt of postcard. Telephone No. 40 Morecambe.

CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL

Many Splendid Features this Year.

It contains articles, written by experts, upon practically every phase of the hobby of bird-keeping—articles invaluable for reference purposes—articles, in fact, which will ensure "CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL" for 1910 becoming A TREASURED POSSESSION OF EVERY BIRD-KEEPER.

CONSIDER THIS WONDERFUL LIST.

THE DISINFECTION OF BIRD ROOMS AND CAGES. By G. Yates, M.R.C.V.S.

How disinfection should be carried out, either to prevent disease or to overcome disease when present.

HOW TO BECOME A SUCCESSFUL KEEPER OF BRITISH BIRDS. By G. G. Henderson.

Tells you all about the room, the cages, the appliances, the seeds, and other foods, and gives many hints which will bring you to the front rank as a successful British bird keeper.

AN EASY METHOD OF BREEDING CANARIES. By Cornelius Hoyle.

Explains how the author has very successfully and profitably bred Canaries at a minimum cost of trouble and time to himself.

LANDMARKS OF THE FANCIERS' YEAR. By Claude St. John.

"To be forewarned is to be forearmed"; that is the keynote of this splendid article, which shows how, by judicious treatment beforehand, many of the troubles and ills which are the commonest cause of the failure of bird-breeders and keepers may be averted.

MULE BREEDING FROM CANARY HENS. By C. E. Truscott.

The easiest and most profitable form of Mule (or Hybrid) breeding is with the Canary hen and cock Finch. This contribution explains the best and simplest procedure to attain success in this fascinating branch of the Hybrid-breeder's art.

THE FEEDING OF FOREIGN BIRDS. By F.Z.S.

A contribution which points out how a more varied diet than is usually offered may be given to foreign birds to their undoubted benefit.

THE TREATMENT OF, AND MEDICINES FOR, AILING CAGE BIRDS.

Departures from health in the bird-room are common sources of anxiety to fanciers, and cause much racking of brains to find the best remedial agents. This unique article fully explains the properties and uses of the medicinal agents which have been proved by bird-keepers to bring successful results in combating the ailments of their pets. Broken limbs, egg-binding, fits, constipation, inflammation, moulting, bird-lice, red-mite, the care of the claws, etc., etc., are also fully dealt with.

Seven features which give the bird-keeper absolutely indispensable and invaluable information at a cost of less than one penny each.

In addition "Cage Birds Annual" for 1910 contains:

A Monthly Calendar, with Tables when Eggs are due to hatch; Hints on the Formation of a Cage Bird Society; A Year with the Wild Birds; Standards and Scales of Points of Exhibition Birds; Alphabetical Directory to the Cage Bird Societies; Dictionary of Fanciers' Terms; Directory to the Bird Trade; Review of the Exhibition Year; Directory to the Judges of Cage Birds; List of Prominent Breeders and Exhibitors; Useful Postal and other information; Cash Account Columns, etc. Also

A lovely coloured plate and many art, etc., illustrations of birds—Norwich, Yorkshire, Crest, Border, Lizard, etc., Canaries, Blackcap Warbler, Siskin, Gouldian Finch, Hybrids, etc.

ALL FOR SIXPENCE: Of all Newsagents or Bookstalls; OR POST FREE, 8d.

☞ Secretaries of Societies, Bird Dealers, and others engaged in communication with Birdkeepers, should take up an Agency for retailing our Publications.

We are not responsible for the statements made in advertisements, nor of the bona-fides of either buyers or sellers In all transactions the adoption of our Deposit System should be insistedupon.

IMPORTANT.

SEND THE FULL COMMISSION.—If the full commission does not accompany the deposit, the vendor will not be notified of its receipt until the amount deficient, plus the extra postage incurred, has been paid to us.

HOW TO REMIT.—Under no circumstances will Cheques or Post-dated Money Orders be accepted as deposits. Uncrossed Postal Orders must be sent and the numbers taken for safety.

RULES.

1.—PROCEDURE.—The intending purchaser should send to this office the amount of the purchase (our deposit fee included), and at the same time he should communicate with the seller, stating what it is he requires sent on approval. We acknowledge receipt of the deposit to both parties. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vendor, and must write same clearly and distinctly.

2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. If a sale has been effected, we hand the amount deposited to the seller. If a sale has not been effected, we return the amount to the depositor. The transaction must be conducted by the parties themselves. We merely hold the deposit.

3.—AMOUNT OF COMMISSION.—The fee is 6d. for each £1, or fraction of £1, and it must be sent at same time as the deposit.

4.—IMPORTANT POINTS.—The depositor must decide within forty-eight hours of the receipt of the goods whether he will keep or return the same, unless, that is, some other period of approval (of which we must be advised) is agreed upon by both parties. The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods. If the goods are not returned within the said forty-eight hours, we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period. And should the seller fail within three days to notify us of the receipt of his goods back again, the transaction will be treated as ended, and the deposit be returned to the depositor.

5.—A SATISFACTORY PURCHASE.—When a transaction has been completed to the satisfaction of both depositor and seller, both parties must at once return the deposit receipts as a guarantee of its completion. The depositor must at the same time instruct us to pay over the deposit to the seller.

6.—GOODS ALREADY SOLD.—If the goods are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or, if for any other reason he declines to do business, he must at once return the deposit note to us. Failing its receipt, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the sender after the expiration of three days.

8.—GOODS IN TRANSIT.—Goods in transit are at the seller's risk, and any damage or loss sustained on the journey must be borne by the seller. But goods not approved of must be properly packed and returned by the same means as were used in sending the same.

9.—PAYMENT OF CARRIAGE.—The payment of carriage must be a matter for arrangement between the vendor and depositor. We do not undertake to settle disputes affecting questions of carriage. But in the absence of other arrangements the purchaser is liable for the carriage of the goods, and if the goods are sent on approval and returned, each party pays the carriage one way.

IMPORTANT NOTE.—Two or more Advertisements coming from the same advertiser, even if sent in different names, are reckoned together, and, after the first Sixteen words, are charged at two words a penny, but no single advertisement, even if accompanied by others, will be charged at less than the minimum price, viz., Sixpence.

Headlines or Footlines 6d., 9d., 1-, 16 according to size.

Small prepaid advertisements of a general nature and not connected in any way with the Cage Bird Trade are inserted at the rate of ½d. per word throughout. Minimum 12 words 6d.

Advertisements must in all cases bear the bona fide name and address of the advertiser, and no advertisement will be inserted if addressed to a receiving office, or similar place of call.

Postal Orders must be sent as far as possible. All moneys should be made payable to F. CARL.

The Proprietor reserves the right to refuse any advertisement, or to cancel any advertisement ordered for a series, at any time, without assigning any reason for so doing.

Advertisements close Tuesdays first post in each week, and should be sent to the Advertisement Manager, CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London. Terms for Display Advertisements on application.

MY SELF-ACTING NET TRAP

catches birds of every description without attention; price 1/6, larger size 2/-; carriage paid. I have received hundreds of testimonials stating they are A1 for catchers. Read two, and beware of imitations that are not worth the carriage: "Sir, net trap to hand; it's honestly worth dozens of some nets advertised. I tried it this afternoon, and caught more birds in two hours that I caught in other traps in two months.—George Matthews, Lucas-st., Stockport." "Sir, trap arrived. It's far superior to all others. I have to-day caught 15 Linnets, 6 Redpolls, 4 Chaffinches, 3 Greenfinches.—J. Scragg, Old Brewery, Armitage-rd., Rugby." Entirely self-acting and self-setting trap cages, warranted to catch birds and reset without attention, 1/6; loose netting, strongest and finest obtainable, ½in mesh, 7ft. deep, 5d. yard; ¾in. mesh, 7ft. deep, 3d., 10ft. deep 4d. yard, post free: Morris, 112, Cape-hill, Birmingham.

HARRY ALLEN, THE ORIGINAL

I hold the world's record for mulers, and I have won more prizes than any six dealers put together. Proof, this paper for contest singing, read back numbers of C.B., and see my performance. This is no bluff, but sound facts; contradiction defied. I have been very busy this two months training my birds, which I now have ready for sale. The original quality Linnet singing strain of the world. House-moulted Linnets, trained to perfection, for contest singing only, 10/6, 15/-, and one guinea, two guineas, three guineas, five guineas, seven guineas, and 10 guineas each. These are taught by the champion Linnet of the world, and will sing face to face with any other bird in a cage; these birds are sent on three days' approval. Only Linnets taught by the world's champion, will sing anywhere, 2/6, and a few specials 3/6. Linnets, singing grand, with beautiful notes, and a beautiful polished cage, and the original book of secrets, and a packet of my special mixture, 3/6 and 4/6. Muling Linnets, guaranteed to mule, for which I hold the world's record, for proof this paper, 2/6 each. I defy any dealer in the world to supply the same for the money. I have the finest lot of Goldfinches I have had this season, all specially picked, fit for the Palace, 7/6 and 10/6; can win anywhere; beautiful Peathroats, 10/6; other beautiful cock Goldfinches, singing daylight and gaslight, 3/6, 4/6, and 5/-. I have four hundred of these beautiful birds in stock. I have been storing them up for my customers. I have 300 beautiful cock Chaffinches that have been in aviary since October, 1/- and 1/6; Larks, singing daylight and gaslight, as steady as rocks, 1/6, 2/6, and a few extra specials, 4/6. All the above birds are in show condition. Muling pairs, cock Goldfinch and hen Canary, 6/-, 7/6, and 10/-; cock Goldfinch and hen Bullfinch, 6/-; cock Linnet and hen Canary, 5/-; very large cock Greenfinch and hen Canary, 3/6 and 4/-; cages for any of the above, 1/-, 2/-, and 3/-; extra beautiful Yorkshire Canaries, 10/6 and 15/- per pair; beautiful Norwich, 10/6 and 15/-, worth double. Many thanks to my Leeds customers for their kind patronage at my shop, and my bird stall in the Leeds Bird Market, where I have sold 3,000 Linnets in eight weeks. Look! First prize amongst the champions, and first prize amongst the novices. Please read what others say:—"1, Dawlish-road, Leeds.—The Linnet I had from you won 1st in strong class at Northallerton against the cracks in the North; much admired. Thanking you for straight dealings.—B. Simpson to H. Allen." "12, Cast-street, Fryston, Castleford.—Dear Sir,—The Linnet I got from you won 1st prize in a class of 17 at the Glasshaughton Show, on December 27th. Wishing you every success.—J. Caddy to H. Allen." "23, Bright-street, Skipton, Yorks.—Dear Mr. Allen, —The Goldfinch I got from you last week gives me every satisfaction. The Redpoll I got from you last year got vhc at Preston in a class of 22 first time shown. I shall certainly patronise you again when in want of British birds.—Yours truly, James Nicholson, to H. Allen. Now, pick out what you require, and send at once. Only honest dealing done with me. For one year and nine months I have not had one single bird returned; proof, the Editor of this paper, which shows my honesty. So write to the largest British bird dealer in the world: Harry Allen, Bird Specialist and Judge, City Aviaries, 40, Beckett-st., Leeds.

On account of promotion and removal, I am compelled to reduce my stock. I have a nice lot of stock birds, either in pairs or single; prices reasonable to clear: Bryntcg, Alexandra-rd., Brecon.

I Want to Impress upon you

the stubborn fact that I possess one of the most remarkable collections of Plainheaded Norwich ever seen, both in quantity and quality. Exhibition specimens, cocks or hens, 10/6, 15/-, 20/- up. State requirements fully and have on approval, that is the only way to be convinced. All are more than good value, but neither talk nor this advertisement will prove it. The merit must be seen and compared according to price.

NOTE FOLLOWING:—

Plainheaded Norwich Cocks.—Clear Yellow, 6/6, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, 30/-, upwards. Clear Buff, 6/-, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, upwards. Ticked or Variegated, 5/6, 6/-, 6/6, 7/6, 10/6,12/6, 15/-, 20/- upwards.

Plainheaded Norwich Hens.—Clear Yellow, 3/6, 4/-, 4/6, 5/-, 7/6, 10/6, 15/-, 20/-, 30/-. Clear Buff, 3/-, 4/-, 5/-, 7/6, 10/6, 15/-, 20/-. Ticked or Variegated, 2/6, 3/6, 4/-, 5/-, 7/6, 10/6, 15/-. Pairs Norwich Plainheads Matched for Breeding, 7/6, 8/6, 9/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, 30/- upwards. Travelling Cages, 3d. extra.

Just compare the above prices with others, to say nothing of quality, but there is no guesswork here; it is not a game of chance, as with some, who, although they give themselves names, only have an idea of the value by the price other dealers charge them. Hence, don't expect the best bird at the lowest price; yet all are Best Value—that is my great point. Call and inspect thousands of testimonials here.

W. RUDD, THE Bird Specialist,

TRISTEM & TAYLER'S CRYSTAL PALACE WINNING NORWICH.

This strain always winning, note, 50 prizes this season, including 20 firsts, 2 cups, including Bristol Challenge Cup; see reports Bristol, Cheltenham, Cardiff, Palace, etc.; matched pairs to breed winners, from 30/- to 60/-; single birds, 7/6 upwards; all one strain, own breeding; healthy; cold room; state requirements; stamp; approval with pleasure: Elstem House, Winchester Road, Brishington, Bristol.

TO BEGINNERS.

If you cannot afford a big price, send for a pair of my correctly matched Norwich at 8/6 or 9/6; and now note this.—In most cases where you send for pairs at this price, you are sent two buffs, often both marked birds—this is where you do not get what is required—well, I send you one marked, and one clear, one buff, and the other yellow. Travelling cage 3d. extra. Then for 3/6 I will send you a Double Breeding Cage, fitted with everything complete, for an immediate start. Total for Birds and Cage, 12/3, for 8/6 birds, or 13/3 for 9/6 birds. But I would strongly recommend you to have my Cage No. 100; it has sand drawers, and is fitted with sanitary furniture throughout, and the price is only 5/-. Travelling cages, 3d. extra.

IT'S TRUE.

If you want birds of good quality you must be sure to place your order with a genuine reliable breeder, trainer, and dealer, who offers you the most advantageous terms. I have so thoroughly studied the requirements of the Fancy, that I can guarantee to give you every satisfaction with high-class birds at reasonable prices. Let me send you the birds you require, carriage paid to your address, at my sole risk, on seven clear days' approval, you will then be convinced that for style and quality, combined with cheapness, I stand unsurpassable. This is easily proved by the thousands of unsolicited testimonials I have from time to time published in this journal, yet those published only represent a few of the many received daily from delighted customers in all parts of the world. The following are a few taken at random from those received this month, and I offer £50 if every one received is not genuine and unsolicited: Torry, Aberdeen, 7/2/10.—I got the bird all right; he is singing well, and is such a beautiful bird.—J. Tarvet to Miss Storey. Fair View, Farnham, 7/2/10.—Received birds quite safe in good condition; please accept best thanks for such beautiful birds. They are much better than I expected for money. Shall certainly send to you again.—E. Chandler to Miss Storey. Spike Island, Queenstown, 9/2/10.—Receiver Roller all correct, and am well satisfied with him. Have instructed Editor to forward you amount. He is such a capital songster.—F. Chapman, Sergt. R.G.A., to Miss Storey. 104, Bohemia-rd., St. Leonards, 9/2/10.—Bird arrived safe; we are pleased with him. Thanking you for sending such a beauty.—C. Coleman to Miss Storey. 4, Tying-ter., Llandudno.—Birds arrived safely; very pleased with them, singing grand.—D. Roberts to Miss Storey. Gracious-st., Whittlesea, 11/2/10.—Received Canaries this morning; well satisfied with them; they are very good birds, especially at the price.—J. Negus to Miss Storey. King-st., Ilkeston, 11/2/10.—Received birds in splendid condition; am highly satisfied; much better than anticipated for the money. Thanks for your straightforward dealings.—A. Wheatley to Miss Storey. 10, Linstling-row, Cwmbach, 11/2/10.—Received birds in good health, quite pleased with them; thanks for sending such nice songsters.—A. Williams to Miss Storey. Newlands Farm, Alfreton, 7/2/10.—Bird arrived safe and sound; I am much pleased with it being such a fine bird.—G. Seabridge to Miss Storey. 501, Lordship-lane, Dulwich, S.E., 7/2/10.—Received bird all right; am very pleased with it; I could not wish for a better.—A. Phillips to Miss Storey. Glaspart House, Fiarfach, 9/2/10.—Bird received from you gives me every satisfaction; he sings first thing in the morning until last thing at night; wishing you every success.—J. Richards to Miss Storey. 17, Harcourt-st., Darlington. 9/2/10.—Bird arrived safe, in perfect condition, and gives every satisfaction; thanks for sending such a nice songster.—J. Rolls to Miss Storey. 22, Nook-st., Frizington. 10/2/10.—Birds arrived safe; I am fully satisfied with your fair treatment.—F. Pidd to Miss Storey. Church Hill, Swanage. 11/2/10.—Received birds quite safe in excellent condition; am very pleased with them.—F. Tatchell to Miss Storey. I could fill the whole of this paper with such letters from delighted customers, but the above samples will convince you that the name Storey stands for quality. The quality of my birds defies competition. Note the following prices. But you must see the quality, it will astound you. Genuine trained St. Andreasberg Rollers, cocks, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6; a few contest songsters, 15/-, 20/-, 25/-; hens, 2/6, 3/6; Hartz Rollers, loud free songsters, cocks, 5/3, 5/9, 6/3, 6/9; matched pairs, 7/6, 8/6, 9/6; Yorkshire cocks, 6/6, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6; Yorkshire hens, 3/6, 4/6, 5/6; matched breeding pairs, 8/6, 9/6, 10/6, 12/6; Norwich cocks and hens or matched pairs same prices as Yorkshires; neat travelling cages, 3d. each extra; full illustrated price list of birds and cages, 1d. for postage.
